OBITUARIES

Joan C. Salvaggio, 78

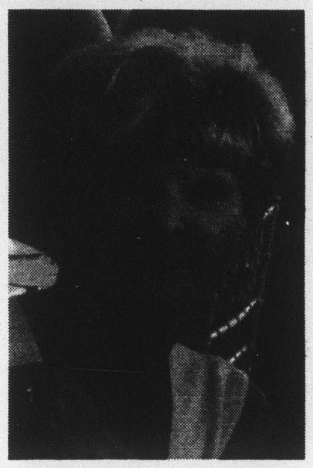
A funeral Mass for Joan C. (Buckley) Salvaggio, 78, of Rockland and Naples, Fla., formerly of Braintree and Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 18 in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Salvaggio died peacefully Aug. 14 at Brigham and Women's Hospital, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Boston to the late Ralph and Mary (Locke) Buckley. She was raised and educated in Weymouth and was a graduate of the former Sacred Heart High School, Class of 1956. She had lived in Rockland for eight years and was a longtime resident of Naples, Fla. She had previously lived thirty years in Braintree and also in Quincy.

Mrs. Salvaggio was a devoted homemaker and enjoyed reading, crossword puzzles and cooking. She was dedicated to her family and especially to her cherished grandchildren, supporting their many activities and accomplishments. Joan was the life and laughter of any family gathering.

Beloved wife for fifty-four years of Robert J. Salvaggio, Captain, Quincy Police Department, Retired. Devoted mother of Robert J. Salvaggio, Jr. and his wife Bernice of Mendon, Michael J. Salvaggio and his wife Robin of Cary, NC, Paul K. Salvaggio and his wife Maria of Middleton. Loving grandmother of Kevin, Drew, Julia, Nicolas, Ella and Andrea.



JOAN C. SALVAGGIO

One of seven siblings, Mrs. Salvaggio was sister of Patricia Hackett, Edward Buckley, Weymouth Fire Dept., Retired, Noreen Tilley, all of Weymouth and pre-deceased by Ruth Hackett, Ralph Buckley and Marie Dwyer. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

The Salvaggio family would like to acknowledge and thank the doctors, nurses and staff on ICU-3C at Brigham and Women's Hospital for the outstanding care and compassion that was provided to Mrs. Salvaggio during this difficult time.

Memorial donations may be made to the Saint Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105

Jens E. Thornton

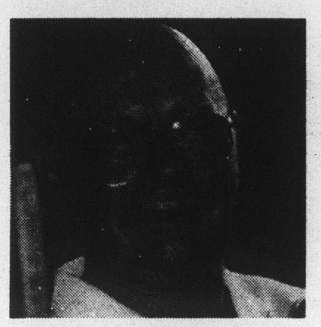
A funeral service for Jens E. Thornton of Squantum was held Aug. 18 in the First Church of Squantum.

Mr. Thornton died peacefully Aug. 13 with his family by his side.

He was born in Arlington.

Cherished husband of the late Carol A. (Dalton). Loving father of Marlene E. of Quincy and Oak Bluffs, Gail I. Nicholson and her husband Michael of CA, J. Eric of Squantum, Bruce S. and his wife Maryanne of Norwell, Mark G of Quincy, Leif A. and his wife Lee of Weymouth and June E. Kaps and her husband Jeffrey of Squantum. He is also survived by 26 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Thornton was a tireless champion of the environment. He spoke for the trees, the oceans, the fish and crustaceans. And, he fought to save our shores. He was a much-needed thorn in the side of Quincy politics, fighting tooth and nail for open space and against political corruption. He fought Massport/FAA to force them to re-direct air traffic to over the water. Mr. Thornton fought the city of Boston/State to stop them from filling in the harbor for the World's Fair. And tried in vain to keep the Marina from being developed.



JENS E. THORNTON

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by Lydon Chapel, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 300 5th Ave, Waltham, MA 02451.

William E. Phillips, Jr.

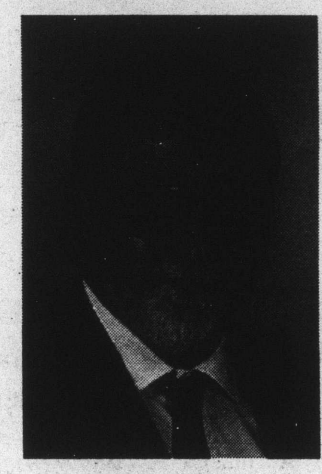
Son of the late William E Phillips Sr. and the late Electa (Alger) Phillips, both of Vermont.

Mr. Phillips was a proud 25+-year member of the Boston Local 88 tunnel workers union "Sand Hogs" and worked on both the Deer Island and "Big Dig" projects. Born and raised in Boston, he later proudly called the Squantum area of Quincy his home.

He enjoyed home improvement projects, the Boston Red Sox, and inviting friends and family for pool party cookouts. He never missed the yearly Squantum July 4th parade.

Mr. Phillips was the youngest of seven siblings, including brother Paul Phillips of East Bridgewater. He was beloved by his partner of 40 years, Margaret Maubourquette, and her children: Andrea, Pamela and Jeffrey, as well as grandchildren Dominic and Celeste.



WILLIAM E. PHILLIPS, JR.

Services are private and a memorial service will be held at a date to be announced.

6th Anniversary Mass

Judith M. Maloney

August 29, 2011 - August 29, 2017

God Saw You Getting Tired

God saw you getting tired
And a cure was not to be,
So He put His arms around you
And whispered "come to Me".
A golden heart stopped beating,
Hard working hands at rest,
God broke our hearts
To prove to us
He only takes the best.

Lovingly remembered by children, grandchildren & great grandchildren

Marian A. Fee, 79

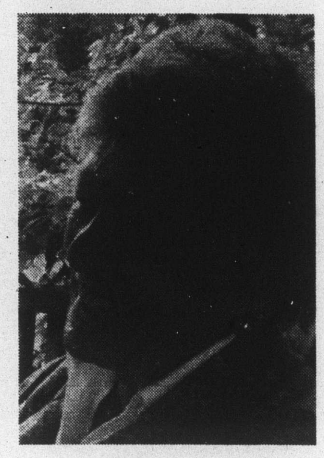
Memorial services for Marian A. (Ellis) Fee, age 79, a longtime Quincy resident, will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Fee died Aug. 18 at South Shore Hospital, surrounded by her loving family, after a courageous battle with colon cancer.

She was born in Salisbury, England, on February 12, 1938. She was a graduate of Norland College, UK, where she was trained as a nanny. She moved to Lebanon and was employed as a nanny when she met and married her husband, Norman T. Fee, Jr., a soldier serving in the U.S. Army. They travelled and lived throughout East Asia and Europe during which time they became parents of their four children. In 1971, they settled in Quincy where Mrs. Fee worked as a preschool teacher and earned an associate's degree from Wheelock College in Boston. She was well known for the Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls she sewed for so many children.

She retired in 2010 and spent her time enjoying the home she loved with her cherished pet dog Ayla. Mrs. Fee was an avid gardener. She also enjoyed crafting, quilting and spending time with her family, friends and groups, Winer's Club and Stitches and B's.

Beloved wife of the late Norman T. Fee, Jr. Devoted mother of Sharon A. Fee of Quincy, M. Thomasina Fee of Braintree, Norman T. "Sonny" Fee III of Quincy, Karen I. Redfield and her husband Edward of East Bridgewater. Loving grandmother of Harley E. Redfield. Dear daughter of the late Bernard S. and Charlotte (Hayter) Ellis and stepdaughter of the late Inger (Bell) Ellis. Sister-in-law of Valerie White of Quincy, Jill Ellis and Antonia Curtin and also survived by several nieces.



MARIAN A. FEE

Visiting hours are 5 to 8 p.m. Friday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

At the request of the family, there will be a celebration of Mrs. Fee's life at her late residence following the memorial service on Saturday.

Mummy, Mum, Mumfee, throughout our lives, we witnessed your strength and optimism, but it was never as apparent as in this past year as you heroically battled cancer. You are our champion!

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 30 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701-1803.

Leonard J. Gordon, 92

Funeral services for Leonard J. "Lefty, LJ" Gordon, 92, of Quincy and New Jersey, formerly of Needham, will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Eaton Funeral Home, Needham.

Mr. Gordon died peacefully Aug. 17.

He was born in Randolph to Paulina Malloch and Darrel Gordon and moved frequently around Cambridge and Everett as a child. He served honorably in the Navy in World War II, then again as he trained radio communications during the Korean War in the Naval Reserves. After his service in WWII, Mr. Gordon graduated from Cambridge Rindge and Latin School. He began work at Watertown Arsenal in a group that later became Lincoln Lab, a research arm of MIT based at Hanscom Field in Lexington, where he remained employed for 45 years. There was always a lunchtime cribbage game waiting in his lab. He received an undergraduate degree from Northeastern University.

Mr. Gordon was predeceased by wives Mary Catherine (Yannoni), Nancy (Leone), and Mildred (MacKinnon), stepmother (Mildred Gordon) and is survived by daughter Ellen Gordon Oldfield (Al Cook), dear friend Vera Bernard, stepson Keith MacKinnon (Dianne), brothers-in-law Nino Yannoni (Pam), Ben Leone (Maureen), sister-in-law Phyllie Vankoert (Leo), cousins Linda Albee (Bill), Joan DeGaitas (Nick), stepsisters and many nieces & nephews.

Wherever Mr. Gordon went, he loved to talk with people and made friends. There was never a stranger, just friends he hadn't met yet.

Visiting hours were 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday in the funeral home.

Interment with Military Honors at St. Mary's Cemetery, Needham.

Memorial donations may be made to Shriners Hospital for Children, 51 Blossom St., Boston, MA 02114, or to the local Shriners facility of your choice.

The family would like to thank the staffs at Morris Hall Meadows House 4 in Lawrenceville, NJ and Brookdale Memory Care in Hamilton, NJ for the wonderful love and care Mr. Gordon received this year and to Mary Lania and the team at Dr. Buckle's office and Beth Israel Deaconess.

Kentucky Students Clean Up Squantum Point Park

we completely geeked out," she said. "It was the coolest thing. To see two presidents and their wives, who I admire a lot, was just surreal. I've never seen the Atlantic Ocean and definitely not seen the graves of two presidents."

Another student, Jake Waford, said he was "ecstatic" to visit Quincy and help spruce up Squantum Point Park.

"We got to learn about the historic parts of the city and about the presidents and now we have the pleasure to come here and serve," he said. "There is a lot of development going on here that will make it better with parks."

Alex Muckler, the Kentucky YMCA's youth association director, explained that each student "must jump through a couple hoops" to come on the trip.

Each student must raise money, anywhere from $500 to $1,500. The 32 students as a whole raised $25,000 for the program's scholarship fund. Additionally, each student must perform at least 50 hours of community service as a prerequisite.

"They've done a ton of work just to get here," she said.

The Kentucky program sends out some 2,000 students every summer across the country to clean parks.

Muckler said the students perform community service work in each city and learn about the culture of the area. She said the theme of this year's Kentucky trip is "What it means to be an American."

She said her state's program has three trips this summer. One went to the Mexican border looking at immigration issues. Another group went to South Dakota where they are learning about the Native American culture.

Muckler's weeklong journey started in Ohio then travelled to Pennsylvania, New York, then arrived in Massachusetts where they toured Springfield College. From there, they went to Salem, Boston and then Quincy.

During the remaining days of their trip, the group was to go to Connecticut and then to New York City where they were to visit the United Nations and work at a community garden in Bushwick. Then, they were to travel to Baltimore, then to Washington D.C. to clean the grounds at the Jefferson Memorial and finish up their week at the Abraham Lincoln monument before returning to Kentucky.

Muckler noted that the students have no idea where they are going when they start the trip.

"That's part of the fun of the trip," she said. "They get on the bus and trust us."

At least one student is looking forward to returning to Quincy.

"It's a beautiful, beautiful place," said Waford. "I can't wait to come back and visit Quincy with my family in the future."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A change that you'd hoped for is down the line. But you still need to be patient until more explanations are forthcoming. Continue to keep your enthusiasm in check.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your social life expands as new friends come into your life. But while you're having fun, your practical side also sees some positive business potential within your new circle.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your workplace situation continues to improve. Look for advantages you might have missed while all the changes were going on around you. That trusted colleague can help.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Resist the urge to hunker down in your bunker until things ease up. Instead, get rid of that woe-is-me attitude by getting up and getting out to meet old friends and make new ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Now that you're back enjoying the spotlight again, you should feel re-energized and ready to take on the challenge of bringing those big, bold plans of yours to completion.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A former friend would like to repair a relationship you two once enjoyed. Your positive response could have an equally positive impact on your life. Think about it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Resist making impulsive decisions. Stay on that steady course as you continue to work out workplace problems. Be patient. All will soon be back in balance.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might feel confident about taking a promising offer, but continue to be alert for what you're not being told about it. Don't fret. Time is on your side.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) People dear to you might be planning a way to show appreciation for all you've done for them. Accept the honor graciously. Remember: You deserve it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Congratulations. Your self-confidence is on the rise. This could be a good time to tackle those bothersome situations you've avoided both at home and at work.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You feel obligated to return a favor. (Of course, you do.) But heed advice from those close to you and do nothing until you know for sure what's being asked of you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your loving reassurance helped revive a once-moribund relationship. But be wary of someone who might try to do something negative to reverse this positive turn of events.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are a wonderful matchmaker who can bring people together to form long-lasting relationships.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- CBS canceled "The Great Indoors," "The Odd Couple" and "2 Broke Girls." It should have canceled "Kevin Can Wait" due to low ratings, but allegedly, Kevin James had a guarantee for three seasons and they had to either renew it or pay him anyway. So they hatched a plan; they brought Leah Remini, his co-star in "King of Queens" for nine seasons (1998-2006), to play retired undercover cop Vanessa Cellucci, his former partner, in the last show of season one. But in order to get them together, they had to fire James' TV wife, played by Errin Hayes, who was wonderful in the role, telling her it wasn't because of her, but the situation. While we're happy to see James and Remini together again, because they have great chemistry, did it have to come at the expense of a really good actress?

Woody Allen is returning to his childhood with his next film, "Wonder Wheel," starring Kate Winslet, Justin Timberlake and Jim Belushi. The film takes place at a Coney Island amusement park of the 1950s. Ever authentic, Woody has been shooting in Brighton Beach, Vinegar Hill, Brooklyn and Coney Island for a Dec. 1 release.

Between takes, Justin Timberlake is already working on the score for "Trolls 2," which he voiced with Anna Kendrick. "Trolls" earned $345 million and a best song Oscar nomination for "Can't Stop the Feeling." "Trolls 2" won't open until April 2020.

His co-star Kate Winslet also has completed the romance/disaster film, "The Mountain Between Us," opening Oct. 6, with Idris Elba. Elba, currently with Matthew McConaughey in "The Dark Tower," also stars in "Thor: Ragnarok" (in theaters Nov. 3) and Aaron Sorkin's "Molly's Game," with Kevin Costner, Jessica Chastain and Michael Cera (out Nov. 22).

Cate Blanchett, who won an Oscar for Woody Allen's "Blue Jasmine" (2013), also lends her talent to "Thor: Ragnarok," then "Where'd You Go Bernadette," with Billy Crudup, Kristen Wiig, Judy Greer and Laurence Fishburne (coming May 11); "Ocean's Eight," the all-girl reboot of "Ocean's Eleven," directed by George Clooney (due June 8); and "The Jungle Book: Origins" (October 2018).

Oscar-winner Matthew McConaughey completed "White Boy Rick, with Bruce Dern, coming Jan. 12, and is currently shooting the noir-thriller "Serenity," with Oscar-winner Anne Hathaway and Diane Lane.

"La La Land" Oscar-winner Emma Stone has completed "The Battle of the Sexes," as Billy Jean King to Steve Carell's Bobby Riggs, due Sept. 22, and is currently shooting "The Favourite," with Rachel Weisz and Nicholas Hoult. Q: At an estate sale, I purchased a set of salt and pepper shakers. What attracted me to them is the fact they are only 2 inches high. The shakers are in the design of a boot with spurs. I paid $5 for them and hope I got a good deal. -- Cindy, Lakewood, Colorado

A: Miniature salt and pepper shakers have become quite popular with collectors. I contacted a collector, who believes the set you bought could be worth about $25. You also might get a copy of the "Antique Trader Salt and Pepper Price Guide," by Mark Moran and published by Krause Books.

Q: I have some Santa Clara Indian pots that date from the teens and 1920s. I would like to have them appraised, but the professionals I contacted charge a great deal for this service. Is it possible to find someone who can help me who is more affordable? -- Sue, New Mexico

A: As I often have written in this column, a free or cheap appraisal is generally worthless. Your pots are probably valuable, and you need a competent appraiser to determine just how valuable. If you can't afford to hire a professional, then simply enjoy your pots for their beauty.

Q: I have a paperweight made by Michael O'Keefe. Is it worth keeping? -- Ben, Chesterfield, Missouri

A: Michael O'Keefe, a glass artist based in Seattle, is best known for his three-dimensional paperweights featuring soft, subtle colors. His work is easy to identify, since each piece is signed and dated on the bottom. O'Keefe's paperweights are quite collectible, but only you can determine if the one you have is worth keeping.

Q: I have an old frame that has rounded glass and wonder if it has any value. -- Mary, Minnesota

A: I examined the picture you sent me, and I think your frame was made during the 1930s and is probably worth about $50. Since you didn't send measurements, it could be worth a little more or a little less, depending on size.

Q: I have a child's book, "Mickey Mouse in the Wild West," published by Walt Disney. It is in fairly good condition. What can you tell me about it? -- Mark, Missouri

A: Your book was published in 1973 and is worth about $6.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was pioneering Mexican-American musician Carlos Santana who made the following sage observation: "The most valuable possession you can own is an open heart. The most powerful weapon you can be is an instrument of peace."

* Those who study such things say that men who tend to be womanizers when they're single are more likely to be jealous husbands once they're married.

* The beginning of a new school year seems a good time to note the origin of that lunchtime favorite, peanut butter. A Canadian named Marcellus Gilmore Edson patented the product in 1884, but it didn't become popular in the United States until 1898. That was when John Harvey Kellogg's Western Health Reform Institute began selling it at expensive health care institutions. It seems that protein-packed peanut butter was perfect for elderly patients who had trouble chewing.

* Standing desks, stand ready: There's a new trend in workspaces. It seems that standing up while working isn't enough to counteract the detrimental health effects of sitting in an office chair all day. Enter Fluidstance, a company that wants to help you surf your way through the workday. Their balance boards, designed to be used with standing desks, reportedly increase heart rate and improve range of motion, allowing users to burn calories while burning their way through the mundane tasks of office life.

* Driving isn't the only activity that is dangerous to mix with alcohol. Statistics show that 40 percent of skiers who get injured in the French Alps are legally drunk.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Here's a great recipe for DIY dishwasher pods for use in your automatic dishwasher: Mix 2 cups of baking soda, 2 cups of borax, a half cup of salt and 10-15 drops of your favorite essential oil. Stir in 1/2 cup vinegar and allow it to settle. Then scoop it into an ice-cube tray and pack tightly. Let it dry overnight, then pop your pods out into an airtight baggie or jar. Label and store in a cool place. Use one per washing cycle.

* To get paint splatter off your hands after painting, try this old kitchen trick: Wet hands and then pour sugar or salt into palms. Use it as an abrasive to scrub paint away.

* Waxed paper can shine a kitchen or bathroom faucet. Simply use it to buff away the marks. No spray cleaner necessary.

* "If you have dirty blinds, keep in mind that spraying them with a liquid is going to turn the dust to muck. Always dry dust first, then use a barely damp microfiber cloth to remove spots. (This is for hard material blinds, not for fabric blinds.)" -- L.G. in Kansas

* Sticky irons can ruin fabric. Never fear, though, because cleaning one is a cinch. Heat your iron to its hottest setting, no steam. Sprinkle about a tablespoon of salt onto a piece of newspaper. Iron over it, rubbing vigorously. Finish with a pass or two over a plain paper towel.

* Track tools in a workshop by hanging them from a wall. Trace around the tools with chalk, and you can tell quickly what goes where when it's time to clean up.

Prayer to The Blessed Virgin
(Never Known To Fail)

O, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful Vine, splendour of Heaven. Blessed mother of the son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. O Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my Mother. O Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. O, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3 times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (3 times). Thank you for your mercy to me and mine. Amen. This prayer must be said for three days and after that the request will be granted. The prayer must be published. M.F. 8/24

Children's Author Grace Lin Visits Parker School

By TOM GORMAN

Parker School students got a first-hand look at how an author garners ideas and develops a story for a book.

"I not only put in my books what I saw, I put things that I learned about in the books," children's author Grace Lin told the students as they gathered in the media center in June. She outlined the stories she wrote and the accompanying illustrations she drew in each of her books: "Where the Mountain Meets the

Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

Moon," "Starry River of the Sky," and "When the Sea Turned to Silver."

She explained that the storylines and characters were based on Chinese folklore and actual people. Lin said when she traveled to Hong Kong, Beijing and Taiwan, she would see statues honoring people and wanted to learn about them.

"When I traveled to these places, I saw statues and figures and I would ask, 'Who is this person?'" she said. "I would find out all I could about them."

Lin said the illustrations she drew to accompany the stories are actual places she saw in her travels.

"All the illustrations are inspired by what I saw," she said.

Lin, who lives in Somerville, is the daughter of Taiwanese immigrants and grew up in upstate New York. As a child, she dreamed of becoming a champion ice skater and drew many pictures of herself skating. Not having the coordination needed to become a skater, Lin decided to focus on her talent of illustrating.

After attending the Rhode School of Design, she set out to write and illustrate children's books. Her first text, "The Ugly Vegetable," won several awards including the California Young Readers Choice Award and the American Booksellers Association Pick of the List in 1999. About a dozen other books followed.

Several Parker School students volunteered to act out characters and scenes of "Starry River of the Sky" in front of their classmates

Students also got a lesson in illustrating. Each student was given a piece of paper and they followed Lin step by step as she drew a lion's face on a large drawing pad.

Parker School principal, Dr. Maryanne Palmer, said she invited Lin to visit the school after seeing her at a conference.

"I was so inspired by her words, I wanted her to come to our school," she said

Palmer noted that Parker School has a 70 percent Asian student population and thought Lin's books, based on Chinese stories, would be inspiring.

Throughout the halls of the school were drawings created by the students based on one of Lin's books.

"We did a whole school read of 'When the Mountain Meets the Moon,' said Palmer. "Each classroom worked on it at different levels.

Lin was impressed by the students' work.

"Walking thru the halls, I saw the projects the kids did on my books," she said. "As an author, one of the things I love about doing these school visits is because you're spending so much time at home writing and painting by yourself. When you come to these schools, you see how the kids are using your books and enjoying them. It's heartwarming. That's what you do it for."

founded in 1793, which is to make sure that the land records are recorded accurately, that people and professionals can rely on them and you make them accessible to the public. It's just that we deliver the services in a little bit more of a modern way."

O'Donnell, a Norwood resident, has been the county's register of deeds for 15 years. He said technology has changed greatly over that decade and a half – the registry didn't have email when he started there, and now more and more services are moving online. For example, the registry recently completed transcribing the more than 445,000 handwritten documents filed between 1793 and 1900, so people can view the original documents or typed versions.

"The people who use the registry for professional purposes – whether they're the lawyers or the title examiners or the engineers – they like it because it helps them…but more and more people are doing genealogical research or historical research and there is a lot of interesting history and a lot of interesting information in these deeds," O'Donnell said.

For his next project, O'Donnell hopes to highlight the land records associated with some of Norfolk County's more well-known residents, including the four U.S. presidents who have resided in it – John and John Quincy Adams, George H.W. Bush and John F. Kennedy – businessmen Howard Johnson and William Rosenberg, athletes like Mary Pratt and actors like Hal Holbrook.

"There are just a lot of people who have lived here in Norfolk County," O'Donnell said. "What I've been trying to do is whether it's cultural figure, an actor, a businessperson…start with a name and see if you can tie it into a real estate record."

"It kind of combines things I like," he added, history and his work at the registry.

O'Donnell said the registry also has a new consumer notification service on its website, norfolkdeeds.org. A resident can enter his or her name into the service and receive a notice whenever a document is filed under that name. It also provides links to resources if a resident suspects fraud.

"It can't prevent fraud, but you can get on it quicker," O'Donnell said.

Other resources on the website include information for first-time homebuyers and a guide to filing a homestead declaration, which offers homeowners protections against losing their primary residence to certain types of creditors.

O'Donnell said the registry has begun partnering with local organizations, including QCAP and NeighborWorks Southern Mass, to provide help and counseling to residents who have received notices of foreclosure. The program began after the 2008 recession.

The registry also collects men and women's dress clothes at its headquarters, 649 High St. in Dedham, which are donated to various organizations, including Interfaith Social Services, Father Bill's & MainSpring and the VA. It also collects pots, pans, silverware and beddings for the non-profit New Life Home Refurbishing.

"We have projects that are kind of registry-related, and we have projects that I think kind of reflect the times we are living in. We try to adapt and reach out and address some of things the best we can," O'Donnell said.

By SCOTT JACKSON

Residents got their first look at a preliminary plan for a new Houghs Neck Maritime Center – featuring new community space, public bathrooms, offices for the Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit, roof decks and an observation deck – at a recent neighborhood meeting.

Some 30 residents attended the Aug. 24 meeting hosted by Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church on Sea Street. Representatives from Wessling Architects and engineering firm Tighe & Bond were there that night to present preliminary plans for the site. A $225,000 grant from the Massachusetts Seaport Economic Council is paying for the design, engineering and permitting of a replacement for the current Houghs Neck Maritime Center at 137 Bay View Avenue, which officials have said is dilapidated and outdated.

At the start of the meeting, Laforest said the design of the building shown that night is conceptual only and is subject to change.

"We want your input. This is a draft design," she said. "I don't want you to think this is the building."

Among the factors that will determine the final design of the building and its parking lot is the city's plan to purchase three homes in the vicinity of the parking lot, which would allow for Bay View Avenue to be widened and the parking lot to be expanded and reconfigured.

Mayor Thomas Koch's $27 million park improvement bond, approved by the City Council this spring and paid for with hotel tax money, includes $2.75 million to purchase those three homes and two other properties in Houghs Neck – the parking lot owned by Louis restaurant in the vicinity of the maritime center as well as the LaBrecque Field parking lot, which is currently owned by the Archdiocese of Boston. If the homeowners agree to sell their houses, the council would have to approve the final purchase price.

"That is something that's just in its infancy," Laforest

MBTA Seeks Quincy Center Station Developers

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city will work with the MBTA to review bids from would-be developers for the Quincy Center station site that are due this fall.

The MBTA's real estate office issued a formal request for proposals for the station Aug. 18. The deadline to submit bids is Oct. 2.

Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said city officials are excited to move forward on plans to develop the site.

"The mayor looks forward to seeing the proposals. There is no question the Quincy Center station site has tremendous potential for economic development," Walker said Tuesday. "We are excited to move forward together working with the MBTA."

The Quincy Center station site has 275,000 square feet (6.3 acres) of land and air rights, including the station itself, the area over and along the tracks to the north and south of the station, the surface parking area on the Hancock Street side and the entrance to the site off of Hancock Street. The T is hoping for a development with a variety of uses, including retail, office and residential.

"Both the city of Quincy and the MBTA encourages a level of density and mix of uses that would increase the vibrancy of Quincy Center," the 74-page request for proposals states.

Developers would enter into a 99-year lease for the site. The deadline for the developer to enter into the lease agreement is March 15, 2019, and construction must start no later than 24 months after the lease is signed, though both those deadlines can be extended at the MBTA's sole discretion.

The project would require the approval of the mayor and Quincy City Council per a 1967 state law that was passed at the MBTA expanded the Red Line southward.

The T plans to demolish the top three floors of the existing garage at the station before the lease is signed. The demolition of floors three through five of the garage is set to begin around Nov. 1 of this year and will be finished by February 2019, according to the RFP. The station will remain open during demolition.

The MBTA released the RFP for the Quincy Center station one month after asking developers for input on the future of the site in a request for information. The T received responses from Alliance Residential Company, Asian Community Development Corporation/ Pennrose Properties, AW Perry, the Bozzuto Group/ Atlantic Development, Jefferson Apartment Group, FoxRock Properties and Twining Properties. Several of those firms have ties to the city.

Bozzuto and Atlantic are the companies jointly undertaking a $205 million project at the North Quincy station that will feature 610 apartments, 50,000 square feet of retail space and 1,600 parking spaces. Construction of that project could start as soon as next year and will take three years to complete.

FoxRock Properties is headquartered in North Quincy and owned by Rob Hale, who is also the CEO and president of Granite Telecommunications. FoxRock last year purchased the former Quincy Medical Center as part of an agreement that also saw the company named as the developer for the Ross Garage site in Quincy Center, where up to 1 million square feet of commercial space could be constructed.

Twining Properties was briefly involved in StreetWorks' proposed Quincy Center project. The company came onboard the project in August 2013 after the Beal Companies pulled out. The city's deal with StreetWorks was terminated in March 2014 missed several deadlines to file documents.

The Asian Community Development Corporation owns a 34-unit affordable housing building on Fort Street, which opened in 2012, according to its website.

Other companies that did not respond to the RFI are still allowed to submit bids for the site.

Food Trucks, Music Coming Sept. 30

By SCOTT JACKSON

Coddington Street will play host to a festival featuring 20 food trucks serving up a variety of different dishes and live music on Sept. 30.

The Quincy Food Truck Music Festival will take place from noon to 6 p.m. that Sunday. Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said Coddington Street between Hancock/Washington Streets and Newcomb Streets would be closed during the event.

The food trucks and a beer truck will line Coddington Street. Musicians will perform outside Quincy High School.

"There will be 20 food trucks with a wide variety of culinary options," Walker said. "We will also have a number of well-known bands playing on the Quincy High School lawn."

"We will be announcing the full lineup for everything in the next couple weeks," he added.

The city had partnered with an outside vendor, Food Truck Festivals of America, to host similar events the past two years at Pageant Field. Walker said the city opted to host the event on its own this time and would not be charging admission, unlike the previous two festivals.

"The mayor decided we could just do it on our own," Walker said. "The mayor felt we could do it without charging people."

This year's event is sponsored by North Quincy's FoxRock Properties, the company that has been designated the developer for the Ross Garage site in Quincy Center and also owns the former Quincy Medical Center.

THE CELESTIAL STONE

Sapphire, the birthstone for September, was known as the "Celestial Stone" by the ancient Persians. This moniker stems from the fact that sapphires typically appear as blue gemstones, ranging from medium to medium-dark blue or slightly violet-blue. The most valued hue is a medium-deep cornflower blue (known as Kashmir sapphire). Sapphires also come in a wide range of other colors from pink and purple to orange, yellow, and green. The red variety of sapphire has a name of its own - ruby. Other than ruby, sapphires that are not blue are referred to as "fancies." While blue is the most popular color among both men and women, those with a preference for something different may opt for a "fancy sapphire."

Sapphire jewelry is the perfect gift for anyone who appreciates a bit of color. Sapphires have come to represent love, commitment and fidelity. Many couples have had sapphires set into their engagement rings and wedding bands. For the latest trends in jewelry, please visit our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center or call 617-773-3636. We feature a constantly changing assortment of estate and pre-owned jewelry and other items. If we don't have something in stock, we will get it, usually within 72 hours with no obligation on the customer's part.

Jerry Lewis, 'Francis X.' And The 'First' Telethon

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Like many of you we were saddened to learn the passing of comedian Jerry Lewis Aug. 20 at the age of 91.

Lewis was perhaps best known as a comedian and actor. But he was more than a Hollywood legend. For more than 40 years he championed the cause for Muscular Dystrophy serving as the national chairman for MDA and its popular Labor Day telethon.

Every Labor Day, millions of viewers would tune into the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon that over the course of its run raised millions of dollars in the fight against muscular dystrophy. MD is a group of muscle diseases – many will eventually become unable to walk. It remains an incurable disease.

MDA began its Jerry Lewis Labor Day telethon in 1966.

But the first event for a patient with muscular dystrophy actually occurred nine years prior to that first telethon in 1957 – 60 years ago this fall.

Longtime readers of The Sun are probably familiar with this story. We feel compelled to share it again with the passing of Mr. Lewis.

It was written by my father, Henry Bosworth, and appeared in our Thursday, Sept. 2, 1999 issue.

Here are Henry's words:

I wonder how many know about the 'first' telethon that was telecast across the country for an audience of just one – a lonely little boy?

And no money was raised for MDA.

Jerry Lewis produced that one, too, with a million dollar cast supporting him.

Sole purpose for the show was to help make this lonely little boy, a victim of muscular dystrophy, happy on his birthday.

'FRANCIS X.' – or the 'Little Boy Blue' – cuts the cake on his 9th birthday in 1957 at Lakeville Hospital. Also shown here are nurse Doris Reynolds, Dr. Kurt Jellineck and Henry Bosworth, founder of The Quincy Sun who at the time was a reporter for the Boston Traveler. Henry's story about Francis X. - a lonely little boy who was afflicted with muscular dystrophy – was picked up by newspapers throughout the country. Comedian Jerry Lewis learned about Francis X. and put on a closed circuit TV show for the little boy on his 9th birthday. The show became the forerunner of the well-known and successful Jerry Lewis Labor Day telethon for muscular dystrophy. Frank Kelly Photo

It goes back to October, 1957, when I was a reporter at the old Boston Traveler.

A letter from Doris Reynolds, a nurse at the Lakeville Hospital asked us if we could help a little boy who was lonely because no one came to visit him.

He was going to be 9 on Oct. 8. Would we please help him receive a few birthday cards?

Photographer Frank Kelly of Wollaston and I went down to the hospital. We met a handsome youngster with one of the biggest smiles in the world, despite the heartache of loneliness.

Kindly, Dr. Kurt Jellineck filled us in on a tragic background. The boy's mother was dead and his father incarcerated for her death. Two reasons the boy was lonely.

Because of the circumstances we decided not to use his full name. We referred to him as "Francis X" (Francis was his first name) and as "Little Boy Blue."

What did he want for his birthday?

"Four or six cards," he replied. "Funny cards."

Kelly took a touching photo of Francis seated in his wheelchair – back to the camera – looking out the window for the visitors who never came.

The story and photos appeared on Page 1 Oct. 3 – five days before his birthday. By weekend, the Middleboro Post Office was snowed under with letters and cards. Thirty extra people had to be hired to keep up with the avalanche.

The story had been picked up by the wire services and carried by newspapers around the country. Ham radio operators were reading it to others around the world.

Before it was over, there would be over 300,000 pieces of mail, $12,000 in coins and dollar bills and three rooms filled with toys and other presents. From people who wanted to be sure Francis wasn't forgotten.

The toys would be shared with youngsters at Lakeville and at other hospitals at Christmas and on birthdays. The money was set up in a trust fund for Francis.

But the most heart-warming part of the story happened the night of Francis' birthday. Jerry Lewis had read the story and swung into action.

He wanted to give Francis something special. And, he did.

Lewis asked Gen. David Sarnoff, head of NBC, for a closed-circuit TV to the little town of Lakeville 3,000 miles away. Sarnoff gave the green light.

MANY YEARS after that first 'telethon,' Jerry Lewis read about the story of "Francis X." with its author, Henry Bosworth, during a visit to Children's Hospital in Boston. Francis died in 1966 a few weeks after his 18th birthday. Mr. Bosworth passed away in Feburary, 2009. Mr. Lewis died Aug. 20 at the age of 91.

They said at the time that it cost some $350,000 and took 9,000 people – technicians, engineers and others – to complete the cross-country hook-up.

By telecast time, the audience had grown. Joining Francis in front of TV sets in the recreation hall of the hospital were other youngsters in wheelchairs, beds and on crutches. Parents, doctors, nurses and the media were there, too.

Suddenly, an announcer was saying:

"This program is an NBC closed circuit broadcast for Francis in Lakeville – direct from Hollywood – a special command performance."

Francis smiled, giggled and slapped the side of his wheelchair as Jerry Lewis mugged, clowned, sang and spoke directly to him.

And, for the next 75 minutes or so on camera stepped Eddie Cantor, Dinah Shore, Hugh O'Brien, Eddie Fisher, the Skylarks, George Goble, Pinky Lee, The Mouseketeers, Mary Costa and others.

Each with a personal message for Francis – all doing their thing to make a little boy happy.

There were adult tears in the audience when Lewis and the Skylarks sang a parody to "No Business Like Show Business" entitled "There's No Francis Like Our Francis."

And many more when Dinah Shore serenaded Francis with "You Made Me Love You" and he happily waved back at her image on the screen.

Francis died in November, 1966, a few weeks after his 18th birthday. There is no cure for muscular dystrophy. For years the mail never stopped. He was remembered with cards on his birthday and at Christmas.

The show Jerry Lewis put on that night for Francis turned out to be a forerunner of today's Labor Day telethon.

For those of us who were there, it was a night to remember.

Jerry Lewis, that night, was at his best. An Emmy performance from the heart.

YEARS LATER, Jerry Lewis and Henry Bosworth would cross paths again. Henry was serving as co-chairman of the South Shore Labor Day Telethon along with Dick Koch Jr. (Henry and Dick and a team of dedicated telethon volunteers helped raise more than one million dollars during a 10-year span that started in 1977.)

One year Jerry Lewis came to the Boston area for some pre-telethon publicity and also visited some MDA patients at Children's Hospital. Henry also visited the hospital and had a moment alone with Jerry. He shared the story of "Little Boy Blue" with the MDA national chairman who turned serious as he read story's account of that first "telethon."

Jerry Lewis signed the write-up "Henry, Thanks, Jerry Lewis." The comedian also sent Henry a telegram congratulating him and The Sun on their 25th anniversary as Quincy's hometown newspaper in 1993. For years both mementoes hung on the wall in Henry's office.

Sixty-years later, the story of Little Boy Blue still warms the heart.

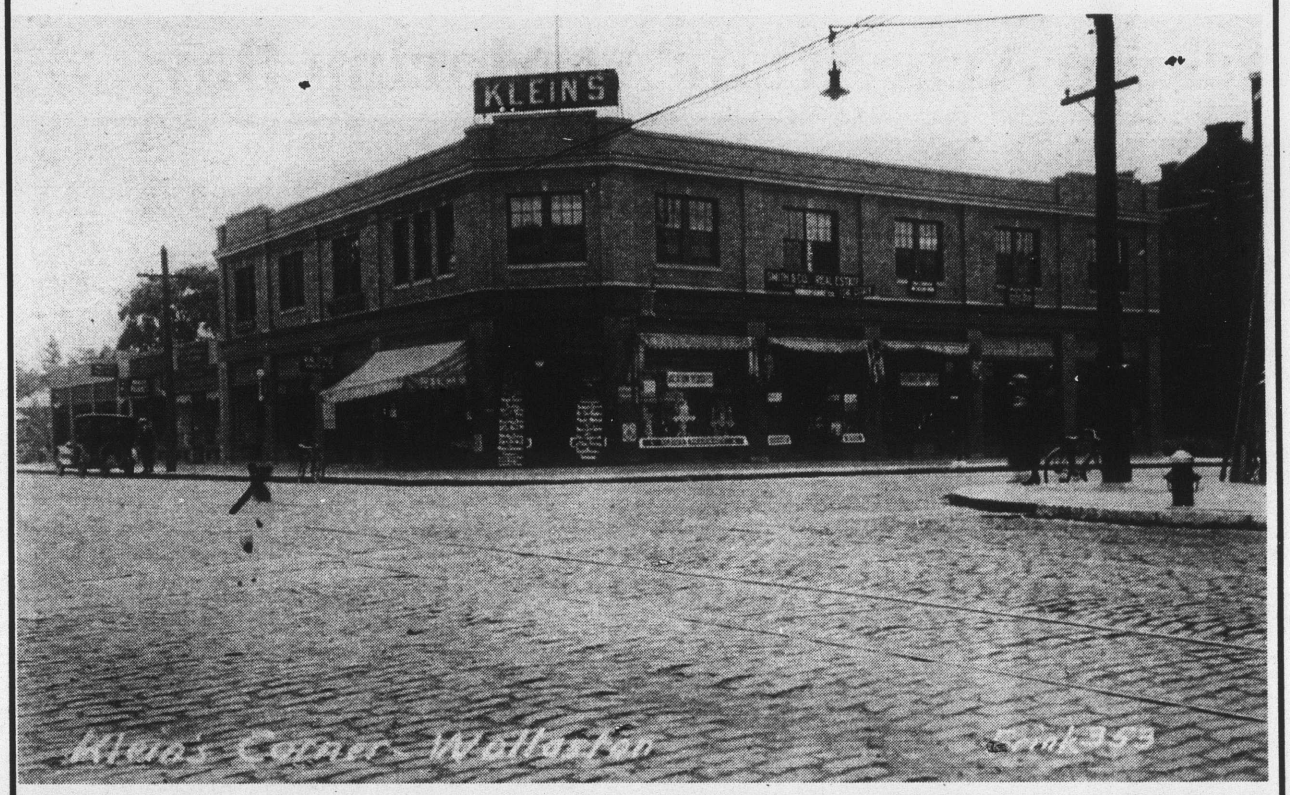
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS IS A 1923 real photo postcard view of what was known as Klein's Corner at the intersection of Beale and Hancock Streets in Wollaston Center. Paul Klein, who lived a short distance away on Beach Street, owned the building and operated his drug store on the corner here until 1930. Notice the symbolic mortar and pestle just to the right above the entrance. Originally a single-level building Klein added the second floor just before this picture was taken. After the building was sold the drug store had a number of different names until it became known as the Blackwood Pharmacy. The corner store was a drugstore for over 80 years until the Blackwood Pharmacy moved to Quincy Center in 2002. It then became the Grandasia Bridal and Fashion Shop for a few years, but they also relocated to Quincy Center and the store has been vacant ever since. The interesting chalkboards on both sides of the corner entrance are pretty much impossible to read except the top of the one on the left has the time of high tide. A Klein's advertising sign painted on the right side of this building before the Wollaston Theatre was built next to it in 1926 was recently exposed when the theater was razed. New Online Service For Replacing SS Cards

The Social Security Administration announces the expansion of online services for residents of Massachusetts available through its my Social Security portal at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

Nancy A. Berryhill, Acting Commissioner of Social Security, says residents of Massachusetts can use the portal for many replacement Social Security number (SSN) card requests. This will allow people to replace their SSN card from the comfort of their home or office, without the need to travel to a Social Security office.

"I'm pleased to offer the residents of Massachusetts the added convenience of replacing a Social Security card through the my Social Security portal," Berryhill said. "We will continue to work on innovative initiatives to provide people with safe, secure and convenient options for doing business with us online or in person."

The agency is conducting a gradual roll out of this service; Massachusetts is one of the states, plus the District of Columbia, where this option is available. Throughout 2017, the agency will continue to expand the service option to other states.

U.S. citizens age 18 or older and who are residents of Massachusetts can request a replacement SSN card online by creating a my Social Security account. In addition, they must have a U.S. domestic mailing address, not require a change to their record (such as a name change), and have a valid driver's license, or state identification card in some participating states.

My Social Security is a secure online hub for doing business with Social Security, and more than 31 million people have created an account. In addition to Massachusetts residents replacing their SSN card through the portal, current Social Security beneficiaries can manage their account—change an address, adjust direct deposit, obtain a benefit verification letter, or request a replacement SSA-1099. Medicare beneficiaries can request a replacement Medicare card without waiting for a replacement form in the mail. Account holders still in the workforce can verify their earnings history and obtain estimates of future benefits by looking at their Social Security Statement online.

For more information about this new online service, visit www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnumber .

Seven Residents On Merrimack Dean's List

Seven students from Quincy are on the Dean's List at Merrimack College for the spring semester.

They are:

Colleen Bellotti, Shannon Glynn, Danielle Mullaney, Rosemary Morton, James Doherty, Jacquelyn Baldwin and Luong Luu.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

• On Sept. 13, 1814, Francis Scott Key pens a poem that is later set to music and in 1931 becomes America's national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner." The poem, originally titled "The Defence of Fort McHenry," was written after Key witnessed the Maryland fort being bombarded by the British during the War of 1812.

• On Sept. 15, 1858, the new Overland Mail Company sends out its first two stages, inaugurating government mail service to the western U.S. In 1857, Congress had authorized a $600,000 yearly subsidy for whatever company could transport the mail twice a week from St. Louis to San Francisco in less than 25 days.

• On Sept. 17, 1923, a fire threatening the University of California at Berkeley kills two people and destroys nearly 1,000 houses, including half of the fraternity and sorority houses. The National Guard was quickly called in to stop the looting.

• On Sept. 16, 1943, James Alan McPherson, the first black man to win a Pulitzer Prize for fiction, is born in Savannah, Georgia. His Pulitzer-winning short story collection, "Elbow Room," was published in 1977.

• On Sept. 12, 1953, Sen. John Fitzgerald Kennedy of Massachusetts marries Jacqueline Lee Bouvier, a photographer for the Washington Times-Herald, in Rhode Island. Kennedy was elected the 35th president of the United States seven years later.

• On Sept. 14, 1964, writer John Steinbeck is presented the U.S. Medal of Freedom. His first novel, "Tortilla Flat," about the comic antics of several rootless drifters who share a house in California, was published in 1935.

• On Sept. 11, 1985, Cincinnati Reds player-manager Pete Rose gets the 4,192nd hit of his career, breaking Ty Cobb's major-league record. Rose retired in 1986, but remained in his position as manager until 1989, when he was banned from baseball for gambling on Reds games.

30% Voter Turnout Predicted

More than twice as many Quincy voters are expected to stay home than go to the polls in next Tuesday's Democratic and Republican state primaries.

City Clerk John M. Gillis predicted that no more than 30 percent of the city's 47,062 voters would cast ballots.

"And we'll be lucky if we get 30%," he added. "There are no real big battles to bring the voters out. The interest just doesn't seem to be there." (Editor's note: 22,630 or 48.4% of Quincy's eligible voters cast ballots.)

One Quincy name on the ballot, former Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti, was attempting to make a political comeback as a Democratic candidate for Attorney General.

Perhaps the best race of all was for the state representative seat being vacated by Rep. Clifford H. Marshall who was running for Norfolk County Sheriff. Candidates included Robert Cerasoli, Patrick Faherty, James Papile and Thomas Williams.

ENROLLMENT DIPS TO 16,000 AS SCHOOL BELLS RING OUT

Fifty-four new teachers joined the Quincy Public School staff of over 1,000 greeting approximately 16,000 elementary, junior high and high school students during opening day of the 1974-1972 school year.

Although enrollment falls short of last year's official registration of 16,203 students, School Superintendent Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon said, "The downward trend is not a significant one." (Editor's note: The school population would continue to decrease, bottoming out at approximately 7,900 in 1989-1990.)

BROWNWELL SEEKS AG's ACTION AGAINST QUINCY BAY SEWAGE

Rep. Thomas Brownwell has requested the Attorney General's office to issue an official complaint against MDC pumping facilities in the Quincy area.

Brownwell noted that over the Labor Day weekend, "large quantities of sewage discharges" appeared on Quincy Bay beaches including Wollaston, Merrymount and Weymouth beaches. Although Brownwell found no evidence of raw sewage, he did say, "the rancid odor was very bad." He also noted a red tinge, like the red tide color in place along Wollaston Beach.

Quincy Medical Center Topic At Community Meeting Thursday

The owners of the former Quincy Medical Center will host a community meeting tonight (Thursday) to provide an update on plans for the 14.4-acre site.

FoxRock Properties will host the community meeting, which starts at 7 p.m. in the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, 27 Glendale Rd.

The company, which is headquartered in North Quincy, acquired the hospital from previous owner Steward Health Care in December 2016 for $12 million. As part of the deal for the hospital, FoxRock was also designated the developer of the Ross Garage site in Quincy Center, where the company has plans to construct up to 1 million square feet of commercial space.

The hospital property at 114 Whitwell St. is located in a Planned Urban Development zoning district, which means the City Council, acting the special permit granting authority, would have to approve of developments on site.

This will be the second community meeting FoxRock has hosted in regards to the future of the hospital. In the first meeting, held in January at Central Middle School, company officials pledged to be good neighbors and called the former hospital the most important project currently in their portfolio.

Norfolk Sheriff's Office Goes Green With Energy Updates

The Norfolk Sheriff's Office is in the midst of conducting an ambitious energy efficiency program at the Norfolk County Correctional Center.

"I like to call it a win-win-win," Sheriff Bellotti said. "We get all new energy systems that reduce our costs at the jail, the state and the taxpayers get reimbursed, and we all conserve on precious natural resources."

Under the terms of the joint program with the Massachusetts Department of Capital Asset Management (DCAM), the state pays the $4.2 million cost of the improvements at the jail. The Norfolk Sheriff's Office will reimburse the state in the amount of the savings accrued on its energy bills over the course of the next several years.

The energy equipment updates throughout the facility are wide-ranging. Solar panels are being installed across the 180,000-square-foot roof. Low-flow toilets will replace all the existing toilets in the building. New light switches automatically turn off when no motion is detected in the area. There are many other improvements as well.

"We are grateful for the opportunity to engage in this program with DCAM. It is an example of good collaborative management that benefits everyone," Sheriff Bellotti said. "It will also give us more pinpoint control over our energy systems here at the jail.

Ilyana Selinger-Batista 'Read To Ride' Bicycle Winner

Dependable Cleaners announces Quincy resident Ilyana Selinger-Batista has won a new bike through its annual Read to Ride program.

The program is designed to encourage students to keep up with their reading during the summer months. Students from ages 6-15 will have the chance to win a bike or an exciting prize for every book they read. Since the program's inception in 1999, more than 74,000 books have been read.

Ilyana Selinger-Batista, age 11, is the final winner of Dependable Cleaners annual Read to Ride program. The Quincy resident was ecstatic when she got the phone call announcing she had won the final bike. Ilyana has put a lot of time and effort into reading this summer completing 80 book entries! She has also has named J.K. Rowling as her new favorite author. Besides reading, she enjoys soccer, art and practicing the piano. Ilyana will be going into sixth grade at Atlantic Middle School this fall.

Senior Forum At Kennedy Center

The first annual John Noonan Senior Forum will take place at the Kennedy Center on Friday, Sept. 22 at 12:30 p.m.

This event takes the place of what was the Quincy Council on Aging Senior Conference. Instead of various workshops the focus of the forum will be how the perception of aging can change.

Today's seniors are very active; planning, shifting careers, starting new businesses, cooking, texting, volunteering, traveling, dating, taking classes and much more yet most beliefs about aging have remained the same.

Keynote speaker will be Tom Clasby, director of the Quincy Council on Aging. The forum will also feature a catered luncheon and discussion on how the community should move forward to help change one's perception of aging.

Tickets for this event are $10 per person and can be purchased at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

For additional information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Quincy Homestead Open House, Garden Tours Saturday

Historic Home At Butler And Hancock Streets

The Quincy Homestead will be open on Saturday, Sept. 2nd and again Sept. 16th, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. with the last tour beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The historic home has been located at the corner of Butler Road and Hancock Street since 1686.

Ask, and volunteers can show you where in 1635 it is believed Edmund Quincy I built his house in a wood full of game - not far from the fresh water of Butler Pond and Furnace Brook - 382 years ago!

This Labor Day weekend, children of all ages are welcome to try their hands at early colonial games and learn about the roles those their age played in helping their families survive the long winters in a world without grocery stores, electricity or internet opportunities. The gardens, beautifully kept by volunteers, portray their own record of importance and beauty, while the mansion's architecture offers a time capsule repertoire of changes wrought by 3 centuries of evolving taste.

What is today fondly known as the Dorothy Quincy Homestead is owned by the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) in public/private partnership with The National Society of The Colonial Dames in The Commonwealth of Massachusetts (NSCDA-MA).

Free historic tours of the house and garden will begin on the half-hour starting at 11 a.m. The final tour will leave at 2:30 pm.

For more information about the house, private tours, gardens and grounds, call (617) 742-3190 or email dames@nscdama.org. There is also information available at www.nscdama.org and on Facebook under Quincy Homestead 1686.

Shrimp With Rice And Polenta

By MARIE

Polenta was always a favorite in my family – both my mother and mother-in-law cooked it very often. And we usually enjoyed it with tomato sauce and grated cheese.

In today's recipe the polenta is served as a bottom layer with a delicious topping over it.

RECIPE

1 and 1/2 cups instant polenta (the instant cooks really fast!)
3 tablespoons of butter
1 and 1/2 cups sharp cheese (any favorite)
1 pound of shrimp peeled and deveined
5 slices of bacon cooked and chopped
2 tablespoons of fresh parsley chopped
2 tablespoons of vegetable oil
1 small onion thinly sliced
1 clove of garlic minced
4 tablespoons of lemon juice

Cook polenta according to directions. Add butter and cheese and set aside.

In a skillet with vegetable oil add the garlic and onion and sauté. Then add the shrimp and sauté for a few more minutes. Then add the lemon juice, bacon and parsley and sauté until done.

Spoon polenta into a bowl and place shrimp mixture on top. Serve hot.

Healthy School Snacks

By SUSIE

Studies show that the better quality breakfast, snacks, and lunches children have while in school increases school performance on all levels, including sports, grades, focus and overall attitude.

Here are some healthy snacks with healthy fats, proteins, and carbohydrates that you can feel good giving your kids.

Make your own "Lunchables: Kids love stacking and making things their own. Buy some healthy crackers (Nature's Path makes organic high-quality crackers) and in a Bento type box, provide sliced raw cheese, organic sliced meats like ham or turkey or roast beef, sliced crispy veggies like peppers or carrots sliced thinly, an organic juice box (I like Honest Kids and so do the kids!) some grapes on the side and as a treat you can put in a mini Z bar which comes in many delicious flavors (the chocolate tastes like a brownie) and these are always a hit.

You can also buy the individual almond butter or peanut butter packets (if allowed, of course) and they can spread that on the crackers with some sliced strawberries instead of the meat and cheese.

Sunbutter is allowed in schools with peanut allergies since it is made of sunflower seeds, but they do not make individual packets that I have seen. You can always spoon some in a small container with a lid, make sure you pack a plastic knife.

English muffin pizzas: Simply purchase some high quality English muffins (Barowski makes an organic whole grain one) and spoon on some marinara sauce, top with raw cheese and if your child agrees, put some baby spinach under the cheese for an added nutritional boost.

Bake in toaster oven and let cool.

I wrap mine in parchment paper and throw in a baggie or a container made for sandwiches (which can be found just about anywhere) These make a great snack (or lunch) and kids love pizza hot or cold.

Organic already sliced apples can be found just about everywhere now. These make a great snack served with a protein/fat combination like raw cheese cubes, or nut/seed butters.

Individual hummus servings are available in many places now and come in a variety of flavors. Packing one of these with some whole grain crackers, pita bread, tortilla, or vegetable sticks make a nutritious and tasty snack.

A thermos full of leftover soup, stew, chili, or pasta makes a great snack/lunch and as long as you invest in a good thermos (normally around $25.00 but worth it) everything will stay nice and hot.

Greek yogurt dips make a filling snack as well. Buy the full fat organic kind and just mix in some sea salt, pepper, garlic powder, onion powder, and fresh herbs. Your kids will love it served with crackers or vegetables, or some rice chips. (I like Lundbergs brand.)

A great drink option would be ORGAIN drinks for kids. They come in strawberry, vanilla, or chocolate and the kids drink these up. They contain protein, vegetables, and fruits and are loaded with important vitamins and minerals that they need to keep their energy levels up. These need to be cold, so make sure you put an ice pack with these.

Houghs Neck 'ChowdaFest' Sept. 9

The Houghs Neck community will host its 13th annual "ChowdaFest" on Saturday, Sept. 9th from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Maritime Center in Houghs Neck, 137 Bay View Ave.

The "ChowdaFest" will feature at least two dozen recipes from local restaurants and individual contestants. Admission is $5 and includes a taste of each chowda and live entertainment by SuperFly.

There will be a cash bar, cold drinks and food as well as a bake sale.

All proceeds raised from ChowdaFest will support local youth and family programs of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Any individuals interested in entering a "Chowda" should contact Eileen Timcoe at 617-479-4107 or 617-481-9153 etimcoe@yahoo.com.

Restaurants or businesses interested in entering a chowda or sponsoring the band for $500, tent for $100 or a keg for $50 should contact Jim McCarthy at (617) 285-8405 or HoughsNeckQuincy@gmail.com

The event is an opportunity to reconnect with friends and neighbors, past and present, in a beautiful seaside location. Last year, more than 1,500 people attended and more are expected this year.

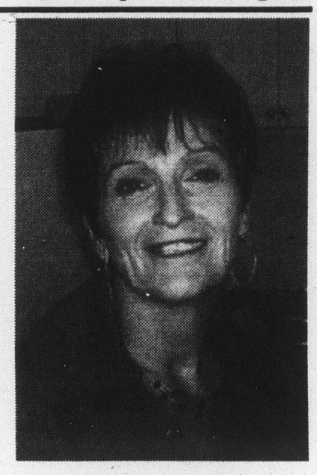
Easing Your Child Back To School

A Message From The Quincy Health Department



RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-F

After months of staying up late at night, zoning out in front of the TV or video game screen, running untamed outside, and eating snacks throughout the day, kids are in for an enormous adjustment as they venture back to school. Most children need assistance transitioning back into a routine with limits for a positive beginning to the school year.

Going back to school means an end to staying up late. To guide your child in transitioning back to rising early, it's crucial to institute a new sleep routine.

Begin with going to bed one hour earlier every night and waking up early each morning until the new routine is established. It is important to start this a week or two before going back to school, not the night before school starts.

The National Sleep Foundation stipulates guidelines for the amount of sleep children should get at various ages. They suggest kids between the ages of 3 and 5 get 10 to 13 hours of sleep a night; ages 6 to 13 need 9 to 11 hours of sleep; and teens 14 and older should get 8 to 10 hours of sleep a night.

This time of year is also a good time for kids to pay a visit the pediatrician, dentist and eye doctor to ensure their health makes the grade. Most pediatrician's offices are jam-packed full of patients the week prior to school starting. Annual checkups should be done by a pediatrician before each new school year to confirm that your child's medical records and vaccinations are up to date. You will most likely be asked to provide this information to the school

Hearing screenings are done regularly until about age six or seven and then every two to three years thereafter. Hearing tests should also be performed in between these times if you have any concerns. Vision screenings are normally done as part of a child's physical exam, so parents should request that the pediatrician check their children's eyesight before classes start.

According to the CDC, tooth decay is one of the most common chronic conditions among children and results in an overwhelming number of school absenteeism. Proper oral hygiene is a critical part of a child's overall health. All kids should visit the dentist two times a year for routine cleanings and they should be encouraged to brush their teeth twice a day with fluoridated toothpaste.

For the most part kids spend the summer eating differently, with less rules and more treats, before school commences, it may be wise to make some changes. While lingering in the final days of summer, get your child back into the habit of eating three regular meals a day: breakfast, lunch and dinner. If possible families should try to sit down for meals together to aid the child in resetting the routine. It's also beneficial to check with your child's school to find out about lunch options and meal schedules before the school year starts. Be sure and inform the school if your child has any food allergies.

Backpacks crammed with books and school supplies can put a strain on your child's neck, shoulders and back. Make sure when purchasing a backpack it is sturdy enough to carry a heavy load.

The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that kids always use both shoulder straps when wearing a backpack. Slinging a backpack over one shoulder can cause severe muscle strain. Also, it might be worthwhile to check with your school to see if they allow rolling backpacks, which may be a suitable option for students who have a lot to carry.

The American Academy of Pediatrics also suggests creating a home environment that is conducive to studying and doing homework. Children need a consistent work space either in their bedroom or another part of the home that is quiet, free of distractions, and promotes learning. It's a valuable idea to schedule a consistent time for homework so the child develops a routine.

Make certain that homework time is void of distractions such as TV, cell phones or other electronic devices. If your child seems to be struggling with a particular subject or can't focus, discuss this with a teacher or school counselor to determine the most appropriate resolution.

If your child has ADD or ADHD, odds are you've been able to get through summer months a little simpler because kids are running around releasing an abundance of pent up energy. To facilitate them in re-adjusting and refocusing on the demands of school, restrict screen time and re-establish a consistent reading schedule into your child's daily routine preferably a few weeks before school starts. Settling on regular meal times and morning and bedtime practices are also beneficial concepts.

It is imperative that once school commences, that you make sure your child's emergency telephone number and contact information is accurate and kept current. The child's physician and dentist also need to be listed. The school nurse should be made aware of all the medications your child takes, even those medicines that are taken only at home. If the child is to take the medications at school, they must be in the original pharmacy bottle, clearly marked. Any health issues should be made known to the school, including allergies or any physical restrictions.

If you child appears to be skeptical about returning to school or seems anxious about the first day, remind them of all the new experiences they will encounter and how their friends are waiting to see them again. Maybe another child in the neighborhood could come along the first day, to ease those back-to-school-jitters. Be sure you have reliable arrangements for after-school too, so your child will feel safe and secure when they end their school day.

Quincy Choral Society To Perform 3 Programs

For its 2017-2018 season, Quincy Choral Society will once again feature three diverse programs, performing choral music from a variety of genres.

The December concert will highlight American composer Morten Lauridsen's Mid-Winter Songs, a collection of stunning music filled with rich text and lush harmonies. Accompanying this collection will be holiday carols from around the world.

The always popular March pops concert and silent auction will honor Leonard Bernstein and include music from West Side Story, jazz favorites, and works from other New England composers who helped define the "American sound."

For its final concert of the season, Quincy Choral Society will perform Carl Orff's Carmina Burana in its entirety with a full orchestra. This masterwork will be paired with Wagner's equally rousing Tannhäuser Overture.

The December concert will be held at Central Middle School, Quincy, the March concert and silent auction will be held at Quincy Catholic Academy, and the May concert will be held at St. Mary of the Hills Church in Milton.

The first rehearsal will be held Monday, Sept. 11 from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m. at East Congregational Church, 610 Adams St., on the Milton/Quincy line. The chorus invites singers in all voice parts, especially tenors and basses, to attend the first rehearsal.

Check the Choral Society's website, quincychoral.org, for any additional information. "Like" us on Facebook as updated information is also available there.

Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. Members sing with music in their hearts, performing diverse, professional quality programs designed to entertain, enlighten, and enrich the human spirit.

The chorus regularly performs locally, has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., Carnegie Hall in New York City as part of the Masterworks Series, and in Europe.

Maestro Joshua Rohde is actively involved with the musical life of Greater Boston as a conductor, performer, and educator. He received a Doctor of Musical Arts degree in Choral Conducting from Boston University in May.

Virginia "Gingy" Grimes has been the accompanist for the Quincy Choral Society since 1993. Ms. Grimes received her piano accompaniment degree from Duke University and accompanies various ensembles and soloists throughout the Boston area.

Social Security Matters

DRC's, Working and Waiting; Restricted Application

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: My wife is 66 and not collecting S.S. She wants to wait until age 70 to collect the larger benefit, but I know she could collect now and her payments will grow if she continues to work until age 70 because there were at least 4 years that she had no income and several years where her income was only $2k - $3k. In the next 5 years she will earn around $25K per year. My question is, what will be the difference in benefits at age 70 if she just waits to collect versus if she collects now and continues to contribute to S.S? Our birth dates are 12/1950 (wife) and 05/1953. I am not yet collecting benefits. Signed: Trying to Maximize our Benefits

Dear Trying: The first thing to keep in mind is that for each year of your wife's working career her earnings are adjusted for inflation before her benefit calculation is done. So, for example, $3,000 earned in 1971 would, for purposes of computing her benefit, be adjusted to about $21,450 in today's dollars. The same is true for earnings in each of the years up to when your wife turned 60 years old, but only to the maximum taxable earnings for each year. So your wife's benefit would only increase as a result of her working now if she earned more than any of the inflation-adjusted earnings for one or more of the years in the 35 years used to calculate her benefit. However, replacing any years in which she had zero earnings would improve her benefit a small amount.

Since your wife has reached her Social Security "full retirement age" of 66, she's entitled to 100 percent of what's called her "primary insurance amount", or PIA. For each year she waits beyond age 66 she'll earn delayed retirement credits (DRCs) to the tune of 8 percent per year, up to age 70. So if her PIA is $1,000 at age 66, she would instead receive $1,320 if she retires at age 70. Considering that any adjustment to her PIA from working would actually be very small due to the 35 year averaging and earnings indexing, the guaranteed 8 percent per year benefit increase would appear to be a prudent path. However, there's another strategy you may want to consider.

Since both of you were 62 years of age prior to January 1, 2016, you have available to you a strategy known as the "Restricted Application." This "loophole" was closed by the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015 for all except those born prior to 1954. Using this strategy, one spouse can begin receiving benefits and the other spouse can, once they reach their full retirement age, file a "Restricted Application for Spousal Benefits Only" and allow their own personal benefit to earn Delayed Retirement Credits up to age 70. This would typically be used to enable a lower-earning spouse to begin benefits while the higher-earning spouse's benefit grew to its maximum of 132 percent of PIA. Using this strategy, your wife could start her benefits now, and you could file the restricted application and collect spousal benefits from her work record while letting your own grow at 8 percent per year until you are 70. You would then switch to your own larger retirement benefits. At that point your wife could switch to spousal benefits from your record if higher than her own, and both of you will have collected benefits on her record during the years in between.

A final note: An important consideration is the potential increased survivor's benefit your wife would be entitled to as your widow, since she would get 100 percent of your benefit rather than the lower amount she would otherwise receive on her own work record (or as your spouse). Note too that all of this is predicated upon you maintaining good health and adequate financial resources to be able to delay applying for Social Security benefits until age 70.

Maritime Center Conceptual Plans Unveiled

said of these land acquisitions.

The conceptual plan for the site, which does assume the city acquires those properties, calls for moving the maritime center building to higher ground located closer to Bay View Avenue near the vicinity of the current boat ramp. A new boat ramp would then be built closer to where the current maritime center is located.

The city has received a $680,000 grant from the Massachusetts Seaport Economic Council and $170,000 from Quincy's Community Preservation Committee for the new ramp. The city had planned to construct the new boat ramp – which would be wider than the current one and at steeper angle to better accommodate boats at all tides – this year but Laforest said those plans were put on hold when new FEMA flood maps placed the maritime center building itself in a velocity zone, and the decision was made to move the building to higher ground on site.

Scott Winkler, a senior project manager with Wessling Architects, said the new maritime center would measure 50 feet wide and 80 feet long on the ground floor. The second and third stories of the structure would be stepped back on the ocean side. At its highest point, the building would be 30 feet tall.

The first floor of the building would include restrooms for members of the public using the boat ramp or swimming nearby; those restrooms will be accessible even if the rest of the building is closed. Also located on the first floor would be storage space, an office and kitchen, a community room with space for up to 75 people, and exhibit space showcasing Houghs Neck's history. There would also be a deck facing the water on the ground level.

The second floor would include a 100-person meeting room and the third floor would house two offices for the Quincy Police Marine Unit. The upper floors would be accessible by staircase and elevator and would have their own restrooms. Roof decks overlooking Hingham Bay would be located on both the second and third floors of the building, and an observation deck, meant to resemble a former observation post on Great Hill, would be located on the opposite side of the building, providing views of Houghs Neck and Boston.

Laforest said the maritime center would serve as a new home for the Houghs Neck Community Council, currently based out of 1193 Sea St. Manet Community Health Center, which shares the building with the neighborhood group, has expressed an interest in expanding its facility on site, she added.

There was no estimate for how much the new building would cost to construct. The city will seek a Seaport Economic Council grant to pay for the construction of the new facility.

"We are looking for grant funding for the building. Because we, the city, are using hotel/motel tax, we get to count that as our match, so we see this as a very good candidate," Laforest said. "The Marshfield harbormaster's office and Marshfield Maritime Center was fully funded by the Seaport Economic Council."

There is also no timeline yet for the project because of the permitting process it entails.

"What the timeline is? You're at the mercy of the permitting agencies, and that pushes everything sequentially," Laforest said.

The project would also include a reconfiguration of the parking lot to improve the flow of vehicles inside, provide a total of 47 spaces – about 20 for those with boat trailers – including new ADA accessible ones, reduce the slope of the lot, provide stormwater treatment on site and add more green space. Under the proposed new traffic flow, vehicles would enter from Sea Street and exit onto Bay View Avenue; the latter road would be widened and utilities along it buried underground, if the three houses were acquired.

The new 28-foot-wide boat ramp would also be installed; the new ramp would have enough room to accommodate two boats side by side and would be useable during all tides and not just at high tide as the current ramp is. Lt. Bob Gillan, the head of QPD's Marine Unit, said temporary navigational aids would be used seasonally in the water off the ramp to guide boaters away from the nearby Quincy Yacht Club, moored vessels and other hazards.

Laforest said the area near the current ramp could be converted into a beach. The plans also call for a 'saltwater pool' at the end of the pier at the Houghs Neck Public Landing. The saltwater pool, she explained, is four floats connected together to form a rectangle, allowing people to swim inside; the pool would have no bottom. People could still jump off the pier at the public landing if they wanted to.

The residents who were in attendance at the meeting were mostly in favor of the conceptual plans unveiled that evening. There was, however, some concern about the size of the building.

"I think the building is very attractive and I'm glad the public will have a view of the harbor, which I will not have," said Gay Carbonneau. "My view that used to be beautiful will no longer be there, but some people have to sometimes give up things for other people. I've been there for 50 years and maybe that's my contribution."

Daniel Davis raised the same concern about the size of the building relative to others in the neighborhood. Davis is one of four candidates running for the Ward 1 seat this fall; Laforest is running for an at-large seat.

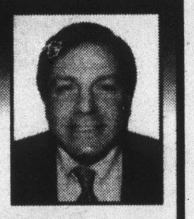
DENTISTRY for the 21st Century



by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

DENTAL CARE CUTS PNEUMONIA RISK

There has been a lot of accumulating evidence that good oral care helps preserve health in other parts of the body. For instance, there is research showing a link between dental care and critically ill patients. Most recently, this link has been expanded to include the general population, as data from a national survey suggests that people who never undergo regular dental checkups have nearly twice the risk of getting bacterial pneumonia as those who visit their dentists twice a year. The fact is that there is a direct connection between the mouth and lungs through which bacteria can be breathed in. This study confirms the need to include dental checkups as part of a comprehensive approach to wellness.

Poor dental care is also a possible factor in other conditions, such as immune system disorders, weak bones, and problems with pregnancy and low birth weight. Encourage your family to practice good oral hygiene by brushing after every meal, flossing daily and using a mouth rinse to kill bacteria. And, of course, see your dentist! To schedule an appointment, please call our office. You can also visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. "Aspiration pneumonia" is the term used to describe a lung infection that occurs after food, liquid, or vomit is inhaled into the lungs.

one of the largest kindergarten classes in recent years.

"The dedicated professional staff of the Quincy Public Schools is looking forward to a year filled with a variety of learning experiences and accomplishments for your students," DeCristofaro said.

"Over the summer, elementary, middle, and high school teachers availed themselves of professional development opportunities to learn about new instructional strategies, classroom technology, and curriculum aligned to the Common Core state standards. Over 900 students from all grade levels participated in Extended Educational programs, encompassing academic and enrichment opportunities and employment through the Summer YouthWorks Program."

As the school year nears, the superintendent said personnel are working to install new computers and other equipment for students and teachers.

"To assist with growing needs for educational technology, many upgrades have been completed this summer through the support of Mayor Koch's capital improvement plan, the Quincy City Council and the School Committee," DeCristofaro stated. "Installations of new desktops and laptops, document cameras, projectors, educational software, operating system upgrades, and technology professional development are ongoing throughout the school system.

"Our partners in the Quincy School–Community Partnership continue to enhance our students' educational opportunities through supporting technology initiatives and the robotics program for grades 5-12, providing backpacks and school supplies for elementary school students, real-work experiences for high school career and technical education students, and funding the mentoring program for new educators."

DeCristofaro also touted improvements being made to the school buildings themselves: Beechwood Knoll is receiving a new roofing system and boiler room and Atherton Hough, Merrymount and Wollaston are all getting new boilers. Construction of the new Sterling Middle School is also underway, and updates on that project will be provided during School Committee meetings.

In terms of educational programs, DeCristofaro noted advanced coursework in science is now being offered at all five of the city's middle schools, which already offer advanced coursework in English language arts and math.

The superintendent said the most important in student success the role parents and guardians play at home.

"As the new school year begins, please remember that the most meaningful factor in assisting students to have a successful school experience is the concern and participation of their parents," he said.

"In order to help your children attain their goals, we need your involvement, whether it be through attending parent-teacher conferences and parent academy events, volunteering in your child's school, and most importantly, reinforcing the importance of on-time school attendance, appropriate behavior and class participation, and completion of schoolwork."

Winter break is coming this year at the end of the school day on Friday, Dec. 22, and schools will re-open on Tuesday, Jan. 2. February vacation begins at the end of the school day on Friday, Feb. 16, and ends Monday, Feb. 26. April vacation starts at the end of the school day on Friday, April 13, and ends Monday, April 23.

The final day for 12th graders is slated for May 30. Quincy High School's graduation ceremony is set for June 11 and North Quincy High School's commencement is the following day. In the event of inclement weather, those ceremonies would be moved indoors and not bumped to a later date.

The last day for all other students is June 15; in the event five days of school are canceled for snow or other reasons, the final day for those students would be June 22. The final day for professional staff is scheduled for June 18, but could be changed because of cancelations.

Here are the hours for Quincy Public Schools:

themselves of Professional Development opportunities to learn about new instructional strategies, classroom technology, and curriculum aligned to the Common Core State Standards. Over 900 students from all grade levels participated in Extended Educational programs, encompassing academic and enrichment opportunities and employment through the Summer YouthWorks Program.

Last spring, Mayor Koch and the School Committee collaborated with the Superintendent's Leadership and Principal Teams to fund academic classroom and academic program teacher positions to maintain class sizes within the range of School Committee guidelines. New academic classroom and program teachers, academic support staff, and non-academic support staff have been hired across the school system to replace retired staff. New professional staff members will participate in a two-day orientation on August 30 and 31, including meeting with the Mayor, School Committee, and members of the Superintendent's Leadership and Principal Teams to learn about their professional responsibilities, the many programs and services offered by Quincy Public Schools, and the mentoring program for new staff.

To assist with growing needs for educational technology, many upgrades have been completed this summer through the support of Mayor Koch's Capital Improvement Plan, the Quincy City Council., and the School Committee. Installations of new desktops and laptops, document cameras, projectors, educational software, operating system upgrades, and technology professional development are ongoing throughout the school system. Our partners in the Quincy School~Community Partnership continue to enhance our students' educational opportunities through supporting technology initiatives and the robotics program for Grades 5-12, providing backpacks and school supplies for elementary school students, real-work experiences for high school Career and Technical Education students, and funding the mentoring program for new educators.

Along with staffing, curriculum, and technology enhancements, we are working on many initiatives across the school system. Opportunities for differentiated instruction continue to expand with advanced coursework in Science being offered to Grades 6-8 students at all five middle schools beginning this fall, complementing the advanced coursework being offered for English Language Arts and Mathematics. High school students will make a difference in their schools and communities through volunteering in the sixth year of School Committee's Community Service initiative. Students in Grades 11 and 12 will again have the opportunity to take college

Dear World,

My young son starts to school today. It's going to be sort of strange and new to him for awhile, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently. You see, up to now he's been king of the roost. He's been boss of the backyard. His mother has always been near to soothe his wounds and repair his feelings. But now things are going to be different. This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure. It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans. It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow. To live his life in the world he will have to live in, will require faith and love and courage.

So, World, I wish you would sort of look after him. Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know. But do it gently, if you can. He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true. But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero. That for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader. Teach him that for every enemy there is a friend. Steer him away from envy, if you can, and teach him the secret of quiet laughter. In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat. Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong. Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people. Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon. Teach him to listen to all men – but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through. Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he is sad. Teach him there is no shame in tears. Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success. Treat him gently, World, if you can, but don't coddle him, because only the test of fire makes fine steel. Let him have the courage to be impatient. Let him have the patience to be brave. Let him be no man's man. Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself, because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind.

This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do. He's such a nice little fellow, my son!

Back to School

Republic Services Offers Seven Eco-Friendly Back-To-School Tips

As students begin a new school year, Republic Services is encouraging parents, teachers and administrators to incorporate sustainable practices whenever possible with seven back to school tips.

"Environmental responsibility is not always top of mind when preparing to go back to school," said Pete Keller, vice president of recycling and sustainability. "When you incorporate one sustainable practice into your daily routine, you can make a lasting environmental impact. Back to school is the perfect time to start adopting better habits you and your whole family can practice."

Republic suggests practicing these useful tips as families and schools begin the new school year:

1. Plan: Make a list before you shop for school supplies to limit impulse buying.

2. Repurpose: Before shopping for new back-to-school items, sort through old supplies. Many from last year can be reused or repurposed.

3. Buy Smart: Whenever possible, purchase supplies made from recycled or reused products.

4. Reuse: Bring drinks in a thermos or reusable water bottle and be sure to recycle milk cartons, bottles or other recyclable containers.

5. Pack it Up: If packing lunch from home, use reusable containers and carry them in a reusable bag or lunch box.

6. Volunteer: Find out if your school has a recycling program, and take part. If not, team up with administrators and teachers to start a recycling program that works for your school.

7. Empty, Clean & Dry: Always make sure your recyclables are EMPTY, CLEAN and DRY before tossing them in the recycling bin.

The new school year is the perfect time to identify and minimize the impact of individual activities on the local environment. For example, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), food waste is the second largest category of municipal solid waste and is a significant contributor to greenhouse gas emissions. Based on USDA calculations, approximately 31 percent of all food from home and school goes uneaten, and is eventually discarded. By incorporating sustainable practices at home and at school, parents, teachers and administrators can instill sustainable behaviors in students that can be carried forward throughout their life.

Known as the Blue Planet™ sustainability initiative, Republic Services is defining its approach to corporate social responsibility through the practices and programs outlined in its Sustainability Report. To view the latest Report, go to www.RepublicServices.com/Sustainability.

Proper Backpack Fit, Weight

With the new school year fast approaching, Peak Physical Therapy & Sports Performance, a South Shore practice specializing in unique programs that provide comprehensive treatment in orthopedic, spine and sports medicine specialties is providing a little education on the long-term effects of carrying a heavy backpack.

"We've all seen those comical pictures of children carrying backpacks that look as though they outweigh them but there's nothing funny about the damage a too heavy backpack can do to a child's spine," said Eric Edelman, PT and owner of Peak Physical Therapy & Sports Performance.

Here are some basic tips suggested by Edelman:

- The backpack should weigh only 10-15% of your child's bodyweight; i.e. if they weigh 100 pounds, their backpack should carry 10-15 pounds of books
- The heaviest books should be kept closest to the body and the lightest books furthest away
- Straps should be adjusted properly so that the backpack sits no lower than the top of the buttocks
- It's ideal to purchase a backpack that has additional support straps that go across the chest and waist to help evenly distribute the weight
- Wear the backpack using both straps and not slung over one shoulder

The long-term effects of carrying an overweight or unevenly distributed back pack can cause:

- a strained neck and shoulders leading to headaches
- damage to the spine
- reduced breathing capacity due to poor posture
- scoliosis
- back pain and muscle spasms
- excessive strain on joints

"Help your child determine what's essential to bring in their backpack and leave the rest at home!" said Edelman.

Back-To-School Safety

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer

LT. DAN MINTON

It's that time of year again. Time to send your children back to school. It can be a frightening time for parents, but if you prepare your child for the big world you may help save them from getting into trouble.

- Make sure your children are taking the safest route to school and friends' houses, one that avoids danger spots like alleys, new construction, and wooded areas.
- Encourage your children to walk and play with friends, not alone, and to stay in well-lit, open areas where others can see them.
- Don't hang a house key around your child's neck. It's a telltale sign that you won't be at home when they return from school. Put it inside a pocket or sock.
- Teach children to walk confidently and stay alert to what's going on around them.
- Encourage your children to look out for other kids' safety and report anything they see that doesn't seem right.
- Tell your children to stay away from strangers who hang around playgrounds, public rest rooms and empty buildings.
- Rehearse with children their full name, address, and phone number (including area code) and how to make emergency phone calls from home and public phones.
- Tell children never to accept gifts or rides from someone they don't know well.
- Check your neighborhood for areas that threaten children's safety, like brush in wooded areas, overgrown shrubbery, abandoned buildings, bad lighting, vacant lots littered with debris, no sidewalks or bike paths next to busy streets.
- Teach children to go to a store clerk or security guard and ask for help if you become separated in a store or shopping mall. Tell them never to go into the parking lot alone. Accompany your children to public rest rooms.
- Teach children no one, not even someone they know, has the right to touch them in a way that makes them feel uncomfortable. Tell them that they have the right to say "No" to any adult in this situation.

If you teach the above tips to your children, they will be better prepared to survive in this great big, sometimes crazy, world.

courses for credit through the new Dual Enrollment program with Quincy College. At all levels, extended day opportunities will be available "beyond the bell" for academic enrichment, the arts, and athletics.

Our school buildings will be ready for the new school year, with the Public Buildings Maintenance staff completing improvements such as newly retiled floors and new carpeting, repainted classrooms, and repairs to building mechanicals including addressing electrical, plumbing, and heating issues. Custodians across the school system have worked diligently all summer to prepare classrooms and offices for the new school year. As always, we are grateful for the support of the Park Department in maintaining and improving the landscaping at our school buildings.

At the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, a completely new roofing system is being installed along with a new boiler room. Boiler rooms were also replaced at Atherton Hough, Merrymount, and Wollaston Elementary Schools. We are continuing to work with the Massachusetts School Building Authority and the Public Buildings department on the new Sterling Middle School project with site preparation for the new building well underway. Updates on the Sterling Middle School and other MSBA projects will be presented at upcoming School Committee meetings, the first of which will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 13 at 6:30 p.m. in the Coddington Building and broadcast live on QATV Channel 22.

As the new school year begins, please remember that the most meaningful factor in assisting students to have a successful school experience is the concern and participation of their parents. In order to help your children attain their goals, we need your involvement, whether it be through attending parent-teacher conferences and Parent Academy events, volunteering in your child's school, and most importantly, reinforcing the importance of on-time school attendance, appropriate behavior and class participation, and completion of schoolwork. You can also stay informed about your child's school and all of Quincy Public Schools through our website www.quincypublicschools.com or by following us on Facebook or Twitter (@QuincyPS).

While you enjoy the last few days of summer vacation, please note the calendar for the opening days of school below. Your principal will be happy to answer any questions you might have related to the opening of school or feel free to contact my office at 617-984-8701.

- The first day of school for Grades 1-9 is Wednesday, Sept. 6.
- Grades 10-12 will begin school on Thursday, Sept. 7.
- Pre-Kindergarten and Kindergarten students will attend an Orientation at their individual schools on Friday, Sept. 8; each family will receive information on orientation from their child's school.
- The first day of school for Kindergarten and Pre-Kindergarten is Monday, Sept. 11.

On behalf of all of the staff at the Quincy Public Schools, best wishes for a successful school year to you and your family.

Sincerely,

Richard DeCristofaro, Ed.D.

Ask Barbara Graceffa: 'Secretary Of The Interior'

Fond Of Wall Paneling? Embrace It

On all the home shows on TV, I see many designers who loathe wall paneling? Is it really so bad, I kind of like it. Francis

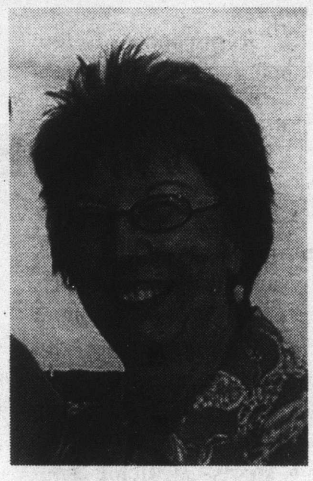
Here is another case to remind you that the home fashion police will not haul you away for making choices to place (or keep) something in your home that you really (or even "kind of") like.

What is not in style is the paneling from the 1960s and 70s that makes a room seem dark. If you have dark paneling and want to freshen it up, use a concealer primer (like Kilz) then add a top coat color to match or complement your décor. This look works especially well in country-style kitchens, beachy family rooms, rustic dens, and the like.

If you want to add wall panels to your home, look into the new wallpapers that resemble paneling, even the popular ship lap à la Joanna Gaines from HGTV's Fixer Upper. In fact, I just saw a DIY network show where the flippers used T1-11 plywood siding – the wood panels you typically see on barns and sheds –as interior walls (instead on sheet rock) and they sanded and painted it.

Another thought is to use bead board or wainscoting that I believe will never go out of style. Also trending in the last few years is the use of wood or wood-look plank flooring on the ceiling or continued up one wall as a focal point.

One final thought on paneling, not too long ago, the industry introduced many new decorative panels. Some are PVC panels or plant-fiber rectangles that are easy to install and clean and come in multiple colors. They come in numerous patterns like waves, circles, woven, and many other classic and contemporary geometric-shaped patterns. Other panels come in copper, antique bronze, and argent silver.



BARBARA GRACEFFA

In short, your home is a reflection of your style and lifestyle. If you are fond of paneling, embrace it.

New HN Maritime Center Conceptual Plans Unveiled

"I think everyone agrees the building as shown – it's design – is beautiful. It's very pretty, but it seems to me like a giant building," Davis said.

In response to concerns about the building's size, Laforest noted the site is in a Business B zoning district, which allows for buildings up to four stories tall and houses in the surrounding neighborhood, a Residential A district, can be up to 35 feet tall under the city's zoning code. She said her own house is roughly 30 feet tall, the same height as the maritime center is in the conceptual plans.

Winkler, the architect, said the building is the same width as the Quincy Yacht Club and half the length.

David McCarthy, who is also running for the Ward 1 seat, said the building would not be too big for the neighborhood. He said the building has the same height as several houses on nearby Homestead Avenue.

"I think it's a giant positive for the Neck," McCarthy said. "I think it's going to fit in."

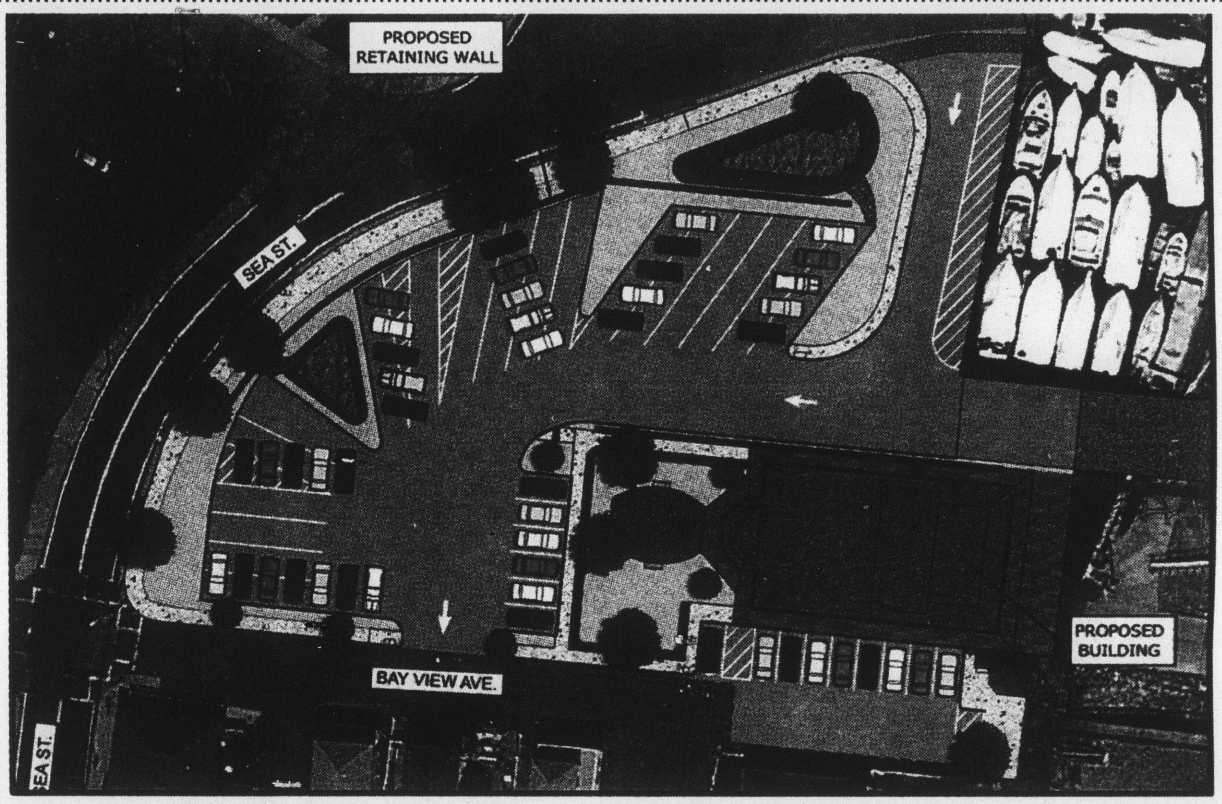
Joseph Murphy, who is likewise running for the seat, said he has heard from residents who are concerned about the revamped ramp generating more traffic.

"They are concerned this is going to become a madhouse on weekend mornings," Murphy said, before asking if the lot would be staffed and if the city would charge non-Quincy residents for using it.

Laforest said the city could not charge non-residents more than residents, and said she and Gillan hope there would be no fees for using the ramp to promote boating. Gillan said Weymouth does charge residents more to use the ramp on the Back River, but said it was questionable if the town is legally allowed to do so.

In regards having attendants work the lot, Laforest said it would not make financial sense to hire someone to staff a lot with only 20 trailer spaces. Quincy police, she added, are already on scene during peak periods to oversee the lot and assist boaters.

"During the boating season and in particular heavy weekends, they bring in additional staff," Laforest said. "They have a presence there."



OVERVIEW OF PROPOSED changes to the parking lot at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center and Public Landing. The site includes 47 parking spaces – including about 20 for boat trailers. The plan also calls for adding more green space, reducing the site's slope, adding new stormwater systems and relocating the maritime center building to higher ground. The city would have to purchase three homes in the vicinity of lot using hotel tax money to allow for the reconfiguration shown above, and also widen Bay View Avenue. Site Plan By Tighe & Bond

RESTORATION WORK now underway at Bethany Congregational Church's 125-foot bell tower included the replacement of pinnacle that was destroyed by lightning strike in September 2013. The top photo shows the new pinnacle (left) and an original pinnacle. The skyline of the City of Boston is noticeable in the background. The tower is 125 feet tall. The middle photo shows workers setting the final piece of the 10-foot, 1,800-pound pinnacle into place. The bottom photo, from September 2013, shows damage done by the lightning strike. in 1927. It was designed by J. Williams Beal, Sons, the Boston architectural firm that also designed the Granite Trust Building and Quincy Masonic Temple, among other notable buildings in Massachusetts.

The church, designed in the English Gothic style, was constructed out of Quincy granite. The building was added to National Register of Historic Places in 1989 and was depicted in a 2016 episode of "The Simpsons" during a Boston-centric episode of the animated show.

The church's 125-foot-tall bell tower was struck by lightning in September 2013, shattering one of the pinnacles located on each of its four corners. Pieces of the pinnacle came crashing down and the church had to be evacuated shortly before Sunday services were set to start, but no one was hurt.

THE TOP OF the 125-foot Bethany Congregational Church bell tower features decorative concrete pinnacles and imposing gargoyles. The tower is undergoing a $460,000 restoration project. The iconic church, designed in the English Gothic style, is constructed of Quincy granite and stands at the corner of Spear and Coddington Streets in Quincy Center.

The debris did cause damage to the church's roof and playground equipment on the ground, however, and the lightning itself caused additional damage inside the building.

The congregation was able to make the most urgent repairs using insurance money. But the replacement of the pinnacle – which is made out of concrete, stands 10 feet tall and weighs 1,800 pounds – did not take place until the recent project began.

The project also includes the resealing and repointing of the mortar that holds the Quincy granite of the tower's exterior together.

"It's 90 years old – it went up in 1927 – so it's seen its share of nor'easters, hurricanes and lightning strikes," said Jean Wilson, a member of Bethany's bell tower committee.

The weathering of the tower has allowed water to seep inside. That has caused mineral deposits to the bricks that line the interior of the tower and water damage to the woodwork inside the structure.

Quincy-based Louis Pasqualucci & Son is serving as the general contractor for the project, and Rockland based Heritage Restoration is a subcontractor on the project. Workers on the project are using a bucket truck, which can reach up to 150 feet high, to access the exterior of the bell tower. Bob Pasqualucci said the exterior work would take about a month to complete.

Pasqualucci & Son was also the contractor who oversaw the installation of a new gargoyle when one of the four atop the bell tower was felled by lightning in July 2000.

The project to restore the bell tower has a $460,000 price tag. The Quincy Community Preservation Committee allocated a grant of $260,000 for the project earlier this year, with the church paying for the remainder using insurance money and other funds.

Lisa Aimola, the city's director of community preservation, said the restoration project is an important one because the bell tower serves as a landmark in the heart of Quincy Center.

"This will be just a lovely restoration and a needed restoration," she said.

Aimola has visited the church several times in recent weeks, at one point climbing into the bell tower's interior to see first hand the effect water seepage has had.

"I think it's such significant architecture, it's so unique and so beautiful,"

Funding Approved For Two Full-Time Athletic Directors

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy's two high schools will each have a full-time athletic director under a reorganization plan approved by the School Committee during a special meeting.

The school board on Aug. 22 voted 5-1 in favor of elevating the athletic director position from part-time to full-time status. As part of the plan approved at the meeting, the MIAA site coordinator position at each school – a full-time paraprofessional who functioned as a de facto assistant athletic director – will be eliminated.

Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro told the committee he would advertise the new athletic director positions, which will be open to internal and external candidates, for two weeks starting on Aug. 23 with interviews to follow soon thereafter. The new athletic directors will have a salary in the $70,000 to $90,000 range.

DeCristofaro and Mayor Thomas Koch, who chairs the school board, noted the two high schools previously had a full-time athletic director prior to budget cuts made in the wake of the 2008 recession. Quincy High and North Quincy High then shared a full-time athletic director for several years before the change to a part-time AD at each school was made four years ago.

DeCristofaro said the two individuals who most recently served as the athletic directors at the high schools had decided to resign from those positions because of professional and family reasons. They will still teach at the schools and will also serve as ADs until replacements are hired. Their resignation prompted a review of the position.

"Right now we have two openings in the athletic directors position, and when things like that happen in the school system we look for other opportunities – what else can we do to better serve," the superintendent said.

DeCristofaro said he looked to other communities that also have two high schools, Newton and Plymouth, to see how they handle the athletic directors position. Both high schools in each of those communities, he said, have their own full-time AD.

James Mullaney, the director of business affairs for the school system, said the current budget includes $157,000 in funding for the two-part time athletic directors positions and the MIAA site coordinators. Those funds will instead be used to pay the full-time ADs, whose combined salaries could reach $180,000. Mullaney said the school system could make up that potential shortfall in funding if necessary, but did not say where the extra money would come from, and the money could be provided out of the city's budget if needed.

The switch to full-time athletic directors, DeCristofaro said, will allow for better monitoring of students' academic performance and better evaluation of coaches – the new job description requires each AD to attend practices and home and away games. The switch will also allow them to attend MIAA and league meetings, which the part timers did not have time to do because of their teaching duties, and help oversee programs at the middle school level.

The new hires will also play a role in substance-use prevention and will be required to provide students and families with information on opioid use. As part of the reorganization, the position will be formally known as the director of athletics and student wellness.

Koch recalled his tenure as park director, which came during the time when each high school had its own full-time AD. He said having a full-time staff member in that role in each school allowed better long-term planning on a number of issues, which part timers don't have the time to do. Going forward, the mayor said the reorganization would hopefully boost participation in athletics and provide students a new counselor they could rely on.

"I just think it makes sense for each high school to have its own AD," Koch stated. "I think it will pay dividends and it's my hope that we'll see an increase in participation in sports in each high school. I think an AD in the building is like another dean, is like another mentor, is like another individual that helps those individuals get into college."

Committee member Anne Mahoney cast the lone vote against the plan. She said the issue should have been brought up sooner and more time was needed for the positions to be filled.

"I really do feel like we're pushing the envelope to say the least – to look for somebody you just described as critical needs in the school system and we have two weeks to go out and get them," Mahoney said. "This is something we could have been discussing months ago."

Committee member Barbara Isola expressed some concern about the potential for a deficit in funding for new positions, calling it "tenuous." Isola did vote in favor of the proposal, saying the school system would benefit from having two full-time ADs. She welcomed the role the new hires will play in terms of athletics at the middle school level.

"We've always looked at that as something that we wanted to really focus on and this does that. It creates a bridge from our students in middle school to our students in high school through the athletic directors," Isola said. "I think that's a benefit that can be intangible."

Committee members Kathryn Hubley and Emily Lebo both were pleased that the wellness component would be incorporated into the position.

"Student support services being in here with the health and wellness, I think that's incredibly important," Hubley said.

Lebo said she was happy the ADs would be able to work with all high schoolers on health and wellness, and not just the 35 percent who participate in sports.

"It's incredibly more beneficial than it would have been," she said, than only having them work with student-athletes.

Emily Lebo Seeking Re-Election On Quincy School Committee

Emily Lebo of Wollaston says she is pleased with what she has been able to accomplish for the students, families, and teachers of Quincy while serving six years on the School Committee, but she believes there is still work to be done.

EMILY LEBO

For this reason, she has decided to seek re-election to the school committee. Her re-election committee includes Donna Bertrand, Dona Colman, Dee Condon, Bill Lebo, Jen Lebo, Stu Lebo, Linda Monaco, Bennie Ranstrom, Gina Scanlan, Nancy Scanlan, and Will Smith.

Lebo said she has worked hard while on the school committee. Some of her proudest accomplishments have been the creation of the Quincy Evening High School Program, expanding the FIRST Robotics program in the high schools, bringing the LEGO League Robotics into the middle schools, making sure every middle school has a qualified librarian on staff, and creating the first Teaching and Learning subcommittee for the Quincy School Committee.

The creation of the Quincy Evening High School has been responsible for a dramatic decline in the dropout rate. This program provides students with an alternative to the traditional four-year high school program by allowing them to complete their course requirements while they work. Most recent data from the state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education proves that this program is working. In 2002 Quincy's dropout rate was 4.9 percent. The dropout rate for Quincy is currently 1.6 percent which is lower than the state-wide rate of 1.9 percent.

The inclusion of the robotics programs in both the middle and high schools has helped place an emphasis on STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) education in the classroom. Both Quincy and North Quincy High Schools now have a program that allows students to major in engineering.

Lebo's establishment of the Teaching and Learning Subcommittee for the school committee allows for the review of curriculum, materials, and instructional practices within the district. This helps the school committee assess the schools and their related data to achieve maximum student outcomes.

Lebo has been a career educator, not a career politician. As well as having been a Quincy Public School teacher and an administrator in both Quincy and Boston Public Schools, she has chaired the MA State Board of Education Advisory Committee on Career and Technical Education and testified on behalf of special education and technical education issues before the MA state legislative committees.

She continues to advocate for Quincy students with the MA Department of Elementary and Secondary Education. Most recently she has communicated to the DESE about the unfair and impractical electronic version of the MCAS Writing test to which Quincy's fourth and eighth grade students were subjected. To bring attention to this issue, she has reached out to the MA Association of School Committees and the MA Teachers Association.

In addition to being experienced, Lebo said she is strongly invested in the future of Quincy. She and her husband Stu have been Quincy homeowners for 42 years. Their three sons are all Quincy homeowners raising young families here, and in September all six of the Lebo grandchildren will attend four Quincy Public Schools.

She said her political aspirations go no further than providing the children of Quincy with the best possible education. With the support of voters in November, Ms. Lebo hopes to continue to pursue her passion to provide a high-quality education to all Quincy students.

For additional information email: leboforquincy@gmail.com or see her Facebook page @EmilyLeboForQuincySchoolCommittee.

Manets Focused On Returning To QYF Title Game

Quincy Youth Football 2016 varsity champion Houghs Neck Manets are finishing their summer football camp this week in hopes to play in there fourth straight championship game this upcoming season.

Franchise holder John Macneil has Head Coach Mike Flavin returning along with Kevin Gomez, Howie Chadbourne and Jose Diaz. Unlike previous years Macneil's varsity team will only have two returning players in Max Van Tassall and David Pitts. Coach Flavin says he is very excited this year and will lean on players such as Steve Gallant, Andrew Engren, Alex Rheault, Joey Manton, Mason McDonough, Willy Ploof and Mike Cascarano.

Flavin says he is especially excited to have Kevin Gomez coaching along side of him this year. "I feel Kevin is one of the best and committed coaches in the league," Flavin said. "With the coaches and the hard working dedicated players we have the skies are the limit this year."

The Manets will open there final season against the North Quincy Apaches Sunday, Sept. 10th at 4:30 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The Manets are still accepting sign-ups for flag and tackle football and cheerleading grades 1 through 8. For further information call team owner John Macneil 857-939-5735.

Quincycles Ride Sept. 9 Along Neponset River

Cycling enthusiasts are invited to join Quincycles on Saturday, Sept. 9 at 7:30 a.m. to ride along the Neponset River via roads and paths in Quincy and Milton.

The ride will include the new extension of the Neponset River Greenway Trail, which includes two dramatic crossings — the prominent arched Harvest River Bridge that connects the Milton and Mattapan sides of the Neponset River, and a canopy walk that winds over the Mattapan high-speed trolley path.

The ride is co-sponsored by the Neponset River Watershed Association. Meet at Squantum Point Park by the white shelter near the dock.

Quincycles rides are free and open to the public.

Quincycles is a group of Quincy residents advocating for bicycle infrastructure on city streets and promoting responsible bicycling as a means of transportation, recreation, and exercise in Quincy. More information about the group and the full schedule of rides can be found on their website at www.Quincycles.org.

Review the ride guidelines posted on the site before participating and check Quincycles Facebook page for weather related updates.

Quincy College 'Granite' To Take To The Athletic Field

Offering Men's Soccer/Men's Basketball And Intramural Sports

As Quincy College continues to expand and innovate across its campuses, program offerings, and student activities, Quincy College has started a brand new athletics program joining the NJCAA offering competitive sports to the college community.

The name of the Quincy College athletic teams is: Granite.

"As Quincy College experiences record growth and increasing student enrollment, we remain focused on teaching and learning one student at a time. As we look ahead to the 2017-2018 academic year, we continue to provide exemplary student experiences, in and out of the classroom, forging opportunities for athletic and academic success," said Quincy College President Peter H. Tsaffaras.

The college has hired Weymouth native Josh Motroni as athletic director who will continue to develop this program and provide athletic opportunities for students.

Motroni is a lifelong sports enthusiast. He has over 15 years coaching experience from high school boys and girls basketball through women's college basketball both in community college and NCAA Division III.

Motroni earned a bachelor of arts in communication from St. Joseph's College. One constant in Mr. Motroni's experience is his dedication to improving student athletes both on and off the court. In addition, he has a proven track record of positive interaction with student athletes, faculty and the greater college community.

Reflecting on the growth of Quincy College Athletics as the athletic director, Motroni said: " I am thankful to President Tsaffaras for giving me this opportunity to build and lead the Athletic Department here at Quincy College. I look forward along with our coaches to fielding competitive teams in the NJCAA as well as fun intramural programs that embody the high standards set forth by Quincy College."

Quincy College Athletics has also hired Men's Basketball Coach Doug Scott, a Quincy native and Quincy High School graduate and Men's Soccer Coach, Idris Senyonjo, a native of Uganda who played Semi-Professional Soccer for Express FC.

Scott was a four-year starter, leading Quincy High School to two Patriot League titles and is the all-time leading scorer in the city of Quincy. Scott went on to play basketball at Massasoit Community College where he continued to excel. He was named NJCAA Division 2 first team All-New England.

Following his playing career, Scott began coaching at the high school level as an assistant coach at Quincy High School. He also coached for several AAU programs on the South Shore.

Scott stays active in the community serving as director of summer leadership camps for the BO Foundation servicing over 100 adolescents during the summer evenings.

Idris moved to the United States to attend UMass Boston to study biology and continue his soccer career in 2009. After earning his bachelor's degree, Senyonjo shifted from playing to coaching. Since 2012, he has coached many youth levels including the U19 Mass Youth District 2 team along with the U18 Girls and U12 Boys teams for America FC United based out of Quincy. Along with building the Quincy College Men's program, Senyonjo works for Best Doctors Inc.

This is Quincy College's first foray into the NJCAA. In the past Quincy College athletes were members of the Boston Small College Conference and competed in basketball, hockey, tennis, and golf.

Quincy Access Television Open House Sept. 7

Quincy Access Television will hold its annual open house Thursday, Sept. 7 from 6 to 8 p.m. at its studio located at 88 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The public is welcome to tour the facility, learn about public access television and get information on how to become a member at QATV.

Open house visitors will also get a behind-the-scenes look at how a show is produced and an opportunity to meet the hosts of current QATV programs.

All visitors will be entered into a free drawing for a GoPro Hero5 Black camera and a one-year QATV membership.

QATV's fall semester will begin Thursday, Sept. 14 with an "Orientation to Community TV" to be held at 8:30 p.m. The orientation session, a requirement for all new members, will provide an overview of QATV policies, a tour of the facility and information about course offerings. A six-week studio production class will begin on Tuesday, Sept 19. Participants will learn the basics of how to produce a studio show, including pre-production elements, audio, graphics, directing and more.

Portable production and editing will begin on Thursday, Sept. 21. Camera movement, tripod tips, and how to edit footage (using Final Cut Pro X software) will be covered in the six-week course.

For more information about QATV's open house, or to register for upcoming classes, call 617-376-1440.

QATV membership is open to any Quincy resident over the age of 18 and to non-profit organizations based in the City of Quincy.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

Chiropractor

THE EFFECTS OF CHRONIC PAIN

Research shows that the cells in the spinal cords and brains (particularly in the section that processes emotion) of those suffering from chronic pain deteriorate at an accelerated rate. As a result, chronic-pain sufferers are more likely to experience higher rates of depression and anxiety. It seems that chronic pain alters the way those with enduring pain process information that is not pain-related. As a result, the experience of pain over a prolonged period of time affects brain response to tasks that are completely unrelated to pain and require only minimal attention. With this new focus on chronic pain's life-disrupting effect, chronic-pain sufferers have all the more reason to seek chiropractic care to isolate its causes and treat them effectively.

Before you go to a chiropractor to address your pain, it's important to know what is causing it. Your chiropractor will do a physical exam as well as some tests to help diagnose your pain and develop a treatment plan. Treatment may include spinal manipulation, manual therapies and therapeutic exercises. To schedule an appointment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Those suffering from chronic pain may find it more difficult to fall asleep because the section of the brain that regulates sense-data also regulates the sleep cycle.

Rodliff Provides Value In Cape Cod Baseball League

Quincy Native Hurls Again For Harwich Mariners

By TOM JOYCE

Teddy Rodliff is trying to capitalize on every chance to grow as a baseball player.

The Quincy native kept up his summer ball tradition by pitching for the Harwich Mariners of the Cape Cod Baseball League for the second straight summer.

"It's great to be back for a second year," he said during a recent interview before the season ended earlier this month. "I'm back at home. It's great to see the comparison between this year and last year. We've got the same group of personalities. It's a bunch of great guys around here. It's great."

Once again, Rodliff was a highly versatile arm this summer. In his second tenure with the Harwich Mariners, he posted a 3.66 ERA in 14 outings, recorded three saves and struck out 13 batters in 19.2 innings.

Although he pitches exclusively in relief in college, Rodliff did make a start for the Mariners this summer. On July 21, he started and allowed one earned run over 4.2 innings in his first start since high school.

"It felt sort of deja vu," he said. "It definitely felt good to get back into the starting role. It reminded me how much I liked starting. It brings another aspect to pitching you can't get elsewhere."

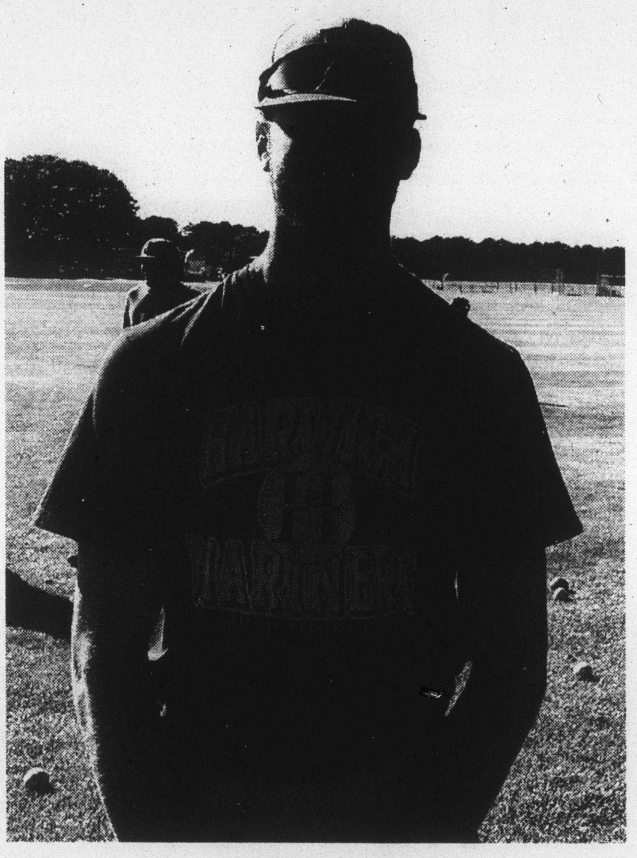
One of Rodliff's favorite parts of being able to compete in the Cape Cod League was being able to pitch in front of the local crowd once again.

"Massachusetts baseball I've grown up with," he said, "so I know a lot of good competition comes out of Mass. The real talent is here. This is the best summer league in the country, so it's great to be able to showcase the talent at home."

In all, it was Rodliff's third tenure in a summer collegiate baseball league. He also pitched for the Vermont Mountaineers of the New England Collegiate Baseball League after his freshman year in 2015.

During this spring, Rodliff was a weapon out of Stony Brook's bullpen. He often threw multiple innings at a time in high leverage situations. Over the course of the spring, he went 4-3 with a 2.87 ERA while striking out 27 batters in 31.1 innings.

Albeit some pitchers might prefer some consistency and a set role that determines when they will pitch, Rodliff said he does not mind pitching in various roles. In fact, he enjoys it.



TEDDY RODLIFF

"Whatever team you're on, you've got to do what the coach asks of you whether it's starting, middle relief, closing," he said. "If that's what they want out of me, then I'm happy to give it. I don't like to be held down to one lefty specialist role, I like doing all sorts of things out there."

Two areas of his game that separate Rodliff from most college pitchers are mechanical. First off, he is a left-handed pitcher and second of all, he is a submarine pitcher. His fastball might be in the low-80s, but he is still able to shut down Division 1 batters.

With another year of experience on the Cape to his name coming into his senior year, Rodliff is optimistic for even better results. After all, he took this summer to continue growing as a ballplayer.

"I'm just trying to make myself better every year," he said. "This year, I've been trying to develop a cutter and get that into the arsenal. I'm trying to be more effective with that pitch along with my regular 2-seam."

NQ Boys Hockey Boosters Golf Tournament Sept. 11

The North Quincy High School Boys Hockey Booster Club is in the process of preparing its first golf outing in support of the 2017-2018 varsity boys hockey season.

The booster club's goal is to raise enough money via various fund raising initiatives to offset and alleviate those costs and obstacles often associated with preparing for a winter sports season.

The golf tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 11 at the Furnace Book Golf Course in Quincy. Check in will start at 9 a.m. followed by golf at 10 a.m.

Besides golf, there will be raffles, a silent auction, prizes, food and drinks.

Cost is $100 per player.

To register contact Bob Herman at 617-759-6065 or email herman09@verizon.net.

All proceeds from the outing will go towards uniforms, equipment, ice time, transportation and the payment of each student athlete's participation fees.

"Our goal is to make this season as memorable and as successful for the boys both on and off the ice," said Bob Herman of the Boosters Club.

Besides golfers, outing organizers are seeking hole sponsors ($100 each), grand hole sponsors ($500 each) and donated items for the raffle and silent auction.

For more information, contact Herman at 617-759-6065.

City Tennis Tournament Applications Available

Applications for the 47th Annual City of Quincy Tennis Tournament Championship are available at the Quincy Recreation Department, the Quincy Credit Union, City Hall, and the city tennis courts and online at www.QuincyRec.com.

Quincy Credit Union is again the principal sponsor of this traditional family tennis event. "For many years we have counted on the generosity of the Quincy Credit Union and they have continued to make the tournament affordable for our families," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

This year's event will begin Sept. 13th with an application deadline of Sept. 8th.

The fee is $20 which includes all events plus a commemorative T-shirt or $10 for children who are only entering the boys and girls 16 and under event. The tournament is open to all residents of Quincy and will have 11 divisions of play for boys, girls, men and women.

The draw will be posted at the Quincy High School Tennis Courts on Russell Park between the hours of 6:30 and 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 13th and Thursday, Sept. 14th. Matches will begin on Friday, Sept. 15th, 2017.

All entries must be in by Friday, Sept. 8th at 4 p.m. to the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394 or visit www.QuincyRec.com.

Your Social Security: Securing Today And Tomorrow

All Articles Written And Submitted By Kristen Alberino, Social Security Public Affairs Specialist, Quincy

Why It Pays To Keep A Careful Eye On Your Earnings Record

Whether you're ready to retire, just joining the workforce, or somewhere in between, regularly reviewing your Social Security earnings record could make a big difference when it's time to collect your retirement benefits.

Just think, in some situations, if an employer did not properly report just one year of your work earnings to us, your future benefit payments from Social Security could be close to $100 per month less than they should be. Over the course of a lifetime, that could cost you tens of thousands of dollars in retirement or other benefits to which you are entitled.

Social Security prevents many mistakes from ever appearing on your earnings record. On average, we process about 236 million W-2 wage reports from employers, representing more than $5 trillion in earnings. More than 98 percent of these wages are successfully posted with little problem.

But it's ultimately the responsibility of your employers — past and present — to provide accurate earnings information to Social Security so you get credit for the contributions you've made through payroll taxes. We rely on you to inform us of any errors or omissions. You're the only person who can look at your lifetime earnings record and verify that it's complete and correct.

So, what's the easiest and most efficient way to validate your earnings record?

- Visit www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount to set up or sign in to your own my Social Security account;
- Under the "My Home" tab, click on "Earnings Record" to view your online Social Security Statement and taxed Social Security earnings;
- Carefully review each year of listed earnings and use your own records, such as W-2s and tax returns, to confirm them; and
- Keep in mind that earnings from this year and last year may not be listed yet.

If you notice that you need to correct your earnings record, check out our one-page fact sheet at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/EN-05-10081.pdf.

Sooner is definitely better when it comes to identifying and reporting problems with your earnings record. As time passes, you may no longer have past tax documents and some employers may no longer be in business or able to provide past payroll information.

If it turns out everything in your earnings record is correct, you can use the information and our online calculators at www.socialsecurity.gov/planners/benefitcalculators.html to plan for your retirement and prepare for the unexpected, such as becoming disabled or leaving behind survivors. We use your top 35 years of earnings when we calculate your benefit amounts. You can learn more about how your benefit amount is calculated at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10070.pdf.

We're with you throughout life's journey, from starting your first job to receiving your well-earned first retirement payment. Learn more about the services we provide online at www.socialsecurity.gov/onlineservices.

Don't Get Schooled, Get Smart About Social Security

Your summer job might be ending soon. You might even hold a part time job while you're in school. You can easily jump to the head of the class and secure your future with a few simple steps. As a young worker, you're in the best position for planning, investing, and saving for your retirement, growing that nest egg as large as it can be. The sooner you start, the more money you'll have.

There are two easy ways to get started in preparing for retirement:

Open a free online my Social Security account with Social Security. Having a personal and secure account is easy, but better yet, it empowers you. You can access the services you need in the convenience of your own home or on the go without traveling to a Social Security office. To open or access your account, go to www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

Many of our resources are available online and my Social Security is one of the best places to access vital information about your retirement. We are constantly adding new features to make your experience with us faster and more convenient. You can even replace your lost or misplaced Social Security card online in certain areas.

You could also start a myRA account. myRA is designed for people who don't have a retirement savings plan through their employer, or are limited from other savings options. Check it out at www.myra.gov. If your employer provides a retirement savings plan, such as a 401(k), learn more about that plan's potential matching contributions or other benefits. It's never too early, and the more you save now, the more you'll have later.

Did you know that a 20-year-old has a 1-in-4 chance of becoming disabled before reaching full retirement age? Social Security will be there for you if you become disabled and cannot work. Accessing your online account can also help you determine your estimated future disability benefits. To learn more about disability and to apply, go to www.socialsecurity.gov/disabilityssi/apply.html.

The earlier you start preparing for the future, the more comfortable that future will be. Like a good friend, Social Security has your back when it comes to retirement planning or in the unfortunate event of disability. Learn more at www.socialsecurity.gov.

It's More Convenient Than Ever To Apply For Social Security Benefits

You've worked hard your whole life, and receiving your Social Security benefits should be the icing on the cake at your retirement party. We're working hard to make it as quick and seamless as possible for you to apply for benefits from Social Security.

Simply visit www.socialsecurity.gov/applyforbenefits to get started. Through our safe and secure website, you can apply for:

- Retirement benefits;
- Spousal benefits;
- Medicare;
- Disability benefits;
- Extra Help with Medicare prescription drug plan costs; and, in some cases,
- Supplemental Security Income.

You don't have to be internet savvy to finish most of our online applications in one sitting with your computer. Or, if you prefer, we offer you the options to apply in person at your Social Security office or by telephone with one of our application representatives. Please call 1-800-772-1213 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays to schedule an appointment.

You should also call us to schedule an appointment if you wish to apply for certain family benefits, including those for surviving spouses and children, divorced spouses and dependent children, and parents of beneficiaries.

After you've applied for benefits — whether online, by phone, or in person — you can securely and quickly check the status of a pending claim through your online my Social Security account. If you haven't created your account yet, you can do so today by visiting www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

You can also use my Social Security to view estimates of how much you would receive in retirement benefits and potential disability benefits and how much your loved ones could receive in family or survivor benefits.

We're with you throughout life's journey, from applying for your first job to receiving your first retirement payment. And we're proud to help ensure a secure future for you and your loved ones.

To learn more visit www.socialsecurity.gov.

Your Retirement Planning Starts With Social Security

Right now is the perfect time to start planning for a secure, comfortable retirement. And you can count on Social Security to help you begin the process.

First, we encourage you to set up an online my Social Security account so you can verify your lifetime earnings record and make sure you get credit for all of your contributions to the Social Security system through the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) payroll taxes. If you haven't set up your personal my Social Security account yet, you can do so at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

Then, you can use your earnings history and our online retirement estimators and calculators to get a glimpse of what your Social Security retirement future looks like. You'll find important details such as your retirement age, life expectancy, and estimates of how much you may receive in future retirement benefits from Social Security.

As you look ahead to ensuring a secure, comfortable future for you and your family, it's important to keep in mind that Social Security replaces about 40 percent of your pre-retirement income, on average. So, a responsible retirement plan includes planning for more than Social Security.

Here are some more things you can do now to build your financial security:

- Contribute to pension plans offered by your employers;
- Maintain and grow savings accounts; and
- Open and regularly contribute to an individual retirement fund.

These steps — combined with your Social Security benefits — will go a long way toward ensuring a comfortable quality of life for you and your loved ones in the future.

If you don't already have a retirement account, you can start one today by visiting www.myra.gov. Developed by the U.S. Department of the Treasury, myRA offers those without an employer-sponsored retirement plan an affordable and secure way to save for later in life.

As you plan for a financially secure future, please keep in mind that our Retirement Estimator and benefit calculators provide you with estimates — not guarantees. We can't provide your actual benefit amount until you apply for benefits.

Our estimates may differ from your actual benefit amount if your future earnings increase or decrease, if laws governing benefit amounts change, if you've served in the military, or if you've had jobs in which you did not pay Social Security taxes.

Social Security is with you throughout life's journey, from your first paycheck to receiving your first retirement deposit in your bank account. And, as our nation's most successful anti-poverty program, we'll continue to provide you and millions of other Americans with financial protections to ensure a secure tomorrow.

To learn more about our programs, visit www.socialsecurity.gov.

Celebrating Those Who Provide Care: Social Security's Representative Payee Program

According to the Census Bureau, there are nearly 57 million people living with disabilities in the United States. Thirty percent of American adults help provide care for a sick or disabled family member.

Social Security works closely with caregivers through our Representative Payee Program. A representative payee is someone who receives and oversees the Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits for an adult or child who cannot manage his or her benefits. You can learn more about our Representative Payee Program at www.socialsecurity.gov/payee.

A representative payee is usually a trusted family member or friend of the beneficiary, but when friends or family are not able to serve as representative payees, Social Security looks for qualified individuals or organizations to represent the beneficiary. You can learn about becoming a representative payee by watching our new series of training videos on the duties of a representative payee at www.socialsecurity.gov/payee/rp_training2.html.

When Should I Start Receiving Benefits?

Deciding when to retire and receive Social Security benefits is a personal decision that will affect you and your family.

Taking benefits as soon as you can may reduce the amount you receive each month. Waiting until your full retirement age will greatly increase your monthly benefits. Knowing what you need for a comfortable and secure retirement takes planning, and we are here with information to help you.

"Full retirement" age refers to the age when a person can receive their Social Security benefits without any reduction, even if they are still working part or full time. In other words, you don't actually need to retire from your work to start receiving your full benefits. The choices you make may affect any benefit your spouse or children can receive on your record, too.

You and your clients need to be as informed as possible when making any decision about receiving Social Security benefits. Read our publication When to Start Receiving Retirement Benefits at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/EN-05-10147.pdf.

Social Security's mission is to secure your today and tomorrow, and we help by providing you and your clients with the tools and information to make the right retirement decision.

You can learn more by visiting our Retirement Planner at www.socialsecurity.gov/planners/retire.

Receiving Housing Benefits? A Trip To Social Security May Not Be Necessary

Social Security is constantly evolving to make doing business with us easier. If your client is currently receiving benefits from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), and is reapplying for benefits, or is assisting someone with their application, a trip to a Social Security office is probably not necessary — even if verification of Social Security benefits is needed.

Because of a data exchange established between Social Security and HUD, most people do not need to contact Social Security for a benefit verification letter. HUD administrators processing a Recertification Application for Housing Assistance can use their Enterprise Income Verification (EIV) System to verify Social Security and Supplemental Security Income benefits.

Public housing agencies, private owners, and management agents who run HUD rental assistance programs may get registration information about EIV by logging onto the HUD portal or visiting www.hud.gov/offices/hsg/mfh/rhiip/eiv/eivhome.cfm.

If your client is a new applicant for housing assistance, they can provide their HUD administrator with their Social Security award letter, Cost of Living Adjustment (COLA) notice, SSA-1099, or other Social Security benefit document.

Your clients can also get an instant benefit verification letter online with a my Social Security account at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

LGBT Communities Can Count On Social Security

In 2015, the U.S. Supreme Court issued a decision in Obergefell v. Hodges, holding that same-sex couples have a constitutional right to marry in all states and have their marriage recognized by other states. This decision made it possible for more same-sex couples and their families to benefit from our programs.

We now recognize same-sex couples' marriages in all states, and some non-marital legal relationships (such as some civil unions and domestic partnerships), for purposes of determining entitlement to Social Security benefits and Medicare, and eligibility and payment amount for Supplemental Security Income (SSI). We also recognize same-sex marriages and some non-marital legal relationships established in foreign jurisdictions for purposes of determining entitlement to Social Security benefits and Medicare, and SSI.

Social Security is committed to treating all Americans fairly. This commitment extends to Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender people covered by Social Security's many programs. We encourage anyone who believes they may be eligible for benefits to apply now. Learn more at www.socialsecurity.gov/same-sexcouples.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might not like the sudden setback in your plans. But keep that headstrong Arian temperament in check and wait for explanations. Things will begin to clear up by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Enjoy the respite from your recent hectic schedule, but be ready to plunge into a new round of social activities. A new contact holds much potential for the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A trusted colleague has news that could change your perception of a current workplace situation. What had seemed unfair might prove to be highly favorable after all.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You still need to watch what you say and how you say it. What you assert as honesty, others might perceive as Crabbiness. Be patient. This difficult period clears up by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Royalness needs time away from the limelight to catch up on things, from tidying your desk to making those calls you've put off. You're back in the center of things by the weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Honesty is the best policy, of course. But you'll do better at achieving your goals if you can be less aggressive and more circumspect in how you phrase your comments.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your ability to maintain your balance in confusing situations continues to work for you. Stay on the steady course, one step at a time. The weekend shows improvement.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your indecisiveness could simply be your keen Scorpian sense warning you to be wary of making a commitment. Take this time to do a more thorough investigation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Good news: New information comes your way to help you make a more informed decision on how to deal with the opportunity that has opened up for you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to reinforce your self-confidence by acknowledging your good qualities to yourself. A lull in your social life ends by the weekend. Have fun.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good time to let those recently pent-up emotions flow more freely. Why not start by letting the people you care for know how you really feel about them?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Resist offers, no matter how well-intentioned, to help with a personal decision. Only you know what must be done, and you have the emotional strength to follow through.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a talent for getting things done. You also have a gift for bringing people together in both personal and professional relationships.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Lady Gaga's name won't be on the screen when the reboot of "A Star Is Born" opens. The film, directed and starring Bradley Cooper, has a leading lady named Stefani Germanotta! If you're a die-hard Gaga fan, you already know that Stefani Germanotta is her real name. Even though she proved she's an excellent actress in "American Horror Story: Hotel," she was billed as Lady Gaga, but this film will make her a legitimate actress and an even bigger star. Produced by Cooper, Clint Eastwood and Jon Peters, among others, the film opens September 2018. Sam Elliott, Andrew Dice Clay and Dave Chappelle also have been cast.

Dwayne Johnson is still the busiest star in Hollywood. His HBO show "Ballers" has been renewed for a third and fourth season. "Baywatch," which he also co- produced, cost $69 million to make and earned $175 million, paving the way for him to produce three more films: "Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle," due Dec. 20; the action/thriller monster film "Rampage," with Joe Manganiello and Jeffrey Dean Morgan, arriving April 20; and the action/adventure film "Skyscraper" (in 3D), with Neve Campbell, which has "The Rock" rescuing his family, trapped in a building in China.

Tyler Henry, The E Channel's "Hollywood Medium," has received more than 200,000 requests for readings since his show went on the air. During his downtime, he does as many readings as possible, but he'd have to spend every waking minute to give 200,000 readings!

Fox TV is following last year's "Grease Live" with the musical version of the perennial holiday film "The Christmas Story" (1983), which starred Darren McGavin and Peter Billingsley. The first star signed is "SNL" alumn Maya Rudolf, who will play the Melinda Dillon role as Ralphie Parker's mother. It airs Dec. 17.

Judge Judy (Sheindlin), 74, who already earns $47 million a year, will add another $200 million to her $290 million net worth after selling her vast "Judge Judy" library to CBS, thus guaranteeing her immortality as they rerun her shows forever.

Two-time Oscar winner Dustin Hoffman, who took time off from acting in 2012 to direct "Quartet," with Maggie Smith and Tom Courtney, will join Adam Sandler, Ben Stiller, Emma Thompson and Candice Bergen in "The Meyerowitz Stories," distributed by Netflix. Since it was well-received at the Cannes Film Festival in May, Netflix probably will show it in theaters before releasing the film to its online streaming service. When Netflix went public in 2002 it sold for $9 a share; today it sells for $500 a share. Where is that time machine when I need it most?

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was 17th-century French philosopher Rene Descartes who made the following sage observation: "If you would be a real seeker after truth, it is necessary that at least once in your life you doubt, as far as possible, all things."

* Does the sight of a bald eagle inspire you with patriotism? If so, you can thank John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, who overruled Benjamin Franklin when deciding on the national bird. Had Franklin had his way, we'd be looking to find national pride in the somewhat more humble turkey.

* Pepsi-Cola was introduced originally in 1898 with the far less appetizing name "Brad's Drink."

* Those who study such things say that the three subjects that spark the most arguments in a marriage are money, children and driving. Of course, any couple that has had to figure out a teenager's auto insurance costs already knows that.

* Rats tend to be right-handed, too. Or, rather, "right-pawed."

* When you think of large tire manufacturers, the companies that immediately spring to mind are probably Goodyear and Michelin. You might be surprised to learn, then, that the world's largest manufacturer of tires is actually Danish toy company The Lego Group. It's true; they produce more tires than any other manufacturer. (Just don't try to put them on your car.)

* The active ingredient in aspirin, acetylsalicylic acid, is derived from the bark of the willow tree.

* Those who study such things say that when buying beer at the grocery store, men tend to get six-packs, while women are more likely to stock up with 12-packs.

* Those who study such things say that, geologically speaking, Florida is the youngest of all the United States -- that is to say, it emerged from the ocean more recently than any of the other 49.

* In 2010, a man in Canada heard a strange sound coming from a dumpster in his neighborhood. When he looked in, he was shocked to find a newborn baby. He rescued the infant, of course, and took it to the authorities. It was only later that he found out that he was the baby's father.

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Farewell --- Although I have researched and written about antiques and collectibles for more than 35 years, my first column for King Features appeared in January of 2003. That first column was a short one and answered three questions, one about tobacco pipes, a second requesting the value of an old Kodak camera and a final one concerning the rarity of amber jewelry. In the more than 14 years that followed, I received several thousand letters and emails from throughout the United States and Canada.

This column has been fun, and I probably learned as much writing it as others did reading it. Even though I tried, I was never able to answer every single question. In fact, I am still searching for a home for a collection of 300 false teeth owned by a woman in Ohio.

This is my final column for King Features. About a year ago I was diagnosed with cancer, and this has been a challenging time for me. I came to a decision several weeks ago that my energy should be used to fight this disease. I can't do that and still produce a weekly column.

Jim Clarke has been with me from the beginning, and he has become more than an editor, he is friend. I thank him for his help and guidance.

I also will remember my readers with a special affection. I hope you will wish me well and remember me in your prayers.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "Put a family calendar inside your kitchen cabinet to keep everyone on track. You can list important dates/obligations/appointments there. We color code ours by using different highlighters for each person, and we keep it inside the cabinet by the coffeemaker, so Mom always looks at it." -- W.S. in Ohio

* "If you fill a small spray bottle with alcohol, you can use it to clean your glasses. Use a soft cloth, not a paper towel, as those leave lots of lint behind." -- D.P. in Texas

* Combine a few drops of essential oils with a cup of either baking soda or cornstarch. Sprinkle liberally on bare mattresses. Let sit 10-15 minutes, then vacuum up. It's particularly nice to use lavender.

* If you don't regularly clean out your dryer vents, now's the time to put it on your cleaning schedule. Every six months at a minimum, but every three is better. Remove the dryer vent hose and shake out to remove sand or dirt, then run a vent brush to loosen stuck-on lint. Use the wand attachment or a shop vac to clean the dryer itself, and don't forget to wipe down the inside drum with a damp cloth. Don't risk a dryer fire!

* "Need to chop nuts? Place them in a bag, and crush them with a cookie sheet. Just rock back and forth over the sealed bag. This really works, and it's kind of fun, too." -- Y.L. in Florida

* Use aluminum foil to line a small metal tray (like the kind that goes in a toaster oven), which can then be used on the grill. If I simmer onions in broth to go with my steak, this works really well because it doesn't burn. The little pans are just the right size! -- C.C. in Oregon

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Monday, Aug. 21, at approximately 7:08 p.m., Officers Paul Foley, Bruce Tait and James Goldrick were dispatched to the area outside of the Presidential Pub for a report of a male and female fighting in the street.

Upon arrival, the officers spoke with a female who said that she had been arguing with her "friend" because he thought she was communicating with another man via text message. When asked if she was in a dating relationship or living with the friend, the female initially said no to both questions but when asked if they had been intimate in the past she said "yes" but never lived together.

These questions were asked to determine if the investigation involved domestic violence.

She continued by stating that her friend grabbed her phone out of her hand and threw it onto the sidewalk. She said they began to physically struggle with each other as she attempted to retrieve her phone in order to call 911.

The friend got to the cell phone first and threw it into the street before grabbing her by the arms and throwing her down to the ground. When he did this, the female said her right arm struck the concrete sidewalk hard causing her pain. As patrons came out of the bar to see what the commotion was about, the friend then ran from the area. The female insisted that she was not injured and declined to be evaluated by EMS. Officer Foley did not observe any obvious injuries.

Two Pub patrons provided statements matching the female's account of what occurred. Officer Foley gave out the description of the friend, who was wearing a blue t shirt that said, "Believe" on it, to surrounding units. Several minutes later, Officer Goldrick observed a shirtless male matching the description, running near the intersection of Hancock Street and Hannon Parkway with a blue shirt in his hand. Officer Goldrick observed the male flag down a passing MBTA Bus in the area of Hancock Court and then get on the bus. The officer called for back up, boarded the bus and located the male who was now wearing the blue shirt inside the bus.

Officer Goldrick observed the words "Believe" printed on the back of the blue shirt and immediately placed the male/friend under arrest for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (concrete sidewalk), domestic assault and battery, witness intimidation and malicious destruction of property over $250 (iPhone 5). Officer Goldrick transported the friend, a 41-year-old Quincy resident to Quincy Police Headquarters where he was booked by Sergeant Greenwood.

Officer Foley began typing his report when Sergeant Greenwood informed him that the friend, who was being booked, stated the female had a warrant for her arrest. The officer searched the database to locate information on the name that the female gave as a victim for the original report but could not find her. Officer Foley went into the cellblock and spoke with the friend and he provided the female's true identity which was supported by her license photo. It was determined that she had an outstanding felony warrant for her arrest for multiple charges out of Quincy Court. She was also listed in one of the computer checks (NCIC) as a missing person.

Officers Tait and Foley responded back to the area and located the female sitting at the bar inside the Presidential Pub. When Officer Foley requested that the female step outside so the officers could speak to her, she said no and responded, "Why do you want to talk to me?" The officers told her she was under arrest for an outstanding warrant and that they asked her to step outside in order to save her the embarrassment of being arrested in front of other patrons. She refused to move off her seat so Officer Foley grabbed her right arm while Officer Tait grabbed her left arm. Once she was guided off the bar stool, she continued to resist arrest by attempting to pull away and tuck her arms into her abdomen to prevent being handcuffed.

Once handcuffed, the female began resisting more aggressively by attempting to throw herself on the ground as she yelled and screamed. As the female was escorted out the front door to Officer Tait's awaiting cruiser, she kept dropping to her knees forcing the Officers to continually lift her by her arms. The female refused to get into the cruiser while yelling and screaming. She then kicked Officer Tait in his thigh twice before the officers were able to gain control of her legs and close the cruiser door. As Officer Tait transported the female to headquarters, she constantly banged her head into the cruiser window.

Upon arriving at the station for booking, she continued her belligerent behavior. She was unable to be booked and had to be placed into a cell with handcuffs still in place. The female, a 39-year-old Easton resident, eventually calmed down and was booked for the warrant, resisting arrest and assault and battery on a police officer.

Nice Work!

SCAM ALERT! Last week in Foxboro, a local business was the victim of a monetary scam. The business was contacted by a suspect claiming to work for the local Board of Health/Inspectional Services. The suspect scheduled an inspection with the business and collected a small fee in advance by obtaining the credit card information from the business beforehand. Charges were then made on the card and that was the last the victims heard from them.

In this case, when in doubt, call the service back by looking up their number and inquire if they called you. Secondly, keep in mind that state or municipal public services will not charge you a credit card fee beforehand.

RELIGION

Beth Shalom – Blue Hills To Hold Open Houses

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, formerly Temples Shalom of Milton and Beth El of Quincy, will hold two Open Houses in September for prospective members.

The first Open House will be a "Shabbat Under the Stars" on Friday evening, Sept. 8th. It will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a barbecue (rain or shine), followed at 7:40 by a Musical Shabbat Service and a Festive Oneg Shabbat dessert. It is free and open to anyone interested in the synagogue and its activities, including its Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School, but RSVP's are requested.

The second Open House will be on Sunday, Sept. 17, 10 a.m. to noon. Visitors will be able to participate with their children in our Religious School's Family Rosh Hashanah program. Both Open Houses will be at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton, with overflow parking on Pleasant Street only.

All interested families in the South Shore and Greater Boston area are invited to attend either or both Open Houses. Meet Rabbi Alfred Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor, learn about the congregation's programs and activities, tour our new building, and find out about our Special First Year Membership and Religious School rates.

First time attendees to either Open House will receive one complimentary ticket for either our second day Rosh Hashanah Congregational Service or Kol Nidre. In addition, all are invited to attend our First Day Rosh Hashanah afternoon Community Service, 3:30-4:30 (no ticket required).

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is also accepting registrations to its Religious School, which meets on Sunday mornings and Tuesday afternoons. The school has small class sizes and a very active and innovative curriculum, including unique holiday celebrations, monthly pre-school-age Story Hour, field trips, Bar/Bat Mitzvah classes, and Holiday Family Activity Days. The school is also a partner in the Passport to Israel Program, which helps fund teen trips to Israel. For Religious School information, call the synagogue office at 617-698-3394.

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills welcomes all members of the Jewish faith including LGBT, interfaith couples, and all singles and families interested in affiliating with a Jewish community. For information about membership or programs, call the synagogue office at 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center will have a Communion Worship Service at 9:30 a.m. The Rev. Peter M. Preble will conduct the service and preach the sermon entitled "Spirit-Led Living." Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church Worship Services and its numerous group activities. Bethany has an active Missions and Growth Committee doing various charity works.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon - 1 to 3 p.m. Please visit us at our Web Page: www.bethanycongchurch.org for updates and activities. Thanks to the Video Ministry, if you're unable to attend worship service on Sundays, the Bethany Church Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6 p.m. on Thursdays and 10 a.m. on Sundays on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays. The church is wheelchair accessible.

OBITUARIES

Constance J. Barone, 87

A funeral service for Constance J. "Connie" (Frechette) Barone, age 87, was held Aug. 24 in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Mrs. Barone died peacefully Aug. 21 at Alliance HealthCare Center at Braintree, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Lewiston, Maine, and was raised in both Maine and Quincy. She graduated from Quincy High School. She had lived in Braintree for five years, previously living most of her life in Quincy.

Mrs. Barone was employed at the former Jordan Marsh Warehouse in Quincy and retired many years ago. As a young woman she had worked as a sales associate at the former Pantique. Mrs. Barone enjoyed crocheting and was an avid baseball fan. She was devoted to her family and enjoyed supporting the activities and accomplishments of her grandchildren.

CONSTANCE J. BARONE

Beloved wife of the late Peter F. Barone. Devoted mother of Jeannine F. Tocchio and her husband Robert of Braintree, Peter A. Barone and his wife Ellen of Weymouth, and Paula M. Calla and her husband Nick of Quincy. Loving grandmother of Michael and his wife Taylor, Maria and her husband George, Patrick and his wife Danielle, Stephen and his wife Andrea, Matthew and his wife Kasey and Jonathan. Loving great-grandmother of Peter, Addison, Teddy, Benny, Emmy, Zakk and Luke. Sister of the late Colette Ricciarelli. Sister-in-law of Paul Ricciarelli of Braintree, Frank Barone of Weymouth, Lucille Barone of Rockland and Louis Malvesti, Sr. of Quincy. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 309 Waverley Oaks Rd., Waltham, MA 02452 or Alliance HealthCare Center's Resident Activity Fund, 175 Grove St., Braintree, MA 02184.

Fulvio J. DiRocco, 92

A funeral Mass for Fulvio J. DiRocco, age 92, a longtime resident of Hingham, was celebrated Monday in Saint Joseph's-Church, 550 Washington St., Quincy.

Mr. DiRocco died peacefully Aug. 23 at South Shore Hospital, surrounded by his loving family.

Mr. DiRocco was born to the late Giuseppe and Angela (Rotolo) DiRocco in Anversa degli Abruzzi, Italy, where he was raised and educated. He immigrated to the United States in 1946 at the age of 22 and began working in the trades as a mason. He had lived in Hingham for the past 53 years, previously in Quincy.

Mr. DiRocco was the longtime owner of the DiRocco Construction Company of Hingham which specialized in commercial construction and public works projects.

He was a past member of the International Union of Bricklayers and Allied Craftsmen Local 3.

Mr. DiRocco enjoyed auto racing and had attended both the Indianapolis 500 and the Daytona 500. He was also an avid Boston sports fan. He and his late wife, Mary, enjoyed traveling, particularly to Aruba and Hawaii. They were longtime parishioners of Saint Paul Parish in Hingham.

He was devoted to his family and especially enjoyed supporting the activities and accomplishments of his grandchildren.

FULVIO J. DiROCCO

Beloved husband of the late Mary A. (DiSalvio) DiRocco.

Devoted father of Joseph M. DiRocco and his wife Stacia of Gainesville, Virginia.

Loving grandfather of Gabrielle M. DiRocco and Andrew M. DiRocco.

Brother of Nilde DiRocco of Sulmona, province of L'Aquila, Italy and the late Francesco DiRocco.

He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Entombment was at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 309 Waverley Oaks Rd., Waltham, MA 02452 or by visiting www.alz.org.

Richard P. Bono, 67

A funeral service for Richard P. "Rick" Bono, 67, will be held at 9:30 a.m. Friday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. Bono died Aug. 19 at Milton Hospital after a courageous battle with cancer.

He was born in Quincy, the third son of John and Rita Bono, who both predeceased him.

Mr. Bono worked in his father's drug store, Bono Pharmacy in Norfolk Downs, until he graduated from North Quincy High School in 1969. He was president of his senior class and Student Council. After graduation, Mr. Bono trained as a hair stylist at The New England Barber School, Roffler International Hair Studio, Sebring International Hair Salon, and the Blaine Hair School. He was licensed for both men's and women's hair styling, and made it his 30-year career before retiring for health reasons. For many years, Mr. Bono managed the salon in the prestigious Parker House in Boston, near the Massachusetts State House, styling hair for Boston's finest congressmen, businessmen, and civil servants including Ray Flynn, mayor of Boston from 1984 to 1993.

In his spare time, Mr. Bono trained and worked as a nurse's aide in Boston at Brigham and Women's Hospital and Provident Nursing Home, because he loved helping people. His hair styling customers enjoyed his attention to customer care, while his hospital patients appreciated his dedication to patient care. Mr. Bono had a sincere desire to please everyone, and everyone loved his charming personality along with his amusing wit and contagious laughter. He literally would make your day, treating you with genuine kindness.

Mr. Bono loved rock band music, from The Animals of the sixties to the more current Bon Jovi and Nightwish. He also sang rock music, karaoke style, entertaining his loyal fans with many scheduled performances, following in the footsteps of his show business relatives. Mr. Bono's mother was a popular New England singer-entertainer, along with her sisters Florence and Rosemarie, and their father Peter.

Mr. Bono loved being outdoors, walking everywhere in all kinds of weather, and working with local radio and TV meteorologists as a weather watcher. He enjoyed his weather radio, memorizing the forecasts and repeating them to you in detail whenever you asked, "What's the weather tomorrow, Rick?"

He will be missed by his two brothers, John Bono and his wife Nancy of Ft. Lauderdale, FL, and Peter Bono and his wife Beverly of Bar Harbor, ME; his nieces, Lisa Bono of FL, and Jennifer Cooper and her husband Glenn of NH; his nephews, Jon Bono of FL, and Jeremy Bono and his wife Jackie of NH; his great-nephews, Ryan Bono of FL, Mason Cooper of NH, and William Bono of NH; his great-niece Elizabeth Bono of NH; and his cousins throughout the U.S. and Italy.

Visiting hours are 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Friday in the funeral home.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree, immediately following the conclusion of the service.

Memorial donations may be made to Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, P.O. Box 849168, Boston, MA 02284-9168.

Notes of condolences may be sent to Peter Bono, P.O. Box 90, Bar Harbor, ME 04609.

Armando A. DelGreco, 93

A funeral Mass for Armando A. "Babe" DelGreco, age 93, a lifelong Quincy resident, was celebrated Aug. 25 in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. DelGreco died peacefully Aug. 21 at Season's Hospice in Milton, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born to the late Sabatino and Marinina (D'Alessandro) DelGreco, in Quincy, where he was raised and educated. He and his late wife, Sue, had also enjoyed their home in Naples, Fla., for several years.

Mr. DelGreco was employed for seventeen years at the former Plaza Olds in Braintree and retired in 1986. Previously, he had worked as a machine operator for the former Thompson Steel Company in Mattapan for twenty-five years.

Mr. DelGreco was a proud World War II veteran having served as a corporal with the U.S. Army Air Corps. He served in the Pacific Theater as an airplane maintenance technician with the 870th Bombardment Squadron and participated in the Air Offensive Japan, the Eastern Mandates and Western Pacific campaigns. He received the Asiatic Pacific Theater Campaign Ribbon and a Distinguished Unit Badge.

He was a member of the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post #294 in Quincy. Mr. DelGreco was a Boston sports fan. He and his late wife, Sue, enjoyed being with family and friends, the beach and they loved dancing and playing cards.

He was dedicated to his family and especially to his grandchildren and great-grandson, supporting all their activities and accomplishments.

Beloved husband for sixty-three years of the late Sue (Angellis) DelGreco. Devoted father of Patricia DelGreco, Carol DelGreco McLaughlin and her husband Michael. Loving grandfather of Jayme McLaughlin and her husband Will Mahoney, Nicole McLaughlin, Matthew McLaughlin and his fiancée Kerry Rutucci and Bryanna McLaughlin. Cherished great-grandfather of Jackson.

Mr. DelGreco was the last of five siblings and was predeceased by Irma DiGiusto, Lena Bersani, Blasco and Aldo DelGreco. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Interment with Military Honors at Mount Wollaston Cemetery in Quincy.

Anne M. Ciarfella

A funeral Mass for Anne Marie (Strobel) Ciarfella of Quincy was celebrated Aug. 25 in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Ciarfella died Aug. 20.

Her life revolved around her family and community. Her children, grandchildren and her immediate family gave her great joy. An alumnus of North Quincy High School, Mrs. Ciarfella worked for the Department of the Navy during WWII after graduating from Mount Saint Mary College in Hooksett, NH. Mrs. Ciarfella was an assistant manager at Jordan Marsh in Braintree for many years before her retirement.

Her passions included gardening, reading mystery novels, knitting, ceramics, maintaining her home and playing the piano. She was a longtime member of the Quincy Symphony Guild, Wollaston Garden Club, and Wollaston Mother's Club. Mrs. Ciarfella was also a fan of Boston's sports teams, especially the Red Sox, Patriots and North Quincy High School football. She will be remembered for her strength, independence, style and understanding nature.

Beloved wife of the late Louis Ciarfella. Loving mother of Susan Ciarfella of Whitman, Patricia Keefe and her husband Richard of S. Weymouth, and Paul Ciarfella and his wife Kate of Groton. Sister of the late Gib and Fred Strobel. Grandma to PJ and Erin Ciarfella. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

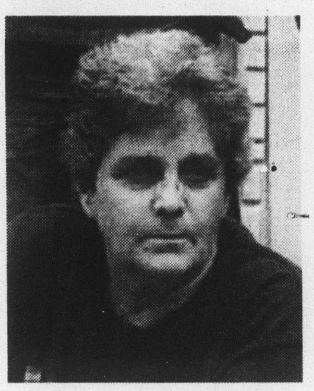
Betty J. Pelletier, 65

Betty J. Pelletier, 65, of Braintree, died Aug. 21.

She was the beloved wife of 45 years to the late William A. Pelletier, Sr.

Born in Quincy, she was the daughter of the late Donald A., Sr. & Betty J. (Cooper) Bezanson.

Loving mother of Scott A. Pelletier and his wife Lilly and William A. Pelletier, Jr. Foster mother and friend to Chris Wilbur and Corey Bousquet. Dear sister of Wendy J. Bezanson, Tracy A. Stronach and the late Donald A. "Duffa" Bezanson, Jr. Cherished grandmother of Jade, Amber, Anna, Daniel, Jacob, Nathan and Matthew. Aunt of Joshua Bezanson and his wife Erika, Kristin Bezanson, Robert Bezanson, Colleen Prescott and George Jones. Also survived by her much-loved former daughter-in-law, Mallisa Szabo.



BETTY J. PELLETIER

In lieu of services, her family will be going "up country" for a celebration of her love and life. She will rejoin her beloved husband in the ripples of the lake and in the warm mountain breezes they were so enchanted with for many years; finally sharing one last walk up Moose Alley and beyond.

Arrangements by Hamel Funeral Care & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

William H. Blake Jr., 75

A funeral Mass for William H. "Billy" Blake Jr., 75, of Braintree, Superintendent of Fire Alarm Quincy, Retired, was celebrated Monday in the Parish of St. Clare, Braintree.

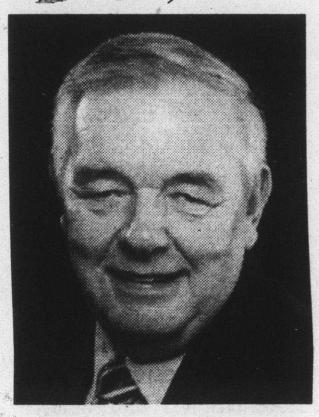
Mr. Blake died peacefully Aug. 22 at home, surrounded by his beloved wife and loving family, after fighting a courageous battle with cancer.

He was born in Quincy to the late William H. "Herbie" Blake Sr. and Florence (Hayden) Blake where he was raised in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy High School, class of 1961. He was also a graduate of Coyne Electrical School in Newton. He lived in Braintree for 48 years.

Mr. Blake was a member of The Long Service Club and worked at General Dynamics at the Fore River Shipyard before being appointed in 1971 to the Quincy Fire Alarm Department where he worked for 35 years, and retired as the superintendent of the Fire Alarm Division. After his retirement in 2005, he joined Fire Alarm Service Company, Inc. of Walpole, where he served as vice president for his last three years.

An active member of the Parish of St. Clare's Choir, Mr. Blake thoroughly enjoyed singing with his wife. He had a passion for cars and a great interest in woodworking, while continuously giving his time and talents to anyone in need.

Married in 1966, he was the beloved husband of 51 years, to his high school sweetheart and best friend, Kathleen A. "Kelly" Blake. He was dedicated to his family especially his wife, children and grandchildren, supporting all their activities and accomplishments.



WILLIAM H. BLAKE Jr.

William H. Osborne, 68

Funeral prayers for William H. Osborne, 68, of Stoughton and formerly Quincy were held July 10 in Farley Funeral Home, Stoughton.

Mr. Osborne died unexpectedly July 4.

He was the beloved husband of 38 years of Sheila (Aines) Osborne. Born in Quincy, he was raised and educated in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy High School. He was also a graduate of Northeastern University.

Mr. Osborne was a resident of Stoughton since 1989. He was a longtime employee of Polaroid in Norwood and several of their other area locations, and retired in 2008. He was an avid Boston sports fan and was a former Stoughton Little League coach and youth hockey coach to both of his sons. He was a member of the Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame.

Mr. Osborne loved to be outdoors, going to the beach and working and relaxing in his yard. Above all, he loved spending time with his family and his grandson, Will.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his two sons; Mark H. J. Osborne of FL and Gregory A. Osborne and his wife Jennifer of Salem. He was the brother of Frances Jancaterino and her husband, Charles, of Randolph. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews and his grandson, William G. Osborne.

Memorial donations may be made to the Jimmy Fund, PO Box 849168, Boston, MA 02284 or to the MSPCA, 350 S. Huntington Ave., Boston, MA 02130.

Bartholomew J. Gray, 89

A funeral Mass for Bartholomew J. "Barry, Bart" Gray, 89, of Quincy was celebrated Wednesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Gray died peacefully on Aug 25, surrounded by his family.

He was a beloved and devoted husband for 67 years to Ellen Gray. Loving Father to David Gray (Captain, USN (Ret.)) (wife Mary), of Clifton, VA, and Brendan Gray (Captain, USN (Ret.)), (wife Anne) of Reading. Loving Grandfather (Poppy) to his granddaughters Corey and Chelsea Gray.

Mr. Gray was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1928. He immigrated to the United States with his family, arriving in Boston in 1959. He worked two jobs for many years to care for his family. During the day, he worked for Gordon and Leader, as a master painter in several buildings in Boston's financial district around 75 Federal St.

As an accomplished painter, he mixed all colors by hand and was a faux artist matching wood to marble and turning steel doors into oak doors. At night, he worked at Harvard University. He lived and raised his family in Dorchester moving to Quincy in 1977. His proudest achievement was to see both his sons graduate as U.S. Naval officers from the U.S. Naval Academy (1975, 1977). He adored his grandchildren and loved being a grandfather.

Mr. Gray always had a quick wit, a great story to tell and loved to keep you laughing with jokes. However, he will be most remembered for his kind heart, generous spirit, and his undying love and devotion to his family.

Interment at Glasnevin Cemetery, Dublin, at a later date.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Ann's Parish, 757 Hancock St., Quincy MA 02170.

Mrs. Wilson died peacefully Aug. 25 at the Pat Roche Hospice House in Hingham, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Caribou, Maine, and was raised and educated in Weymouth. She was a graduate of Weymouth High School, Class of 1969, and Northeastern University School of Nursing. She later received certification in anti-coagulation therapy management from the University of Southern Indiana.

Mrs. Wilson was a registered nurse and had worked as head nurse for nine years at Massachusetts General Hospital in the historic Bulfinch Building. She was also employed at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital and later at the Brockton Neighborhood Health Center where she helped lead the anti-coagulation therapy management program for eight years. She was proud to have received the Greater Brockton Service Award in recognition of her many contributions to the Brockton Neighborhood Health Center community.

Mrs. Wilson was dedicated to her family and friends and loved to dine out and travel, having made many trips to Vermont, Maine, Florida and England. She was especially fond of relaxing on the front porches of friends Paula and Phyllis, and her special visits with Gracie the dog.

As a volunteer, Mrs. Wilson took great joy in teaching Art Appreciation with the Wellesley Elementary School system for twelve years. She was a former member of the Fort Square Presbyterian Church in Quincy.

Devoted mother of Melyssa Sieber and her husband Brad of Balfour, British Columbia, Canada, and Matthew Wilson and his wife Emily Denniston of Brooklyn, NY. Cherished grandmother of Soren and Lief Sieber, Noah, Georgia and Calder Wilson. Beloved daughter of Ruth (Byram) Watson of Weymouth and the late Lewis M. Watson. Dear sister of Elaine Dietrich and her husband Roger of Vernon, VT. Loving aunt of Kristen Dietrich of Vernon, Vermont and Eric Dietrich of Alexandria, VA. Sister-in-law of Mary Kennedy of Champaign, IL.

Pastor John W. Culp will officiate the services.

Arrangements by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Saint Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105 or to the Pat Roche Hospice House, c/o Norwell VNA and Hospice, 120 Longwater Drive, Norwell, MA 02061.

Francis J. McArdle

FRANCIS J. McARDLE

A funeral Mass for Francis J. "Frank" McArdle of Quincy was celebrated Tuesday in Holy Trinity Parish at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

Mr. McArdle died Aug. 23.

He loved his family, especially his girls. He enjoyed golfing with his wife and teaching his daughters and grandchildren how to play. He also liked to play the lottery, roller skate, and was on a couples bowling league at Olindy's in Quincy. Mr. McArdle loved to travel, especially to Florida and Las Vegas. He was a very devout Catholic and was a "Jack of all trades," he could fix anything.

Mr. McArdle was a retired postal employee working over 30 years for the Post Office. He also was a roofer, brick later, laundry driver, and worked at the Vehicle Maintenance Facility on A Street. Frank was kind and had a great sense of humor and just the best guy there was. Mr. McArdle will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Son of the late William McArdle. Beloved husband of 70 years to the late Marjorie J. (Devine) McArdle. Loving father of Joan Cleary and her husband Martin J. of Marshfield, Marjorie (Haddigan) Reister and her husband Ed of Marshfield, Elaine McArdle of Quincy and Bob Bernardinelli, Mary (DiGeregorio) McCabe and her husband Bill of Marshfield, Connie Tarsa of Rockland, Frannie Calvani of Norwell, and the late Jeanette Lynch. Brother of the late William and Wallace McArdle. Grandfather of 10 grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren.

Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery, Randolph.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

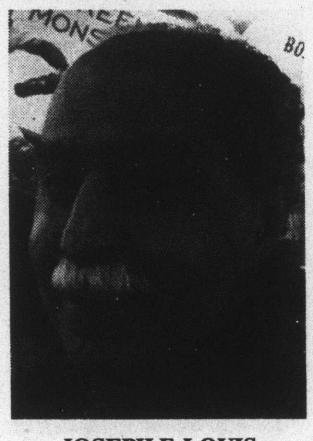
Memorial donations may be made to Wingate at Silver Lake, 17 Chipman Way, Kingston, MA 02364.

Joseph F. Louis

A funeral Mass for Joseph F. Louis of Quincy was celebrated Wednesday in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Louis died Aug. 26.

He loved his family and enjoyed vacationing with them. He also enjoyed playing cards and watching movies. He was an ironworker for the Local 7 before retiring. Mr. Louis was a loyal, caring, and loving man who will be greatly missed by all who knew him.



JOSEPH F. LOUIS

Son of the late Joseph G. and Madeline (George) Louis. Husband of the late Jean M. (Griffin) Louis. Loving father of Matthew Louis of Quincy and Christina DeLorenzo and her husband Michael of Whitman. Cherished brother of Judith A. Jacobs of Bridgewater, Robert G. Louis of Pembroke, and the late Barbara Louis. Devoted grandfather of Aiden, Michael, and Isabella of Whitman.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

Judith L. Kimball

A burial service for Judith Lee (Edson) Kimball of Quincy and Forestdale, formerly of Weymouth, will be held at 12:30 p.m. on Sept. 15 at the Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Mrs. Kimball died Aug. 3 in Los Angeles with her family by her side.

She will be remembered for her quick wit and sharp sense of humor as well as the unwavering compassion and care that she extended to family, friends and colleagues. Mrs. Kimball personified living life in service to those she loved. We will miss her infamous talent for making the best of any situation, her love, her generosity and her relentless luck in winning nearly every card, dice or trivia game she played.

Mrs. Kimball lived most of her life in Massachusetts but also enjoyed living part-time in Los Angeles where she was a hands-on grandmother to Josie and Charlotte Pease and Sylvie Buchholz. The daughter of the late Janet and Albert Edson of Weymouth and Forestdale, she is survived by her husband, Thomas Kimball of Quincy. She was the beloved mother of Kelly L. Kimball and to Kelly's partner Russ Buchholz, both of Los Angeles. She was a devoted sister to the late Richard B. Edson of Forestdale and Lorraine D. Ernst of Warren, RI, who cared for her unconditionally and comforted her through endless escapades with devotion and laughter. She was a kind and compassionate stepmother to Karen Kimball and the late Diane Kimball of Quincy. Her step-grandchildren Rhiannon Kimball and Eric Still fondly remember Grammy Judy hosting spirited holiday get-togethers. She was an adoring aunt to Michael Marmentini of San Antonio, TX and to Carla Cosgrove of Las Cruces, NM, with whom she always quipped "You and I are natural beauties; the rest of you have to work at it." She was also a loving great aunt to multiple nieces and nephews. She deeply cherished her special life-long friendship with Joanne McAuliffe; together they saw it all, did it all and always had a ball.

Mrs. Kimball was a proud member of the International Order of Rainbow Girls and member of the East Weymouth Methodist Church where she taught Sunday School. An avid New England sports fan, she seldom missed a Red Sox, Celtics, Bruins or Patriots game.

The family would like to thank the caring staff, nurses and doctors at UCLA with particular thanks to resident physician Dr. Michael Barish (aka Dr. Cutie Pie) for his distinct sense of humor and unique brand of warmth, compassion and humanity.

Memorial donations may be made to the Peter's Pond Association, c/o Jan Leone, Treasurer, 10 East Road, Mashpee, MA 02469.

Letizia M. Arini, 92

Letizia Maria Arini, 92, of Quincy died peacefully in her home on the morning of August 26, surrounded by the love, comfort and care of her family following a lengthy illness.

Born in Liguria region of Italy in the beautiful port city of Genoa, she was a daughter of the late Giovanni & Caterina (DiPalmas) Corvetti. Mrs. Arini came to the U.S. in 1947 after marrying the love of her life, a young American Merchant Marine named Sal, whom she met while he was stationed in Genoa during WWII.

Devoted wife of nearly 70 years to Salvatore W. Arini. Loving mother of Laura Gustin and her husband William of Quincy. Cherished grandmother of Torrey, Anthony and Maxwell Gustin. Dear sister of

LETIZIA M. ARINI

Anna Corvetti of Genoa and the late: Clelia Rivarola, Tonino, Gavino, Pina, Lucia and Nina Corvetti.

Her visitation, funeral and burial arrangements are all private at the family's request. Assisting the family is Hamel Funeral Care & Cremation Service, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Hodor Joins Police Dept.

By SCOTT JACKSON

Hodor, one of the newest Quincy Police Department's four-legged officers, recently finished his training program and has begun his watch of the city's streets.

Hodor is a one-and-a-half-year-old Dutch shepherd. He is a dual-purpose explosive detection and patrol K9. That means he has been trained to detect explosives and firearms, and has also been trained in tracking, evidence searches, suspect apprehension and handler prevention.

Hodor was purchased using funds from a federal Urban Areas Security Initiative Grant that was awarded to the Metro-Boston Homeland Security Region in the spring of 2016.

Hodor and his handler, officer Christian Donovan, recently graduated from the Boston Police K9 Academy, which included 10 weeks of explosives detection training and 14 weeks of patrol training.

While Hodor recently graduated, he had already been deployed at this year's Boston Marathon, Sail Boston and the Fourth of July celebration at the Esplanade. He also assisted State Police in locating a firearm used in a New Bedford homicide.

The Quincy Police Department has a total of 12 K9s, according to Sgt. Karyn Barkas.

Mary Magee, 99

A funeral Mass for Mary (Eden) Magee, age 99, a longtime Quincy resident, will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Thursday in Holy Trinity Parish at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

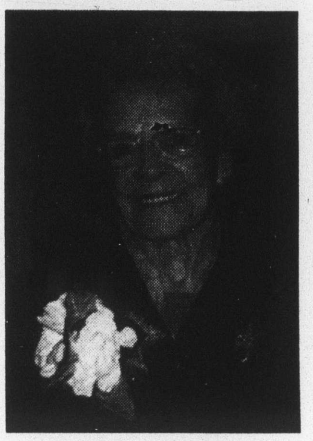
Mrs. Magee died peacefully Sunday at the Stone Rehabilitation and Senior Living Center in Newton Upper Falls, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Charlestown to the late Thomas and Mary (McDevitt) Eden. She was raised and educated in Boston and was a graduate of Cathedral High School and Regis College, Class of 1939. She had lived in Quincy for most of her life with her beloved husband, Thomas, where they raised their four children, Mary, Paul, Stephen, and Thomas.

Mrs. Magee was unusual for her era in having had a devoted career spanning many years. She advanced to being the director of the hematology lab at the former Quincy City Hospital, and later served as the chief technician at South Shore Hematology and Oncology of Quincy. She trained and mentored many lab technicians and physicians over the course of her career. A textbook of hematology was dedicated to her in honor of her extraordinary contributions.

Mrs. Magee was a longtime active parishioner of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Quincy, serving as a Eucharistic minister. Her greatest love, however, was her family.

She was the beloved wife of the late Thomas F. Magee. Devoted mother of Mary Landrigan and her husband Philip, M.D. of Mamaroneck,



MARY MAGEE

New York, Paul J. Magee and his wife Patricia of Rotonda West, Florida, Thomas C. Magee and his wife DJ of Dorchester, and the late Stephen T. Magee.

Loving grandmother of eight grandchildren and their spouses (Mary Landrigan-Ossar and Jacob, Christopher Landrigan and Clare, Elizabeth Savir and Raphael, Matthew Magee, Michael Magee and Kerry, Robyn LaGuardia and Joe, Kelly Anastasio and Clark, Richard Smith and Christine), and fourteen great- grandchildren. She was the mother-in-law of Lana Wolff of Canton and Antoinette Magee of Weymouth. Sister of the late Thomas C. Eden. Mary is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours were 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy. Funeral from the funeral home at 9 a.m. Thursday, prior to the Mass.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Cathedral High School, 74 Union Park St., Boston, MA 02118 or the National Kidney Foundation, 30 East 33rd St., New York, NY 10016.

Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

she said. "I love to see the improvements."

"We're in a big city and all the restoration work we have to do takes a lot of work, but it's worth it," she added.

The $260,000 in CPC funding Bethany received this spring is the second such grant the church has received in recent years.

The church was awarded $20,000 for records restoration in 2014 and that undertaking is still ongoing, Wilson said. Bethany's records date back to 1832 when the congregation was founded as the Evangelical Society of Quincy.

The first phase of the documents project included the restoration of numerous church documents from 1832 to 1896, which is the year it changed its name to Bethany Congregational Church. Those records have been preserved using the latest technologies, such as protection from ultraviolet light, and also stored on microfiche.

Wilson said the next step is the preservation of records from the church's Women's Society, whose members kept detailed notes at meetings held over the years. This fall she also hopes to start cataloging numerous photographs the church has in its archives, working with members to identify who is in each picture and when it was taken.

Matthew Hughes, the church's moderator, said the public is welcome to view the records, which can be used for genealogical research.

"We've had a lot of requests from people researching their families," he said.

Addiction Victims Remembered

200 Family Members Attend 7th Annual Candelight Vigil

By TOM GORMAN

Brian Beaton, 37, of Quincy seemed to have overcome his years of alcohol and opioid drug addiction after nearly dying from a heroin overdose. Sober a year, he moved to Florida, had a girlfriend, a new apartment and a steady job. On Thanksgiving Day, 2016, he decided to take a snort of heroin - a decision that proved fatal.

25 Percent Turnout Seen For Sept. 12 Preliminary

City Council Races At-Large, Wards 1, 5 & 6

By SCOTT JACKSON

One quarter of Quincy's registered voters are expected to head to the polls Sept. 12 to cast ballots in four preliminary City Council contests – the citywide at-large race and four ward races.

City Clerk Nicole Crispo expects 14,900 of Quincy's 59,601 registered voters will cast ballots in Tuesday's preliminary, a turnout of 25 percent. The total number of registered voters in the city has increased slightly from the 59,589 who were eligible to cast ballots in last year's presidential election.

Tuesday's election will feature preliminary contests in the at-large race and district races in Wards 1, 5 and 6. Crispo said the last time there was a similar preliminary in the city was in 2001. That year's preliminary included contests in the at-large races and in Wards 3, 5 and 6. That year's pre-

Mayor To Host 'Quincy For Houston' Fundraiser Thursday At Zef Cicchetti

Mayor Thomas Koch will host a special community fundraiser to assist Hurricane Harvey victims tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 8 p.m. at Zef Cicchetti restaurant in Quincy Center.

The mayor has launched the victims relief effort with a $50,000 contribution from the annual Mayor's Cup Charity Golf Tournament.

All are welcome at "Quincy For Houston," which will support the relief fund created by Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner and administered by the Greater Houston Community Foundation, a registered 501(c)(3) public charity. Checks should be made payable to the Hurricane Harvey Relief Fund, and all collections will be sent in one package as a gesture from the people of Quincy.

There will be entertainment and food courtesy of Zef owner Leo Keka, and event-goers are welcome to stay to watch the Patriots game later that night. The restaurant is located at 1472 Hancock St.

"I've been incredibly heartened by the number of people in Quincy who've approached me asking to do something, anything to help. We just thought an informal event like this where we can come together and show our support as a community would be a nice way to harness that energy," said Mayor Koch. "These families suffering right now may be pretty far away, but they are very much our neighbors. They need our help now, and they are going to need it for some time to come."

The City decided to collect monetary donations on the advice of several relief organizations, which say that financial resources are – and will be – the most pressing need for the agencies that charged with assisting in the monumental relief and recovery effort in Texas.

Anyone who wishes to donate, but cannot attend the event can go to www.ghcf.org to contribute online. The Mayor also suggested that residents look to well-known and established relief agencies such as the Salvation Army at www.salvationarmyusa.org dicted to drugs," his father, Dan Beaton, told nearly 200 people gathered on the front lawn of the Thomas Crane Library on Aug. 31 for the city's 7th Annual Candlelight Drug Overdose Vigil where friends and families remembered those lost to addiction. The day marked International Overdose Awareness Day.

"It certainly is a sad day, but recognizing August 31 in this manner has and will continue to make it impossible for the world to ignore the devastation of this illness," said Laura Martin, Quincy Substance Prevention coordinator. "The hope is each of you can feel the strength of this community reassuring you that you are not alone. Know that addiction is a disease and your loved ones did not choose to go down this path."

Mayor Thomas Koch, Sen. John Keenan, Rep. Bruce Ayers, Rep. Tacky Chan and Norfolk DA Michael Morrissey were among those in attendance.

The vigil was hosted by Koch's Substance Abuse Task Force to not only support families who lost loved ones to addiction, but raise awareness of the opioid epidemic that has gripped the city and surrounding communities.

Since 2012, more than 1,900 have died from opioid overdoses in Massachusetts – 175 in Quincy. The number of overdose deaths in the city has risen from 25 from five years ago to 44 last year.

Martin noted that she lost her brother, Dan, to a heroin overdose in 2004.

"To honor my brother and keep going in life, it is essential to see the good and progress we are making in educating the public about this illness and working together that fewer and fewer people need to come to this even each year," she said.

The ceremony included Beaton and another Quincy resident, Terrence McCarthy, speaking about how addictions cost the lives of their family members. There were inspirational songs performed and a poem, "Red Tailed Hawk" about the overdose death of the author's sister.

The ceremony culminated with the gathering

Lt. Mark Kennedy, Sgt. Michael Duran Promoted

More Than 30 Years Combined Service On Quincy Police Dept.

By SCOTT JACKSON

Two Quincy police officers with more than 30 years of combined service were recently promoted in front of a standing-room-only crowd of fellow officers, friends, family and city officials.

City Clerk Nicole Crispo swore in the newly promoted officers – Lt. Mark Kennedy and Sgt. Michael Duran – on the morning of Aug. 31 in the Great Hall of the James R. McIntyre Government Center.

Kennedy joined the Quincy Police Department in December 1999. He was promoted to sergeant in August 2003. Kennedy had served in the Special Operations Unit since April 2013, and as a lieutenant will lead the unit.

Kennedy's wife, Laura, pinned him with his lieutenant's badge. They were joined by their 17-month-old daughter, Ainsley.

Duran was hired in August 2003 and made detective in June 2009. He had been serving with the Drug Control Unit, but will now move into patrol.

Duran's wife, Dana, pinned him with his sergeant's badge. Their daughters Molly, 13, and Emmie, 8, were on hand as well.

Mayor Thomas Koch spoke at the start of the promotion ceremony. He thanked the Quincy police officers in the audience for service to the city on a daily basis.

"I'm so proud of the professionalism, the service you provide with great passion, compassion, dignity and respect you treat all of our residents," Koch said. "I'm so grateful for all the work you do each and every day."

The mayor then spoke highly of the two officers.

Koch said he was proud of Kennedy's service and noted Kennedy's late father,

LT DAN MINTON of the Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit recently met with management and residents from Neighborworks Properties on Winter Street to discuss a wide range of safety issues. Approximately 50 people attended the meeting. Neighborworks provided a cookout for the residents beforehand and gave out school backpacks to the children. The presentation was followed up by an extensive question and answer period. Photo Courtesy Quincy Police Department

THE PERFECT STAND-IN FOR DIAMOND

While many people are quite familiar with cubic zirconia for its ability to imitate diamond, the most recent diamond stand-in is moissanite. This diamond imitation is made of a mineral, silicon carbide, which was discovered in 1893 in an ancient meteorite in Arizona by Nobel Prize-winning French scientist Dr. Henri Moissan. In 1995, a company called Cree developed a process that enabled them to produce larger crystals of silicon carbide for consumer use. Moissanite is actually more brilliant than diamond and has a higher luster. Moreover, it is less expensive than diamond and requires a trained gemologist with a microscope to differentiate it from diamond. Moissanite is generally regarded as the best diamond substitute.

Topaz is a symbol of love and affection and has been said to be an aid to ones sweetness and disposition. Different colors of topaz are used in rings, earrings, necklaces, pendants and bracelets. The blue, orange, and pink colors are most often cut as gemstones, and colorless topaz is becoming increasingly popular. Finally ... you get to do what you want to do

The question now – what's the best way to pay for it? Maybe you're simplifying your life. Maybe you're complicating it. Either way, you're at the point where some new doors are opening. You have resources. You have options. What you want is a lender you can talk with, to help make the financing happen intelligently. At Colonial Federal, you deal directly with lenders who actually like coming up with good ways to make things happen. Including sometimes being able to make customized loans. Sound interesting? AARP Monthly Fraud Update - September

BY CINDY CAMPBELL
AARP Massachusetts, Communications Director

Did you know that someone's identity gets stolen every two seconds?

The AARP Fraud Watch Network provides tips and resources to help spot and avoid identity theft and fraud so you can protect yourself and your family. AARP watchdog alerts keep you up to date on con artists' latest tricks. It's free of charge for everyone: AARP members, non-members, and people of all ages.

The AARP Fraud Watch Network is:

An Educator: Get real-time alerts about the latest scams, tips on how to spot them, and the inside scoop on how con artists think so you can outsmart them before they strike.

• A Watchdog: Our nationwide scam tracking map gives you access to a network of people who've spotted scams and the opportunity to pass along your own experiences, so together we can beat con artists at their own game.

• A Resource: Get connected to a real live person trained in how to avoid fraud and advise you if you or a loved one has been scammed by calling our fraud hotline or attending a forum in your community.

• Free for Everyone: Anyone, of any age, can access our resources at no cost.

SCAM ALERT #1:

Scammers across the country are calling Social Security beneficiaries, claiming they are due a cost of living increase. They just need to verify your Social Security number and bank routing information, along with other personal information. Then, the scammers contact the real Social Security Administration to try to change your direct deposit to their bank account. If you get a call like this, hang up!

SCAM ALERT #2:

Do you use a smartphone? Do you have a passcode? Over a third of all smartphone users do not take this simple security step, leaving themselves vulnerable to identity theft and fraud should their smartphone get lost or stolen. Make your password difficult to guess, avoiding a sequential string like 1-2-3-4. Use a mix of numbers and letters if your smartphone allows it.

SCAM ALERT #3:

Look out for fake genealogy sites on the Internet. These scam sites pull information from public databases to make it look like they have lots of information about you and your lineage. They lure you into signing up so they can steal your personal information – and your identity.

It's a good idea to research the site before you sign up. Do an internet search on the site name with "reviews" and "scams" and see what comes up.

SCAM ALERT #4:

Tired of illegal robocalls? Report them to the Federal Trade Commission, which is doing something about them. The agency is posting a list of numbers it gets complaints about daily, along with the general subject matter. Then telecommunications carriers and other industry partners can use this information as they work on call blocking solutions, because those solutions rely on phone numbers that have been reported. The next time you get an unwanted robocall, report it at www.donotcall.gov.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Report scams to local law enforcement.

Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more information on fraud prevention.

Restore Christian Church Says, 'Thank You!'

Restore Christian Church wants to express their appreciation and thanks to all who were able to make it out for one or more of their five summer block parties.

To kick off the summer, the first party took place in Houghs Neck at Brill Field. Then the party moved to Quincy Point at Flynn Playground. During the third party, they battled through the rain and hosted the party at Wollaston Hill in Safford Park. Next, they moved into Wollaston and threw the party at Beechwood Knoll. Finally, the last block party was at Perkins Playground in Merrymount.

They consider each party a success. John Mueth, associate minister at Restore says, "We loved being able to serve our community in this way. Hundreds of people showed up and were able to have a free night of fun that the whole family could enjoy. We look forward to doing it again next summer!"

Each block party provided free hamburgers, hotdogs, chips, cookies, and drinks. There was live music by local musician Matt Putnam, as well as, 9-square in the air, Gaga Ball, yard games, and inflatables. With such a wide array of activities, everyone was seen with a smile on their face as they ate and played together.

Jeff Oakes, lead minister at Restore says, "We want to extend a huge 'Thank You' to Quincy for coming out to our block parties. We believe that people experienced community and memories were made. We are so thankful to serve and be a part of such an awesome community like Quincy."

If you missed Restore's block parties this summer, there is still time to catch another event in the fall. On Sept. 23rd, Restore will be hosting a movie night with pizza and popcorn at Wesner Hall. There will be more details about that event in the future. You can find out more information about Restore and their events by following them on Facebook (Restore Christian Church) or Twitter (@restorequincy).

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A RARE postcard view taken at the Harvard Aero Meet held at Squantum in September 1910. Only the second air meet in the U.S. this Quincy-based event drew the best aviators and the most advanced aeroplanes from around the world. More than $40,000 in cash prizes for the various events were the attraction. This aero-plane known as a Farman III biplane was built in France but was flown by an Englishman, Claude Graham-White, the winner of many of the events at the meet. His initials are on the rudder. Military officials from the major countries came to watch the aviators compete for a $5,000 prize for dropping softball-size plaster-of-Paris "bombs" into the funnels of a dummy battleship from elevations not lower than 100 feet. Their accuracy helped change the course of military history. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

87 Apply For 11-Quincy College Trustee Openings

Eighty-seven candidates have applied for the 11 positions on the new Quincy College Board of Trustees.

A five-man appointing council was scheduled to select the 11 board members. The board must be in place by Sept. 1.

Mayor James Sheets' home-rule petition to establish a 13-member board of trustees as the new governing authority of the college was approved by the City Council, State Legislature and Governor William Weld earlier this year. (Editor's note: The appointing council selected 11 of the 13-member board. Two others, one a city councillor and the second, a school committee member, would be chosen by these bodies.)

KINNEY TO RETURN AS PARKING MANAGER, ANNUAL PROFIT TO THE CITY OF $185,000 SEEN

Barring unforeseen complications, Kinney Systems, Inc. of Boston will become the new manager of Quincy's parking system, a deal that could mean an estimated $185,000 annual profit for the city.

City Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon said that the city's parking operations recommendation committee voted to negotiate with Kinney, one of the three firms vying for the parking contract. The committee included Gillon, Richard Meade, David Colton and Bernice Mader.

Kinney held the five-year contract before Metropolitan Parking Systems, Inc. of Quincy, one of the two other companies that bid on the contract. The other was Fitz-Ann Auto Parts, Inc. of Boston.

MBTA And Smarth Growth In Quincy . . .

(A copy of the following letter was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

Robert Stevens
Senior Planner
City of Quincy

Dear Rob:

It is some time ago when we were busy with the Town Brook enhancement project. The interpretive signs are very good, and educate the general public what a huge undertaking project this was, thank you. Still wondering if the bios swale or the rain garden section is working? It looks like it has some invasive vegetative species as well?

Second, on smart growth and the MBT stations development.

Last week some of my friends and I went to Lexington to Wilson Farms. We took the Fresh Pond Parkway to Rt. 2.

We were stuck in the traffic for almost an hour. When we finally came to the Alewife Station traffic signal, we realized the reason. People exiting and entering the station to cross the street to the condo development, the pedestrian button was used after each cycle. This prevented the traffic to proceed and backed up almost to Cambridge.

We were wondering, this same can happen in Quincy, when all the development close to the stations will take place, and already is, across the Quincy Adams Station. Smart growth is good, however, if not followed true with best planning it will put more carbon output into neighborhoods, meaning pedestrian traffic hindering traffic flow as one reason.

We all thought the pedestrian overpass would be one simple way to resolved the ever increasing traffic gridlock.

We are sure this issue is on the Quincy's Planning Department front burner, as you are negotiating new plans for all the four Quincy MBTA stations. And also opening the pedestrian access to Quincy Adams Station from Independence Ave.

So, the question we wanted to find out, who is responsible to build the pedestrian over passes, if any, how much engineering is involved and perhaps costing millions just for the study ?

We trust all players re collaborating, meaning developers, MBTA, DOT, EOEA and Energy, Citizens and other stake holders.

Thank you for keeping Quincy a livable city and holding the quality of life in balance.

Sincerely,
Anneli Johnson

. . . And A Response From Deputy Planning Director

(A copy of the following correspondence was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

Hello Anneli,

You bring up a lot of good points.

The City plans to do some work clearing the vegetated islands of invasive species at the new open air sections of the Town Brook now that the growing season is winding down.

New plantings will be done and we will continue to monitor this area. We will also have the rain gardens in the park areas checked for invasive species as well.

Analyzing pedestrian access, connectivity, and conflicts is a primary focus by Planning for all new projects that come forward.

The construction of pedestrian bridges to solve for areas of chronic conflict is growing in interest. The main constraint to building them as I understand is having enough land to site them in order to meet ADA ramp requirements and the difficulty of siting them in the right locations to optimize the pedestrian connectivity on each side.

You mention a couple locations where one could be built and I can think of a couple more. In each instance it would span a main road or the train tracks so MassDOT and/or the MBTA will be required to endorse any proposal to build one.

Some good news; the City has filed a council order to fund the "Traffic-Bicycle-Parking-Pedestrian Master Plan" that will be introduced at next week's Council meeting. I had the chance to review the proposed scope of work and pedestrian access and safety around the T stations is one of the priority areas of the study.

Once that analysis is complete, the City will be in a good position to work with existing landowners, developers, and our state partners to advance design and construction of new pedestrian facilities.

Best regards,

September Events, Activities For Children At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES
Thomas Crane Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following events and activities for children during September.

Science Saturday – School STEM

Observe, predict, estimate, build and more! Practice these important science skills using school supplies to complete a series of math and science activities.

Join us on Saturday, Sept. 9th at 10 a.m. for the first in our monthly series of Science Saturday events. Each month we will be exploring a different science topic.

Preschool Discovery @ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler any time between 10 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, Sept. 14th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

This month we'll be exploring magnets - Come in and play with magnets: Make magnets float above each other, chase each other around, use them to go fishing and more!

This program does not require registration.

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets on the second Thursday of each month beginning on Sept. 14th at 7 p.m.

For the first school year meeting of the Night Owls, we'll be catching up on what everyone has been reading this summer and go over what the Night Owls Book Club has in store for this year.

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. The Club will meet on Tuesday, Sept. 12th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

This month we will be discussing Summer Reading What did you read this summer? One book? Twenty? Did you love anything you read? Did you hate anything you read? Come on in and tell us all about it. We'll talk about what we read over the summer and go over what the year has in store for the Phoenix Book Club.

Too busy getting back into the school year routine to join us this month? Stop by the library anytime to find out what we'll be doing in October and join us then.

International Dot Day

Celebrate creativity and International Dot Day on Friday, Sept. 15th inspired by Peter Reynold's picture book The Dot.

Attend a Dots and Spots storytime at 10 a.m. Stop by the Main Library children's room all day to create a piece of dot inspired art Borrow books about dots and art and anything else that sparks your creativity.

Saturday Storytime

Join Children's Librarian Jane Miller for a family storytime full of stories, songs, rhymes, and more for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult on Saturday, Sept. 16th at 10 a.m. at the Main Library. No registration required.

Parent Workshop: Make Time for Reading

On Monday Sept. 18th from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. parents are invited to join the Quincy Braintree Family Network and Thomas Crane Public Library in welcoming Dr. Jean Ciborowski Fahey, author, and director of The South Shore Hospital Reading Partnership, South Shore.

Dr. Ciborowski Fahey is a strong advocate of families reading together. The first 4 to 5 years of a child's brain development is marked by astonishingly rapid growth. Once parents know how, they can invigorate the wiring of their child's brains in the language and literacy areas long before children know how to read and write.

Every family receives a signed copy of Make Time for Reading: a story guide for parents of babies and young children.

Dungeons and Dragons Encounters

New and experienced players ages 10 and older are invited to join us on Tuesday, Sept. 19th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room for this introduction to D&D 5th edition game play. Take on the role of a fantasy hero in this monthly Dungeons and Dragons game.

We will help you customize an Adventurer's League D&D character you can use both in our monthly adventures and at other D&D Organized Play.

Your group of adventurers will start out at level one and take on the module from the 5th Edition D&D Starter Set. Unravel the mysteries of the Lost Mine of Phandelver and what monsters and treasures lie within!

Children's Movie Matinee—Matilda

Join us at the Adams Shore Branch on Thursday, Sept. 21st at 2 p.m. for a showing of Matilda, based on the book by Roald Dahl.

Matilda Wormwood is an extremely curious and intelligent little girl who is very different from her low-brow, mainstream parents , who quite cruelly ignore her. As she grows older, she begins to discover that she has telekinetic powers. Not until a teacher shows her kindness for the first time does she realize that she can use those powers to do something about her sufferings and help her friends as well. Villains from the awful Miss Trunchbull, headmistress of her miserable school Crunchem Hall, to her parents and older brother begin to feel her ire.

Dependable Cleaners Hosts Annual Appreciation Dinner

Dependable Cleaners recently hosted its Annual Appreciation Dinner at Bay Pointe Waterfront Restaurant in Quincy.

Company President and CEO Christa Hagearty hosted the evening to acknowledge employees for their hard work, dedication, and service and to celebrate those who have served the company for three years or more.

Quincy residents and Dependable Cleaners employees Mesut Keceli, Tuong Do, and Rosetta Spadorcia were honored at the celebratory dinner. Mesut was recognized for contributing over three years of service to the company's Dorchester store. Tuong and Rosetta were each acknowledged for their work in the Quincy Avenue store. Dependable celebrated Tuong's 10 years and Rosetta's 20 years with the team.

"It has been a pleasure to work with Mesut, Tuong and Rosa over the years," Hagearty said. "Our company's success comes from the hard work and exceptional customer service our employees provide and we are excited to take the night to celebrate each of them."

Quincy's Rachel Pilla Glynn Participating In 'Amazing Race' In Memory Of Late Husband

The Mass General Cancer Center will host the Everyday Amazing Race, a 5K run, 2K walk and 100-yard kids' dash along the Charles River in Boston to benefit cancer research and care Sunday, Sept. 10.

More than 700 people from across New England are expected to participate in this annual event.

Quincy resident Rachel Pilla Glynn will participate in the race for reasons that are close to her heart. In 2014, at the age of 37, Rachel's husband Kevin passed away from a rare form of colon cancer. Kevin chose to receive treatment at the Cancer Center because of the hospital's reputation and because his dear friend, Jeanne Vaughn, is a nurse practitioner there.

Rachel said she is extremely thankful to Kevin's doctors and nurses for their kindness and compassion and is running to show her appreciation to the Cancer Center and to raise awareness of rare colon and other cancers.

Funds raised will help the Cancer Center advance its mission to create a brighter future for cancer patients and their families, in Boston and around the world. For more information, visit www.EverydayAmazingRace.org.

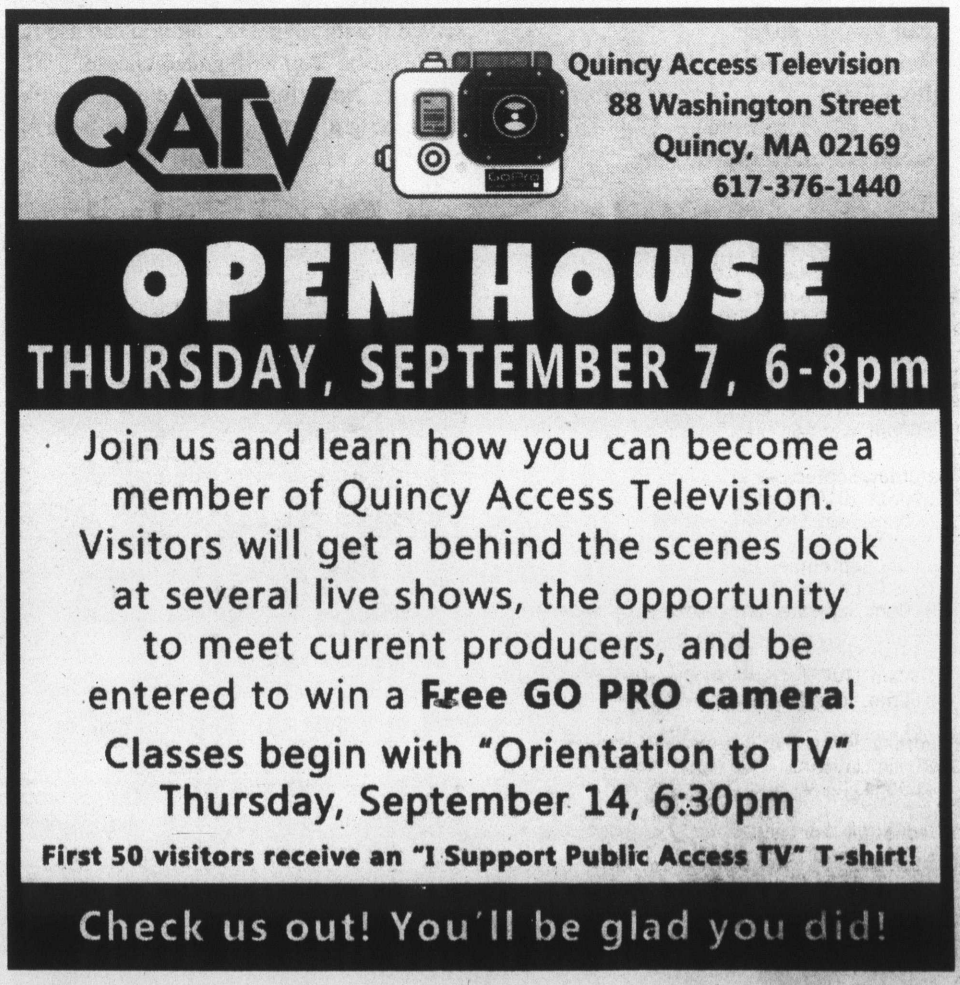
SS Mental Health Seeks Walkers, Runners, And Bikers For Athletic Festival Sept. 23

Friends and supporters of South Shore Mental Health will convene at Wompatuck State Park in Hingham Saturday, Sept. 23 to take part in The McCourt Foundation's Tour de South Shore Athletic Festival.

The annual event, which raises funds to support the fight against neurological diseases and other non-profit causes, will offer a 5K walk or fun run, a 12-mile off-road bike ride, or a 25- or 50-mile bike ride where participants can be part of an established team, a team of their own, or take part as individuals. Post-event activities will include a tailgate lunch featuring food and beverages from south shore restaurants and entertainment within the athlete's village.

As one of The McCourt Foundation's non-profit partners for this year's festival, South Shore Mental Health will receive 80 percent of all proceeds raised by its team. Funds will benefit the organization's Basic Needs Fund which provides financially disadvantaged clients with food, clothing, shelter, and other daily essentials.

To register for the event, make a donation, or learn more, visit www.ssmh.org or contact South Shore Mental Health's Director of Marketing and Development, Margaret Carr at 617-774-1017 or mcarr@ssmh.org.



Senior Forum Sept. 22 At Kennedy Center

The first annual John Noonan Senior Forum will take place at the Kennedy Center on Friday, Sept. 22 at 12:30 p.m.

This event takes the place of what was the Quincy Council on Aging Senior Conference. Instead of various workshops the focus of the forum will be how the perception of aging can change.

Today's seniors are very active; planning, shifting careers, starting new businesses, cooking, texting, volunteering, traveling, dating, taking classes and much more yet most beliefs about aging have remained the same.

Keynote speaker will be Tom Clasby, director of the Quincy Council on Aging. The forum will also feature a catered luncheon and discussion on how the community should move forward to help change one's perception of aging.

Tickets for this event are $10 per person and can be purchased at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

For additional information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Jim's Tomato Sauce At The Cape

By MARIE

While the family was at the Cape on vacation recently we all gathered at my son Jim's house for "pasta night." He made his special tomato sauce and as I watched him make his creation, I realized it was very different than how I make pasta sauce. His son, and my Grandson, John, also made a special sauce which I will write in another column.

1 pound of Italian sausages sweet
1 cup fresh mushrooms
Tube tomato paste (3 or 4 squirts) or 3 or 4 tablespoons tomato paste
1 can tomato puree
1 can plum tomatoes (Jim mashed them with a fork)
2 gloves garlic minced
1 small onion, chopped
3 tablespoons olive oil

Here is what Jim did that was different.

In a skillet add the olive oil and then sauté the onion and garlic lightly along with the tomato paste. Then add the sausage and sauté lightly until browned on each side. Remove from skillet and set aside.

Sauté the fresh mushrooms and set aside. Then add the cans of tomato puree and plum tomatoes. Add the sausage and mushrooms to the tomatoes, and cook the sausage until done for at least 40 minutes, stirring every few minutes.

Once the sauce was all simmered Jim served it with spaghetti, but you can use favorite pasta. Top with grated cheese!

P.S. Jim's tomato sauce was so delicious, he got a round of applause from all of us!!

Asian Style Green Bean Salad

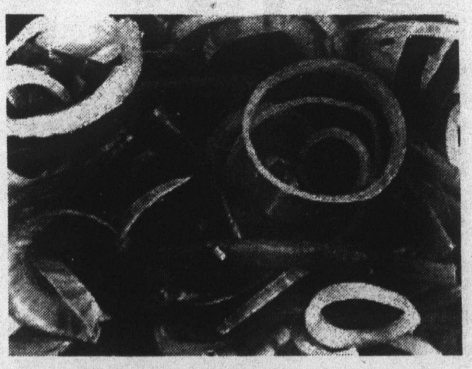
By SUSIE

Here is a wonderful and different type of salad that will be sure to please,

Lots of fresh vegetables, spices, herbs, and loaded with flavor and nutrient dense, this is a welcome change from a typical raw salad with its Asian flair.

ASIAN STYLE GREEN BEAN SALAD

2 lbs green beans, trimmed, and blanched in large pot of boiling salted water for about 4 minutes, drained, and placed in ice water to keep color bright.
1 pint grape tomatoes, sliced in half
1/4 red onion, sliced thin
1 1/2 tablespoons brown rice vinegar
2 tablespoons tamari or coconut aminos
1 heaping tsp raw honey
1 tsp grated ginger
1 tsp sriracha sauce



2 tablespoons sesame oil
1/2 cup cilantro, chopped
1/8 cup sesame seeds sprinkled on top

Just toss the beans with the onions and tomatoes and whisk up the dressing ingredients in separate bowl. Toss all together and coat well. Sprinkle with sesame seeds and serve after letting sit for 30 minutes or so. (Or serve right away, if you cant wait!)

'Bob's Kitchen' Dedicated At GNC

The South Shore YMCA / Germantown Neighborhood Center (GNC), in partnership with the City of Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development (PCD), recently dedicated a new teaching kitchen at the GNC, which will soon offer culinary classes and demonstrations for moderate-income individuals and families in Quincy.

The new facility, affectionately called "Bob's Kitchen," was dedicated on Aug. 2 in honor of Robert Donald – a former employee of PCD who retired last year after forty-one years of exemplary service to the department. Donald, a Houghs Neck native, provided financial oversight of PCD's local, state, and federal funds during his tenure with the department. For decades, he has been a champion in the field of advocacy for projects and programs that improve the quality of life for Quincy families in poverty. During his tenure, under HUD entitlement programs alone, he managed the financials of over $105 million in federal funds.

The dedication was held in the atrium area just outside of the kitchen, under an artistic quote on the wall penned by Ralph Waldo Emerson, which reads, in part, "To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to leave the world a bit better; to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded."

"This quote is the very embodiment of Bob Donald, which makes this space the perfect location for a dedication to Bob," said Sean Glennon, Quincy's community development director.

Rev. Richard Wilson, a Quincy native and former employee of PCD, provided an invocation and blessing of the new kitchen. Rev. Wilson is now Rector of the Cathedral of St. Mary of the Assumption in Fall River.

Mayor Thomas P. Koch provided a proclamation during the dedication, declaring Aug. 2, 2017 "Robert Donald Day" in the City of Quincy. Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest presented Donald with a city council citation. Other speakers included Eric Snyder, CEO of the South Shore YMCA; Angelito Santos, Quincy's Community Development Director from 1990-2005; Dennis Harrington, former Planning Director; James Fatseas, Planning Director; and Kathy Quigley, former Executive Director of the GNC.

Donald – an avid Bruin's fan – was also presented with a poster replica of an official Boston Bruin's jersey which had been ordered for him with the name "DONALD" on the back, as well as the number "41" in tribute to his years of service to the city.

"We all have crossroads in our lives, especially in our youth," said Donald. "With the right guidance and support from employees and volunteers of public service organizations like the Germantown Neighborhood Center's music room, kitchen, and other center activities, a beacon of light shines on those who have a place to feel wanted, valued and part of a community. There is so much good in the world that is often eclipsed by darkness, violence and a sense of alienation."

The kitchen was funded through the federal Community Development Block Grant, administered by PCD, as well as additional financial and in-kind support from the South Shore YMCA, Lowes, Home Depot, Sullivan Tire & Auto Service, and Hancock TV & Appliance. The architect for the project was Brian Donahue, President of Donahue Associates, and construction was managed by John Leeman, President of North Andover Building Corporation.

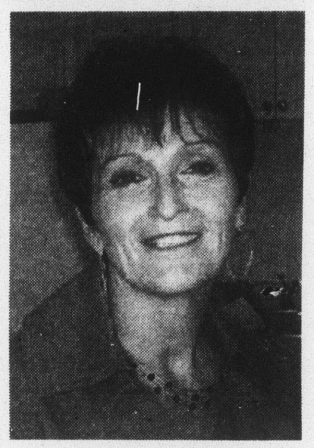
Mammograms – When To Start, How Often



RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-F

In the United States, more than 40,600 women will die from breast cancer this year, according to the American Cancer Society. In addition, approximately 252,700 new cases of invasive breast cancer will be diagnosed. The ongoing battle of when women should begin to be screened, and how frequently they should get a mammogram endures. Guidelines differ, but a new study, reviving the argument, estimates thousands of U.S. lives could be saved if mammograms were done every year from age 40 to 84. In a challenge to more conservative recommendations that take into account both the harms and the benefits of screening, U.S. researchers reported yearly mammograms starting at age 40 would prevent the greatest amount of deaths from breast cancer.

The study, led by Dr. Elizabeth Arleo, a radiologist specializing in mammography at Weill Cornell Medicine and New York-Presbyterian, found that yearly mammograms between the age of 40 and 80 could decrease breast cancer deaths by 40 percent. That compares with a reduction of 23 to 31 percent with current screening recommendations that call for less frequent screening initiating at an older age. The study published in the Journal of Cancer, stated that screening annually beginning at age 40 is the most advantageous strategy in preventing an early death from breast cancer.

Study co-author R. Edward Hendrick, a radiology professor at the University Of Colorado School Of Medicine and his colleagues used computer modeling to evaluate the three major mammogram recommendations: annual screening from age 40 to 84; annual screening at ages 45 to 54, then every other year from 55 to 79; or every other year from 50 to 74. The researchers estimated how many lives would be saved if every U.S. woman born in 1960 followed one of the three recommendations each year. Deaths from breast cancer would drop by an average of 40 percent with annual screenings from 40 to 84, the investigators reported. By comparison, breast cancer mortality would decline 31 percent with screening until age 79. And it would drop 23 percent with every-other-year mammography from 50 to 74, which is recommended by the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force.

The researchers found that the number of lives saved from breast cancer would be about 29,400 with annual screening from age 40 to 84; and about 22,800 and 17,200, respectively, for the other two recommendations. Which approach women embraced, would make an enormous difference in terms of breast cancer deaths averted, according to the study.

Most groups, including the American Cancer Society and the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force, a government-backed panel, concede that screening beginning at age 40 will discover more breast cancers, but screening at this age also generates the most false positive results. For a 40-year-old woman who starts mammography, they pointed out, that the odds of having a false positive are very high, while the odds that the test will save your life are very minute. That risk/benefit ratio begins to modify around age 47 or 48, when the benefits of screening outweigh the risk of over-diagnosis. These groups ascertain also that yearly mammograms starting at 40 would also lead to the highest number of women being called back to doctors' offices for false alarms and biopsies that end up being negative.

Consequently, the American Cancer Society suggests yearly mammograms starting at 45, and moving to every other year at age 55. The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force recommends screening every two years starting at age 50. Currently, only about half of women over 40 get mammogram screening at least once every two years, even though one in eight is expected to develop breast cancer in their lives.

This study also had limitations, however. For instance, it doesn't examine costs, whether existing machines and staff members could manage an influx of mammogram patients, or whether the higher expense could be spent in a more beneficial manner. Study lead author Dr. Elizabeth Kagan Arleo said, "These important questions are beyond the scope of our research".

Certainly, false positive results that require additional and unnecessary screening remain a concern. But, according to researchers, the average woman in her 40s getting annual screening can expect this to occur about once every 12 years. In addition, the second most common risk would be a woman who does not have breast cancer being asked to get a breast biopsy. The average woman in her 40s getting annual screening can anticipate this occurring about once every 150 years. Other risks include a mammogram that misses breast cancer or a case of breast cancer caused by mammogram radiation, however, these are rare. Hendrick suggests that if a woman wants to maximize her chances of averting an untimely breast cancer death she should start screening at age 40 and continue screening annually until her life expectancy is less than five to seven years.

Not every expert concurs. Dr. Otis Brawley, chief medical officer of the American Cancer Society, supports the mammography recommendations of his organization: starting at 45 instead of 40, unless 40 is preferred, and converting to every-other-year mammograms at age 55.

Brawley suggested, "For a woman who is 40 years old of average risk, the chances that a mammogram is going to be important in her health over the next five or 10 years is really pretty small". He added that mammography is an imperfect tool and it will be important to develop a better test for breast cancer than the mammogram as it exists today.

Where you fall in this debate depends on whether you believe a mammogram actually has little effect on survival or how you decide to trade off the number of deaths versus number of unnecessary treatments. Clearly, this is not something everyone will agree on, and there's a good argument that the choice to get a mammogram should be left up to women themselves.

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

Social Security Matters: Ask Rusty

Bend Points & Means Testing

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: I was having coffee with several of my neighbors the other day, and the long-term financial health of Social Security came up. With all of the media coverage of the program running out of reserves in a few years, the issue of "means testing" for benefits came up as a partial solution to the forecasted shortfall. This sounds to me like something that should be considered, but then somebody mentioned that Social Security is already means tested, and he mentioned taxation and something called "bend points." Now, I'm really confused! Can you explain? Signed: Mixed up.

Dear Mixed: Wow, you and your neighbors get into some pretty deep topics over coffee, but let me try to clarify. At its most basic level, a means test is "a determination of whether an individual or family is eligible for government assistance, based upon whether the individual or family possesses the means to do without that help" (Wikipedia definition). With this basic definition, it can't really be said that Social Security is "means tested" in a formal sense. Individuals and families with levels of wealth and income far above average levels can--and do--qualify and receive Social Security benefits based on their contributions to the program during their working years.

But realistically, the calculation of actual benefits does take into account wealth and earnings, at least indirectly. This is where the "bend points" your friend mentioned come into play. The determination of an eligible recipient's Social Security monthly benefit (referred to as the "Primary Insurance Amount" or PIA) involves a three step process:

1. The indexing of recorded earnings for a 35-year period. Using the highest recorded earnings, each annual figure is indexed to bring the amount up to current values. This is done using a set of annual percentages developed by the Social Security Administration to reflect present values of those earnings.

2. A monthly average for the 35-year period is then calculated. After indexing, the average monthly earnings amount for the 35-year period is separated into three levels, called "bend points," this way (dollar values are for 2017):

   a. The first $885 is multiplied by 90%
   b. Earnings between $885 and $3,556 are multiplied by 32%
   c. Earnings above $3,556 are multiplied by 15%

   The three amounts calculated in the preceding step are added together to determine the PIA.

3. Here's an example, assuming a 35-year monthly earnings average of $5,000:
   - Bend point 1 = $ 796.50 ($885 X 90%)
   - Bend point 2 = 854.72 ($3556 - 885 = $2671. $2671 X 32% = $854.72)
   - Bend point 3 = 216.60 ($5000 - 3556 = $1444. $1444 X 15% = $216.60)

The PIA or Primary Insurance Amount comes to $1,867.00 (Monthly amount is always rounded down to the nearest dollar)

I know these computations can be mind-numbing, but the example above illustrates that higher earnings get a lower weighting in determining PIA...not necessarily a "means test," but a way of ensuring that low wage earners receive a higher return on their Social Security investment. So although true means testing isn't currently a factor in deciding a person's benefit, weighting the bend point percentages higher for the lower dollar portions in the calculation does, in fact, have the effect of being somewhat less favorable to those with a higher average monthly earnings. By the same token, the fact that people with higher adjusted gross incomes can find up to 85% of their Social Security subject to taxation also serves to balance the scales more toward lower income earners. I'll take my coffee with cream, and no sugar, please.

Manet Hosts National Health Center Week Events

Manet Community Health Center (Manet) celebrated National Health Center Week (NHCW) last week with a lineup of events designed to thank existing patients and supporters, welcome new patients, engage community members, and raise awareness about the mission and accomplishments of America's health centers.

"Manet is proud to be part of a nationwide delivery system that provides high quality, cost effective, accessible care to 25 million individuals in nearly 10,000 communities in every state and U.S. Territory," said Cynthia Sierra, chief executive officer. "Locally owned and governed, Manet joins 49 other community health centers in the Commonwealth now serving 1 in 7 Massachusetts residents and employing 12,000 individuals in Massachusetts. In addition, community health centers continue to generate significant value to the state Medicaid program, serving 21% of state beneficiaries while accounting for only 1.8% of total state Medicaid expenditures; and generating a total economic impact of $1.6 billion as significant regional employers and local purchasers of goods and services.

"National Health Center Week is an opportunity for us to show that we are here and will remain here to serve each and every patient that needs our care and that we are honored to serve the communities in both the 8th and 4th Congressional districts of the state to promote healthy communities, access to health care and preventative service and wellness. Moreover, as a community health center our greater partner is the community, and we design and offer programs that meet the unique needs and pressing concerns of the neighborhoods we exist to serve," she added.

Manet's National Health Center Week observances began with the Wollaston Beach Wellness Walk on Saturday, August 12, reconstituted with the Friends of Wollaston Beach after a ten year sabbatical to help promote movement, wellness, the seashore and community collaboration. Celebrations continued throughout the week, including an open house and health fair at Manet's North Quincy site, a special improvement project announcement event in collaboration with the City of Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development at Manet's Houghs Neck site, a Tai Chi demonstration class on the lawn at Manet, Snug Harbor, a health fair and open house at Manet's Taunton site, and culminating with a Safe 'N Sunny Seaside Health Fair at the DCR Mary Jeenette Murray Bathhouse at Nantasket Beach in Hull.

The week was also punctuated by a proclamation from Mayor Thomas Koch declaring Aug. 13-19 National Health Center Week in the City of Quincy.

Health Center Week Supporters Eaton Apothecary, South Shore Health System BMC HealthNet Plan, Fallon Health Plan and Community Partners Morton Hospital, Tufts Health Plan and Senior Whole Health generously sponsored and participated in Manet's health center week events.

Quincy Arts Council Accepting Cultural Grant Applications

Public Information, Input Meeting Oct. 3 At Adams Academy • Deadline For Applications Oct. 16

Quincy Arts Council is accepting applications for Massachusetts Cultural Council 2018 Local Cultural Council (LCC) grants. The LCC grants are the primary means by which the state funds cultural activities in local communities.

Organizations, individuals, and schools engaged in providing programs in the arts, humanities, and interpretive sciences in Quincy may apply.

The deadline for applying is Monday, Oct. 16.

All applications are completed and submitted online. Paper applications are not accepted.

Applicants should review Massachusetts Cultural Guidelines and Quincy Arts Council Priorities before filling out the application.

All materials, including the application, can be accessed and the application submitted at www.massculture.org.

In addition, Massachusetts Cultural Council is posting a series of instructional videos on how to file an application on YouTube. For persons needing internet access, the Thomas Crane Public Library and its branch libraries, along with many other Massachusetts public libraries, have computers with internet access that are available to the public.

Quincy Arts Council will also hold a Public Information and Input Meeting Tuesday, Oct. 3, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy Building, 8 Adams St. This will be an opportunity to learn, ask questions, discuss the application process, and offer reactions and recommendations about the Council's mission and grant-making process.

Persons with questions may also call Quincy Historical Society at 617 773-1144; callers should say that they are inquiring about the "Quincy Arts Council."

'John Adams Writes A Constitution' At ANHP Sept. 17

From his humble cottage at the foot of Penn's Hill, John Adams drafted the Massachusetts Constitution, the longest, continuously used written constitution in the world.

On Sunday, Sept. 17, in the Adams Carriage House, Adams National Historical Park welcomes author Richard Alan Ryerson for a lecture: John Adams Writes a Constitution.

Ryerson is the author of John Adams's Republic: The One, the Few, the Many. The editor in chief of the Massachusetts Historical Society's Adams Papers project for nearly two decades, Ryerson offers readers of this magisterial book a fresh, firmly grounded account of Adams's political thought and its development. This is the first study to closely examine all of Adams's writings, from his youth through his retirement. Copies of the work will be available for sale and signing following the lecture.

Limited street parking is available on Adams Street. The event is free and open to the public.

This event occurs in conjunction with guided tours of the John Adams Birthplace, John Quincy Adams Birthplace, and Old House at Peace field. Tickets to the historic homes can be purchased at the Visitor Center located at 1250 Hancock St., Quincy.

A free park trolley transports visitors from the Visitor Center to the Birthplaces and the Old House at Peace field for a two and a half hour tour. The first tour leaves the Visitor Center at 9:15 a.m. and the last tour leaves at 3:15 p.m., seven days a week including federal holidays. Tickets are $10 for adults (children 15 and under are free) and sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

For more information, call the Visitor Center at 617-770-1175 or visit www.nps.gov/adam.

HAUGHNESSY

Ward 6

September 12th

Paid for the Committee To Elect Alie Shaughnessy

25% Turnout Seen For Sept. 12 Preliminary

liminary, which was held on Sept. 11, saw 28 percent of the city's 52,253 voters head to the polls.

"There was a 28 percent turnout and it was the same type of election – at-large and in a few of the wards," Crispo said.

Seven candidates qualified in the at-large race this fall. The top six vote getters in the preliminary will advance to the Nov. 7 final election.

The candidates, in order of appearance on the ballot, are:

Margaret Laforest, 236 Rock Island Rd.; Stephen F. Tougas, 78 Gilbert St., A; Noel T. DiBona, 70 Chickatabot Rd.; Nina Liang, 2 Williams St.; Anne Mahoney, 12 Ferriter St.; Stanley Dong Fang Xiao, 73 Bicknell Rd., 607; and Daniel G. Raymondi, 88 Elm St.

Laforest is currently the Ward 1 councillor and is vacating that spot to run at-large. DiBona and Liang are incumbents seeking a second term. Mahoney is currently serving her third term on the School Committee and is vacating that seat to run for the council. Raymondi served six years as the commissioner of Public Works and was previously a Ward 2 councillor and member of the School Committee.

Tougas and Xiao are first-time candidates.

The third incumbent at-large councillor, Joseph Finn, opted not to run for re-election this year.

Four candidates qualified in the race to represent Ward 1; the top two will advance. Those candidates are:

Michael Falcione, 3 Graham Ter.; Joseph C. Murphy, 18 Macy St.; David McCarthy, 48 Whitney Rd.; and Daniel J. Davis, 155 Babcock St. McCarthy is a former member of the School Committee. The others are first-time candidates.

The three candidates to qualify for the Ward 5 race are:

Michael M. Hurley, 51 Elm Ave.; John Rodo Rodophele, 62 Grenwold Rd.; and Kirsten L. Hughes, 116 Willow Ave. Hughes is the incumbent and is finishing her second year as the council president. Rodophele ran for School Committee in 1997 and 2003. Hurley is a first-time candidate.

Three candidates also qualified in Ward 6. They are:

Steven Striffler, 63 Huckins Ave.; Herbert Alie Shaughnessy III, 32 Essex St.; and William Harris, 74 Ashworth Rd.

Harris is the incumbent councillor who was appointed to the seat in 2016 after the death of then councillor Brian McNamee in December 2015. Harris and Shaughnessy were among the candidates running in a special election to fill the open seat when a judge declared Harris should be appointed to the seat per state law, negating the special election. Harris had challenged McNamee in 2015.

Striffler ran for School Committee in 2009.

The incumbent councillors in Wards 2, 3 and 4 – Brad Croall, Ian Cain and Brian Palmucci, respectively – are unopposed this year.

November's election will also feature a six-way race for three school board seats. There is no mayoral election this year; Mayor Thomas Koch is midway through the first four-year mayoral term in city history.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 12, for the preliminary election and close at 8 p.m. Absentee voting began on Aug. 23 and will continue until noon on Monday, Sept. 11. Crispo said 183 voters had cast absentee ballots as of the morning of Aug. 30.

Unlike last year's presidential election, there is no early voting in this year's municipal contest – either in next week's preliminary or the final election in November.

Voters in Ward 1, Precinct 2, which includes most of Germantown, will cast ballots at O'Brien Towers, 73 Bicknell St., starting with Tuesday's preliminary. The Board of Registrars moved the polling place there from the Germantown Neighborhood Center because the new location will provide more space.

"They grew out of the Germantown Neighborhood Center. There wasn't enough room," Crispo said, adding that the Bicknell Towers community room would provide plenty of space.

The preliminary election will cost $80,000 to $85,000, Crispo said. The cost of the election was included in this year's budget.

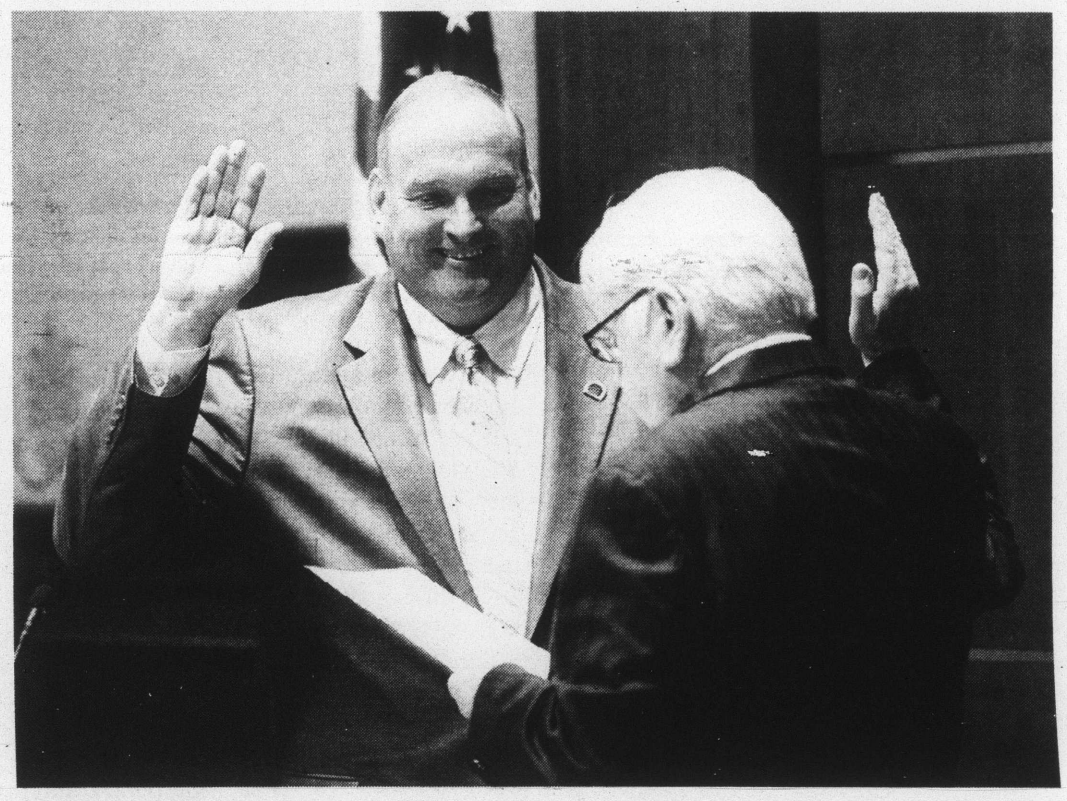
William P. Harris
Ward 6
Councillor



Serving as Councillor this past year has been one of the great honors of my life; providing me with an incredible opportunity to work on behalf of the neighbors and neighborhoods I care very much about. I've learned so much about our community by listening and doing what I can to assist our residents on issues both large and small. It's been a truly wonderful experience that I hope to continue with your help.

Quincy's future is bright, but we have much work to do in the coming months and years. My commitment to you is simple: I'll continue to work hard every day on every issue – whether it's communicating with our residents on major issues, working with City departments to fix problems, or making sure our neighborhood concerns are heard at all levels.

Ward 6 Candidates Talk Ferry Service, MBTA Project

By SCOTT JACKSON

The three candidates for the Ward 6 seat on the City Council in this fall's municipal election spoke out on ferry service and the impact of upcoming MBTA project at a recent forum in Marina Bay.

The three candidates – incumbent William Harris and challengers Herbert Alie Shaughnessy III and Steven Striffler – made their case to voters during the Aug. 29 forum hosted by the Marina Bay Access Committee and Marina Point Council Committee.

The top two vote getters in the Sept. 12 preliminary race will face off in the final election Nov. 7 to represent Ward 6, which includes Squantum, Marina Bay and parts of North Quincy, on the council for the next two years.

The candidates were asked to make an opening statement at the Aug. 29 event and then fielded questions about ferry service and the T from audience members.

Harris, in his opening statement, said he has been honored to represent the district during his time on the council. He highlighted the work he's done for Marina Bay residents, including working with city officials to ensure the city would plow Marina Bay and the council's vote this June to pay for emergency sewer repairs.

"For the last 17 months, it's been an honor. I've really had a great experience, met a lot of folks. When I took office, I said I was going to try to make a difference – not just in North Quincy, not just in Squantum, but also out here in Marina Bay," Harris said. "Marina Bay is near and dear to folks who live in Squantum, because we come over here and enjoy your facilities all the time."

Shaughnessy, who owns a crane rental business, said he decided to run for office because of the amount of development the city has seen. He said a new set of eyes is needed.

"The city has experienced and is experiencing a tremendous amount of growth – an explosion of growth – right now," Shaughnessy said. "The leadership, I think, is doing a fine job; however, I think we need some new eyes, some new ideas and just a fresh perspective on where we're going, how we're getting there and what are the consequences, what happens to everybody when we get there."

Striffler likewise noted the amount of development going on across the city. He said his background as an engineer and attorney would prove beneficial.

"These are exciting times in the city. We have a lot of development in the city center, the North Quincy station, here in Marina Bay and ultimately we'll have a new school in Squantum," Striffler said. "I have an extensive construction background as both an engineer and attorney, so I believe that background will contribute in helping the city succeed in this development."

The three candidates were then asked by an audience member what it would take to make a permanent ferry service out of Squantum Point Park viable.

Shaughnessy said it would take improvements to Commander Shea Boulevard and to the pier itself, as well as a commitment from the state and reliable service.

"We need a new road, we need water protection on a new pier, we need the MBTA to be involved in it and the last thing is we need to have a commitment from the state and the state legislators that work with us to say there is going to be money there so when you come to get the commuter boat, it's there…it's there everyday at the times it's supposed to be," Shaughnessy said.

Striffler said there needs to be a connection between the pier and the MBTA station in North Quincy. He also said the DCR charging commuters to park at Squantum Point Park makes the ferry less feasible for commuters.

"You need a means between North Quincy T station and the ferry on a regular basis to make it part of an intermodal transportation system," Striffler said. "You have to create demand for the ferry – how do you do that? Access is only one piece of the puzzle, the other piece is to make it an economically viable alternative. Charging someone to park…you're not going to get much use."

Harris said the city needs to press state lawmakers to pay for a new pier if to make the ferry service viable in the long run.

"The pier is outdated. It needs replacing. Replacing means money, but it certainly cannot come out of the

Koch To Announce Electric Vehicle Charging Station Plans

During National Electric Drive Week Sept. 15 At Quincy Farmers Market

Mayor Thomas P. Koch will announce the City's plans to expand the number of electric vehicle charging stations at the Quincy Drives Electric / Electric Car Showcase on Friday Sept. 15th from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Farmers Market.

The announcement is part of Quincy's celebration of "National Electric Drive Week."

National Electric Drive Week, is a weeklong celebration for communities to showcase plug-in EV drivers, supporters, and businesses, while highlighting the clean-air benefits, cost-savings and fun of electric vehicles (EVs).

Quincy's Electric Car Showcase will feature information about different models of plug-in EVs, where and how to charge them, and federal, state and other incentives available to buyers.

There will be several EV models at the event, including the Chevy Bolt, Chevy Volt, Toyota Prius Plug-In, Nissan Leaf and Kia Soul EV. While more than 500,000 electric vehicles have been sold, they are still comparatively unknown to most consumers. This event gives the public a chance to learn about EVs. Electric cars use much less energy than traditional cars, and have lower maintenance costs. Full electric vehicles have no tailpipe emissions. With more models now available, the purchase cost is often comparable to gasoline-powered cars, and are less expensive to operate.

The City of Quincy's Mayor's Office, Department of Public Buildings, and Department of Planning and Community Development teamed up with National Drive Electric Week national organizers, Plug In America, the Sierra Club, and the Electric Auto Association to organize Quincy's first-ever electric car showcase. The Nissan LEAF® is the exclusive national automotive sponsor.

Lencho Amente Conducts Summer Research With University Of Delaware Students

This summer, Lencho Amente of Quincy was one of more than 150 University of Delware undergraduate students who worked on a range of research projects in disciplines all across the university as well as in the community.

Over the past 10 weeks, they have collaborated with their faculty mentors and, in many cases, with other undergraduates and with graduate students, learning how original research takes place and creating new knowledge themselves.

city's budget, because it's too expensive," Harris said. "We need to call on our state Legislature and call on our governor to fix it, because with their MBTA system not working the way it's supposed to, we need it."

The candidates were also asked to comment on the pending 20-month closure of the Wollaston MBTA station for renovations, which will take place at the same time a mixed-use development gets underway at the North Quincy station and the garage at the Quincy Center station is demolished.

Shaughnessy said the City Council should have pressed the MBTA about the decision to undertake all three projects at once.

"It goes back to leadership – different ideas up on the City Council, different eyeballs to look at it, different thoughts to say 'why are we doing this now?'" he said. "The MBTA had 37+ years to make the station ADA compliant and decided to do it the same time they've allowed a developer to go forward at North Quincy, not to mention the fact they're going to take down the garage in Quincy Center."

Striffler said the city needs to be more active in lobbying the T in terms of timing its projects, and said a citywide solution is needed for traffic woes.

"We're not going to be able to stop these MBTA projects…but we need to be more of an advocate on when those projects are let out and when the work begins," he said. "We need to make a concerted effort to make a comprehensive traffic solution here, not just piecemeal…we need to take into account the whole city."

Harris said he has asked the T to provide some shuttle bus service between Wollaston station and JFK/UMass and other points beyond that, in addition to the shuttles that will run to North Quincy.

"Wollaston – this has been in the works for two years. I feel terrible about it," he said. "Let the buses go directly to JFK. It would be faster, it would be more comfortable, and it would get them where they could grab two trains instead. The kids will get off the train… to go to UMass and B.C. [High]."

Council At-Large Candidates Field Questions At Forum

By SCOTT JACKSON

Voters had a chance to hear from the seven candidates running for the three at-large seats on the City Council in this fall's municipal election during a recent Marina Bay forum.

Incumbents Noel DiBona and Nina Liang, both finishing their first term; current Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest; School Committee member Anne Mahoney; former councillor and commissioner of public works Daniel Raymondi; and first-timer candidates Stephen Tougas and Stanley Dong Fang Xiao, all spoke at the Aug. 29 forum hosted by the Marina Bay Access Committee and Marina Point Council Committee.

The seven will face-off in the Sept. 12 preliminary and the top six candidates will advance to the final election on Nov. 7.

The top six vote getters in the Sept. 12 preliminary will advance to the final election on Nov. 7.

The candidates were asked to make opening statements before fielding questions submitted by audience members.

DiBona described himself as a community activist and said he first ran for the council to make Quincy a nice, safe place to live.

"I wanted to continue to live in the city of Quincy and advocate for the right funding, resources and make Quincy a nice place to live, a safe place to live," DiBona said. "Some of the most important things to me is education, public safety and right now, with all the stuff going on, infrastrueture improvements."

Laforest touted her responsiveness and outreach to her constituents in Ward 1, something she wants to continue at-large.

"When I did take office I really prided myself on what I thought was important to my constituents. It is communication and accessibility. It is important – when you're that voice, when you're that elected representative – people know where you are, how they can reach out to you," Laforest said. "I am out there and I pride myself on my responsiveness."

Liang said more progress needs to be made to make city government accessible, transparent and engaged with residents.

"Two years ago I ran on a pretty simple platform: To make our city government more accessible and more transparent and to engage more residents in the hard work at City Hall everyday. While I feel we've made progress on both these fronts, I believe we can still do more, we can still do better," Liang said. "I'm running because I want to build upon the progress we have made."

Mahoney said she wants to hear from residents about what their priorities are.

"Many of you in the audience tonight, I've been at your doors and the first thing I ask you after I tell you I'm Anne Mahoney is 'what do you think is working and what do you think we need to pay attention to,' so I can be your representative," Mahoney said. "Let me tell you I have learned a lot, like I always do when I walk around the city."

Raymondi pointed to his work during his tenure on the council, including the hotel/motel tax law and the Senior Worker's Abatement Program, and awards the Department of Public Works received in recent years.

"My public career has been one of commitment to the well being of every resident in the city, finding innovative solutions to problems that don't necessarily involve burdening taxpayers," Raymondi said. "I will be a steady hand on the City Council for a changing city."

Tougas said he collected signatures in a support of a ballot initiative that pegged the state's gas tax to inflation and has written a referendum to ban tolls.

"I'm someone who believes that the rights of the individual are more important than the rights of the collective, which is what our country is founded on," Tougas said. "I believe that when you want a chicken in every pot, when you want bigger government, what does that mean – it means more taxes. And opposite is true if you want less taxes."

Xiao said he hopes to beautify the city and build more playgrounds and facilities for senior citizens.

"I want to bring flowers to Quincy – make Quincy city, flower city," Xiao said. "I want to create more facilities for the senior people and gather them together to do exercise, to play chess, to socialize, and make them happy. They deserve a happy life in their senior age. Also, I want to build more public playgrounds in our city."

The candidates were asked about development – in particular how to balance the needs of residents versus those of developers – during the question and answer period.

DiBona said new commercial development in Quincy Center would be beneficial for residents.

"I'm looking forward to commercial in the downtown. Get the Hancock Lot built…and we go from there with other parcels being commercial based," DiBona said. "I'm looking for that tier to help out the residential taxpayer."

Laforest said the downtown needs to meet residents' needs and listed off several now closed stores, including Remick's and Colman's.

"My kids are in college and they never had that experience," Laforest said. "We need a downtown that operates for us. We need to meet the needs of our city within our municipality. It begins here in downtown Quincy."

Liang said more commercial development is needed than just first-floor retailers.

"That first-floor retail, it does bring tax revenue into the city, but it's not much – 5,000 square feet is not much commercial development if you look at it," Liang said. "If we continue to develop the way we are with residential on top…it's not going to make the impact we need as residents."

Mahoney said the city needs to be more proactive in marketing itself to bring in new business.

"We can't just sit here and wait – that's what we do here in Quincy the best – we wait. We build it and they will come – have them come?" Mahoney said. "We need to actually go out and bring it in to the city."

Raymondi stressed the importance of fiscal responsibility.

"One of the things missing in this discussion is fiscal responsibility. It's one thing to shift the tax burden from residential to commercial and more money comes in, but what do you do with that revenue," Raymondi said. "Part of my responsibility as councillor at-large is to scrutinize how we spend money."

Tougas said communities are starting to look more and more alike and less unique.

"Towns that all look different are all starting to look the same. There is globalization going on and who is paying for that? The taxpayer. We need to stop that and get back to meeting the needs of the individual people and keeping the heritage of Quincy, Quincy," Tougas said.

Xiao said the city needs to increase its commercial tax base.

"Quincy city right now is rapidly developing within five years to ten years," Xiao said. "We need to increase the commercial tax base, get the money to develop our city, and after five years, ten years, we can release it."

The candidates were also asked about rising flood insurance costs and ways the burden on policyholders could be reduced.

DiBona said the city would need to oppose future changes to FEMA flood maps that would drive up costs for residents.

"If you're not a city that's going to fight this, they're going to roll right over you. That's what happened in some of the other municipalities," DiBona said. "What we've got to continue is be on the forefront, when the meetings come, be at them, and be against this."

Laforest said the city has done its due diligence to improve its community rating from FEMA, which results in a discount for policyholders.

"Right now, the city of Quincy is working to be one of the top communities for the community rating system," Laforest said. "What can we do to reduce the cost of your flood insurance? Right now, the city of Quincy qualifies for a 10 percent discount we're looking to be the number two community in the commonwealth to hit the 15 percent mark."

Liang said it was important residents and the city receive the most up to date information on their insurance and changes to flood zones.

"We need to continue that communication with the federal delegation – with folks like Congressman Lynch – down to the lower level with your city councillors and also to the resident. We need to continue that moving forward to make sure we have the most up to date information," Liang said.

Mahoney said the city needs to ensure development doesn't create more flood plain areas.

"We have to actually be careful about where we're developing and how we're developing," Mahoney said. "We need to make sure we're taking the developments and making sure it's not creating more low-level flood areas."

Xiao said people who cannot afford their flood insurance should receive a discount.

"We should be taking good care of people. When people cannot afford the insurance, we should give them a discount," Xiao said. "Government needs to provide some funds for them."

Tougas said he was in favor of smaller government and privatization, while also providing discounts to those with lower incomes.

"I am definitely for smaller government. I would like to see privatization of insurance companies and competition," Tougas said. "That being said, all we can do is have discounts for people with lower incomes.

Raymondi said he worked hard to improve the city's score on the community rating while running the DPW.

"The community rating system is something I worked very hard on as the commissioner of public works," Raymondi said. "We have built two pump stations. We need to continue to do that. We need to continue to repair and reconstruct our catch basins."

A lot Of (Home)Work Still To Do

I read a recent study (sorry, I don't remember the name of the study) comparing and ranking all of the 123-5 school systems in Massachusetts.

Unfortunately, Quincy's school system was ranked 93rd, or more explicitly, in the bottom 1/3rd of the list.

School administrators, teachers, parents, Quincy public officials have a lot of (home)work to improve our schools and our investment to our kids.

Fine, Quincy's building new schools. Fine, there's an increase in the school budget and hiring of more teachers. And students seem to be learning, and the graduation rate is high.

But....93rd ranking?? That's only 30-32 spots from being the worst school system in the state.

Yes, there is a LOT of room for improvement.

Belinda Ranstrom Appointed Woodward School Principal

Belinda Ranstrom has been appointed principal of the Woodward School in Quincy.

Ranstrom joined the school over the summer to prepare for its 123rd academic year this fall.

The Woodward School first opened its doors in 1894. Founded in 1869 by President John Adams' cousin, Ebenezer Woodward and his wife, Mary Greenleaf Woodward, The Woodward School is an independent college preparatory school for girls in grades 6 through 12.

Ranstrom's education experience spans 16 years, including 11 years as a teacher and most recently as a director at the English High School, a Commonwealth Pilot School. Ranstrom has a BA in criminal justice and a MEd in Secondary Education, both from Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy.

As principal, Ranstrom will manage faculty, and support students and families. Ranstrom has expertise in developing and supporting new teachers. She has worked with professionals who came to education from other backgrounds assisting them in developing instructional and classroom management skills. She has worked as a school leader in planning and implementing school policies to assist in the development of students.

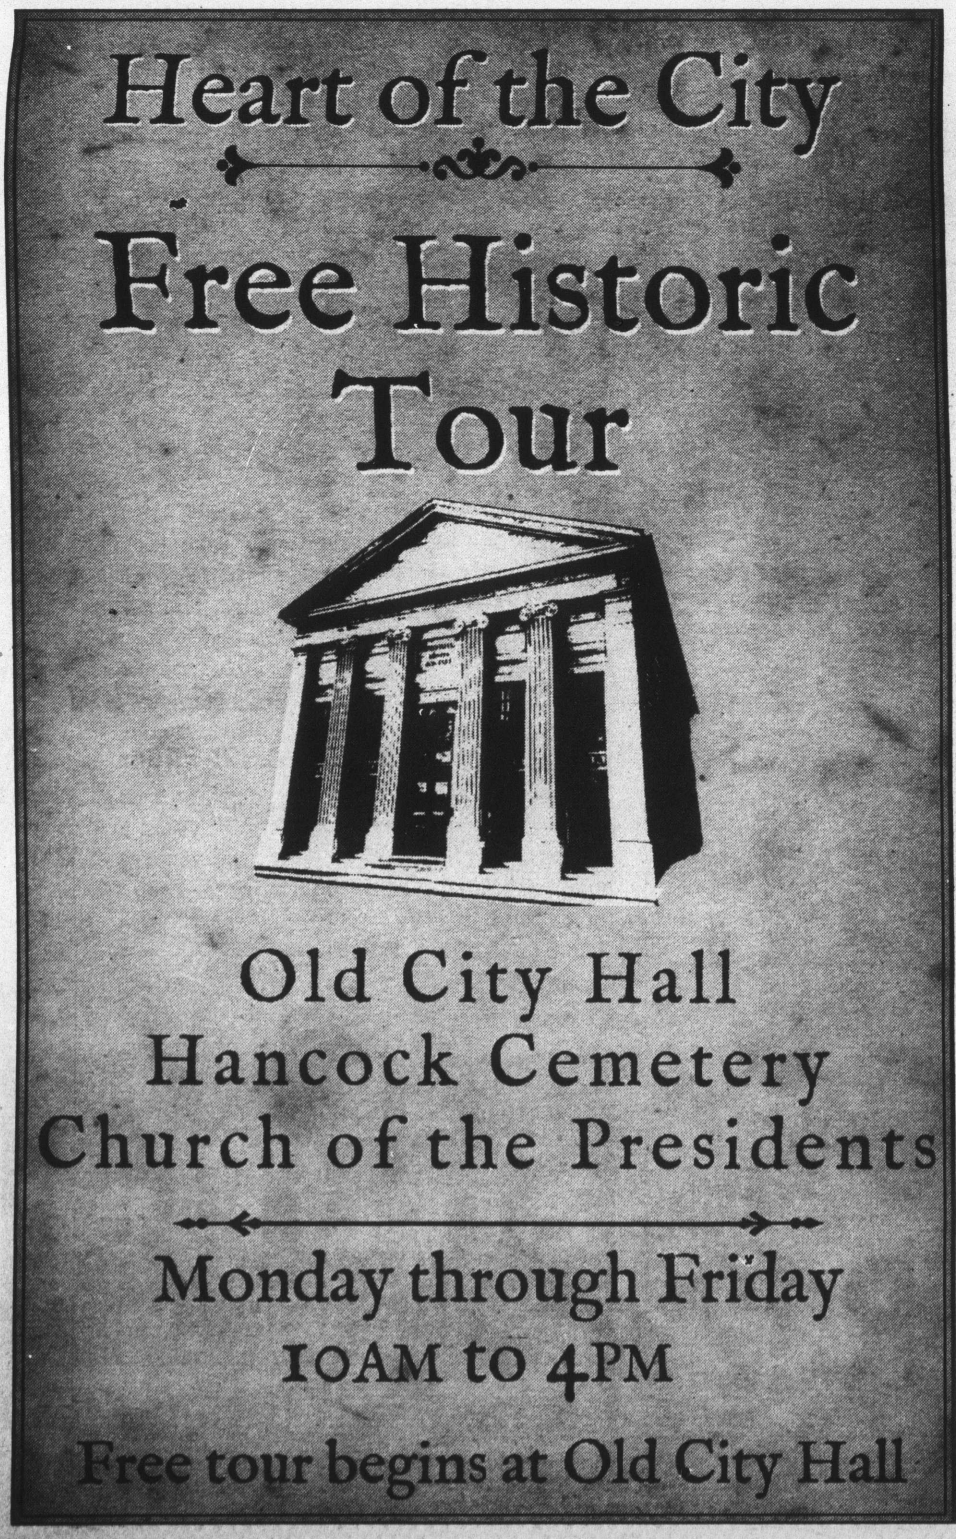
Ranstrom has worked collaboratively with teachers across disciplines to plan project- and problem-based integrated units that allow students to use their knowledge and skills in authentic ways. She has brokered many strong community partnerships to build meaningful internships for students in Quincy, in Boston and beyond.

"I am honored to join The Woodward School, a historic institution that has bridged three centuries by remaining true to its founding mission of educating talented and hardworking young women to thrive in college and beyond," said Ranstrom. "I am so very excited to have the opportunity to give back to the School that gave so much to my daughter Joan and my family. I am thrilled to join the amazing team at Woodward."

"Mrs. Ranstrom cares deeply about The Woodward School, and brings with her both the energy and experience necessary to advance our program to the next level. I look forward to working with her," said Woodward's Headmaster Walter Hubley.

Ms. Ranstrom's family works in education; her husband, Lorne, is the Education Department chairperson at Eastern Nazarene College, her son Erik is a special education teacher in Kansas City, MO and her daughter, Joan Bailey, a 2005 Woodward graduate, is a registered nurse. Ms. Ranstrom and her husband are also the grandparents of five grandchildren.



Make Time For Reading Free Parent Workshop Sept. 18

Quincy Braintree Family Network-CFCE, a program of Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP), and the Thomas Crane Public Library, have teamed up to offer an informative parent workshop that gives parents of young children the knowledge to influence their child's brain development.

Jean Ciborowski Fahey, Phd, director of South Shore Hospital Reading Partnership, will present "Make Time for Reading," at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St. in Quincy on Monday, Sept. 18th from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

"The first five years of a child's life is an important stage of brain growth, and it is just the right time to encourage children's language and literacy development," said Joan Rodeck, QCAP's Child and Family Engagement Specialist. "Jean is a strong advocate of families reading together."

Every family in attendance will receive a signed copy of Jean's book: Make Time for Reading: A story guide for parents of babies and young children. No registration is required.

QCAP's Quincy Braintree Family Network is a Coordinated Family and Community Engagement Program (CFCE), providing parent education workshops, parent/child playgroups, family engagement, early literacy opportunities, and special family events.

The program is funded by a grant through the MA Dept. of Early Education and Care.

All activities are hosted free of charge to the public.

Quincy College Provides Higher Ed Summer Enrichment Solutions For High School Students

Twenty-eight students from Urban Science Academy completed a summer course at Quincy College recently thanks to a unique partnership between the high school, the college, and the nonprofit JFYNetWorks.

Urban Science Academy (USA) students come from a broad swath of neighborhoods stretching from Jamaica Plain, Roslindale, Roxbury, and Dorchester to Mattapan, West Roxbury, and Hyde Park. The daily trip to school via T can be an ordeal. JFYNetWorks, a nonprofit supplemental education provider has been working with Quincy College for many years supporting college readiness in Quincy high schools.

The "Summer Bridge" grant from the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education enabled students who needed to make up credits for graduation to take Quincy College courses. Courses included developmental English and math, courses which would allow students to fulfill the requirements for a high school diploma and, depending on final test scores, may qualify students for subsequent credit-earning courses.

The program, which began on July 10th and ran through Aug. 10th, saw 26 USA students complete developmental English and math. Three USA students completed regular Quincy College coursework and had the opportunity to earn college credit during the summer enrichment program. Through this unique program, students were exposed to a wide variety of Quincy College programs while on campus. Several students who attended the program have expressed an interest in Quincy College Biotechnology program and the Engineering/Robotics programs.

Student reaction has been enthusiastic. In a JFYNetWorks press release, Tyrese Thomas noted that the program has inspired him to work harder in school. "After these five weeks, I can see my future in college and really want to attend college more than I ever have."

Michael Marrapodi, dean of Online Programs & Inter-Institutional Affairs who first worked with JFYNetWorks eagerly looks forward to the expansion of the summer enrichment program into an Early College High School program at USA this fall:

"Expanding upon the success of this summer enrichment program, Quincy College looks forward to creating even more opportunities for students to continue their educational pursuits, building a pathway to higher education."

Quincy College offered an Introduction to Biotechnology Course to high school juniors and seniors from July 10 - July 20. The Introduction to Biotechnology course is a noncredit course designed to give students a basic understanding of the skills and techniques involved in manufacturing bio-pharmaceuticals. It is a hands-on, intensive course giving students exposure to college level instruction, lab space, and equipment.

Eight students from various high schools, including a student from Delaware and one from New York City, participated in the program which ran for two weeks and took place at the Quincy College Biotechnology Lab on the Quincy campus. Interested students were required to have a STEM foundation having completed Algebra 1, Biology, and Chemistry in order to be accepted to the program.

"The Introduction to Biotechnology Summer course was designed to offer High School students with a strong interest in Science exposure to the exciting and continuously growing field of Biotechnology; especially as they begin to assess their future college and career options. In addition to this summer enrichment component, we were pleased to also offer a $500 scholarship for students who completed the Introduction to Biotechnology enrichment program and who enrolled as full-time Quincy College students in any of the Health Science programs," stated Tina Cahill, director of Institutional Advancement.

Griffin Batson, a junior at The St Andrews School in Delaware reflected on the new summer enrichment program: "I'm interested in a career in the Science. I thought this would be a good way to expose myself to science beyond the regular High School course work. I liked the hands on experience and the application of process, rather than just memorization."

Quincy College summer programs are a great opportunity to not only increase access to college programs but to infuse a passion for STEM long before a student applies to college.

"The students were fully engaged in the course work. It was exciting for us to see these students appreciate their exposure to our Industry standard lab equipment as well as to the academic experience as a whole," said Bruce Van Dyke, Biotechnology and Good Manufacturing Practice Chairperson at Quincy College.

4 Lanes New Fore River Bridge Opening This Month

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation announces crews are expected to open the new Fore River Bridge to two lanes of travel in each direction by the middle of September, weeks sooner than originally anticipated as part of the ongoing bridge replacement project.

In order to allow crews and contractors to achieve this milestone weeks ahead of schedule and continue the necessary construction operations, there will continue to be one lane of travel open in each direction until the middle of September. This bridge carries Route 3A traffic between Quincy and Weymouth.

"Thanks to the hard work of our crews and contractors, as well as the cooperation of the traveling public and local communities, the project team has made great progress and expects to be able to open the new bridge to a total of four lanes of traffic weeks earlier than previously scheduled," said Transportation Secretary and CEO Stephanie Pollack. "The work on the new bridge has gone well and the demolition of the temporary bridge has started and is on schedule."

"We have not experienced significant increases in delays or congestion with the current configuration of one lane in each direction which is allowing our crews to continue to utilize this traffic pattern and work day and night to open the bridge to full capacity sooner than anticipated," said Acting Highway Administrator Jonathan Gulliver. "We thank all those who have adjusted the time they travel or route or mode they use and we

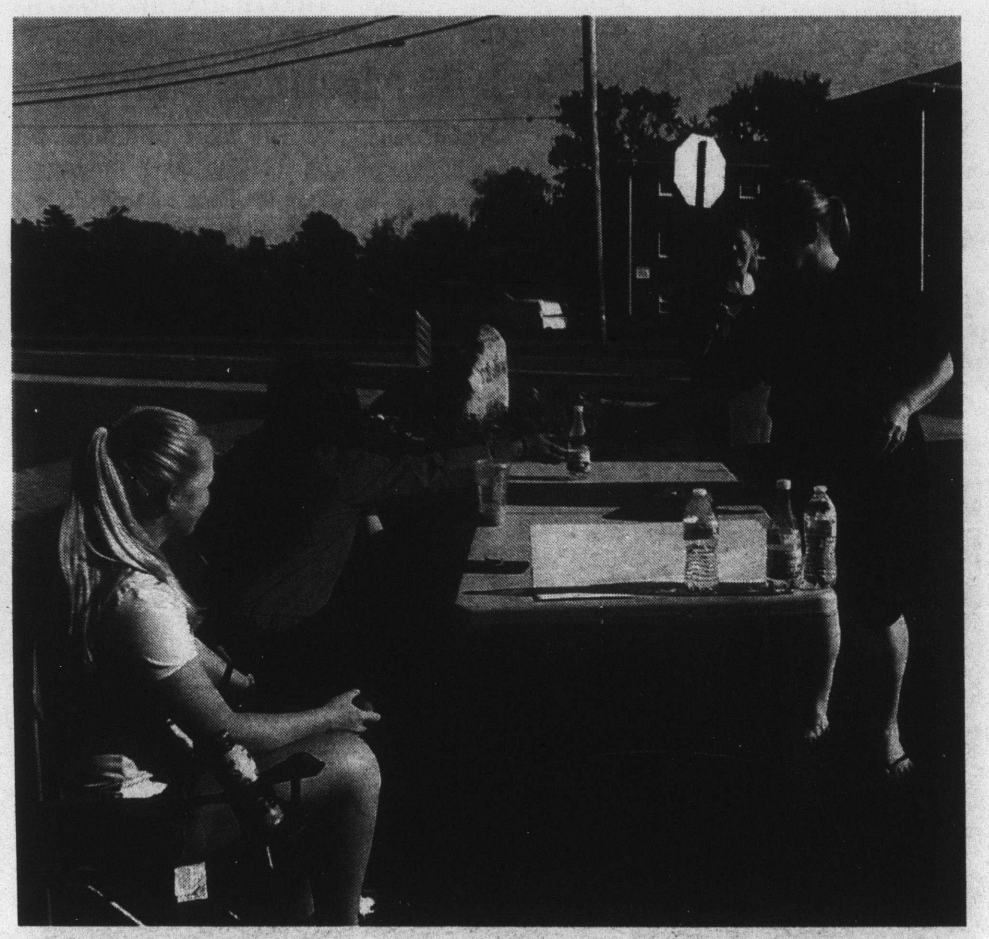
Quincy Youth Raise Money For Hurricane Victims

A DONATION TABLE for collecting funds to help the victims of Hurricane Harvey in Texas was coordinated by several Quincy youngsters last week in Squantum. Here Ciara O'Connor, 14 (left) and Brigid Norris 14, (right) man the table that was set up at the corner of Dorchester Street and Huckins Avenue.

AMONG THOSE STOPPING by and making a donation at the Hurricane Harvey donation table in Squantum was Lisa Aimola, a Squantum resident and director of the Community Preservation Committee in Quincy. Aimola is also a well-known freelance photographer and is directing a movie featuring comedian Steve Sweeney.

MARY LONEY, age 14, receives donation for victims of Hurricane Harvey from a passerby in Squantum last week.



CHERIE MANNING makes a donation for victims of Hurricane Harvey at a donation table set up by three Quincy girls in Squantum last week. The girls, all 14 and freshmen at North Quincy High School, are Ciara O'Connor, Mary Loney and Brigid Norris.

Police Welcome New Lieutenant, Sergeant

Paul, who died Aug. 6 at the age of 71, was an active member of the Quincy community.

"Today, we certainly are proud of Sgt. Kennedy, now Lt. Kennedy's, work and his service to the department. I know he's joined here by his family very proud of him; also, his father is here with him in spirit," Koch said.

"Your dad is very proud of you, Mark. He was also a guy who served his community in many ways – Conservation Commission, Christmas Festival Committee. We certainly remember Paul Kennedy, your dad, every day. We congratulate Mark. We congratulate your family, your beautiful family."

Koch said Duran was well respected by the other members of the Drug Control Unit.

"Sgt. Duran, I heard from a number of your colleagues from the drug unit, how they're going to miss you and the work you did each and everyday. You've earned this spot. You're well respected, as is Lt. Kennedy," the mayor said. "We certainly congratulate you and your family. We're very happy for you as well today."

Police Chief Paul Keenan called both officers outstanding men, noting the standing-room-only crowd on hand for the ceremony.

Keenan said he looked forward to having Kennedy on his command staff.

"Mark, I have known him for quite some time. He's been instrumental in putting together the SWAT team. I know he's incredibly well respected by his peers, by the officers who work under him in the Special Operations Unit," Keenan said.

"It's my intention to keep Mark in the Special Operations Unit; he'll take command of the unit as a lieutenant. I expect and I know you'll do an outstanding job. I know he's a good Quincy guy with Quincy roots and he's very well respected in the department. I look forward to him joining our command staff."

Keenan said Duran did an outstanding job with the Drug Control Unit.

"I look forward to Mike working on patrol. It's unfortunate he's going to leave the drug unit because he's an outstanding drug officer," the chief said. "Mike has been on the forefront in the war against drug addiction and battling the drug dealers that have become the scourge of our city. He's done an outstanding job. It's a difficult job. It's a dangerous job."

Kennedy and Duran were promoted four weeks after Richard McCusker was promoted to captain. Keenan said the department now has five captains, 14 lieutenants and 30 sergeants, and there are no more openings in those ranks.

The department is budgeted for 161 patrol officers, the chief said, and there are presently six openings. Keenan anticipates hiring several more officers later this month to fill those spots and others that might open up because of retirements so they can begin at the MBTA Transit Police Academy on Sea Street in October.

Addiction Victims Remembered At Candlelight Vigil

holding lighted candles as the names of those lost to addiction were read. Purple-colored balloons bearing the names of deceased loved ones who died from overdoses were released.

Beaton said that his son excelled at playing baseball and hockey in middle school and at North Quincy High School where he was on the honor roll. After graduating North Quincy High, Brian attended Curry College and then went to work.

Beaton said he surmised "early on" his son had an alcohol problem after witnessing him drinking at times. Soon after, Brian's addiction escalated to opioids.

"It was the usual progression from alcohol to pills, then eventually to heroin," Beaton said. "As a parent, you would never think your kid would stick a needle in his arm."

Beaton said that two years ago on Father's Day he got word that Brian was rushed to the hospital from an overdose.

"It's the call you never want to get," said Beaton.

Brian had overdosed twice before, unbeknownst to his parents.

Beaton said that he and his wife got help for their son and Brian went away for months of rehabilitation. He was on the road to recovery.

Brian went to live with his niece in Florida where he met a girl. They got an apartment and a dog and moved in together.

"Brian was as happy as I had ever seen him," his father said. "Now he had something to live for."

Brian worked hard every day as an interior painter and all seemed good.

Beaton and his wife last saw their son in October, 2016. A month later, Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, Brian snorted heroin. His niece found him in the apartment. He had died of an overdose.

"He made a decision he thought he could away with and it killed him," said Beaton. "I let my guard down. I was really vigilant with him."

"It's been a struggle since," Beaton said, his voice quivering. "Thanksgiving would never be the same again. We're trying desperately to get past the grief and the pain that we're going through. Sometimes, it just comes over you like a wave. It doesn't make any difference where you are. You just feel like collapsing."

Several days after Brian's passing, his girlfriend found she was pregnant.

"To us, it was a gift from God," Beaton said. "We have a beautiful baby girl, my eleventh (grandchild)."

Beaton said that drug prevention and awareness needs to be taught at an early age.

30th August Moon Festival Draws 20,000 In Quincy Center

A Note Of Thanks From Quincy Asian Resources, Inc.

The sincerest of thank you to all those who celebrated the recent August Moon Festival with us. This year marks not only the 30th anniversary of the festival, but the first year that QARI partnered with the City of Quincy to make the festival its Signature Event for the month of August.

A crowd of nearly 20,000 gathered in Quincy Center to celebrate diversity and community spirit. On this beautiful Sunday, family, children, and friends enjoyed traditional and contemporary performances, arts and crafts, gaming, virtual reality, a children's area with a petting zoo and pony rides, and - as always - delicious food!

This festival would be impossible without the collaboration of Mayor Thomas Koch and the City of Quincy, Quincy Public Schools, the Quincy Police, Department of Public Works, Park & Recreation, Fire Department, and the South Shore YMCA.

Elected officials also attended and participated, including Mayor Thomas Koch, state Sen. John Keenan, state Rep. Tackey Chan, City Councillors Ian Cain, Noel DiBona, and Nina Liang. We appreciate all that you do for the community.

Our gratitude goes to our Presenting Sponsor, South Cove Community Health Center; Diamond Sponsor, The City of Quincy; and Jade Sponsors, Carney Hospital, Eastern Bank, the MBTA, McDonald's, National Grid, Quirk Cars, and Tufts Medical Center. We would also like to thank our Community Partners, The Boston Foundation, Museum of Science, and Massachusetts Cultural Council, as well as Bridgeside Entertainment and C&C Company. A special thank you to Dr. Evelyn Gruss Lipper, a global philanthropist, for her generous donation. Thank you all. Your support goes a long way.

This festival brings together hundreds of volunteers. Thank you to the 100+ YouthService Corps members who donated time and energy to make this festival possible. Thank you to State Street volunteers, led by Sandy Ng Wong, for organizing and running the cultural area. Thank you to the Board of Directors for bringing their expertise to the festival. Thank you to Ellen Kaye, our Events Consultant who organized and ran this festival. It would not be possible without any of you.

Thank you to everyone who attended. We hope that you will save the date for the Lunar New Year Festival on Feb. 11, 2018 and next year's August Moon Festival on Aug. 19.

With much gratitude,
CEO, Quincy Asian Resources Inc.

New Lights To Shine On City Tennis Tournament

When the 47th annual Quincy Tennis Tournament takes to the courts on the grounds of Quincy High School this month it will have a familiar feel but a whole new look.

The Quincy Park Department has completed a much needed and long awaited light replacement project which brings new poles and new lights to the much used facility.

With funds from the Community Preservation Act new Musco lighting was installed and the old lighting was removed. The number of light poles was reduced from eight to six and are higher than the poles installed decades ago.

Musco lighting is considered the industry leader in sports lighting and will deliver better HID lighting with reduced energy consumption and cost. Players will immediately notice a reduction in glare and the surrounding area will have minimum spill light.

"The timing is perfect as we approach the start of our annual tournament to crown the best resident tennis players in 11 categories of play in this great family event," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "As most of our tournament is played under the lights this upgrade will provide us with the best possible playing conditions."

Under Mayor Koch's park renewal program the same renovations are being undertaken at Bishop playground in Montclair and they should be on line shortly at the five tennis courts at that location.

Applications for the 47 annual championships are available at the Quincy Recreation Department, the Quincy Credit Union – the event sponsor – and Quincy City Hall. The application deadline is Friday Sep. 8th by 4 p.m. at the Recreation Department office, One Merrymount Parkway.

There are a variety of events in singles and doubles by age and gender. The fee is $20 dollars ($10 for boys and girls entering under 16 category) and includes a commemorative t-shirt.

The draw is posted on Wednesday Sept. 13th and play will begin under the new lights on Friday, Sept. 15th.

O'Donnell Office Hours At City Hall Oct. 5

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will hold Office Hours at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St. in the Boards and Commissions Room, first floor, Old City Hall (James R. McIntyre Government Center) on Thursday, Oct. 5 from 10 a.m. to noon.

Register O'Donnell and members of his staff will be on hand to answer questions about the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. O'Donnell will have information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act as well as on-site work stations that can provide in real time the status of your mortgage discharge, a print out of your deed or a demonstration of how Registry technology works.

No appointment is necessary.

This is a community outreach initiative sponsored by the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. It is Register O'Donnell's goal to provide a convenient way for residents to learn more about how the Registry serves Norfolk County while conducting Registry business closer to home. Although Registry staff cannot provide legal advice, they will be able to answer basic questions, provide general information, take a document for recording and assist in filling out Homestead Declaration Forms.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org. Residents in need of assistance can contact the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center at (781) 461-6101, or email us at registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org.

Red Raiders Football Building Off Positives

Kick Off Season Opener At Veterans' Memorial Stadium Friday At 7 P.M. Vs. Silver Lake

By TOM JOYCE

For the young North Quincy Red Raiders football team, last year served as a learning experience and they should definitely benefit from it this season.

The Red Raiders only had eight seniors on their team in 2016 as they went 2-9 using a team primarily composed of underclassmen.

"We definitely had a lot of sophomores and juniors playing for us last year," Red Raiders head coach Mark Nutley said.

With the more experienced squad this season, the Red Raiders are definitely aiming towards better results this season.

"The goal every season is to make the playoffs," Nutley said. "That's where we want to be at the end of the regular season. We want to be one of the eight playoff teams."

Since they were on the young side last year, the Red Raiders have a slew of players who gained experience on varsity last season, and that should prove beneficial for them this time around.

Strong-armed junior quarterback Tim Layden is back under center for once again for the Red Raiders. His classmate, Nathan Sleiman, a running back and defensive back, will be another key piece of the team's offense. The same could be said for fellow running backs Win Tran and Nick Mayberry, who was the team's leading rusher last season.

Layden will have plenty of options to work with in the air. In addition to the team's running backs, wide receivers Chris Donaghey, Connor Donaghey and Andrew Airosus will help the team move the ball downfield. The three also work as defensive backs.

Essentially, there will be few surprises among the Red Raiders skill players this season.

"All of our skill guys were varsity starters and contributors last year," Nutley said. "We've definitely got some experienced skill guys coming back and that's big for us."

Up front on the offensive line, Ty Finn, Devin Ganno and Alex Pham are returning starters for the Red Raiders. Defensively, Finn is a tackle while the other two are ends. Seniors Josh Moore and Jeff Sullivan are two other offensive linemen who will provide the team with some stability up front; he started a handful of games for the Red Raiders last season. Nutley also said he likes what he has seen from Josh Dangora, so he will be a contributor on the offensive line as well.

Nelson Wallinjom, a tight end and middle linebacker, started some games for the Red Raiders last year, so he will be a versatile and valuable player for the team this season. Nutley also noted linebacker Luca Smith and safety Dimitri Dimitriou will help bolster the team's defense.

For the first couple weeks of the season, the team's biggest focus will be on conditioning and putting themselves in the best position possible to excel during their first games of the season.

Team morale is strong for the Red Raiders this season because they were able to finish out last year strong with a 13-6 win over the Quincy Presidents on Thanksgiving. The win helped build some team confidence and helped motivate the team to work hard over the course of the offseason.

"I keep telling the guys that we're on a win streak and that half the teams in the state finished last year with a loss," Nutley said. "We want to keep that going. Almost all our guys played in that game last year. It's nice. It was good motivation headed into the offseason conditioning program."

The Red Raiders open their regular season at home Friday, Sept. 8 at 7 p.m. against the Silver Lake Lakers, at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Presidents Football Working Their Way Up

Open Season Friday At 7 P.M. Against Braintree At Archbishop Williams Memorial Field

By TOM JOYCE

For the Quincy High football team this season, the goal is simple: work hard and win some football games.

Last year, the Presidents had a young team that was inexperienced at the varsity level. As a result, they battled through a winless 0-11 season.

"We were a bunch of 15-year-olds competing against a bunch of 18-year-olds," Presidents head coach Bill Reardon said. "We weren't where we needed to be physically."

During their winless year, the Presidents players were still growing and developing as football players. This year, however, they are fortunate to be returning 12 varsity starters, so experience is not as much of an issue this time around.

"It's a big help because they've experienced the speed of a varsity game first hand," Reardon said. "In the offseason, we saw the need to get as strong as we could so we can compete physically with the juniors and seniors on the other teams. The first game, these guys will know what the expectations are."

The Presidents will be led by their three senior captains this season: defensive back and wide receiver Shorn Hawthorne, linebacker and running back Brian Nguyen and defensive back and running back Dominic Laptiste.

Offensively, the Presidents may go to the spread offense a little more this season than they have in the past. Typically, they go with a pro set on offense The reason for this change is the talented skill players aforementioned as well as their quarterback. They will have junior Colin Keaveney under center once again this season. Reardon said the junior, who is 6-foot-5, has a strong throwing arm and was the team's starter during the second half of last season.

"He's a perfect example of that youthful experience we've got," Reardon said.

In the trenches, the Presidents have a few experienced players they can look to; senior defensive tackle and offensive tackle Jamal Williams, junior center and defensive tackle Pat Nazzaro and junior offensive guard and defensive tackle Jalen Varela were varsity starters last year, so they will lead the team's effort up front.

Over the course of the season, the objective for the Presidents will be to continue improving as football players in order to break the team's losing streak. It might not take much, however, since the team fought through some competitive games last season as they started to feel comfortable at the varsity level.

For example, in two of their last three games of the season in 2016, the Presidents only lost by one score. They fell to New Bedford, 18-12, in overtime in early November and on Thanksgiving, North Quincy defeated them, 13-6. In those contests, the Presidents exemplified the improvement they underwent over the course of the season.

"That's the goal every year," Reardon said. "You want the team to get better as the season moves along. Every day is a chance to get better and they were successful in doing that."

Even though the Presidents will have a team with some varsity experience this season, the future could be even brighter for them.

"A great deal of the kids playing for us this year will be back next year," Reardon said, "but there's also a lot of experience on the team even though many of them will be back next year. It's a good mix."

The Presidents open their regular season on the road Friday, Sept. 8 at 7 p.m. against a non-league opponent, the Braintree Wamps. The game will be played at Archbishop Williams High School Memorial Field, 15 Storrs Ave., Braintree.

NOT ALL IN THE WRIST

While tennis injuries often involve the elbow and wrist, the racquet sport can also cause or exacerbate back injuries. One study involving young (ages 16 to 23), high-level tennis players with intensive training schedules revealed that the majority of these young athletes suffered from problems such as synovial cysts, disc degeneration/herniation, lesions caused by repetitive stress, and degenerative arthritis in the facet joints of the spine. Front- and back-hand swings involve a great deal of trunk rotation and twisting of the spine, while serving hyper-extends the lower back and can compress lumbar discs. As a result, lumbar discs, joints, muscles, and tendons become stressed. Chiropractic treatment can help identify and treat these stressed areas before they become debilitating.

Chiropractors perform most adjustments to correct the subluxations, or misalignments, of the vertebrae in the spine. Chiropractic adjustments are performed by applying gentle, yet firm pressure to a bone. To schedule an appointment for chiropractic care, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We are located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Tennis players' back muscles must be strong and flexible enough to support continual sudden forward and lateral movements and start-and-stop motions.

NQ Boys Hockey Boosters Golf Tournament Sept. 11

The North Quincy High School Boys Hockey Booster Club is in the process of preparing its first golf outing in support of the 2017-2018 varsity boys hockey season.

The booster club's goal is to raise enough money via various fund raising initiatives to offset and alleviate those costs and obstacles often associated with preparing for a winter sports season.

The golf tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 11 at the Furnace Book Golf Course in Quincy. Check in will start at 9 a.m. followed by golf at 10 a.m.

Besides golf, there will be raffles, a silent auction, prizes, food and drinks.

Cost is $100 per player.

To register contact Bob Herman at 617-759-6065 or email herman09@verizon.net.

All proceeds from the outing will go towards uniforms, equipment, ice time, transportation and the payment of each student athlete's participation fees.

"Our goal is to make this season as memorable and as successful for the boys both on and off the ice," said Bob Herman of the Boosters Club.

Besides golfers, outing organizers are seeking hole sponsors ($100 each), grand hole sponsors ($500 each) and donated items for the raffle and silent auction.

For more information, contact Herman at 617-759-6065.

Boating Course Begins Oct. 8

An eight-lesson Boating Skills and Seamanship Course is being presented by Flotilla 12-5 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Classes begin on Sunday, Oct. 8 at Metropolitan Yacht Club, 39 Vinedale Rd., Braintree. Classes convene on Sunday mornings from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

This course is directed to the first-time boater and as a review for the more experienced boater. Completion of this course may qualify for a discount on the student's Vessel Insurance.

The fee for the course including materials is $55.

For more information and/or to register for the class contact: Bill Fuller at 781-848-2906 or e-mail: lwfj@verizon.net.

Health, Police Depts. Hold Training Session With Quincy Credit Union Employees

The Quincy Health Department, and the Quincy Police Department recently conducted three training sessions for Quincy Credit Union employees.

The trainings were part of the "Dementia Friendly Quincy" initiative that began in August 2016 as a collaborative effort between the mayor's office, the Quincy Council on Aging and The Quincy Health Department.

Dementia Friendly depends on recognizing the signs of dementia and having the knowledge to effectively communicate with those who suffer cognitive disorders. Promoting a dementia friendly community helps support those living with dementia and their caregivers, to preserve their community connections and live safer, more fulfilled lives. Quincy Credit Union was the first non-medical community partner to participate in this training, consisting of an educational component and "the Dementia Experience". To date approximately 900 people have participated in the training

THE QUINCY Health Department and the Quincy Police Department recently held a joint training session with Quincy Credit Union employees. Lieutenant Dan Minton and Ruth Jones from the Health Department are seen here with employees.

City Tennis Tournament Applications Available

Applications for the 47th Annual City of Quincy Tennis Tournament Championship are available at the Quincy Recreation Department, the Quincy Credit Union, City Hall, and the city tennis courts and online at www.QuincyRec.com.

Quincy Credit Union is again the principal sponsor of this traditional family tennis event. "For many years we have counted on the generosity of the Quincy Credit Union and they have continued to make the tournament affordable for our families," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

This year's event will begin Sept. 13th with an application deadline of Sept. 8th.

The fee is $20 which includes all events plus a commemorative T-shirt or $10 for children who are only entering the boys and girls 16 and under event. The tournament is open to all residents of Quincy and will have 11 divisions of play for boys, girls, men and women.

The draw will be posted at the Quincy High School Tennis Courts on Russell Park between the hours of 6:30 and 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 13th and Thursday, Sept. 14th. Matches will begin on Friday, Sept. 15th, 2017.

All entries must be in by Friday, Sept. 8th at 4 p.m. to the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394 or visit www.QuincyRec.com.

Quincycles Ride Saturday Along Neponset River

Cycling enthusiasts are invited to join Quincycles on Saturday, Sept. 9 at 7:30 a.m. to ride along the Neponset River via roads and paths in Quincy and Milton.

The ride will include the new extension of the Neponset River Greenway Trail, which includes two dramatic crossings — the prominent arched Harvest River Bridge that connects the Milton and Mattapan sides of the Neponset River, and a canopy walk that winds over the Mattapan high-speed trolley path.

The ride is co-sponsored by the Neponset River Watershed Association. Meet at Squantum Point Park by the white shelter near the dock.

Quincycles rides are free and open to the public.

Quincycles is a group of Quincy residents advocating for bicycle infrastructure on city streets and promoting responsible bicycling as a means of transportation, recreation, and exercise in Quincy. More information about the group and the full schedule of rides can be found on their website at www.Quincycles.org.

Review the ride guidelines posted on the site before participating and check Quincycles Facebook page for weather related updates.

O'Donnell Emphasizes Need To Filing Mortgage Discharge

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds homeowners about the importance of filing a mortgage discharge after their mortgage has been paid off.

"When a mortgage has been paid off, a mortgage discharge document needs to be recorded with the Registry of Deeds to clear a homeowner's property title relative to that loan," O'Donnell said. "A discharge is a document (typically one-two pages) issued by the lender, usually with a title such as 'Discharge of Mortgage' or 'Satisfaction of Mortgage.'

"In many instances," O'Donnell continued, "discharges are filed directly by banks or settlement closing attorneys with the Registry as part of a property sale or as a result of a refinancing transaction. In other cases, the mortgage discharge is sent to the property owner who then becomes responsible for making sure the document is recorded.

"Whether or not a discharge is recorded by the lending institution or the individual property owner, it is prudent that the property owner makes sure that all necessary documents have been recorded at the Registry of Deeds.

"One way to check on your title is by accessing the Registry's online records at www.norfolkdeeds.org and verifying if all mortgages associated with the property have been discharged," he said.

O'Donnell further noted there have been cases where no discharge has been recorded against a long paid off mortgage.

"Unfortunately, some of the lending institutions that provided funds for these mortgages are no longer in existence," O'Donnell pointed out. "In other cases, financial entities have merged with another lending institution. Please remember not having a mortgage discharged will result in a title issue that can impact

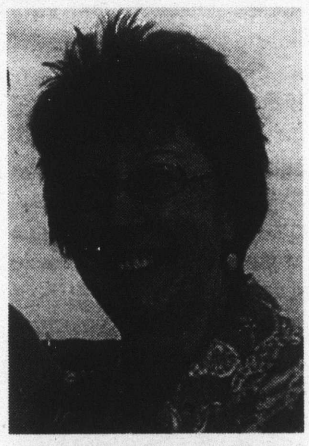
Ceiling Fan Specs: Clearance, Sizes

How much height clearance do I need for a ceiling fan? How do I know what size to buy? Doris

In general, I believe that ceiling fans get a bad rap on the home improvement TV shows. I have them in my home and use them all year long. In the cooler months, you switch the rotation of the blades to keep the warm air down in the room – thus reducing your heating bills.

When it comes to height, national codes require a minimum 7 feet from the floor to the fan blades (or their lights), but 8-9 feet is ideal. Although I prefer the look of a hugger fan (also called flushmount or low profile fans), they do not circulate the air as well as fans with a downrod because they have less space between the fans and the ceiling which stunts the airflow. If you choose a fan with a downrod, it can be cut to fit your room's ceiling height.



BARBARA GRACEFFA

Follow these guides from LightsOnline.com regarding the width of the ceiling fan:

APPROXIMATE ROOM SIZE	CEILING FAN SIZE
50 square feet	29 inch
75 square feet	36 inch
100 square feet	42 inch
225 square feet	52 inch
400 square feet	56 inch
400 + square feet	60 inch or 2 smaller fans

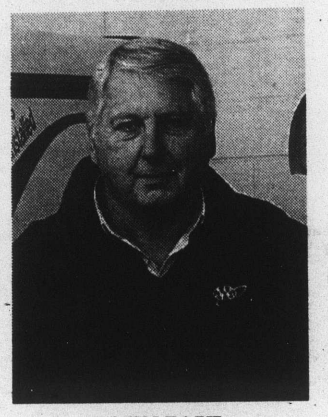
AC Check, Top-Tier Gas, Used Hybrids, Porsche Brakes

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor



JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

I bought a used Subaru Forester about two years ago and now it has 47,400 miles on it. I love it, but recently I was reading that my car isn't a good used car choice. This car fits my needs: it is great in the snow and to go snowboarding, my kayaks fit nicely on the roof and my dog loves it. What should I watch for?

I believe I have read the same thing. In what I read the Forester showed excessive engine problems but not the Outback or Legacy that uses essentially the same engine. There are a couple of technical service bulletins about different issues with this engine, but at this point I wouldn't do anything other than routine maintenance. This would include monitoring the oil and coolant levels and noting anything else which seems a bit odd. It is also a good idea to keep a log of any maintenance and repairs.

I have a 2007 Honda Accord and on one of the hot summer days we had this year I tried the air conditioner on my car and all it did was blow warm air. Last year it worked fine on the hottest days. What could be wrong?

I would start with a check of the basic operation of the air conditioner system. This would include checking the low and high side pressures, compressor and air duct operation. In addition as with most new cars a faulty air conditioner system will also set a computer fault code. The problem could be a leak in the system or a faulty sensor/switch.

Are there any problems with the new Honda 2017 CR-V? I'm interested in buying one but don't want to make a mistake. I get mixed reviews when I read about the CR-V online. What do you think?

The Honda CR-V has a reputation of being one of the best small SUVs on the market and the latest redesign doesn't change my mind about it being one of the best. For its size it is very roomy inside with great use of space. The new four-cylinder turbo-charged engine is peppy enough and delivers solid fuel economy. The ride, handling and interior quality has also improved.

I read about the owner of the 2014 Toyota Avalon XLE who wrote you regarding his car hesitating. I owned a 2000 Toyota Avalon XLE that I was experiencing the same type of hesitation. My son who is a mechanic told me the reason could be that I was filling my gas tank at the local supermarket gas station. I went back to filling my gas tank at Mobile gas stations. In a few weeks the hesitation was gone. I then read my owner's manual and it said that I could use 87 octane fuel, but recommended using Top-Tier Gasoline. It said because Top-Tier Gasoline has a detergent added to the gasoline. I recently purchased a brand new Toyota Avalon and read the owner's manual and it again recommends 87 octane at Top-Tier gasoline. Maybe this can help others with the same problems, also could you explain Top-Tier fuel?

All gasoline use additives to minimize fuel deposits and keep engines and fuel systems clean. Top-Tier fuel uses a higher concentration of detergent additives than other fuels. At least eight automakers – BMW, General Motors, Fiat Chrysler, Honda, Toyota, Volkswagen, Audi and Mercedes Benz – believe that non Top-Tier fuel lacks the necessary additives that help minimize combustion chamber deposits. Testing by AAA has confirmed Top-Tier fuels keeps engines cleaner and that is the type of gasoline I try to use in my personal cars on a regular basis.

I have a chance to buy a very used Toyota Highlander Hybrid with 225,000 miles on it. In the past year the owner put on new tires, got the heater and air conditioner fixed and replaced the radiator and hoses. This would be a third vehicle in our household when my kids come home from school. I'm guessing the hybrid battery would be very expensive to replace as well as other items that could go bad on a vehicle with this kind of mileage. I have driven the car and it runs great and is pretty clean inside and out. Would you buy a hybrid with a quarter of a million miles on it?

My unscientific research talking with cab drivers who drive hybrid Toyota Camrys indicates the typical life of a Toyota hybrid battery (similar system) is about 300-350,000 miles. The cost of a hybrid battery for your vehicle is quite expensive, with prices that could approach $5-6,000. Just like everything over the years there are also an alternative to the dealer parts. Several companies now rebuild hybrid batteries and those can be purchased for about half the price of a new battery. If the price is right and the rest of the vehicle is sound and knowing that a replacement battery may only be $3,000, it could be worth the gamble

Late last year the service engine light came on in my 2009 Buick Lacrosse. The problem was diagnosed an internal short of the primary control module. It was replaced and reprogrammed and all seemed okay. Now the air bag and ABS lights are on. I have been told these repairs may cost up to $500 or more. I like the car but my instincts tells me its time for a new car. What do you think of the latest Buick Lacrosse?

I recently drove the Buick Lacrosse and found it to be a very competent car, but there are rumors swirling around about General Motors focusing on SUVs and less on sedans. One rumor has Buick discontinuing the Lacrosse, Cadillac the CT6 and the Chevrolet Volt. Before I purchase a new Buick I would like to know they are going to be around for a while.

I have a 2003 Dodge Dakota with 170,500 miles on it. It has a 3.9 liter V6 engine with automatic transmission. In the past seven years I have had to replace three catalytic converters. The last one was a month ago. At that time I asked the mechanic to check as to why this is happening and he said the truck was running fine. Even with the high mileage and the three catalytic convertors the truck has always run well and is reliable. Any thoughts as to what might be wrong?

The most common causes of catalytic convertor failure are engine misfire or an overly rich fuel system. If the engine is running well the other possibility is the replacement part. I have seen some aftermarket catalytic convertors only last a couple of years and then the vehicle sets a code indicating poor convertor efficiency.

I own a Porsche Carrera and it was at the dealership and they offered a free car check. They told me that my front brake pads and rotors need to be replaced. The car has 22,000 miles on it, which came as a surprise. The other surprise was the price. The dealer told me the cost to replace the brakes was going to be $12,000. Can any of this be right?

Performance cars can have very short brake as well as tire life. At 22,000 miles it is possible the brakes need replacing. The staggering cost is most likely because your model Porsche has ceramic brakes. According to AllData (the technical data base I use) the brake pads are $600 and the brake rotors are $10,000. At this point I would certainly be asking why the rotors need replacement.

I am looking at a new 5-Series BMW and the car requires premium fuel. Friends of mine have similar cars and use regular fuel. Would regular (87 octane) fuel damage the engine, or would the mid-grade fuel work on these cars without damaging the engine? Would using regular fuel negate the warranty?

If the engine requires premium fuel that is what you should use. The electronics in a modern engine will make adjustments to prevent engine damage but you shouldn't make a habit of using fuel with a lower octane level than required. If the vehicle manufacturer "recommends" using a premium grade of fuel it is okay to use a lower grade but it has been my experience that both performance and fuel economy will suffer. In the not-too-distant future we may see engine development that will require even higher octane fuel. The major reason will be to meet the upcoming higher fuel economy standards.

We own a 2000 Volkswagen Cabrio that we keep as an extra car at our beach house and it only has 101,000 miles on it. We are considering having some body work done of the front fenders because of rust, but my fear is there is more than surface rust. We love this little car but maybe it is time to think about replacing it. When I purchased this car 17 years ago there were lots of convertibles and now it seems if we are limited to "muscle cars" and luxury cars. We would like to buy new and stay under $30,000. Any thoughts?

There are still a couple of choices: the Volkswagen Beetle, Fiat 500 (sort of a convertible) and Mini Cooper. If a two-seater works for you the Mazda Maita is always a good choice.

I have 2002 Camry that's been well-maintained and had 98,000 miles on it. For the past two years when I drive over 60 mph it feels like driving through a tsunami. I went to the dealer who checked it by plugging it into a computer. They found nothing and suggested that I wait until the engine light comes on. However, after two years it's annoying. Any ideas?

Plugging the car into a computer is not going to tell anyone why the car is shaking. The issue is most likely related to the tires/wheels. The first thing you should do is have the technician go on a road test. Even better would be if you went along with them. This way you can demonstrate exactly what you are experiencing.

I have a 1969 Chevrolet Camaro and I understand the inspection program in Massachusetts will be changing soon. I have heard stories that anything but stock exhaust systems will result in a rejection sticker. What do you know about this?

The inspection program is changing with the addition of CCTV cameras in the inspection bay, a new equipment vendor but the inspection cost and criteria are not changing. This Saturday (Sept. 9) on my radio program (AM 950 or wrolradio.com) the Massachusetts Registrar of Motor Vehicles Erin Deveney will be my guest to help explain what will be happening.

I have a Mini Cooper and it creaks and moans when I turn the wheel at slow speeds when entering a parking spot. I went to a local garage and they sprayed some lubricant and greased some things but the noise is still there. Any ideas?

Have the shop look at the front strut bearings. Some Mini-Coopers have a problem with a very similar sounding issue and the repair is to replace the strut bearing with a new design.

I have a question about the battery in my 2017 Mazda CX-5. I do only local driving and not much of it. I purchased the Mazda about six months ago and only have driven 1,200 miles. The problem is the battery has needed to be boosted three times. I spent a lot of money for this vehicle and can't have a car that I can't depend on. What can I do?

If the car is operating properly, the problem is you are not driving enough to charge up the car's battery. On older cars there wasn't much draining the battery when the car wasn't being driven. On new cars there are many computers that constantly being powered by the vehicle's battery, which over time will discharge the battery. At this point you have only a couple of choices: disconnect the battery, install a battery maintainer (Battery Tender) or, of course, drive more.

I own a newer Chevrolet Cruze and when I apply the brakes aggressively on an incline I feel grinding and a bit of shaking. The car has 42,000 miles on it and when it was in for an oil change I had the brakes checked and they looked ok. What is wrong?

I would start with having a good repair shop recheck the brakes again. This should include removing all four wheels and carefully looking at all of the brake components. Since there is a slight vibration on hard braking this indicates a slightly out of round brake drum or rotor. Just looking at the brake pad thickness doesn't give you a full picture of the overall brake conditions.

I have a 10 year old Honda and it is time to move on to a new car. I would be able to buy a new car for a couple of months and the car has 120,000 miles on the original timing belt. As much as I like my car I hate spending $800 for repairs that I won't get back when I trade the car in. Is this something that I should get done or should I try to push it and hope for the best?

If the timing belt fails, the engine will be badly damaged and will cost much more than getting the belt replaced now. Depending on the model, you are at the extreme edge of needing the timing belt replaced. If you drive easy and feel lucky you can push it. A better option would be to just trade the car a little earlier than you planned.

Can you tell me when the brakes on a 2015 Toyota RAV 4 need to be changed? There is about 30,000 miles on the car now. By the way what do you think of the RAV4?

Brakes are one of the few components on a vehicle that the majority of wear is totally determined by the driver. Many years ago I worked on a fleet of police cars and it wasn't unusual to replace the brakes pads and shoes twice per year due to the condition's these cars were driven. I other cases some drivers who do mostly highway driving and are easy on brakes can sometimes manage to get 80-100,000 miles out of a set of brakes. At 30,000 miles I would start having the brakes checked every six months perhaps as you are having the tires rotated. The RAV 4 has always been my first or second pick in small SUVs.

4 Lanes New FR Bridge Opening This Month

look forward to continuing our operations in ways that seek to minimize the impact on residents and commuters who travel throughout this area."

On the evening of Aug. 16, MassDOT reached a significant milestone when all vehicular traffic was shifted off the existing temporary Fore River Bridge and onto the new replacement bridge. This achievement marked the end of service for the temporary bridge and has allowed crews to continue demolition operations.

The Fore River Bridge Replacement Project is one of the Commonwealth's projects in the $3 billion Accelerated Bridge Program.

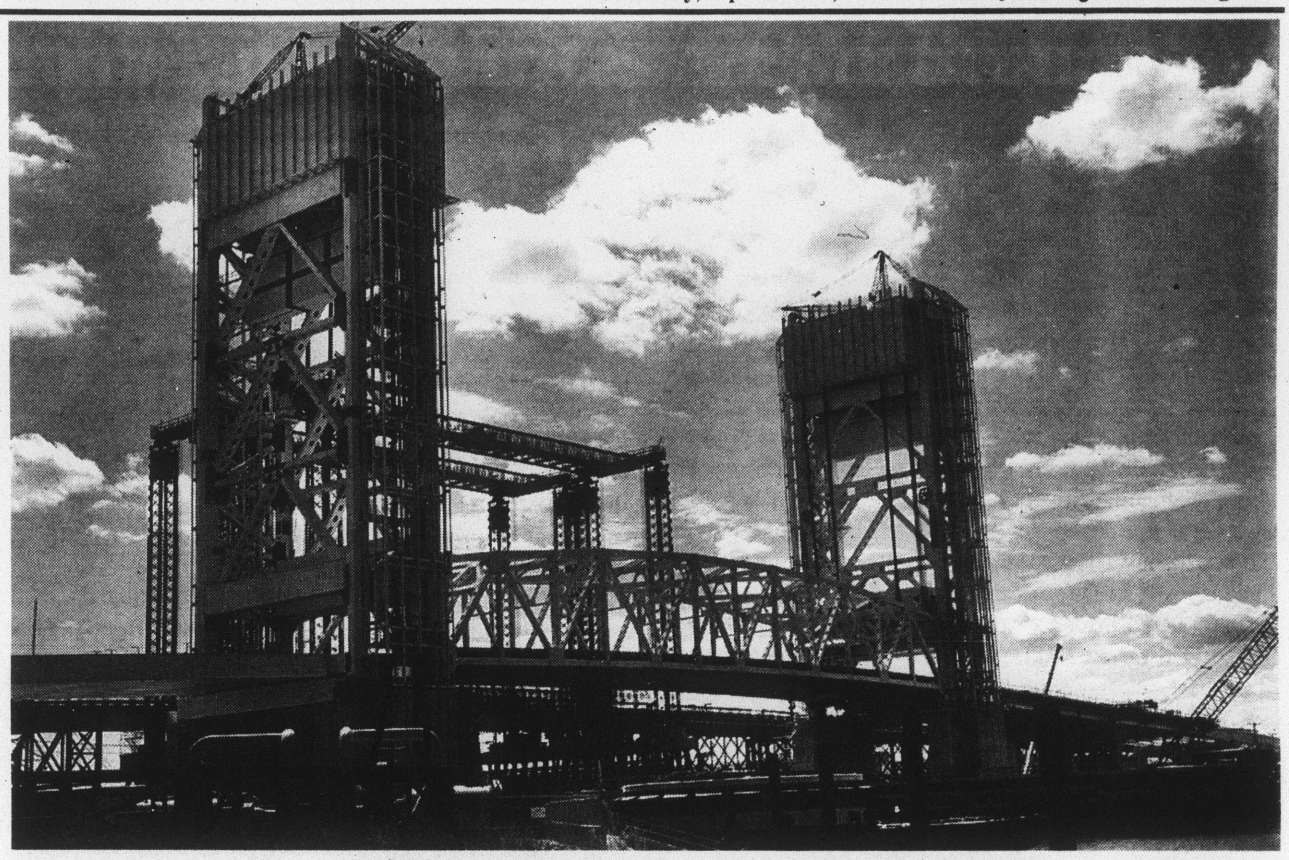
For more information on traffic conditions travelers are encouraged to:

• Dial 511 before heading out onto the roadways and select a route to hear real-time conditions.

• Visit www.mass511.com, a website which provides real-time traffic and incident advisory information, access to traffic cameras, and allows users to subscribe to text and email alerts for traffic conditions.

• Follow MassDOT on Twitter @MassDOT to receive regular updates on road and traffic conditions

• Download MassDOT?s GoTime mobile app and view real-time traffic conditions before setting out on the road.



THE NEW Fore River Bridge that connects Quincy Point and North Weymouth is expected to be fully open to traffic later this month.

WORK CONTINUES on the southbound lanes of the new Fore River Bridge. Two lanes in each direction are open on the new span. The temporary bridge at right has been closed to traffic and is being dismantled.

QATV Open House Thursday

Quincy Access Television will hold its annual open house tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 8 p.m. at its studio, 88 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The public is welcome to tour the facility, learn about public access television and get information on how to become a member at QATV.

Open house visitors will also get a behind-the-scenes look at how a show is produced and an opportunity to meet the hosts of current QATV programs.

All visitors will be entered into a free drawing for a GoPro Hero5 Black camera and a one-year QATV membership.

QATV's fall semester will begin Thursday, Sept. 14 with an "Orientation to Community TV" to be held at 8:30 p.m. The orientation session, a requirement for all new members, will provide an overview of QATV policies, a tour of the facility and information about course offerings. A six-week studio production class will begin on Tuesday, Sept 19. Participants will learn the basics of how to produce a studio show, including pre-production elements, audio, graphics, directing and more.

Portable production and editing will begin on Thursday, Sept. 21. Camera movement, tripod tips, and how to edit footage (using Final Cut Pro X software) will be covered in the six-week course.

For more information about QATV's open house, or to register for upcoming classes, call 617-376-1440.

QATV membership is open to any Quincy resident over the age of 18 and to non-profit organizations based in the City of Quincy.

ENC Women's Volleyball Team Wins Opener

The Eastern Nazarene College women's volleyball team captured a 3-0 victory over Salem State and dropped a 3-1 decision to Mount Ida at the ENC Invitational to open the 2017 campaign Sept. 1 at the Lahue Physical Education Center.

The Lions move to 1-1 on the year while the Vikings progress to 1-1 and the Mustangs start the season 2-0.

Courtney McCarthy (Merrimack, N.H.) paced the hosts with 26 kills and 18 digs on the night. Jenna Meacham (Millington, Mich.) posted 15 kills, 22 digs, and six aces in her collegiate debut. Kayla Dean (Lansdale, Pa.) finished with 52 assists and 13 digs while McKenzie Walling (Rock Hill, S.C.) recorded 24 digs.

In the opening match, ENC grabbed the first set 25-16 before doubling its advantage to 2-0 with a 25-21 win in the second frame.

The Lions clinched their first victory of the season with a 25-19 decision in the third set.

In the nightcap, Mount Ida edged Eastern Nazarene 25-23 in the first game.

The Lions clawed back to level the match at 1-1 with a 25-21 victory in the second.

The Mustangs responded with a 25-15 decision in the third and a 25-12 win in the fourth.

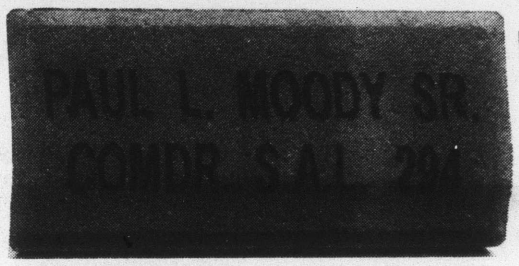
Bricks for Veterans Program



Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

On Tuesday, Aug. 29, at approximately 4:35 p.m., the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit was conducting surveillance in and around the Brewers Corner Area for drug activity. At this time, Detective Glennon observed two males well known to them for past criminal activity, walking down Water Street away from Brewers Corner.

Detective Glennon observed one male holding a 25 oz Natty Daddy beer can and then put it to his mouth and drink from the can. Detective Glennon notified the other members of the DCU of his observations and that he was going to place this male under arrest for a City Ordinance Violation (open container / drinking in public).

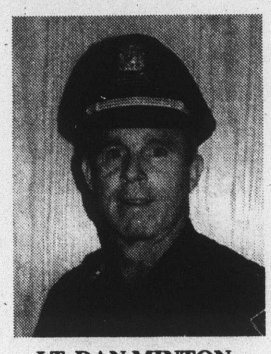
Detectives Glennon and Klier approached the male/suspect 1 as he continued to walk with suspect 2 on Water Street. Detective Glennon identified himself to the suspects and asked what they were doing. Suspect 1stated he just got out of jail and was having a beer. Detective Glennon then placed suspect 1 under arrest for the aforementioned violation. As Detectives Glennon and Klier were speaking with suspect 1, the other suspect continued to walk away out of sight of the detectives.

Suspect 2 then turned into a nearby driveway and began looking around. What suspect 2 didn't know was that Detectives Cassidy and O'Brien were watching him! Suspect 2 then removed a clear plastic sandwich bag containing a white substance from his pants and then hid the plastic bag under a black tire ramp that was in the driveway. The detectives believed that suspect 2 just hid drugs under the tire ramp.

Suspect 2 then walked back to where Detectives Glennon and Klier were. Detective O'Brien walked up behind suspect 2 and detained him by placing him in handcuffs. Detective Cassidy picked up the black tire ramp and under it he located the plastic sandwich bag which contained (7) knotted plastic corner bags with a white powder substance believed to be cocaine. Suspect 2 was informed that he was under arrest for Possession With Intent to Distribute Class B (cocaine) and was read his Miranda Rights. Suspect 2 stated he didn't know what was in the bag and that he was just getting rid of his orange juice bottle which had alcohol in it.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON



LT. DAN MINTON

Detective Cassidy located an orange juice bottle which was on the side steps of the residence. A search of suspect 2 uncovered a roll of money ($100) and a fold of money ($26) in his pocket along with a LG cell phone. Both suspects were transported to the station for booking.

Detective Coen analyzed the white powder in one of the (7) plastic knotted plastic bags using a TruNarc Raman Spectrometer. The substance was found to contain cocaine. The $126 and LG Cell phone were seized pending civil forfeiture. It was believed the money came from past drug sales and the cell phone was used to facilitate those sales.

Suspect 1, a 22-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with a Violation of City Ordinance (open container / drinking in public) and suspect 2, a 25-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with Possession With Intent to Distribute Class B (cocaine) and School Zone Violation.

Nice Work!

WORK AT HOME - It's hard to pass up a job opportunity that promises a large income and the flexibility of working entirely from home. Often times, these job offers may be online and come with video testimonials of success stories, making it seem legitimate. The reality is that most of these job opportunities are scams and won't deliver on their promises. According to the FTC, the company, "Work At Home EDU" made false claims that people could earn "hundreds of dollars, per hour from home, without any special skills or experience" by first paying for a $97 work-at-home program. Once people paid, they were told that for $194.95 more, they could buy the advanced program and earn a whopping six figures a month. Unfortunately, none of it was true. If you're looking to work from home, here are some questions to ask to help you determine if a program is legitimate:

•What tasks will I have to perform? Are any other steps involved?

•What is the total cost of this work-at-home program? What will I get for my money?

•Will I be paid a salary or commission?

•Who will pay me? When will I get my first paycheck?

•What is the basis for your claims about my likely earnings? What documents can you show me to prove your claims are true before I give you any money?

The saddest aspect of these work-at-home scams is that the victims are often dependent upon this so called potential income and it is especially disheartening for those who are unable to work outside the home because of physical limitations. Before you hand over any money, do an online search of the company's name with the words "complaint," "reviews," or "scam" following it to read what have experienced. A further check of the company can also be done by contacting the Attorney Generals office and the Better Business Bureau where you live as well as where the company is located. These organizations can tell you whether they've gotten complaints about a particular work-at-home program. Keep in mind that just because there aren't complaints doesn't mean the company is legitimate. Dishonest companies sometimes settle out of court.

Holiday Season At Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills

As the autumn Jewish holiday season approaches, Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills invites interested individuals and families in the surrounding area to join us in observing and celebrating the various holidays. High Holiday services begin with Erev Rosh Hashanah on Sept. 20th and full services the next two days under the direction of spiritual leader Rabbi Alfred Benjamin and Cantor Saralee Shrell-Fox. There will be a separate Family Service on Sept. 21st, with childcare and children's activities each day.

This year our second annual Community High Holiday Highlight Service will be on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 21st, led by Rabbi Benjamin from 3:30-4:30 p.m. No ticket is required for this service, which is open to all and filled with celebration, songs, key prayers, Torah service, and the sounding of the Shofar. This service is dedicated by the Freyer family.

Tashlich, the symbolic casting away of sins on Rosh Hashanah, will also be on the 21st at 5:30 p.m. at Turner's Pond on Central Ave., Milton (bring your own bread), followed by a dairy pot-luck dinner at the nearby home of a member. All are invited to participate.

After Yom Kippur on Sept. 30th, other holidays including Sukkot will follow, with special family-oriented holiday events, such as eating in the Sukkah and parading with the Torah scrolls on Simchat Torah.

All services and activities at Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills are open to the entire Jewish community, and will be held in the synagogue sanctuary at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge St.), Milton. During the High Holidays there is parking for the elderly and handicapped at the synagogue, with excess parking available at the rear of St. Elizabeth Church on nearby Randolph Ave. Otherwise overflow parking is available on Pleasant St., with no parking allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets. For security reasons, non-members interested in attending High Holiday services or other events are encouraged to call the Congregation office at 617-698-3394.

The Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School, which provides small, twice-weekly classes, pre-school Story Hour, holiday family events, field trips and more, is accepting applications during the month of September. Jewish children of all grade levels are encouraged to enroll and participate in a quality Jewish education.

Families interested in the religious school or the synagogue are invited to attend our Open House on Sunday, Sept. 17th from 10 a.m.-noon, meet Rabbi Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor, and join in a family Rosh Hashanah Celebration. First-time visitors who call ahead to attend the Open House may receive complimentary seats for one High Holiday service.

Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is an egalitarian synagogue and welcomes interfaith families. For further information about services, events or membership, please call the Congregation office at 617-698-3394, email: office@BethShalomBlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center will have a Rally Day Worship Service at 9:30 a.m. The Rev. Peter M. Preble will conduct the service and preach the sermon entitled "Remember, Restore, Renew." Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church Worship Services and its numerous group activities. Bethany has an active Missions and Growth Committee doing various charity works.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon - 1 to 3 p.m. Please visit: www.bethanycongchurch.org for updates and activities. If you're unable to attend worship service, it is broadcast on QATV at 6 p.m. on Thursdays and 10 a.m. on Sundays on Channel 8.

OBITUARIES

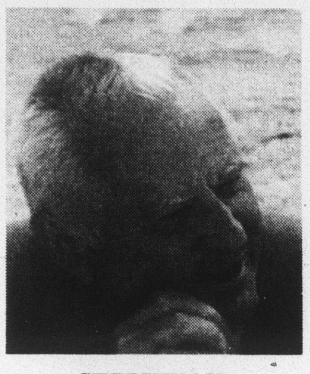
Stephen H. Moynihan

A funeral Mass for Stephen H. Moynihan, of Quincy, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Moynihan died peacefully Aug. 30 with his family by his side.

Beloved husband of 66 years to Jean Moynihan (Granahan) of Quincy. Loving father of Mary Elizabeth Levy and her husband Robert of Wellesley, Kathleen Phillips and her husband Gregory of Falmouth, Stephen Moynihan and his wife Grace of Falmouth, Ellen Moynihan of Falmouth, Jean Marie Crossman and her husband Michael of Falmouth and Joseph Moynihan and his wife Nancy of Quincy. Cherished grandfather of Stephen and Daniel Crossman and Daniel and Rebecca Levy. Very happily Dana, Terry and Alex Teague of Brookline were added to his family. Devoted step-brother of the late William Murphy.

Mr. Moynihan lived most of his life in Quincy, graduating from North Quincy High School in 1948 where he was inducted in the Football Hall of Fame. He went on to receive his Bachelor's Degree from Bentley College and later became a CPA in tax business. He worked as a Director of Business Affairs for the Quincy Public Schools and went above and beyond in his community involvement.



STEPHEN H. MOYNIHAN

Mr. Moynihan was the founder of Quincy Retiree Association and the treasurer of the Quincy Retired Teachers Scholarship Fund. He was also a long-time member and past-president of Massachusetts Association of School Business Officials (MASBO), the North Quincy Knights of Columbus, a past president of Quincy Teen Mother's Program and many other organizations.

Mr. Moynihan's main passion in life was his family. He will be remembered for his easy going personality and his kindness and compassion. Mr. Moynihan will be sadly missed but never forgotten. He always saw the best in everyone.

Visiting hours were Wednesday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Quincy Retired Teacher's Scholarship Fund, 385 Hancock St., Quincy MA 02170.

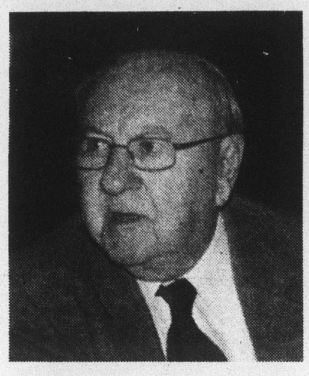
Norman J. Walsh, 94

A funeral Mass for Norman J. Walsh, 94, of Quincy was celebrated Wednesday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Walsh died Aug. 30.

Born in Boston in 1922, he was a longtime resident of Quincy. He courageously served in the U.S. Army during WWII and was a recipient of both a Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and a Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster. A graduate of the Harvard class of 1946 he began his career working in municipal government as city manager of Worcester. After holding the same position in the city of Quincy, Mr. Walsh accepted a position as a loan officer at Shawmut Bank. Several years later he became a vice president at the newly incorporated City Bank. He left City Bank in 1978 and became a loan and liquidation officer for the Small Business Administration to assist businesses that were devastated as a result of the Blizzard of '78.

Mr. Walsh was an avid reader, loved Boston sports, his Irish heritage and especially dining out with friends and family. He loved to laugh and share the company of others. He also enjoyed woodworking, crossword puzzles and watching vintage TV series. However, his greatest joy and love were his grandchildren, Kate and Colin. Along with being a devout Catholic, he was a member of the Disabled Americans Veterans and the treasurer of Harvard Club of Quincy for over 30 years. Mr. Walsh will be dearly missed. He was loved by all who had the opportunity of knowing and spending time with him and who enjoyed the warm pleasure of his friendship.



NORMAN J. WALSH

Son of the late Patrick and Mabel (Kaesmann) Walsh. Devoted husband to the late Dorothy A. Rooney. Loving father to Norman Walsh and his wife Patricia of Milton. Beloved "Grampie" to Katharine A. (Walsh) Vaughan and her husband Chris of Milton and Colin M. Walsh of Melrose.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Boston College High School.

Jean A. Gambino, 57

A funeral Mass for Jean A. (Brosnan) Gambino, age 57, of East Bridgewater, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in Saint John the Baptist Church, 44 School St., Quincy.

Mrs. Gambino died peacefully Aug. 30 at Seasons Hospice in Milton, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Boston, raised and educated in Quincy. She was a graduate of Quincy High School, Class of 1977. She had lived in East Bridgewater for over 15 years, previously in Brockton and Quincy.

Mrs. Gambino was devoted to her family, especially her three sons. She enjoyed traveling and spending time with her family.

Beloved wife for 35 years of the late Joseph M. Gambino.

Devoted mother of Craig J. Gambino of Boston, Dennis M. Gambino of Hartland, VT, and Kevin T. Gambino of East Bridgewater.

Loving daughter of Eleanor V. (Farrell) Brosnan of Quincy and the late Donald S. Brosnan.

Dear sister of Thomas G. Brosnan of Somerville, Patricia M. Morrison and her husband Scott, Joseph G. Brosnan and his wife Deanna, all of Marshfield.

JEAN A. GAMBINO

Fiancée of Robert Crews of Randolph.

Daughter-in-law of Margaret H. (Wilson) Gambino of Braintree and the late Joseph J. Gambino.

Sister-in-law of Patricia E. Flaherty and her husband Kevin of Weymouth, and Julie A. Gambino of Braintree.

She is also survived by several nephews, one niece, and many cousins.

Interment was private.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Susan G. Komen, 2000 Commonwealth Ave., Suite 205, Newton, MA 02466 or at www.komennewengland.org.

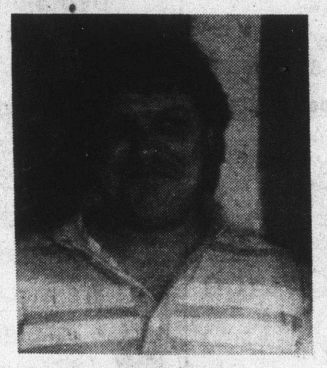
James A Noll

A funeral Mass for James A. "Jimmy" Noll of Quincy was celebrated Aug. 31 in St. Jerome Church, Weymouth.

Mr. Noll died Aug. 27 after a long illness.

He was a member of the Teamsters Local 25 for over 20 years. He enjoyed bowling, playing the guitar and had a strong appreciation of music.

Beloved son of Mary (Murphy) Noll Costa-LaPlume and the late Albert Noll of Tewksbury. Loving father of James Patrick of Rockland. Cherished brother of Peggy Noll of Weymouth, Donald Noll and Janice Bogosian of Abington and Katie Pacione of Quincy. Devoted uncle of Danielle Pacione and Brady Noll.



JAMES A. NOLL

Interment at Fairmount Cemetery, Weymouth.

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, North Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to American Cancer Society, P.O. Box 22478, Oklahoma City, OK 73123 or Brain Injury Association of America, PO Box 7416, Merrifield, VA 22116-7416.

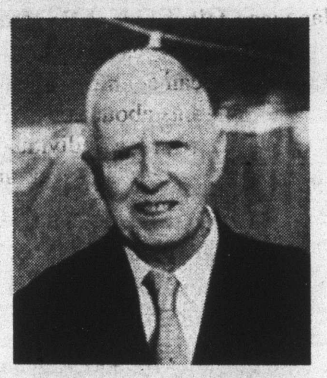
Paul J. Canavan

A funeral Mass for Paul J. Canavan of Quincy was celebrated Wednesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Canavan died Aug. 29.

Beloved husband of the late Rosemary (McGinness) Canavan. Loving father of Barbara Canavan of Quincy, Paul S. Canavan and his wife Marion of Quincy, John Canavan of Weymouth, Patrick Canavan and his fiancée Mary Claire Yanga of CA, and the late Michele Canavan. Devoted Papa of Kevin, Jason, Patrick, Carmela, Cameron and Charlotte. Caring brother of John Canavan of South Boston, Rev. Peter K. Canavan and his partner Stewart Stevens of CA, and the late Barbara Canavan. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Mr. Canavan was a corporal in the United States Marine Corps, serving for eight years including time in Korea. After working for the MBTA for many years as a track engineer, he retired in 1999. He was a dedicated New England sports fan who followed the Red Sox, Bruins, Patriots and Celtics. In his earlier years, Mr. Canavan was a member of the South Boston Brownies.



PAUL J. CANAVAN

He was a devoted music fan and enjoyed Irish, big band and jazz as well as classical music. Mr. Canavan was an avid walker, especially fond of Castle Island. He also enjoyed reading literature and poetry. His main passion in life was his family, caring for his wife while she was ill and spending time with his grandchildren whenever he could. Mr. Canavan will be sadly missed but never forgotten.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Mass General Cancer Center, c/o Development Office, 125 Nashua St., Suite 540, Boston, MA 02114.

Social Security Marks Hispanic Heritage Month

By KRISTEN ALBERINO
Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

We know the importance of "familia" in Hispanic culture, and we're proud to celebrate Hispanic Heritage Month (Sept. 15 to Oct. 15) by helping build a secure future for you, your family, and your future family.

You can learn more about how Social Security helps secure today and tomorrow for millions of families by visiting www.socialsecurity.gov/people/hispanics/.

Hispanics make up our nation's largest ethnic minority group with a population of 56.6 million, according to 2015 statistics from the U.S. Census Bureau. Social Security is here to help maintain and improve our economic well-being for generations to come.

Currently, we do this by providing retirement, disability, and other benefits to 61 million people, including nearly 3.5 million Hispanics, who have contributed to the Social Security system through their payroll taxes. Social Security also provides a safety net to the families of American workers who become unable to work due to grave impairments or have died.

We work hard to provide enhanced customer service and to educate millions of Americans about the importance of our programs and benefits. This allows us to connect with the Hispanic community in meaningful and efficient ways.

If Spanish is your primary language, you can visit www.segurosocial.gov, our Spanish-language website. It provides hundreds of pages of important information about how to get a Social Security card, plan for retirement, apply for benefits, and manage your benefits once you're receiving them. Many of our offices have staff who speak Spanish, or you can call 1-800-772-1213 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays and select the option for Spanish.

Nationwide, our public affairs specialists reach out to thousands of Hispanic Americans each year to raise awareness of the benefits they may qualify for and to learn the advantages of setting up a my Social Security account at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

These specialists promote our programs at local events, health fairs, libraries, schools, and community organizations that serve the public, including the Hispanic population. Some of our bilingual staff serve as contributors to Spanish-language television, radio stations, and newspapers. They also visit embassies and consulates in the U.S. representing Latin American countries to educate diplomatic leaders and new immigrants about Social Security programs.

Spanish-speaking individuals wishing to apply for retirement, disability, survivor, and other benefits, as well as Medicare, can now request an appointment online at www.socialsecurity.gov/applyforbenefits for an in-person interview or telephone claim with a representative. In many cases, you can make an appointment with a bilingual representative.

We're with you and your family throughout life's journey. To learn more about Social Security programs, visit www.segurosocial.gov or www.socialsecurity.gov.

Harvey Leads To Gas Price Surge, Says AAA

The impact of Hurricane Harvey is being felt at gas pumps across the nation, and Massachusetts drivers are paying on average 44 cents more than they did just a week ago, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA Northeast's September 5 survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.70 per gallon, 44 cents more than last week and the highest price recorded locally in two years. Massachusetts's price is five cents above the national average of $2.65. A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 59 cents lower at $2.11.

"It's important to remember that the high prices are not caused by gasoline supply, but by the ability to move the fuel from the Gulf coast to the eastern seaboard," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast Director of Public and Legislative Affairs. "As refineries come back online and the Colonial Pipeline resumes operations, those issues will eventually be resolved. We would hope and expect that these spikes are short term and prices will soon return to their traditional post-Labor Day levels."

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 36 cents, from a low of $2.53 to a high of $2.89. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

Find the most up-to-date local gas prices by logging onto AAA.com and clicking on Gas Saving Tips & Tools.

Lawrence G. Meegan, 65

A private funeral and burial were held for Lawrence G. Meegan, 65, a lifelong resident of Quincy.

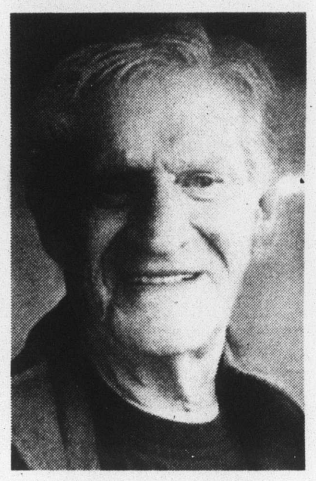
A lifelong Quincy resident, he was a Korean War Veteran, US Navy. Mr. Cotter worked in security for 27 years with Brinks and 12 years at the Hynes Convention Center.

The beloved husband of Colette M. (Grenier) Cotter, he was the loving father of John S. Cotter of Quincy, Kathleen Garvey of So. Weymouth and Jane Grew of Taunton; and is also survived by his five dear grandchildren and his sister Doris Buccio of Florida.

Interment with Military Honors at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.



JOHN J. COTTER

Funeral arrangements were made by the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Edith M. Maher, 92

A funeral Mass for Edith M. (Detert), Maher, age 92, of Quincy, formerly of Braintree and Mattapan, was celebrated Tuesday at St. John the Evangelist Church 210 Central St., East Bridgewater.

Mrs. Maher passed away Aug. 31st surrounded by her family.

Born and raised in Boston, she previously lived in Mattapan for 57 years and Braintree for 26 years. She worked as an operator for New England Telephone in Boston, and previously worked as a receptionist for Bay State Milling Co. and Yellow Cab in Quincy.

Mrs. Maher was an avid bowler and enjoyed bowling in several South Shore bowling leagues.

Beloved wife of the late Francis X. Mother of Mary Ellen Nott of Medford, Michael F. Maher of Randolph, Denise Stasio of N.C., Deborah Armstead and Theresa Maltz both of East Bridgewater. Sister of the late John Detert and William Detert. Grandmother of Michael Maher, Jr., Andrea Stasio, Kim Stasio, Veronica Maltz and the late James Stasio.

Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, 326 Granite Ave., Milton.

Talk To Teens About The Harmful Effects Of Vaping

Thanks to the tobacco industry targeting our youth, Massachusetts has experienced an increase in vaping (use of e-cigarettes or vape pens) by young people.

In my job, I speak with people throughout our region about the dangers of tobacco and about how the tobacco industry targets kids. Usually they are alarmed and surprised to learn that vape pens are not just another harmless fad, but that they usually contain nicotine, a highly addictive substance that is getting them hooked on these products. Nearly 24% of high-school-aged youth in Massachusetts report using e-cigarettes and almost 45% have used them at least once.

Why are so many youth vaping? E-cigarettes or vape pens come in over 8,000 different flavors–from Swedish Fish, to s'mores, to bubblegum– to better attract young people. And it's working. Flavors are the leading reason that youth are using e-cigarettes, and the nicotine in these products leads to sustained use. We don't want youth to become the next generation of tobacco users, but Big Tobacco sure does, and flavored e-cigarettes and vape pens are making it possible.

More high school youth in Massachusetts are now using e-cigarettes than all other tobacco products combined, AND they are using them nine times more often than adults. The tobacco industry has made these products sweet, cheap, and easy to get because they know that people who start using nicotine products in adolescence have a harder time quitting than people who start as adults. As parents and concerned adults, let's work together to prevent youth from becoming the next generation of customers for Big Tobacco.

At the start of this school year, you can make a difference. Talk with your teenagers about vaping and learn about their school's policy on it. Make sure they know that vaping is harmful and that nicotine is addictive and affects their brain development negatively. Effects of youth exposure to nicotine include increased risk for depression, mood disorders, or future drug addiction.

For more information, visit GetOutraged.org or contact me at lswenson@baystatecs.org if you'd like to find out how you can support local action to stop Big Tobacco from sweet talking our kids.

Tobias Clemens Tennis Director At The Tournament Training Academy

The Tournament Training Academy at the Weymouth Club, a fitness, wellness and recreation facility, announces the appointing of tennis professional Tobias Clemens as director of High Performance Tennis.

Clemens, a resident of Quincy, is an ATP Division 1 member who is ATP University Certified and a Certified USTA High Performance Coach. The club's Assistant Tennis Director, Clemens will oversee the club's Tournament Training Academy and High Performance Tennis program.

With a career high professional singles ranking of 191 (in 2006), Clemens won 10 singles wins over former and current top 50 players including Ernests Gulbis, Younes El Aynaoui, and Jeremy Chardy. He was an ATP Tournament Quarterfinalist Metz 2006 where he lost to former world Number 1 Novak Djokovic.

Clemens was the number 1 singles player for UCLA with 119 career singles wins (the second highest in UCLA history, 2001-2004), and he was number 2 ranked Collegiate Player in the country (September 2003). Clemens was also three-time All American (2001-2004), Academic All American (2004) and NCAA Championship Runner Up with the team in 2004.

Clemens will work with youth in the High Performance Tennis program, coaching them for Division 1 College and professional tennis.

"Tobias has done a phenomenal job over the years and is capable of taking our High Performance Tennis program to new heights and direction," said Michael Hodge, the Weymouth Club's Director of Tennis. "Our high performance coaching team is dedicated to helping each player reach his or her full potential."

The Tournament Training Academy/High Performance Tennis coaching team working with Clemens is comprised of Robert Yee of Quincy, and Calin Mateas of Braintree, who are PTR Professional and USTA High Performance coaches; Shaun Crichlow of Milton, a USTA High Performance coach; and PTR Professionals Alberto Garcia of Chestnut Hill and David Hall of Norwell. Hall was ranked in the Top 200 on Tour and played number 1 singles for Duke University. Mateas' son plays for Duke University and his daughter plays professional tennis and is currently ranked 616 in the world.

To learn more about the Weymouth Club's tennis programs for youth and adults, visit weymouthclub.com or contact Michael Hodge at 781-337-4600.

Beth Shalom – Blue Hills To Hold Open Houses

Congregation Beth Shalom will hold two Open Houses in September for prospective members.

The first Open House will be a "Shabbat Under the Stars" on Friday, Sept. 8th. It begins at 6:30 p.m. with a barbecue (rain or shine), followed at 7:40 by a Musical Shabbat Service and a Festive Oneg Shabbat dessert. It is free to anyone interested in the synagogue, including its Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School, but RSVP's are requested.

The second Open House will be on Sunday, Sept. 17, 10 a.m. to noon. Visitors will participate with their children in our Religious School's Family Rosh Hashanah program. Both Open Houses will be at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge St.) in Milton, with overflow parking on Pleasant St. only.

All interested families are invited to attend either or both Open Houses. Meet Rabbi Alfred Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor, learn about the congregation's programs and activities, tour our new building, and find out about our Special First Year Membership and Religious School rates.

First time attendees to either Open House will receive one ticket for either our second day Rosh Hashanah Congregational Service or Kol Nidre. Also, all are invited to attend our First Day Rosh Hashanah afternoon Community Service, 3:30-4:30 (no ticket required).

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is accepting registrations to its Religious School, which meets on Sunday mornings and Tuesday afternoons. The school has small classes and an innovative curriculum, including unique holiday celebrations, monthly pre-school-age Story Hour, field trips, Bar/Bat Mitzvah classes, and Holiday Family Activity Days. It is also a partner in the Passport to Israel Program, which helps fund teen trips to Israel. For info., call the synagogue office at 617-698-3394.

Construction Underway At New Workforce Housing Community

Construction is underway at The Watson in Quincy, as MassHousing has closed on $37.2 million in financing to the WinnCompanies and NeighborWorks of Southern Massachusetts, to support the development of 140 new apartments for middle- and lower-income residents.

MassHousing is providing the WinnCompanies and NeighborWorks a $29.3 million permanent mortgage, $7 million in workforce housing financing from MassHousing's Opportunity Fund, and $900,000 from the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, which MassHousing manages on behalf of the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD).

"The Watson is a dynamic project that showcases a number of MassHousing's priorities," said MassHousing Executive Director Tim Sullivan. "The Watson will deliver new growth to a Gateway City. It will create a true mixed-income community. And, by combining workforce housing funding with market-rate and low-income housing tax credits, the Watson will generate long-term affordability for both low-income and middle-income households, while minimizing the use of scarce state affordable housing resources. MassHousing is proud to partner with the WinnCompanies, NeighborWorks, and the City of Quincy, to help advance this exciting new housing community."

Eighty-six of the 140 units at the Watson will be workforce housing units, affordable to middle-income households. The workforce housing units will be targeted to households earning at or below 110 percent of the Area Median Income, or $113,740 for a family of four. Twenty-eight of the units will be affordable to households earning at or below 50 percent of AMI, or $51,700 for a family of four. The remaining 26 apartments will be rented at market rates.

The Watson advances the Baker-Polito Administration's goal of creating up to 1,000 new workforce housing units affordable to middle-income households through MassHousing's $100 million Workforce Housing Initiative. Since opening the $100 million Workforce Housing Initiative last year, MassHousing has committed or closed workforce housing financing totaling $35.9 million, to 15 projects, located in 10 cities and towns. To date, the Workforce Housing Initiative has advanced the development of 1,317 housing units across a range of incomes, including 387 workforce housing units.

The 86 workforce housing units at the Watson represent the largest number of workforce units for a single project financed through MassHousing's $100 million Workforce Housing Initiative to date.

In addition to MassHousing financing, other sources for the $44 million project include allocations of federal Low-Income Housing Tax Credits and Housing Development Incentive Program tax credits from DHCD, a $2 million affordable housing contribution from the City of Quincy, and financing from Citigroup.

"This is a high-impact project that would not have been possible without the foresight and leadership demonstrated by MassHousing and the Baker-Polito Administration," said WinnCompanies CEO Gilbert Winn. "We're proud to have the opportunity to turn this vision into reality, creating middle-income housing for people who have been priced out of Greater Boston's booming rental market."

"We are so excited to bring such a huge investment into the shipyard neighborhood of Quincy Point," said Neighborworks of Southern Massachusetts Executive Director Robert Corley. "High quality, new construction workforce housing is desperately needed in our area and is what this neighborhood deserves. As a community development corporation, we hope this type of transformational development will encourage new private investment in the East Howard Street corridor."

"This is a great project that is going to make a major difference in the neighborhood and we look forward to its completion," said Quincy Mayor Thomas P. Koch. "This area is kind of the last frontier for Quincy. Other parts of the city have adjusted from a manufacturing economy to service industries."

The Watson is being developed on a 1.7-acre site at 116 East Howard St., adjacent to the former Fore River Shipyard. The project involves the demolition of a long-vacant former office building. Construction is underway by DellBrook Construction, and work is expected to be completed by July 2018.

MassHousing has financed seven rental housing communities in Quincy totaling 708 units of housing with an overall original loan amount of $42.3 million and also provided mortgage loans to 1,343 homebuyers with an original overall loan amount of $205.4 million.

O'Donnell Emphasizes Need To Filing Mortgage Discharge

the sale of one's home," the Register warned.

If a property owner needs to retrieve an original discharge of a mortgage and is unclear which lending institution is now responsible for providing the document, an option is to contact the Massachusetts Division of Banks at 1-800-495-2265 x-61501. This government agency can assist the consumer in tracking down contact information for the lending institution that is responsible for the mortgage.

When recording a discharge, the original document is required. The Registry of Deeds does not accept photo copies or faxed copies of documents. The filing fee, set by state statute, is $76.

"After paying off all the mortgages on their property, homeowners want the peace of mind that they have clear title to their property, especially if they are contemplating selling," O'Donnell said. "Being diligent and aware of what is required will go a long way in giving the homeowner assurances that they have clear title to their property. I strongly urge homeowners to make sure their mortgage discharge has been filed with the Registry of Deeds once their mortgage has been paid off. There is no reason to wait."

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is staffed with a team of customer service representatives who can be reached Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 781-461-6101.

"These representatives have been trained in researching documents and are well versed on the subject of mortgage discharges and what, if necessary, needs to be done to clear title to a property," O'Donnell said.

To learn more about these and other Registry of Deeds events and initiatives like us at facebook.com/NorfolkDeeds or follow us on twitter.com/NorfolkDeeds and instagram.com/NorfolkDeeds.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org. Quincy College Expands Adult Advantage Program

Includes Additional Free Class Options and Services for Adult Learners

An entrepreneur looking to expand their business.

A retiree looking to learn a new language.

Adult learners aged 30 and older from across the South Shore and beyond participated in the Quincy College Adult Advantage program which first started in the Spring of 2017. Based upon the success of the program and student outcomes, Quincy College will be expanding the program and its free first class scholarship to include on-campus and online courses for the Fall 2017 semester, starting Sept. 6th.

As an open access institution with rolling admissions, students can apply and start classes within a week. The First Class Scholarship - which enables eligible students to try a class for free - makes returning to school accessible and attainable for students age 30 and older.

With over a third of Quincy College Fall 2016 student body over the age of 30, new students then and now will find a community of adult learners and the support of personalized assistance of the Adult Learner Liaisons (ALL). All-inclusive student services such as free tutoring and financial aid assist students every step of the way. Adult Learner Liaisons are in every student facing office including Academic Advising, Admissions, Financial Aid, Registrar, and Student Accounts.

New, first-time Quincy College students, aged 30 and older (by Jan. 1, 2017) who are U.S. citizens or permanent residents of the United States residing in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts (proof of address required) are eligible for the "Free First Class Treatment for Adult Learners" scholarship which provides students with free tuition and no fees for their first eligible Quincy College class. Qualified students receiving the "Free First Class Treatment for Adult Learners" scholarship are responsible for textbooks and supplies.

Quincy College adult learners can utilize the "Free First Class Treatment for Adult Learners" scholarship applied to their first course and can continue on and apply as a full-time or part-time student and pursue a degree or certificate at Quincy College.

The program's goal is to afford the adult learner population the opportunity to sample a Quincy College course at no risk and at little to no cost. Quincy College will provide all Adult Advantage Program students with dedicated adult learner liaisons to address the unique needs of the adult learner and assist them in their return to the classroom.

For more information on the Quincy College Adult Advantage Program, visit: www.quincycollege.edu/advantage.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your ideas earn you the respect of your colleagues. But you'll have to present some hard facts and figures if you hope to persuade those who make the big decisions to support you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Keep those bright Bull's eyes focused on the project at hand. Avoid distractions. There'll be lots of time for fun and games later. Expect to get welcome news this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You soon might have to decide about moving a relationship from its current status to another level. Don't let anyone influence your decision. It must be yours and yours alone.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You finally can get off that emotional roller coaster and get back to focusing on your goals without interruptions through the rest of the week. A nice change is due by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Trying to make an impression on some people runs into a bit of a snag at first, but it all works out. An old and almost forgotten personal matter once again needs attention.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A rise in your energy level helps you finish an especially demanding task. Take some time now to spend with family and friends before starting a new project.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) This is a good time to re-establish contact with trusted former associates who might be able to offer good advice regarding that career change you've been contemplating.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your resourcefulness combined with a calm, cool approach help you work your way out of a knotty situation and avoid a potentially serious misunderstanding.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A calm, quiet period allows you to recharge your energies. But you'll soon be ready to saddle up and gallop off in pursuit of your goals.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family matters need your attention. Check things out carefully. There still might be unresolved tensions that could hinder your efforts to repair damaged relationships.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good time to take a stand and show as much passion on your own behalf as you do when arguing for the rights of others. You might be happily surprised by the reaction.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You bring sense and sensitivity to a confusing situation. Things soon settle down, leaving you free to enjoy a weekend of fun and relaxation with friends and family.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a talent for being able to perceive possibilities where others see only problems.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Hollywood movie studios have done "creative bookkeeping" for years. Most stars have profit-sharing in their contracts, but don't see much of the profits. James Garner sued Universal Studios for $65 million, his share from "The Rockford Files." He was offered $6 million and turned it down. The studio, afraid of opening its books to the court, upped its bid to $16 million, which Garner accepted. Thereafter, Jack Klugman sued over "Quincy" and settled (out of court) for millions. Don Johnson sued Rysher Entertainment for $52 million for "Nash Bridges" and won $19 million.

Now AMC, network of "The Walking Dead," for seven seasons, is under fire. Former executive producer and co-creator Frank Darabont is suing AMC for $280 million. In addition, Robert Kirkman, whose comic book the show is based on, and producers Anne Hurd and Glen Mazzara are suing, saying they've been "massively cheated."

Emma Stone, just 28, grabbed the No. 1 spot on Forbes list of top-grossing actresses of 2017. Winning the Oscar last year for "La La Land" raised her price, and the two films she's done this year -- "The Battle of the Sexes," as tennis great Billy Jean King to Steve Carell's Bobby Riggs, due Sept. 22; and the Irish-American bio film "The Favourite," with Rachel Weisz and Nicholas Hoult -- earned her $26 million.

Former "Friend" Jennifer Aniston took second thanks to her commercial endorsements of Emirates airlines, Smartwater and Aveeno, her upcoming film "Dumplin" and the series she and Reece Witherspoon are producing and starring in as hosts of a New York morning talk show (Hoda and Kathie Lee, is that you?), earning $25.5 million. Jennifer Lawrence, slipped to third but has "Mother!," directed by her current man, Darren Aronofsky, with Javier Bardem, Ed Harris and Michele Pfeiffer; the spy thriller "Red Sparrow," with Mary-Louise Parker, Joel Edgerton, Jeremy Irons and Joely Richardson, coming March 2; and "X-Men: Dark Phoenix," out November 2018, with $24 million. And don't forget her Dior endorsement.

The fourth spot went to Melissa McCarthy with $18 million, thanks to co-writing, co-producing and starring in "Life of the Party," with husband Ben Falcone (also directing), Richard E. Grant and Jane Curtain, due May 11. Fifth place was taken by Mila Kunis, thanks to her Jim Beam commercials and the sequel "Bad Mom's Christmas," opening Nov. 3, "The Spy who Dumped Me," with Kate McKinnon, arriving July 6 and the animated film, "Amusement Park," out in March 2019, with $15.5 million. Emma Watson makes her first appearance at No. 6, followed by "Atomic Blonde" Charlize Theron, Kate Blanchett, Julia Roberts and Amy Adams.

Good thing neither Stone nor Lawrence are married ... imagine those pre-nups!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Some modern artists like to make something out of nothing by using discarded metal, signs, cans, tools, machine parts and other trash to form useful pieces of art. One of the most popular discards is metal crown bottle caps. The crown cap, the type used on soda bottles, was invented in 1892. Soon ads and logos were printed on the caps, and they were considered trash after the bottle's contents were emptied.

But the caps were colorful and round, so eventually large pieces were created, like bottle-cap chains strung with hundreds of caps and smoking stands made from the chains. Caps were painted and used as game pieces like checkers, and a trivet shaped like a bunch of grapes was made from caps covered with crocheted yarn. There also were planters, purses, bottle-cap "buttons" made with magnets and jewelry, especially cross-shaped pendants.

Many of these can be found pictured online, but the most popular are the man and woman figures made as a Boy Scout project in the 1950s. The figures had arms and legs made with strings and caps, a wooden body and head, and it held a small colored aluminum bowl. The women often had hoop earrings and colorful costumes. Pairs were dressed and named appropriately as "Calypso" or "Trampman."

But a modern artist named Rick Ladd made the most spectacular and artistic pieces -- a chair and footstool -- in 1991. Loops of bottle-cap chains, flat wooden frame sections decorated with caps that show the original brand art, and glass formed a 20-inch-high chair and footstool. They sold at a recent Skinner auction in Boston for $492. A matching chest of drawers brought $884, and a picture frame sold for $677.

Q: I just got what looks like a copper luster teapot marked "Wade England." The lid has a genie with his arms folded. The bottom of the teapot is marked "The Genie Teapot." What is it worth?

A: Wade pottery is made by The Wade Group of Potteries, which started near Burslem, England, in 1810. Several potteries merged to become George Wade & Son, Ltd., early in the 20th century, and other potteries have been added through the years. The Genie teapot was made in the 1970s and sells for less than $30.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was 20th-century American pediatrician and author Benjamin Spock who made the following sage observation: "All the time a person is a child he is both a child and learning to be a parent. After he becomes a parent he becomes predominantly a parent reliving childhood."

* If you're lucky enough to be hanging out with a bunch of frolicsome pug dogs, you can accurately call your companions a grumble of pugs.

* You might be surprised to learn that an early version of scuba diving took place as early as the 1770s. A man named Andrew Becker wore his leather-covered diving suit during an hour-long immersion in a London stretch of the River Thames. He even had a window in his helmet -- though there's no report on what, if anything, he saw in the notoriously murky waters.

* Those who study such things say that the average American man shaves at least 20,000 times in his life. If you add up all that time spent shaving, by the time he reaches the age of 75 a man has spent more than 37 days with a razor in his hand.

* If you decide to move to Kentucky, you might want to keep in mind that in that state, it's against the law to paint your lawn red.

Thought for the Day: "Humanity needs dreamers, for whom the disinterested development of an enterprise is so captivating that it becomes impossible for them to devote their care to their own material profit. Without doubt, these dreamers do not deserve wealth, because they do not desire it. Even so, a well-organized society should assure to such workers the efficient means of accomplishing their task, in a life freed from material care and freely consecrated to research." -- Marie Curie

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* If you haven't already, plant your spring flowering bulbs now before the first frosts!

* "I replaced my beat-up tension rod in the bath, and immediately had a thought to use it for hanging clothes in my narrow laundry room. It gives me a space to hang items coming out of the washer for air drying. When it's not in use, it's easy to remove and lean against the wall." -- N.L. in Pennsylvania

* Get control of your money with a financial calendar. Just as you would pencil in dates for doctor's appointments and teeth cleaning, add reminders for pulling a credit report, adjusting your withholding, increasing your retirement contribution or reassessing your personal savings. Re-shop for insurance providers yearly to get the best deals.

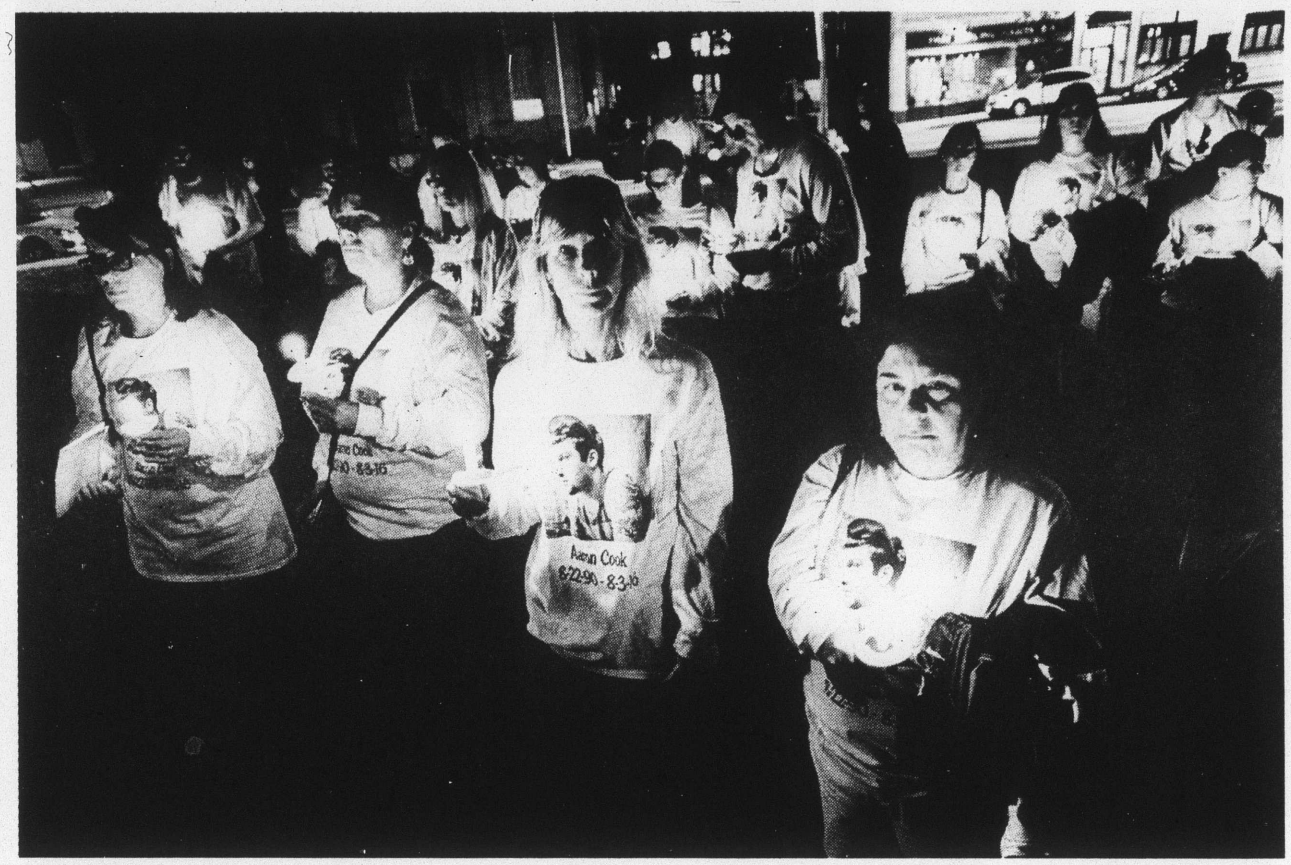
DAN BEATON wears a T-Shirt honoring his late son, Brian, who died of a heroin overdose.



FRIENDS AND FAMILY of the late Aaron Cook, who died one year ago days before his 26 birthday of an overdose, hold candles in his memory.

"It has to start in elementary school," he said. "We need to take away the stigma of drug addiction. I don't know where to start. It has to be stopped. I don't know where the answer is, but education is the key."

In light of it all, Beaton said there is hope.

"The hope is this. If you love someone, like we love our kids, like we love our brothers and sisters, any loved ones, they'll never leave us," he said.

McCarthy spoke about his brother, Dennis, who died from an overdose after a 30 year heroin addiction in December, 2005.

He said he was close to his older brother who protected him while growing up.

"When I got in trouble, he would beat people up," he said. "It was that kind of relationship."

Dennis was an athlete at Archbishop Williams High School and after graduating moved to Florida where he got involved in heroin.

"His whole personality changed," McCarthy said. "Our relationship changed. He was no longer my best friend. Heroin had just taken over his life. All his dreams and aspirations were removed. Drug addictions are well known as a great remover. He was a big, scrapping guy. In the latter part of his addiction, he dwindled away to nothing. That's what this disease does. It wants us alone in a corner, helpless."

Dennis moved back to Boston where he owned a store and was generous, willing to give his last dollar to someone in need.

Despite going to recovery programs, he was not able to shake his addiction.

"He had some good years of clean time, but he just fell back into addiction," said McCarthy.

McCarthy, a recovering addict, said he is evidence that addiction can be overcome.

"I'm fighting the heavyweight champion of the world," he said. "There is help out there. Myself, I'm in a program and I follow it. I take it one day at a time."

McCarthy noted that his daughter is fighting a heroin addiction.

"She just keeps trying. It's been a long, long road. It's constant vigilance. I keep telling her that."

McCarthy pointed to the continued stigma association with drug addiction.

"I never look down on anybody," he said. "That's somebody's daughter, that's somebody's son that could be the next statistic."

McCarthy went on to say that the opioid crisis needs to be met head-on.

"It's definitely in an epidemic proportion," he said. "There is not a week that goes by where I don't know somebody or have an acquaintance of somebody that's overdosed. It's insane. It's just out of control."

Looking out into the crowd, McCarthy offered hope.

"The unity here tonight, this is where we start, to carry the message," he said.

NEARLY 200 PEOPLE gathered for the 7th Annual Candlelight Overdose Vigil to remember loved ones lost to addiction. Balloons bearing the names of ovedose victims were released at the end of the ceremony. Quincy Sun photos/Tom Gorman

Koch Eyes New Police-Fire Headquarters

New Complex Would Be Sited At Southern Artery And Sea Street; Seeks $500,000 To Study Feasibility Of Joint Headquarters; Public Hearing Monday On $25 Million Capital Inprovement Plan

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch's proposed $25 million capital improvement plan includes funding for a study of the feasibility of building a new joint headquarters for the Quincy Fire and Police Departments, the construction of which could begin in as little as 18 months, and a citywide traffic and parking master plan.

Koch submitted to the City Council on Sept. 5 four appropriation requests to fund the $25 million capital improvement plan. The four bond measures are $12.84 million for public buildings, lands, and computer software upgrades; $7.1 million for the construction of a new animal shelter on Quarry Street; $2.7 million to acquire former St. Mary School on Crescent Street, where Koch aims to build a new elementary school; and $2.3 million for a citywide traffic, bicycle, parking and pedestrian safety master plan, plus traffic improvements.

Koch had previously presented his capital plan to the council in April, alongside a $27 million bond to pay for numerous park projects including the construction of Hancock-Adams Green and a new dog park, which would be located on the same site as the proposed new animal shelter. The council approved the $27 million park bond, which

Schools Aim To Ramp Up Substance Abuse Prevention

By TOM GORMAN

In response to the opioid crisis and the state's new marijuana law being revised, school officials are ramping up substance abuse prevention programs to take on the new challenges.

During a special meeting of the school committee on Sept. 6, its nine subcommittees joined the superintendent's leadership team members in reviewing goals and proposals for the upcoming 2017-18 school year. The subcommittees chose various topics that will be discussed in the coming weeks.

"We started this about five years ago to look at where we were and where we are and prepare ourselves to see where we go from here," said Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "We base it on our district improvement plan. We plan, implement, reflect and assess so there are no surprises as to how we plan."

The subcommittees are: budget and finance; facilities and security; health, transportation, safety; policy; special education; teaching/learning; rules, post audit, oversight; Sterling Middle School building committee; and athletics. The panels met simultaneously to discuss pending agenda items as well as new proposals and the action steps to be taken.

The sub panels' respective chairs then reported items to be discussed in future meetings to school committee Vice Chairman Paul Bregoli.

Director of Student Support Services Maura Papile and Health Coordinator Rita Bailey of the health subcommittee explained that health teachers and nurses will receive training on the new marijuana law that was revised by the state legislature.

Online training will be available on marijuana use prevention as part of ramping up the school's substance abuse curriculum.

"We really want to get ahead of the marijuana legalization issue," said Papile.

Last November, voters approved the legalization of recreational marijuana, but, due to some ambiguities, some provisions were rewritten.

The new law prompted some school committee members to voice concern as to how the district and parents would deal with it.

"It's a confusing issue to me and many parents and families," said School Committee member Emily Lebo. "I'm thrilled about the marijuana (prevention) training."

As the opioid crisis continues to grip the area, school officials say they are responding with updating substance abuse prevention programs where needed.

DeCristofaro said the district is looking to expand its DARE drug prevention program.

"We are working with the chief of police (Paul Keenan) to look at our DARE curriculum and any revisions that may help it," he said.

Lebo said that she would like the district to publicize its substance abuse prevention programs. She said some people think the schools "are doing nothing" about dealing with the opioid crisis.

"It's just not clear enough to people what we are doing in the schools," she said, adding that the city has many programs that are publicized.

"The opioid epidemic is all the over the place," Lebo said. "Our anti-smoking campaign we had years ago had a significant impact. I don't know specifically how we're dealing with addiction in the schools."

Papile said the schools "are doing a lot" educating students about addiction.

DeCristofaro and Koch added that the city and schools are working together to educate students about the dangers of drug use.

The superintendent emphasized the schools' health programs include substance abuse prevention.

GOLD PURITY

Many people confuse the words "carat" and "karat" since both are measurements used in the jewelry world. While "carat" is reserved for measuring gemstone weight, "karat" is used to measure the purity of gold on a scale of 1 to 24, with 24 karats (24K) being the purest form of the metal. Other standard alloys commonly seen in this country include 18K (18 parts out of 24 pure gold, or 75% pure gold and 25% other metal); 14K (58.3% pure gold); 12K (50% pure gold); and 10K (41.6% pure gold). As precious and beautiful as gold is, it is also a relatively soft metal. By alloying it with other metals, greater strength and durability can be achieved.

Few investments compare to the beauty of gold. Gold's intrinsic beauty is further enhanced when fashioned into the one-of-a-kind settings designed by our creative goldsmith at Rogers Jewelry. Don't go it alone when you make the decision to purchase fine jewelry. Let us be your guide at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. PH: 617-773-3636. Hurricane Bob: The Last One To Directly Hit NE

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Hurricanes Harvey and Irma that have left portions of Texas and Florida devastated in their wake underscore the wrath and fury these storms can bring.

Catastrophic destruction hundreds of miles away from New England.

But news of any hurricane makes some wonder – is New England next to experience one of these havoc-wreaking weather systems?

Are we overdue for another big one?

You might say the odds are getting better for a big hurricane to strike these parts.

It's been more than a quarter century since Quincy along with New England was walloped by a major hurricane.

The last?

Hurricane Bob in mid August of 1991 – 26 years ago last month.

While some hurricanes have weakened and struck the area as tropical storms and depressions over the last quarter century – but still caused some significant damage – Bob remains the last hurricane to hit New England directly as a hurricane.

According to meteorologists, Bob was one of the smallest hurricanes in sheer area but one of the most intense to hit Southern New England since 1938. That's quite a benchmark. The New England Hurricane of 1938 killed over 600 people; wind gusts at the Blue Hill Observatory in neighboring Milton recorded a peak wind gust of 186 miles per hour before the instrument broke. The 1938 hurricane is considered the worst to strike New England in modern times. It struck 79 years ago this month – September of 1938.

Hurricane Bob is also compared with Hurricane Carol of 1954. Winds gusts of 135 mph were clocked in Milton. There was extreme damage in south coastal Rhode Island and south coastal Massachusetts.

In between Carol and Bob were other hurricanes like Donna in 1960, Belle in 1976 and Gloria in 1985. Donna's wind gusts reached 140 mph at the Blue Hill Observatory. Belle and Gloria packed considerably less punch (90 mph in Southern Connecticut for Belle, 110 mph in New London, CT for Gloria.)

Six years after Gloria, Bob roared ashore as a category 2 storm making landfall in Rhode Island Aug. 19, 1991. Wind gusts reached Category-3 strength in southeastern Massachusetts. There were unofficial gusts reported of 150 mph in Falmouth. Bob was blamed for 18 storm-related deaths and caused an estimated $2.5 billion in damage.

Bob does not belong in the same category as Harvey and Irma or Hurricanes Andrew and Katrina. Those were catastrophic storms that hit the Southeastern portion of the United States.

But Bob did his fare share of damage. The storm was among the top 25 costliest U.S. hurricanes of the 20th century. There were also six confirmed tornadoes during its passage.

Quincy, relatively speaking, was spared the brunt of Bob but still the hurricane left its mark here.

Bob coverage filled the entire page of The Quincy Sun's front page on Thursday, Aug. 22, 1991. The headline for the lead story that week: "Bob Leaves Thousands Without Power." Accompanying the story were photos of trees toppled in North Quincy and Wollaston as well as a few boats that washed up on Wollaston Beach due to the high wind gusts that peaked at about 70 mph here.

How strong were the winds here during Bob? Strong enough to knock down one of the light towers at Adams Field.

The storm also forced the evacuation of about 50 residents, knocked down hundreds of trees and limbs and left thousands of residents without power – some for days.

At the peak of the power outage, more than 12,000 customers were without service in Mass Electric's Weymouth district that included Quincy, Holbrook and Randolph. A spokesperson for the utility told the Sun: "Quincy was the hardest hit."

Most of the evacuees were transported from Houghs Neck, Squantum and Germantown to a shelter set up at the old Quincy Vocational-Technical High School. They were provided cots, blankets, food and water. The shelter also provided two black and white televisions and oxygen masks for people with medical conditions.

Other shelters were set up at North Quincy High School, Snug Harbor, Atherton Hough and Squantum Schools.

Power outages were caused by Bob toppling trees and limbs that, in turn, brought down power lines.

Trees Toppled, 50 Residents Evacuated

Bob Leaves Thousands Without Power

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Clumsy and electrical service crews began working around the clock after Hurricane Bob blew down on Quincy Monday afternoon. The storm forced the evacuation of about 50 residents, knocked down hundreds of trees and limbs and left thousands of residents without power.

At of 3 p.m. Tuesday, 6,502 or about 16 percent of the city's 40,000 Mass Electric customers was still without power, according to Charles Skoog, a Mass Electric spokesperson. He said most customers without power were primarily from the North Quincy area.

Skoog also said it was possible power for some customers may not be restored until the end of the week. "It could take several days. The customer [only] is not a priority."

At the peak of the power outage, 12,079 customers were without service in Mass Electric's Weymouth district which includes Quincy, Holbrook and Randolph. Quincy was the hardest hit, Skoog said.

According to Skoog, 400 Mass Electric crews from other communities and 135 from utility companies outside the state, including some from New Jersey, Virginia, Vermont and Canada.

Hurricane Bob, which packed winds up to 70 mph locally, forced the evacuation of approximately 50 Quincy residents, said Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management Agency. The evacuees, mostly from Houghs Neck, Squantum and Germantown, were brought to a special shelter set up at the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

They were provided with cots, blankets, food and water. The shelter also provided two black and white televisions and oxygen tanks for people with medical conditions.

Other shelters were set up at North Quincy High, Snug Harbor, Atherton Hough and Squantum Schools.

Siciliano said the destruction caused from Hurricane Bob was worse than Hurricane Gloria which hit Southern Mass. in 1985. Most of the damage was caused by high winds which reached up to 70 mph.

Hurricane Bob toppled many trees and limbs, bringing down electrical lines and causing widespread power outages.

"There were a number of street intersections with debris from trees and wires and signal out around the city," Siciliano said.

Monday's storm could have been a lot worse. Two major factors played in Quincy's favor.

First, the brunt of the storm struck several hours before the 7:43 p.m. high tide in Quincy Bay. If Bob had hit at high tide, many city streets, especially along the peninsula neighborhoods of Germantown, Houghs Neck and Squantum, would have been flooded.

Second, Quincy was hit by the eastern eye wall of Bob's core. Typically, the front of a hurricane is more intense to the rear of its path. In fact, the highest wind speeds from Bob were recorded in communities east of it such. In Plymouth and Mansfield, gusts reached 110 mph.

Skoog said the city was prepared for the worst. He backed up a team of 100 workers which manned the communications, transportation, civil air patrol, auxiliary fire, auxiliary police, shelter and underwater recovery divisions of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency. The volunteers were on hand to assist in various areas of operation.

Fore Council on Aging groups, such as Quincy Interfaith, assisted and also in bring volunteers to various areas to clear debris from streets.

Skoog praised Elmont Roberts, Quincy's emergency planning director. "He's done a super job. He's got a good team of people."

The volunteers, along with personnel from the police, fire and public works departments, spent the day clearing broken tree limbs from their neighborhood streets.

More than 100 residents called the forestry department about fallen trees, while dozens of others reported downed power and telephone lines. The police are up on emergency duty for the next week after four of the 911 service lines went down in the storm.

Five Adam youngsters from Quincy also volunteered to answer incoming calls at the E.O.C. in the Quincy Emergency Management Agency.

FRONT PAGE of the Quincy Sun's Thursday, Aug. 22, 1991 issue with coverage of Hurricane Bob - the last hurricane to directly hit New England.

At sea, Quincy Yacht Club in Houghs Neck suffered the most damage as hurricane gusts caused the club's U-shaped pier to break loose and then come apart. A handful of boats either washed ashore, flooded or capsized.

Quincy weathered Bob – like storms before and after it.

But the city got a little lucky with this hurricane 26 years ago.

First, Bob's packing punch struck several hours before the 7:43 p.m. high tide in Quincy Bay. Had Bob hit at high tide, many city streets, especially along the peninsula neighborhoods of Germantown, Houghs Neck and Squantum, would have been flooded.

Second, Bob weakened as it passed over land making landfall near Newport, R.I. Other communities south of Boston were whacked harder with wind including Plymouth and Marshfield where gusts reached 110 mph.

Quincy was prepared for Hurricane Bob, too. And weathered this hurricane fairly well considering the potential damage these storms can cause.

We have been fortunate that a major hurricane has not hit Quincy and New England since Bob. It's a streak that we hope continues – for a very long time.

We also join the country in hoping the victims of Hurricanes Harvey and Irma are quickly back on their feet and in their homes as soon as possible.

And let's hope the rest of the country is spared from these catastrophic weather systems for quite some time to come, too.

They have had enough to last a lifetime.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 30, 1868, the first volume of Louisa May Alcott's beloved children's book "Little Women" is published. Alcott's subsequent children's fiction included "Little Men" (1871) and "Jo's Boys" (1886).

• On Oct. 1, 1908, the first production Model T Ford is completed. Between 1908 and 1927, Ford would build 15 million Model Ts. The cars were powered by a 22-horsepower, four-cylinder engine and could go as fast as 40 mph.

• On Sept. 29, 1913, Rudolf Diesel, inventor of the engine that bears his name, disappears while traveling by steamship from Belgium to England. On Oct. 10, his body was found floating in the water. His death was judged a suicide, but many people believed Diesel was murdered.

• On Sept. 26, 1928, work begins at Chicago's new Galvin Manufacturing plant. Galvin would introduce the Motorola radio, the first mass-produced commercial car radio. The name had two parts: "motor" evoked cars and motion, while "ola" derived from "Victrola" and was supposed to make people think of music.

• On Sept. 2, 1957, under escort from the U.S. Army's 101st Airborne Division, nine black students enter all-white Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas. Of the 517 black students in the district, 80 expressed interest and were interviewed by the school. Of the 17 chosen, nine decided to attend.

• On Sept. 27, 1967, a French TV network begins to broadcast the first (and only) season of the American sitcom "My Mother, The Car." The show's premise was a man visits a used-car lot and finds a 1928 Porter convertible that is, somehow, the reincarnation of his dead mother.

• On Sept. 28, 1972, weekly casualty figures for the Vietnam War contain no U.S. fatalities for the first time since March 1965. Losses remained high among South Vietnamese forces, which had taken over the fighting.

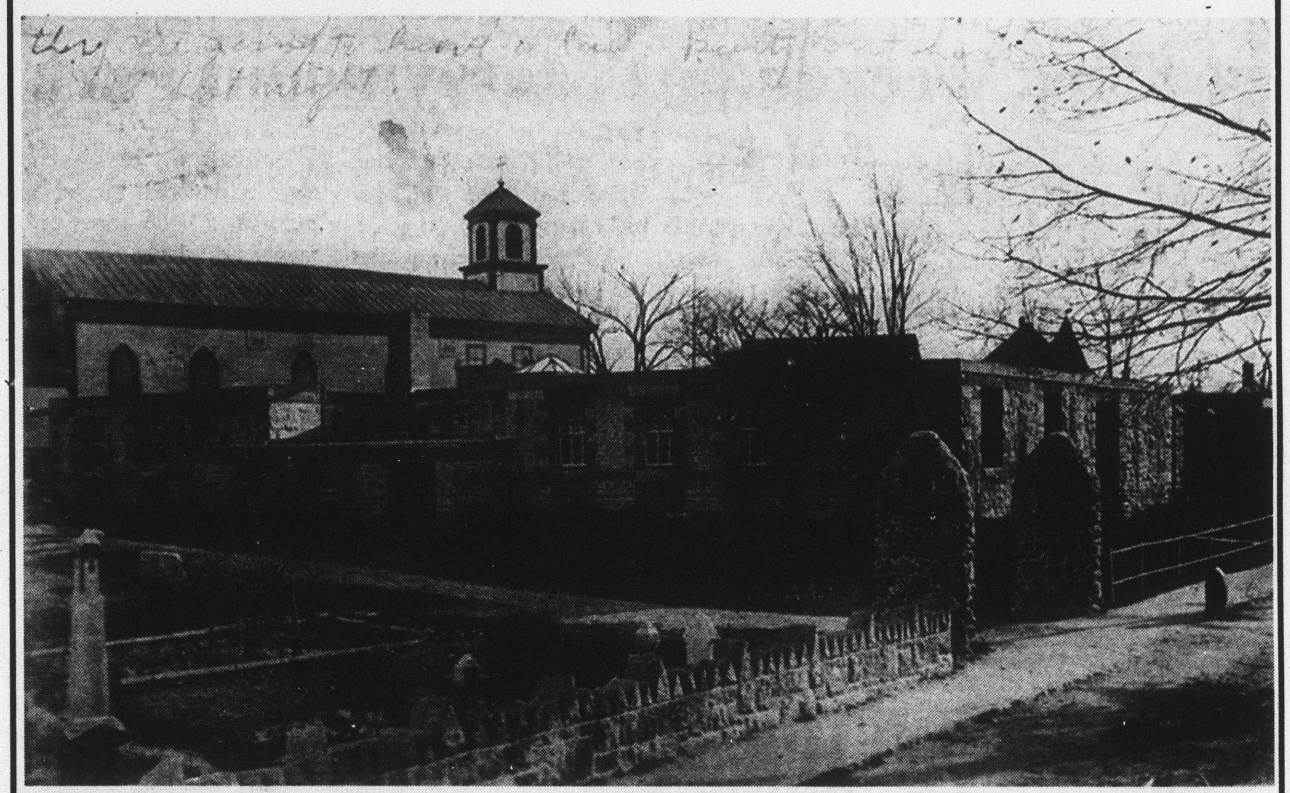
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS 1909 real photo postcard is a view of the rear of St. Mary's Church on Crescent Street in West Quincy. This photo is from what is now Fr. McMahon Drive. The basement portion of the church as shown here was built in 1901; Archbishop Williams laid the cornerstone. The top of the church was added in 1917. In the left background is the original church building built in 1841. It was built for the Irish immigrants who came to work in the granite quarries. It was dedicated by Bishop Fenwick as the first Catholic Church south of Boston and served people as far south as Plymouth. Later known as St. Joseph's Hall that building site is now a parking lot. In the left foreground is a corner of St. Mary's Cemetery. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Peabody-Bellotti Contest State Primary Highlight

The contest between Governor Endicott Peabody and Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti for the Democratic nomination for governor is one of the few big interest ballot battles in the primaries on Thursday.

Although G.O.P. contests are few and far between, a few were being hotly contested.

Selectman Ralph Amabile of Weymouth and Attorney William D. Weeks of Cohasset were seeking to wrest the G.O.P. nomination in the Norfolk and Plymouth Senatorial District away from veteran Senator Newland Holmes. Both Sen. Holmes and Mr. Weeks had received endorsements from G.O.P. leaders in the district. (Editor's note: Bill Weeks would defeat Sen. Holmes in the primary and go on to win the senate seat in the final election.)

MAYOR ORDERS COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT AUTO TICKETS

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said that he had already ordered City Treasurer Thomas J. Sheerin to notify the Registry of Motor Vehicles of delinquent auto excise taxes for 1963 and prior years.

The mayor's statement came in response to an announcement last week by Council President Joseph J. LaRaia that he would ask the mayor to take such action. Mr. LaRaia, charging that Quincy's becoming a "soft touch" for delinquent taxpayers asked Mr. Sheerin to investigate.

Mayor Della Chiesa said he concurred with Council President LaRaia "that all people who owe the City of Quincy money should make every effort to pay."

"I have issued statements of this nature from time to time since I have been mayor."

QUINCY YARD GETS $64,950,273 CONTRACT

The Navy Bureau of Ships has awarded a $64,950,273 contract to the General Dynamics Electric Boat Division in Quincy for conversion and outfitting of three World War II tankers for tracking service for the Apollo Moon Shot Program.

The announcement of the contract award was made by Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) and Senator Edward M. Kennedy (D-MA).

The ships would be deployed in positions around the world to track and communicate with the Apollo manned space vehicles destined to take United States astronauts to the moon and back, hopefully within this decade. (Editor's note: They made it!)

QUINCYISMS

The City Council unanimously called for steps to get Lowe Fallon's Quarry into operation as sanitary landfill dump… Sheridan's Fashion Center, Hancock Street, Quincy Center, was advertising: "Electrical Automatics, (Silex Drink Mixers and Coffee Makers) for $8.99 each"… Capitol Supermarkets was advertising: "US Grade A Maine Fresh Killed Chickens for 28 cents a pound"… John E. Donovan, 116 Russell Street, North Quincy, a Boston College graduate, was promoted to auditing officer at the First National Bank of Boston… August V. Johnson, 11 Verchild Street, South Quincy, recently celebrated his 90th birthday. A native of Sweden, he had lived in Quincy since 1881… Shop N' Save, South Quincy, was advertising: "Genuine Spring Lamb Legs, Oven Ready Whole, 59 cents a pound"… Three new teachers at the Squantum Elementary School included: Miss Joan Tieman, third grade, Miss Barbara Golden, first grade, and Mr. Morris Hibbard, sixth grade. Mr. Hibbard previously taught at the Pollard School for eight years… Circulation at the North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library increased 70 percent over that of the old branch during the past year, Assistant Librarian Dorothy E. Newton reported. The new branch opened on Sept. 9, 1963. This represents an increase from 65,099 to 111,261 volumes circulated… Political newcomer Robert F. Denvir defeated William A. Palmer to win the Republican nomination for State Representative in the Second Norfolk District. Denvir, who will face incumbent Charles L. Shea in the November election, polled 529 votes to Palmer's 493 votes.

KEEPING UP WITH THE RED SOX

The Boston Red Sox were in 8th place in the ten-team American League with a 61-80 record, 23 games behind the first place Baltimore Orioles. Carl Yastrzemski, Red Sox outfielder, was listed among the American League's top batters with a .294 average, while Dick "Stone Fingers" Stuart was fourth in the AL in home runs with 30.

Encourages Folks To Attend Electric Car Showcase

As a resident who loves my electric car, I am writing to encourage people to attend the "Quincy Drives Electric/Electric Car Showcase" on Friday Sept. 15th from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Farmers Market.

The event is part of "National Electric Drive Week," a celebration for communities to highlight the clean-air benefits, cost-savings and fun of electric vehicles (EVs).

Quincy's Electric Car Showcase will feature information about different models of plug-in EVs, and federal, state and other incentives available to buyers. There will be several EV models displayed at the event, as well as local EV owners and dealers available to answer questions.

I didn't realize how easy and beneficial it would be to make the switch from gas to electric until I was able to touch various EVs and speak with owners myself last year – which is why I'd encourage everyone who may be considering buying or leasing a car in the near future to attend this event.

My Chevy Volt is roomy and fun to drive - with super-quick acceleration from a stop, typical of electric motors. I received substantial state and dealer incentives that made it very affordable to lease, and I'm saving hundreds of dollars per year on fuel and maintenance costs. Equally important for me is that more EVs on the roads means cleaner air in our cities, less greenhouse gas emissions contributing to climate change, and better energy security for the country.

I like being part of the solution…while driving past the gas stations on my commute.

I hope to see you at the Quincy Farmers Market on Sept. 15th!

LEDs: Great Deal For Pocketbooks And The Environment

As of this writing, the conversion of all Quincy streetlights and city-owned floodlights to super-efficient LEDs is more than one-third complete.

Quincy Climate Action Network applauds Mayor Koch for this important achievement. Between savings on the city's electric bill, savings on streetlight maintenance, and incentives from the state and National Grid, the LED conversion will pay for itself in less than six years. After that, the estimated $400,000-plus in annual savings will go into the pockets of taxpayers.

The project will also save more than 2 million kilowatt hours per year, and spare us the effects of the climate-changing greenhouse gases and toxic pollutants that would have resulted from the production of all that electric power. In a time of unprecedented violent weather and federal government retreat from climate action, it's just the kind of action all municipalities should be taking.

Even greater savings, both in money and greenhouse gas emissions, can be realized if we all take a hint from the city's example and convert our own lamps and lighting fixtures to LED bulbs. With some local stores selling LEDs for a dollar each or even less, LEDs in fixtures that are used for an average of three hours a day will save enough electricity to pay for themselves in less than two months, and that's not even accounting for the extra long life of LEDs—21 times the life of an average incandescent bulb.

It's hard to think of a better deal for our pocketbooks or the environment.

City Celebrates The Arts This Weekend At Merrymount Park

the popular event has grown in size, visitors and offerings.

This Saturday and Sunday starting at 10 a.m. the event will still take place in Merrymount Park but for the third year will be located at Adams Field. There will still be the Juried Art and Photography Show which now features some of the finest art and photography from the South Shore and beyond as the event has become a must exhibit venue which attracts thousands each day.

This year's growth includes a special collection of art collected from the Quincy Public Schools to be added to the young members show and for the third year will host the Quincy Symphony Orchestra with an open air concert perfect for residents of all ages. The Symphony will be sponsored by QATV.

With the constant support of the volunteers of the Quincy Art Association and with continued support of Mayor Thomas Koch, who as the director of the Quincy Park Department and was a charter member of the first group to start the event, the Artsfest has expanded through the years to become the premiere celebration of the arts for the families of Quincy and the South Shore.

The departments of Parks and Recreation will offer a wide variety of free activities on an ongoing schedule during the two days, participants can ride a pony, take a hay ride through scenic Merrymount Park on an authentic hay wagon, play a game of gaga ball, or use multiple blow up bouncy houses and obstacle challenge, all for free.

The art association will bring back its popular large "you paint it mural" that has young artists each take a turn painting various sections of the mural in their own way in the fashion of completing a coloring book. When completed the work of art remains on exhibition. The Art Association will also have demonstrations during the two days by its members of various forms of art.

All the entertainment is free and will feature performances by nationally recognized children's performers the Toe Jam Band, and the Vanessa Trien Interactive children's show. Some home grown talent from the Forbes School of Irish Dance, Center Stage Dance Studio and Velocity Dance Studio is also scheduled.

For a small fee young and young-at-heart may paint a pumpkin, mold a sculpture in clay or have a caricature done or their face painted and a variety of other arts and crafts.

Artists have demonstrated their enthusiasm with over three hundred photographs and art work having been entered in this year's show for judging and display. Most are available for purchase in the following categories: Juried Art for members and non-members; Member art in oil, water color, pastel and drawings. Photography entries include both color and black and white, and those with special effects.

There is a special exhibit and award for Best of Quincy Photo and Art Work. The Children's tent and awards is supported by the Janet Burke Mann foundation for the Arts, Individual crafts vendors will be set up all around the venue with a wide variety of goods offered for sale.

Throughout the event there is an open air snack bar with a wide variety of family affordable food and drink and a pavilion area to enjoy a snack of a meal. Ample parking is available on Merrymount Parkway, or the Pagent Field lot in the Park

Friends Of Blue Hills Celebration Oct. 5 At Hoosic Club

The Friends of the Blue Hills will host their annual celebration on Thursday, Oct. 5, from 7 to 9 p.m. at The Hoosic Club, 193 Central Ave., Milton.

The evening will include hors d'oeuvres, silent auction, and the presentation of the organization's 2017 Community Partners Awards.

Tickets are $35 if purchased by Oct. 2 and $40 at the door and are available at www.FriendsoftheBlueHills.org/Celebrate17.

Keynote speaker will be Peter Gittleman from Historic New England. He supervises the visitor experience at the organization's 37 sites, including the Eustis Estate in Milton. The Eustis Estate is a rare surviving example of late 19th architecture which sits on 80 acres of picturesque landscape at the base of the Blue Hills. Gittleman, an entertaining and popular speaker, will discuss the history of the estate and its significance to the Blue Hills Reservation.

There will also be a special raffle as part of the festivities: a gourmet dinner for six at the top of the Blue Hills Observatory, catered by The Townshend in Quincy. The Townshend just won the "Best of Boston" award for General Excellence-South.

Tickets for the raffle are $15 each or 3/$35 and can be purchased at www.FriendsoftheBlueHills.org/Raffle2017.

For more information, email info@FriendsoftheBlueHills.org or call 617-696-8248.

What If . . . Workbook Program Oct. 18

What if something unexpected were to happen to you?

Would your family or trusted friend know about your finances, who to contact, your important documents (are they in place?), final wishes, family medical history?

Join the Quincy Council on Aging for a 40-minute presentation by Scituate author Gwen Morgan at the Kennedy Center on Wednesday Oct. 18th at 10:30 a.m.

Morgan will share with us her What If ...Workbook, a fill-in-the-blank organizational guide created and inspired by her work with hospice, the elderly and personal experience. She will discuss finances, contacts, legal documents, final wishes, family medical history, legacy and much more.

Books will be available for purchase. Light refreshments will be provided.

Registration is required. To register call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Quincy Homestead Open For Free Tours Saturday

Corner Of Butler Road, Hancock Street

The Quincy Homestead will be open for the last time this season on Saturday, Sept. 16th, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. with free tours every half hour (last tour beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The historic home is located at the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road in Quincy Center.

Children of all ages will be welcome to try their hands at early colonial games and learn about the roles those their age played in helping their families survive the long winters in a world without grocery stores, electricity or internet opportunities. The gardens, beautifully kept by volunteers, portray their own record of importance and beauty, while the mansion's architecture offers a time capsule repertoire of changes in taste.

What is today known as the Dorothy Quincy Homestead is owned by the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) in public/private partnership with The National Society of The Colonial Dames in The Commonwealth of Massachusetts (NSCDA-MA).

For more information about the house, private tours, gardens and grounds, call (617) 742-3190 or email dames@nscdama.org.

QCAP Hosts 6th Annual Best Chef Challenge Oct. 5

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) invites guests to cook up some fun at its 6th Annual Best Chef fundraising event Thursday, Oct. 5 at 6 p.m. at Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy.

The competition features some of the area's most celebrated chefs in a battle of culinary skills.

Susan Wornick will serve as master of ceremonies.

Battling for the Best Chef title this year will be:

Paul Wahlberg of Alma Nove in Hingham & Wahlburgers; Chef Collin Davis of The Townshend & Belfry Hall in Quincy; Chef Tony DeRienzo of Abby Park, Novara & Cypress Catering in Milton; Chef Brian Houlihan of Trident in Hingham, The Tinker's Son in Norwell, Bia Bistro in Cohasset, & Galley Kitchen & Bar in Scituate; and Chef Pino Maffeo of il Molo in Boston & Captain Fishbones in Quincy.

The challenge: In a race against the clock, the chefs must use a basket of secret ingredients commonly provided by QCAP's Southwest Community Food Center – the organization's food pantry. Using only a convection oven and a handful of portable burners, they must take these basic ingredients and create a gourmet dish. Past ingredients have included corn flakes, canned green beans, and peanut butter.

All guests can sample dishes from the chefs' restaurants as part of the "People's Choice" competition.

The night will also feature raffles and live and silent auctions, including vacation packages, sporting and entertainment event tickets; autographed memorabilia; fine art; jewelry; and golf, restaurant, and spa gift certificates.

Tickets are $100 per person and $175 per couple. Event proceeds will benefit QCAP programs, which serves more than 20,000 unduplicated people annually in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton, Hull, and more than 80 surrounding Norfolk County, South Shore, and Metro Boston communities. For 52 years, QCAP has been the leading, non-profit organization in the Greater Quincy area dedicated to reducing poverty and helping low-income families achieve economic security.

In addition to the Southwest Community Food Center, services include adult education and workforce development, financial education, including money management and credit repair counseling, job coaching and placement, Head Start and Early Head Start, access to quality and affordable early education and care, family engagement activities, heating assistance and weatherization, homebuyer education, mortgage foreclosure counseling, affordable housing, homelessness prevention, and housing services.

Major sponsors include: Santander Bank; United Way of Massachusetts Bay & Merrimack Valley; Rockland Trust; Bank of Canton; Mutual of America; Stop & Shop; Woodard & Curran; Anodyne Medical Services; The Law Office of George Burke; Granite Links Golf Club; Loomis Sayles; and Murphy, Hesse, Toomey & Lehane.

WHAT'S COOKING with Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Easy Roast Beef

By MARIE

I don't think you will ever have an easier or more delicious recipe as today's and especially if you are a fan of roast beef.

Recently, my daughter, Ann Marie, invited me to her home for roast beef dinner, and I could not believe how tender and flavorful it was. You will too when you try this entree.

RECIPE

2 to 3 pound roast (more if needed) and you can use any favorite cut of beef.
Flour – enough to coat the entire roast
Salt and pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 500 degrees, add salt and pepper to the flour and roll the beef in the flour until well coated including at all around the edges.

Place the beef in a slightly greased baking pan. (You can use olive oil to grease the pan).

Place in the oven for 3 minutes per pound then turn oven off and let set for 1 and 1/2 hours.

Slice when cooled. It is delicious!!

P.S. If you want to flavor the roast beef you can add any flavoring you like to the flour in addition to the salt and pepper, such as garlic powder.

Peanut Butter Fudge

By SUSIE

Sometimes you need something rich and sweet.

Here is a delicious "fudge" recipe using just a few ingredients. Coconut oil (unrefined) is a healthy food/fat and the information recently put out saying it was not has been debunked. This is simple and delectable.

Good for you too if you don't eat the whole pan!

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE

2 cups coconut flakes
1 cup unsweetened peanut butter (OR sunbutter if peanut allergy)
1/2 cup melted virgin unrefined coconut oil
2-4 tablespoons maple syrup (to taste)
1 pinch of sea salt (if peanut butter not salted)

Line a loaf tin with parchment paper

In a food processor (ideally a small one) blend the coconut flakes until smooth. You may need to stop and scrape down the sides often. Add in the peanut butter and coconut oil and blend until smooth. Now add your sweetener of choice, 1 tablespoon at a time so that you can achieve your desired level of sweetness. Add salt if desired.

Pour into your tin and pop into the fridge or freezer until firm. Slice with a hot knife into small squares (it's rich!) and store in the fridge in an airtight container, unless consumed first of course.

Hospital Hill Architectural Tour

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program and the Adams National Historical Park will host a free architectural tour of Hospital Hill on Saturday, Sept. 23 at 2 p.m.

Marianne Peak, superintendent, and Kelly Cobble, curator, Adams National Historical Park, and Tony Ricci, AIA, Chairperson, Quincy Historical Commission, will lead a stroll through the first floor of the Beale House and its garden, followed by a steep walk up Presidents Lane and down Monroe Road to view some architecturally lovely historic homes, including the home of Charles Francis Adams.

The tour will also feature some of the most magnificent beech trees in Quincy.

Learn about three women physicians who lived and worked in the Beale House beginning in the 1940s and the sea captain who built the house.

The tour will begin at the entrance to the driveway of the Beale House (a yellow house next to Peace field), 181 Adams St. Limited parking is available on Adams Street.

Bring water, sunscreen and a hat. No registration is required.

For more information and rain date rescheduling, call 617-472-0799.

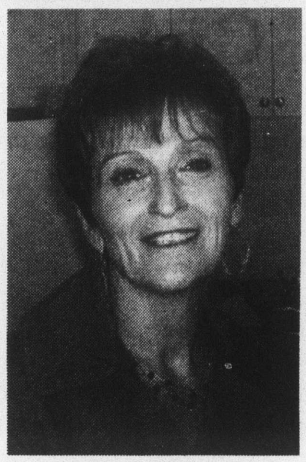
Varicose Veins: Signs, Treatment Options

A Message From The Quincy Health Department



RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-F

Varicose veins are twisted, engorged veins.

Any vein may become varicose, but the veins most usually affected are those in your legs and feet. That's because standing and walking upright intensifies the pressure in the veins of your lower body.

For many people, varicose veins and spider veins, a mild variation of varicose veins, are merely a cosmetic concern. For others, varicose veins lead to more-severe problems. Varicose veins may also indicate a higher risk of other circulatory problems.

Varicose veins may not cause any pain. Signs you may have with varicose veins include:

- Veins that are dark purple or blue in color
- Veins that appear gnarled and bulging; often like cords on your legs

When painful signs and symptoms occur, they may include:

- An achy or heavy feeling in your legs
- Burning, throbbing, muscle cramping and swelling in your lower legs
- Worsened pain after sitting or standing for a long time
- Itching around one or more of your veins
- Bleeding from varicose veins
- A painful cord in the vein with red discoloration of the skin
- Color changes, hardening of the vein, inflammation of the skin or skin ulcers near your ankle, which can mean you have a serious form of vascular disease that necessitates medical attention.

Causes of varicose veins can include:

- Age. As you get older, your veins can lose elasticity, causing them to stretch. The valves in your veins may become weak, permitting blood that should be moving toward your heart to flow backward. Blood pools in your veins and your veins enlarge and become varicose. The veins appear blue because they contain deoxygenated blood, which is in the process of being recirculated through the lungs.
- Pregnancy. Varicose veins may appear for the first time or may worsen during late pregnancy, when your uterus exerts greater pressure on the veins in your legs. Pregnancy also increases the volume of blood in your body, but decreases the flow of blood from your legs to your pelvis. This circulatory alteration is designed to support the maturing fetus, but it can inadvertently result in enlarged veins in your legs. Variations in your hormones during pregnancy also may play a role. Varicose veins that develop during pregnancy typically improve without medical treatment three to 12 months after delivery.

These factors increase your risk of developing varicose veins:

- Age. The risk of varicose veins increases with age. Aging causes wear and tear on the valves in your veins that assist in regulating blood flow. Eventually, that deterioration causes the valves to permit some blood to flow back into your veins where it collects instead of flowing up to your heart.
- Sex. Women are more likely to develop varicosities. Hormonal changes during pregnancy, premenstruation or menopause may be factors since female hormones have a tendency to relax vein walls. Taking hormone replacement therapy or birth control pills may increase your risk of varicose veins.
- Family history. If other family members had varicose veins, there's an increased chance you will also.
- Obesity. Being overweight exerts added pressure on your veins.
- Standing or sitting for long periods of time. Your blood doesn't flow as efficiently if you're in the same position for long periods of time.

To diagnose varicose veins, your health care provider will perform a physical exam, including inspecting your legs while you're standing to check for swelling. Your doctor may also inquire about any pain and aching in your legs. To see if the valves in your veins are functioning normally or if there's any evidence of a blood clot, an ultrasound may be necessary.

Self-care measures, such as exercising, losing weight, wearing loose-fitting clothes, elevating your legs, and avoiding long periods of standing or sitting can alleviate pain and prevent varicose veins from worsening. Wearing compression stockings is often the initial approach undertaken before progressing on to other treatments. Compression stockings steadily squeeze your legs, assisting veins and leg muscles to transport blood more efficiently. If you don't respond to self-care or compression stockings, or if your condition is more severe, one of the following treatments may be suggested:

- Sclerotherapy. In this procedure, your doctor injects small and medium sized varicose veins with a solution that scars and closes those veins. In a few weeks, treated varicose veins should fade.
- Laser surgeries. Laser surgery works by delivering strong bursts of light onto the vein, which makes the vein slowly fade and disappear without the need for incisions or needles. Advanced technology in laser treatments now allow physicians to close off smaller varicose veins and spider veins.
- High ligation and vein stripping. This procedure involves tying off a vein before it joins a deep vein and removing the vein through small incisions. This is primarily an outpatient procedure for most people. Removing the vein won't negatively affect circulation in your leg because veins deeper in the leg maintain the larger volumes of blood.
- Ambulatory Phlebectomy. Your doctor removes smaller varicose veins through a series of tiny skin punctures. Only the parts of your leg that are being punctured are numbed in this outpatient procedure. Scarring is usually minimal.
- Endoscopic vein surgery. This procedure may be necessary only in an advanced case involving leg ulcers or if other techniques prove to be unsuccessful. Your surgeon uses a thin video camera inserted in your leg to visualize and close varicose veins and then removes the veins through small incisions. This procedure is performed on an outpatient basis.

There's no way to totally prevent varicose veins. But improving your circulation and muscle tone can reduce your risk of developing varicose veins or acquiring additional ones. The same measures you can take to treat the discomfort from varicose veins at home can help prevent varicose veins, including:

- Exercising
- Watching your weight
- Eating a high-fiber, low-salt diet
- Avoiding high heels and tight hosiery
- Avoid sitting with legs crossed
- Elevating your legs
- Changing your sitting or standing position regularly

BID Hospital-Milton Smoke-Free Campus Nov. 17

Joining the majority of hospitals in Massachusetts seeking to safeguard the health of patients, visitors and staff, Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton (BID-Milton) announces plans to make its campus and grounds completely smoke free on Friday, Nov. 17.

Smoking cigarettes, the use of tobacco products (including chewing tobacco and "snuff"), e-cigarettes or "vapes" and medical marijuana will not be allowed on the hospital's property, including buildings, grounds, parking lots and parking deck.

This ban also includes the Lintz Medical Office Building, which is located on BID-Milton's campus.

The revised hospital policy comes in response to numerous studies which clearly highlight the health risk tobacco products and second-hand smoke pose to both users and bystanders.

"Without question, smoking and tobacco use in and around the hospital can pose health and safety risks. As the community's health-care leader, BID-Milton has a unique responsibility to provide a clean, safe and healthy environment for our patients, visitors and staff," said Rich Fernandez, president and CEO of the hospital. "This revised policy is not a campaign against people who smoke or use tobacco or tobacco-like products, rather it is an additional way for the hospital to protect the health and safety of our community and staff."

BID-Milton now joins all the affiliated hospitals in the Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center network in becoming a smoke free campus. The hospital banned smoking in all areas except for a designated smoking hut located on the first floor of the ED parking deck many years ago. The new policy being implemented on Nov. 17 will ban smoking on the hospital's property entirely.

"As members of the health care community, we witness the devastating toll that tobacco takes on the lives of our patients, family and friends. Smoking is recognized as the leading cause of many serious illnesses and exposure to secondhand smoke is proven to cause heart disease and lung cancer," added Kathleen Harrington, vice president of human resources for the hospital. "We realize the revised policy may be a challenge for some but ask for understanding and compliance."

To assist with implementing the revised policy, the hospital is currently offering smoking cessation classes for its employees. Additionally, a Nicotine Anonymous group meeting, open to the public, is held at the hospital every Monday evening at 5:30 p.m. in the OR Conference Room.

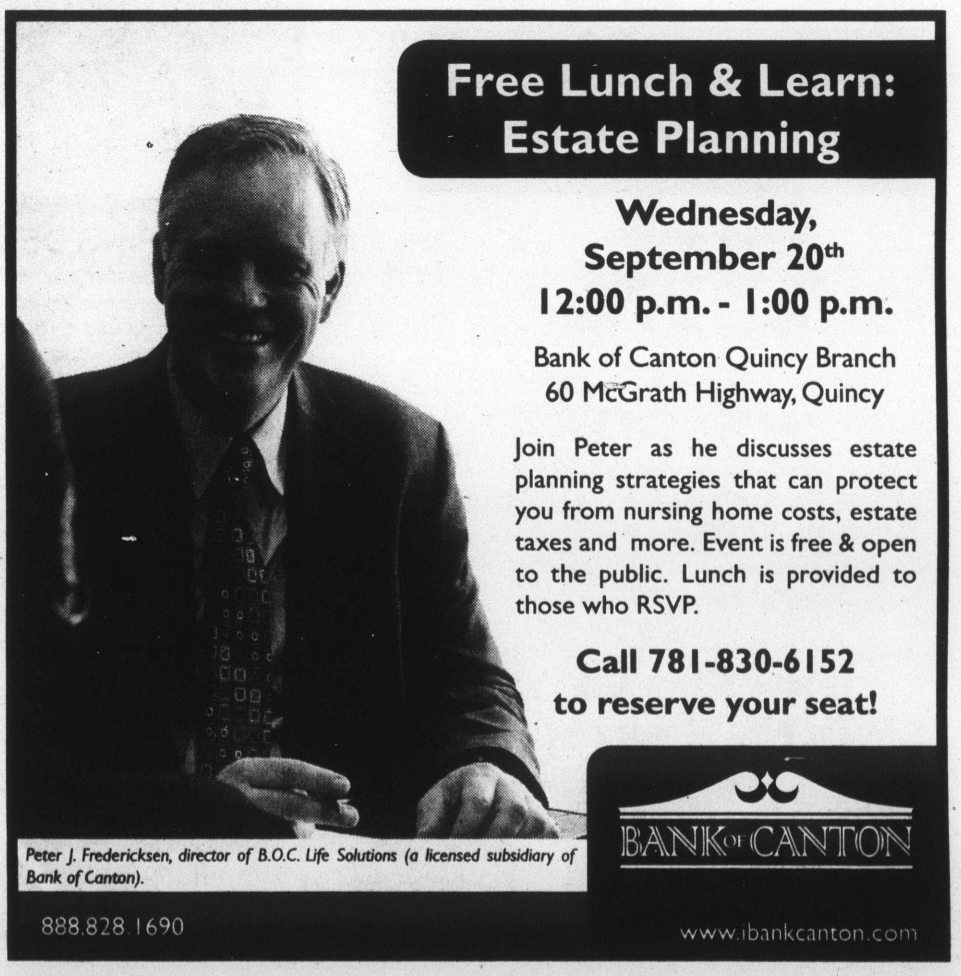
SS Mental Health Seeks Walkers, Runners, And Bikers For Athletic Festival Sept. 23

Friends and supporters of South Shore Mental Health will convene at Wompatuck State Park in Hingham Saturday, Sept. 23 to take part in The McCourt Foundation's Tour de South Shore Athletic Festival.

The annual event, which raises funds to support the fight against neurological diseases and other non-profit causes, will offer a 5K walk or fun run, a 12-mile off-road bike ride, or a 25- or 50-mile bike ride where participants can be part of an established team, a team of their own, or take part as individuals. Post-event activities will include a tailgate lunch featuring food and beverages from south shore restaurants and entertainment within the athlete's village.

As one of The McCourt Foundation's non-profit partners for this year's festival, South Shore Mental Health will receive 80 percent of all proceeds raised by its team. Funds will benefit the organization's Basic Needs Fund which provides financially disadvantaged clients with food, clothing, shelter, and other daily essentials.

To register for the event, make a donation, or learn more, visit www.ssmh.org or contact South Shore Mental Health's Director of Marketing and Development, Margaret Carr at 617-774-1017 or mcarr@ssmh.org.



Girls K-12 Invited To Join Girl Scouts

Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts (GSEMA) invites all girls in grades K-12 to discover fun, friendship, and adventure as part of the largest girl-led organization in the world

Back to school means back to troop with Discover Girl Scouts events taking place in communities throughout eastern Massachusetts. Girls and their families are invited to learn more; beyond troop membership, GSEMA offers hundreds of programs annually to satisfy a range of girls' interests, including outdoor adventure, STEM (science, technology, engineering and math), community service, art, music and more.

This year, Girl Scouts is introducing 23 new STEM and outdoor badges for girls of all ages, and there are more ways than ever to unleash the power of every G.I.R.L. (Go-getter, Innovator, Risk-taker, Leader)™ .

At a time when only 39 percent of Massachusetts girls choose a STEM college major and girls can feel not as smart as boys by age six, Girl Scouts is an essential resource for caregivers, especially those trying to counter societal gender bias. Girl Scouts is a unique, proven leadership development program that pairs girls with strong, caring female role models and mentors who prepare them to take the lead. Within Girl Scouts' supportive, girl-centric environment for learning and taking healthy risks, girls can pursue their passions, bond with new besties, build their own cookie business, enjoy the thrill of the outdoors, help their community, and discover other exciting activities.

"When a girl enters a safe, girl-only space to discover new skills, she can unleash a wellspring of potential. She gains an appreciation for STEM fields, the outdoors, community service, and more, while building the confidence to lead, the courage to make change, and the character to stand up for what she believes," says Patricia A. Parcellin, chief executive officer of Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts. "Innovative programming has made Girl Scouts the preeminent girl leadership organization for 105 years, a place where girls continue to find their path to a lifetime of success."

FOCUS ON OUTDOORS AND STEM

One of the foundations of Girl Scouts is an appreciation for nature and exposure to the great outdoors. With new outdoors badges and related activities for girls as young as kindergarten age, Girl Scouts experience the outdoors in a new light while gaining a sense of self, developing positive values, and sparking an interest in environmental stewardship.

Girl Scouts has also expanded its offerings of STEM activities and badges to address girls' lack of exposure to this 21st century skill set. Girl Scouts can design robots, write code, plan environmentally conscious camping trips, collect data in the great outdoors, or try their hand at engineering.

Additionally, Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts is one of several councils nationwide selected to test new space science badges in the "Reach for the Stars" initiative supported by GSUSA, NASA and SETI Institute.

For more information about new Girl Scouts badges, visit gsema.org.

RESOURCES FOR VOLUNTEERS

New program resources are available to volunteers through the recently expanded online Volunteer Toolkit, Girl Scouts' first "digital assistant" for troop leaders. Launched in the fall of 2016, the "VTK" allows volunteers to plan meetings more easily, customize activities, track important information, communicate with families, and, ultimately, support amazing experiences for girls all in one place.

Girl Scouts' effectiveness in building leaders is proven: in the U.S., 90 percent of female astronauts, 80 percent of female tech leaders, 75 percent of current senators, and 50 percent of female business owners are Girl Scout alumnae.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
KEEPING DENTURES CLEAN

Unless dentures are cleaned daily and properly maintained, they will accumulate food particles and "plaque" (bacterial film) that can lead to bad breath, inflamed gums, and even chronic disease. With this in mind, denture wearers are strongly urged to either brush their prosthetic teeth or soak them in a cleaning solution. Arguably, the best cleaning method is brushing with toothpaste. However, for those who experience difficulty brushing their dentures effectively, soaking can remove as much plaque as brushing. For short soaks of about 15 minutes, enzymatic and effervescent solutions are probably equally effective at removing plaque. For longer soaks up to eight hours, enzyme denture-cleaning solutions may be preferable. Rinse dentures well regardless of the cleaning method.

Dentures have been in use for more than 2,000 years, and today these substitutes for missing natural teeth have never been more effective, easy to use, comfortable, and appealing. However, you still need to take care of them as well as your oral hygiene with regular professional checkups and scrupulous home care. At our offices, we utilize only the latest in dental technology for your care and comfort. Located at 44 Greenleaf Street, you can reach us at 617 479-6220. We create great smiles!

P.S. When cleaning dentures, avoid using abrasive materials such as brushes with stiff bristles, whitening toothpastes, and products containing bleach, all of which can damage dentures.

Social Security Matters

Survivor's Benefits And The RIB LIM (Benefit Limit)

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: My friend and I, both very recently widowed, were discussing our future and, based upon the suggestion of other friends, need to explore applying to Social Security for survivor's benefits. We've tried to research this online and by talking to another widowed friend, but we've ended up more uncertain than ever about whether we're even eligible. We're both in our 50s, and we sure could use some help understanding our options. Signed: Needing to Know

Dear Needing: To tackle this somewhat complicated topic, let's first understand that the Full Retirement Age (FRA) for widows and widowers is different from Social Security's normal full retirement age. Widow(er)s get a two year dispensation on their birthdate, meaning that their FRA is computed as though they were born two years earlier than their actual birthdate, resulting in an earlier FRA (which affects when they can collect their full survivor's benefit). The eligibility rules for survivor's benefits are as follows:

• Widow(er)s become eligible for reduced survivor's benefits at age 60 (50 if they're disabled) rather than the normal 62, and they must have been married to the deceased for at least 9 months (unless the death was accidental).

• Widow(er)s may be eligible for survivor's benefits at any age if they are caring for the deceased's dependent child who is under 16 years of age, or child who is disabled and collecting benefits based on the deceased's work record. Note, too, that in addition to the widow(er), dependent children under the age of 18 (or 19 if still in school) may be able to receive survivor's benefits also.

• A widow(er) who remarries before becoming eligible cannot collect survivor's benefits on the deceased spouse's record; remarriage after age 60 (or age 50 if disabled) is okay.

• The survivor eligibility requirement for divorced spouses is different. A divorced spouse must have been married to the deceased for at least 10 years and divorced for at least 2 years to be eligible for widow(er)s benefits.

Although you may be eligible to receive survivor benefits earlier than your full retirement age, to do so will mean that your benefit will be reduced by as much as 28.5%. Waiting beyond your initial eligibility date will earn another 0.00475% for each month deferred, up to the "widow limit", often referred to as RIB LIM (Retirement Insurance Benefit Limit). If the survivor starts benefits earlier than their FRA, RIB LIM caps their benefit at the larger of a) the amount the deceased would receive if he or she were still alive, or b) if the deceased claimed prior to their FRA, 82.5% of the deceased's benefit at FRA.

To simplify what this means, if the deceased started benefits at FRA or later, the widow(er) would (at FRA) be entitled to 100% of the amount the deceased was collecting. But if the deceased had started benefits before their FRA, the widow(er) would (at FRA) be entitled to a minimum of 82.5% of the amount the deceased's primary insurance amount (PIA), the amount the deceased would have gotten at FRA. Basically, the "widow's limit", or RIB LIM, only applies if the deceased started benefits before their full retirement age.

And one final note: While waiting until your widow's full retirement age to apply will give you the largest payment, since survivor's benefits do not earn Delayed Retirement Credits there is no reason to wait beyond your full retirement age to start collecting. And if your deceased spouse or ex-spouse took their benefit early, you may actually reach the maximum survivor benefit before you reach your widow FRA.

Schools Aim To Ramp Up Substance Abuse Prevention

has a significant timeline in everything we are doing with partners and events," he said.

DeCristofaro said health teachers are continuously looking at programs to take on the substance abuse crisis. He said a timeline and a list of the district's programs would be made available.

Lebo suggested that a presentation be made at a future school committee meeting to outline the district's substance abuse programs.

"I'd like people to see it," she said.

Bailey also said the district has partnered with South Shore Hospital that will be offering its various health programs. The hospital's representatives will be attending the school department's third annual health symposium on Oct. 18.

"They will come to talk about the its programs for students, staff and parents," Bailey said. "They can tailor the programs for the specific groups. We're really excited to have them this year."

The hospital's programs would be available during the school day, after school and nights at the parent academies.

Bailey noted the health department is increasing communication with parents about health information. She said each school's website has a health page where links to different websites are available.

Additionally, the health page includes a breakdown of fats, sugars and carbohydrates in lunch foods.

"Everything nurses need if they are working with a student who has diabetes," said Bailey.

The health subcommittee is also looking to increase wellness programs.

Papile said another program offered is training guidance counselors how to teach respect among cultures.

Bregoli questioned about having a program dealing with physical and mental abuse.

"(We should) have a program where the female population can go to someone," he said.

Papile said the district has an ongoing partnership with DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) to help deal with the issue.

"They come in and do peer leadership training so they can have advocacy groups in each high school," she said, adding that the boys to men's group has such a program.

Bregoli said he would like the program presented systemically.

In other business, the facilities subcommittee reported that water repairs are nearing completion. Last year, high levels of lead were detected in some schools' water systems necessitating bottled water to be brought in and bubblers and some sinks shut off.

Repairs at the Montclair School bathrooms have been completed and bubblers at Parker and Merrymount schools are all set. Bubbler repairs will be completed within the next week at Atlantic Middle and Squantum. The sinks at both high schools and other middle schools will then be worked on.

The policy subcommittee will be looking at moving toward a numerical grading system for the middle schools, similar to the high schools' system. Bregoli voiced concern of three different grading systems the district now has and having one consistent grading system across the board would be "easier for parents."

Point Fire Causes $100,000 In Damage

By SCOTT JACKSON

A light fixture is likely to blame for a house fire in Quincy Point that caused more than $100,000 in damage Saturday.

The fire at 11 Hitchcock Ter. was reported shortly after 10:45 a.m. on Saturday, Fire Chief Joseph Barron said. Firefighters were able to contain the fire and limit damage to a second floor bedroom and the attic above it.

"They had fire in a ceiling that they were able to contain," Barron said Monday. "The guys did a great job."

Barron said the last firefighters left the scene at 1:05 p.m. No injuries – to firefighters or those in the home at the time – were reported.

A light fixture in the ceiling of the bedroom is suspected as the cause of the fire.

"It was narrowed down to a light fixture in the ceiling," Barron said when asked if a cause had been determined.

The chief said damages were estimated to be in excess of $100,000.

13th Houghs Neck ChowdaFest Draws Over 1,000

Fox & Hound, John Carvello Top Chowda Recipe Winners

By TOM GORMAN

Over 1,000 people sampled various recipes of clam chowder during the 13th annual Houghs Neck ChowdaFest on Saturday.

Four individuals and 16 restaurants competed for the best tasting chowder during the event at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center. The lines were long at each competitor's table where samples of chowder were handed out.

"I think this might be a record attendance," said the festival's Chairman Jim McCarthy, who is president of the Houghs Neck Community Council that hosted the event.

McCarthy said each restaurant prepared about 10 gallons of chowder.

"We're going to go through about 200 gallons of chowder today," he said. "That's a lot of chowder."

In the restaurant category, the top chowders voted by the event's attendees were:

- First Place - Fox & Hound.
- Second Place - Wood Road Deli in Braintree.
- Third Place – Tony's Clam Shop.

In the individual category, John Carvello won for the sixth year. Finishing second and third were Erin McMillen and Tim Kelly respectively.

McCarthy explained that attendees cast votes for the best chowder in two categories – individual and restaurant.

"Everybody coming in pays five dollars and gets a ballot with two tickets, one for the individual category and the other for the restaurant category," he said. "They sample all the chowders then vote for their favorite."

According to McCarthy, the Houghs Neck Community Council is the oldest and most active civic association in Quincy. He said the chowder festival serves as a major fundraiser for several community events the council hosts during the year including the Easter Bunny Fun Day, the Third of July Family Fun Day and the free skate night.

"This event is important to us," McCarthy said.

In addition to chowder, there was beer and wine to wash it down with Cagney's Pub providing a service trailer. Boy Scout Troop 6 sold hot dogs and soda to raise funds for their outings and the Houghs Neck Congregational Church had a bake sale to help fund a foundation.

A YOUNGSTER dives off the pier as a crowd gathers to enjoy the water view during the 13th Annual Houghs Neck ChowdaFest.

There were several variations of clam chowder served, ranging from traditional to unique recipes.

Returning individual champions, John and Kim Carvello, were seeking their sixth crown.

John Carvello said that he used his years of experience working in restaurants to develop a non-traditional clam chowder recipe. Red Bliss potatoes, leeks, spices and heavy cream are among the ingredients.

"I put a little bit of everything together in it," he said.

A key ingredient in his recipe, Carvello explained, is roux - a combination of butter and flour that he bakes.

it, but if you bake it, it thickens (the chowder) better," he said.

Carvello said his recipe may be different, but, it's a proven winner.

"I try to do something out of the ordinary so it's different from everyone else," he said "Everyone tells me it's better than the restaurants."

Another individual competitor, Erin McMillen, takes the traditional route for her chowder.

"It's a very classic recipe, I don't do anything fancy with it," she said, adding that she uses celery, onions, potatoes, clam juice, salt, pepper and "a lot of cream and a lot of butter."

Wheelhouse Diner owner LeeAnn McDonough said she makes her chowder in-house.

"It's cream-based with bacon, celery, onions and paprika," she said. "It's yummy."

Mark Tolini, owner of Kitchen Wizard caterers of Squantum, said his recipe has been handed down through four generations of chefs.

"I've been making it 10 or 12 years, now," he said.

Tolini said he assisted his grandfather, Romeo Tolini, at parties, where he learned the recipe. When his grandfather was no longer able to make the chowder, he took it over and continued the tradition.

"It's very simple, down to earth with fresh, wholesome ingredients," he said. "There are no fillers or preservatives. It's hard to beat."

Tolini added that he is working on a gluten free chowder.

"It's almost perfected," he said.

In addition to the food, there was music with the band, Super Fly, providing the entertainment. The Quincy Police Marine Unit boat brought groups of people for an excursion of Quincy Bay.

Scores stood on the pier, enjoying the view of the bay and the Boston Harbor islands. Youngsters dove off the pier for a swim. Some sat, taking it all in and others viewed renderings of the new maritime center.

Among those sampling the chowders was Rob Andrews, his fourth time at the festival. To him, all the chowders were good.

"I haven't had one yet I didn't like," he said.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sept. 4, at approximately 11:41 a.m., Officers Ken Wood, Cheryl Potter and Jamie Parisi were dispatched to the Goodwill Store on Southern Artery for a report of a male who inappropriately touched a female inside the store. While en route, the officers were updated via radio that the male suspect was wearing a white hat, dark jacket, black jeans, in his 20s and was walking up Southern Artery towards Stop and Shop.

Within minutes, Officer Potter located a male matching the description in the parking lot of Wendy's restaurant. Officer Parisi responded to Wendy's to assist while Officer Wood continued on to interview the victim.

The victim stated she was shopping in the Goodwill store with her two children in a baby carriage in one of the back aisles when a male began walking directly towards her. She said this male said hi and continued to advance on her, getting to within one foot of her personal space. He then told her she was beautiful as he reached out and abruptly grabbed her breasts with both hands. The victim said she was shocked and attempted to stop him by walking backwards away from him.

The victim said the suspect then moved in on her again and grabbed her breasts a second time. The victim again attempted to back away from him as he said, "Wait." At this time, the suspect grabbed the handle of her baby carriage that contained her two children and then told her to stay as he attempted to grab her breasts again. The victim started screaming for help at which point a female employee quickly came over. Upon hearing the screams and seeing an employee approaching, the suspect swiftly moved out of the aisle.

As the victim told the employee what happened, the suspect became angry and began walking back over to the victim. Fearing another incident, the female employee called the manager over. The suspect then walked out of the store and the police were called. Officer Wood told the victim that other officers had a male stopped who matched the description given out and she immediately said, "I can go right now and identify him."

LT. DAN MINTON

With the assistance of Brewster Ambulance, the victim and her two children were transported to Officer Potter's location. Officer Wood rode in the ambulance with the victim and as the ambulance approached the parking lot, the victim, looking out the window pointed and yelled out, "That's him, that's him. I'm positive that's him."

Officer Wood had the ambulance move in closer and the victim yelled out, "That's him. That's the man who grabbed me." She then broke down and began to cry. She was transported back to the Goodwill store and stated she did not require any medical attention.

Officer Wood then interviewed the manager who stated he was told by an employee that an incident happened and they were pointing to the suspect. He said as he approached, the suspect said, "Nothing happened," and then walked out of the store. The manager then called the police via 911 and provided the clothing description and direction of travel of the suspect.

Officer Parisi transported the suspect, a 28-year-old Quincy resident, to the station for booking. Officer Wood spoke with Officer Potter who had initial contact with the suspect. The suspect confirmed he had been in the Goodwill store and saw a woman there. The suspect then asked to go to the hospital for a sore throat. He then without prompting said, "Father Bill's, Winter Street" to which she took that was his home address.

The suspect also said, "I take medication for my brain." The suspect was charged with two counts of indecent assault and battery.

Nice Work!

LOOKING TO WORK AS A NANNY/CAREGIVER? If you are searching for this type of job on websites such as care.com or sittercity.com, watch out for a related scam. In this case, the scammers send messages pretending to be interested in hiring you for a job as a nanny, caregiver, or pet sitter. Beware if your new "employer" asks you — with a heartfelt plea — to accept and cash a check. The scammer tells you to keep part of the money for yourself (and your labor), and send the rest to a supplier to pay for medical equipment and other special items required for the job. In reality, the check is fake (and will bounce), the money you send will go to the scammers, and you will owe the bank for the money you withdrew. Just to make matters worse, there is no job and most likely you will suffer embarrassment! People who are legitimately looking for help will never ask you to pay for the promise of a job. They'll also never ask you to deposit a check and send the money to someone else.

Koch Eyes New Police-Fire Headquarters

will be paid for using hotel tax receipts, in May.

A public hearing on the $25 million capital improvement plan, which would be paid for out of the city's general fund, is set for Sept. 18 at 6:30 p.m. and the council's finance committee will meet again to consider the items two days later.

As part of the capital plan, Koch is proposing to spend $500,000 to study a new public safety headquarters, which is included $12.84 million request for public buildings, lands and computer software upgrades.

The public safety building would be located at the corner of Sea Street and Southern Artery, where the current police station stands. The mayor wants the building to serve as a replacement for the current police station and the central firehouse now located on Quincy Avenue.

Koch, in an interview Monday, said both buildings need replacing.

"The police station, even though it was rebuilt in the '80s, is in very poor condition, very bad shape. It's easy to look back and be critical, I know, but for that kind of money we should have built a new place right behind it," the mayor said. "That's a mess. It's not adequate. It's not customer friendly for the public.

"When we look at these public buildings things, we analyze going forward what is it going to cost us to keep that building up and maintain it or to improve it. Sometimes you've just got to say – just like we do with the school buildings – it's just not worth it."

"The main firehouse is old," Koch added. "We just spent in the last few years $60,000 or $80,000 just shoring up the floors, because these stations were built for horse and wagon, not for these heavy pieces of apparatus. We've adjusted the doorway openings to get the trucks in.

"The building needs a lot of work. Again, looking at it going forward, what are the needs for roof, HVAC, etc., etc.? Does it make sense to keep pouring money into an old building like that, or... does it make sense to do something new? That's part of the plan, to look at it."

If the Fire Department relocated to the new facility, Koch said the old firehouse on Quincy Avenue would likely be retained for municipal or non-profit use, potentially an arts center. It would no longer be used as a firehouse.

"We can't afford to have a ninth fire station," Koch said. "As it is today with eight stations, we have real good coverage in a city of our size. I think Weymouth has four; they're a little bigger than us land wise. Part of it is the peninsulas, of course, but we have damn good response time and pretty good coverage in the city, so I don't think we need a ninth firehouse."

The new facility could also serve as a home to several other city departments. Koch identified the Inspectional Services Department, which is located within the Department of Public Works building at 55 Sea St.; the Health Department, which shares space at the Kennedy Center with the Council on Aging; and the Veterans Services Department, now located on High School Avenue.

"I would probably add Inspectional Services going in to that building. They're on top of each other at 55 Sea St. There's just not enough room at all," Koch said. "I'd move the Health Department to this building. The senior center has grown tremendously and they could use that space for programing down at the Kennedy Center. I would definitely move Veterans Services out of the little bungalow they're in on High School Avenue, sell that off, and put them all together.

"For purposes of permitting, for example, the Fire Department, Health Department and Inspectional Services touch a lot of the same paperwork on a lot of applications on things. Now you could consolidate it all in one building. It would be a lot easier, a lot more friendly business wise to do business as far permitting goes as well."

The new building could also be used to house city archives.

"I'd probably look at, depending on what kind of space we have there, archive space," Koch said. "We rent some space around the city for storage of old documents and materials and I think it makes sense to create a facility now that we can have and have it in climate control and going forward that stuff is protected."

The facility could also include new garage space, both for storing vehicles and servicing them.

"I'm also looking at the garage needs of some of our trucks and vehicles," Koch said. "For example, Mr. Dan Quirk has been very generous, allowing us to have the mechanic shops down at the shipyard. That's not going to last forever, so we've got to look at some new mechanical garage space that will help serve that purpose. We probably have too many expensive vehicles that are outdoors in weather."

To make way for the new building, the city plans to acquire the former Bryan Post on Broad Street. The mayor said Father Bill's Place, which is located at 38 Broad St. in a municipally-owned building, would also be impacted by the new public safety headquarters. Koch said he has had discussions with officials at Father Bill's about relocating the shelter to a different building in the same vicinity that would have enough space for programs during the day.

"Father Bill's would definitely be affected," Koch said. "We've been in discussions with them, and I don't want to speak for them, but they're looking at some new concepts, so that perhaps there is a different building a little further down or something.

"My goal with Fr. Bill's, which isn't a secret, is that we don't push these people out on the street first thing in the morning. Perhaps a facility that allows for people to stay there during the day and has computer access so that they're looking for jobs, a lunch program, etc., so they're not thrown at 7:30 or 8 in the morning."

"Hopefully we're going to come to a better understanding and agreement with Father Bill's going forward that I think will better serve their clients and also serve the city as well," Koch added.

Koch said Father Bill's plays an important in the community and Quincy could not afford to see the shelter closed outright.

"Maybe 15 years ago, Worcester just shut their homeless shelter down and the issue became worse," Koch said. "They were sleeping in doorways and businesses and it became a real problem, so they opened up something that we're looking at now which is a little different concept, which would include day program for these folks that would need that help.

"If we're going to do that it would stay in the same area. I like having it right near the police station."

Koch said there is no estimate yet for how much the new public safety building would cost. Under the best-case scenario, construction could start in 18 months.

"If everything goes well, I think we could be in the ground in 18 months," the mayor said. There is a lot of planning here, because you'd probably build a portion of the building first, then take the police station down, then build the other portion of the building."

If the plan for the new public safety building does not move forward, Koch

August Report: Reduced Sales, Mortgage Activity In Norfolk County

With reduced sales and mortgage activity, the Norfolk County real estate market faced challenges last month.

In issuing a report for activity in August, Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell said, "There are challenges taking place within the Norfolk County real estate market. The total number of real estate sales, both residential and commercial, for the month of August was 1,851, a five percent reduction from August of 2016. The average sales price for the month was $684,661, a 22 percent drop-off from the previous year.

"In addition, the total volume of real estate activity, for residential and commercial, was $872,258,838, a 26 percent decrease from the same time period in 2016. This percentage decrease, however, can be attributable in part to one transaction: the $205 million sale of Westwood Station that took place in August 2016."

Lending activity also showed reduced volume during August.

"The total number of mortgages recorded during the month was 2,631 compared to 3,511 recorded in August 2016," O'Donnell said. "The total volume of mortgage financing for the month was $1.1 billion, a 31 percent reduction year over year. Clearly, consumers are being very cautious when it comes to incurring debt."

One piece of optimistic news for the month was the reduced number of foreclosure deed filings. A total of 20 foreclosure deeds were recorded in August compared to 32 recordings in August 2016, a reduction of 38 percent. In addition, there was a significant reduction in the number of Notice to Foreclose Mortgage filings, the first step in the foreclosure process as 32 Notice to Foreclose Mortgage documents were recorded compared to 96 the previous August, amounting to a 66 percent decrease.

"While one foreclosure deed filing is one too many, I am encouraged that the trend lines continue to point in the right direction," O'Donnell said. "I want to remind those who are struggling with paying their mortgage payment that the Registry continues to have a partnership with Quincy Community Action Programs at (617) 479-8181 x-376 and Neighbor Works Southern Mass at (508) 598-0950. Back-To-School Costs Relieved For Area Families In Need

School is back in session and the financial burden families face each year to outfit their children continues to climb.

A 2017 survey by auditing and consulting firm Deloitte has estimated that parents will spend $501 on average per child for back to school purchases. While much of this total goes to clothing and electronics purchases, they estimate parents will spend over $100 for each child on school supplies such as backpacks.

While many households shoulder these costs without a second thought, there are many that struggle with these fees. With help from caring local individuals and partnering businesses, Interfaith Social Services, a multiservice center for South Shore families in need, was able to ease the burden of these annual costs for more than 500 families.

"No child should start the school year unprepared," said Rick Doane, Interfaith Social Services' executive director. "We are thrilled to be able to offer backpacks and school supplies to our clients. To defray such a significant cost for families that are already struggling to put food on the table is critical and puts emphasis on the importance of education."

During the month of August, more than 600 backpacks were distributed to Interfaith's school-age clients. Children received backpacks filled with supplies such as notebooks, folders, pencils, art supplies and more. Older children were given flash drives to aid in their computer-based projects.

This year Interfaith's annual backpack drive resulted in shelves overflowing with generous donations from the community. HarborOne Bank employees assembled and donated more than 2,000 backpacks for local kids in need this summer, 100 of which were distributed by Interfaith. Other generous donors include BlueCross Blue Shield of Massachusetts, East Congregational Church of Milton, Topco Associates LLC of Quincy and South Congregational Church of Braintree.

Corporate volunteer groups from Fast Enterprises and Arbella Insurance spent hours assembling and organizing backpack donations. Eagle Scout candidate Max Esco of Troop 110 in Hingham organized a backpack drive for his Eagle Scout project and was able to donate 70 backpacks to the cause. Countless other individuals and families stopped by with filled backpacks, including some children who purchased supplies with their own money.

"This year Interfaith Social Services is celebrating our 70th anniversary," said Doane. "South Shore residents founded our organization in 1947 to help local children and families in need. Seven decades later this backpack program harkens back to those roots of community service, neighbors helping neighbors."

August Report: Reduced Sales, Mortgage Activity In Norfolk County

Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at (617) 727-8400."

On another consumer front, Homestead recordings showed a small decrease from the previous year. A total of 1,326 Homesteads were filed in August 2017, resulting in a three percent decrease compared to the same period last year. "A Homestead is an important consumer benefit which provides limited protection against the forced sale of your primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000," noted the Register.

In conclusion, O'Donnell said:

"While I was disappointed with Norfolk County real estate numbers for August, I believe the numbers are explainable. Low levels of inventory continue to hamper real estate sales and mortgage activity financing is dampened by the slight increases in mortgage rates."

125 Celebrate Coach Mario 'Mike' Casali's 90th Birthday

Over 125 people attended a celebration of Mario Casali's 90th birthday on Aug. 20th at Furnace Brook Golf Club.

Not only were the attendees there to celebrate Casali's birthday but also to the honor the man who has touched and impacted the lives of so many during his tenure as a physical education teacher and coach at Central Junior High School as well as a guidance couinselor at Broad Meadows and Point Webster Middle Schools.

Casali was a very successful coach while at Central coaching football, basketball and baseball while there. Many in attendance told of how Mr. Casali impacted there lives and how he helped make them who they are today.

Over 20 who were there became coaches themselves at the high school level, including Ed Miller, NQ Basketball, Ted Stevenson, NQ Basketball, Jim Rendle, NQ Basketball and Volleyball,

THE CELEBRATION at the Furnace Brook Golf Club was organized by Ed Miller shown here with Coach Casali. Many words were used to describe the coach including inspirational, a champion, "tough love," respected and a mentor. Someone who was looked up to not only by students but his peers as well. Coach Mario "Mike" Casali over his 30 years at Central Middle School held the positions of football-basketball-baseball coach.

Also in attendance were many who have gone on to serve in political office, both at the local and state level. Tim Cahill, former state treasurer, John Keenan, Quincy City Council and state senator, Bill Phelan former Mayor of Quincy and Paul Bregoli, Quincy School Committee. Ed Miller and Jim Rendle also went on to serve as athletic directors in Quincy. John Phelan currently serves as the Superintendent of Schools in Belmont.

Many former colleagues from Central, Broad Meadows and Point also came back to honor Casali.

Mr. Casali spent the afternoon talking with each of the many who attended, expressing his gratitude to everyone there and to also those who could not attend. Casali's children also came including his daughters Nancy Curren and Joan as well as his son, Jack.

Ed Miller, who chaired the committee who put the event together, was also assisted by Jim Rendle, Bill Phelan, John and Larry Taglieri, Bob Sleeth and Lou Tozzi.

JUNIOR QUARTERBACK Tim Layden had a solid game in the air and on the ground for the Red Raiders. Layden went 9-15 with 125 passing yards and rushed for 93 yards on 11 carriers including a touchdown to lead the Red Raider offense.

Silver Lake Slips Past Red Raiders, 24-19

By TOM JOYCE

In their opening game, the North Quincy High football team almost had an excellent upset win.

The Red Raiders, who finished 2-9 last year, definitely showed signs of improvement as they hung in and even led over the Silver Lake Lakers, a fellow Patriot League opponent and one who went 8-3 and made the playoffs last year. Ultimately, however, the Lakers took the edge late in the game on a kick return for a touchdown and the Red Raiders ran out of time on their last drive. As a result, the Red Raiders took a 24-19 loss to start the season on Friday, Sept. 8 at Veteran's Stadium.

Although they were not able to come out on top, the Red Raiders did battle for four quarters and showed signs of growth and improvement from last year to this year.

"The kids played a great football game, but a couple of plays cost us, unfortunately," head coach Mark Nutley said. "I was happy with the way they competed until the end. Teams in the past would've folded."

With under four minutes remaining in the game, the Lakers punched in a 49-yard touchdown run to pull ahead, 18-13, but the Red Raiders battled back.

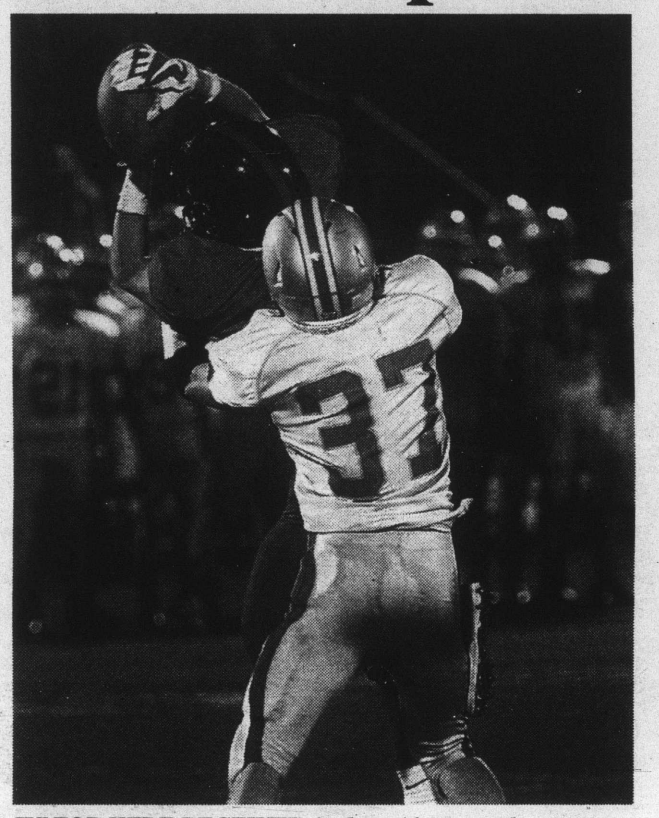
Quarterback Tim Layden started off the drive with a pair of big plays. First, it was a 23-yard completion to Andrew Airosus for a first down. The very next play, Layden had a 30-yard run that put his team in the red zone. On fourth and goal at the one yard line, he then punched in the go-ahead score himself with 1:34 remaining in the game to give the team a 19-18 lead.

The Lakers returned the following kickoff for a touchdown to regain the lead and although the Raiders could not put together a game-winning drive in the final 64 seconds of the game, they came close.

Layden started off the final drive with three straight complete passes for over 30 yards to put NQ into Lakers territory. Conor Donaghey had the first catch followed by Nate Sleiman and finally, Win Tran had the catch that put the team on the 25-yard line.

With 18 seconds left, Layden was able to complete a 12-yard pass to Donaghey for a first down to put the team on the 15-yard line, but the Lakers defense held from there and the Red Raiders were not able to complete that last pass to the end zone due to strong coverage from the opposition.

Regardless, the Red Raiders were able to move the football up and down the field for the duration of the contest despite using several two-way players. In doing so, they showed they are a well-conditioned and in-shape team.



JUNIOR WIDE RECEIVER Andrew Airosus makes an acrobatic catch for the Red Raiders against Silver Lake.

"We pride ourselves on having our guys in shape and being able to play four quarters." Nutley said. "On the last touchdown we got, the Silver Lake kids were dragging and we weren't. Even when we got the ball back on that last drive, we were able to move it downfield. Our offseason and in-season conditioning really paid off in that fourth quarter."

Under center, Layden showed he is a strong two-way threat as he went nine for 15 passing and had 125 passing yards in the air; on the ground he had 11 carries for 93 yards and a touchdown and most of his production came in the second half.

Running back Nate Sleiman and Win Tran also had productive days on the ground. Tran had five rushes for 25 yards and a touchdown while Sleiman had 15 carries for 41 yards and a touchdown to go along with two catches for 49 yards in the air.

Strong play from the team's offensive line which consists of Jeff Sullivan, Alex Pham, Devon Ganno, Ty Finn, and Josh Moore allowed the Raiders to move the ball without issue. Nutley was impressed with what he saw from them.

"I just felt like we played a physical game," he said. "We were the more physical team. It was just the finishing part. We've got to close that door when the other team is down."

The Red Raiders move on to face Saugus this upcoming Saturday.

"Their coach is the old Randolph coach (Anthony Nalen), so I'm thinking they'll go with some spread stuff," Nutley said of his next opponent. "It's going to be tough. Our guys played a tough game but at the same time, we still came up short. We've got to stay hungry, want it and play a full game."

Quincy-North Quincy Cross Country Splits Dual Meet At Whitman-Hanson

By GEOFF HENNESSY

The cross country team split a dual meet at Whitman-Hanson. The boys lost 19-42 while the girls won 25-31.

The boys were led by freshman standout Ronan Kelly who placed 3rd and actually led for a short time mid-way through the race. Junior Captain Ryan Polsgrove placed 6th.

The girls took places 2, 3 and 4 to clinch the win. Freshman Maeve White took 2nd, Abby Murphy was 3rd and Devin Hiltunen was 4th. Other top ten finishers were Camryn Dastrup 7th and Lezly Acevedo 8th. Olivia Palazzi was also in the top ten placing 10th.

QNQ hosted Duxbury Sept. 12 at Pageant field.

"We're not ready yet," said Coach Geoff Hennessy, "but the season is long and we only have to be ready and healthy in November. I trust our plan and the kids do, too. We're a better team than a year ago. It'll be fun to watch our younger kids develop." Hennessy pointed out that the first major invitational they team runs in isn't until Oct. 17 when they run the Twilight meet down the Cape.

Defending Champs Manets Prevail In Youth Football Opener

By SEAN HALPIN

The North Quincy Apaches and Houghs Neck Manets battled in a rematch of the 2016 Varsity Title game in the Quincy Youth Football League opening weekend.

Both teams clashed in a scoreless first half. Defensive Lineman Max Van Tassell, Dean Schaaf for the Manets and Clayton Corley (3 sacks) and Harry Gaudiano of the Apaches, each lead their defenses.

Houghs Neck QB Stephen Gallant opened the second half with a 67-yard TD run to put the Manets ahead 6-0. Early in the 4th quarter, Manet RB Andrew Engren rush for a 3-yard TD and extra point to extend the lead, 13-0. The Apaches answered with a long drive capped off by a 2-yard TD run by Grant Murphy to close in on the Manets lead 13-6.

Houghs Neck return man William Ploof ran the ensuing kickoff back 66 yards for a TD as the Manets (1-0) defeated the Apaches 19-6.

The Apaches got strong efforts from Corley, Gaudiano, Colm Geary, Kiera Sleiman, Matt Whooley, Billy Macdonald, Tony Le, JC Petrongolo, Jackson Murphy and Scott Gutro.

The Manets were lead by Van Tassell, Schaaf, Alex Rheault, Engren, Ploof, Brendan Regan, Mason McDonough and David Pitts.

The Manets will face the Quincy Point Panthers Sunday at 1 p.m. The Apaches have the bye week.

The Quincy Point Panthers hosted the West Quincy Elks under the lights at the Stadium on Sunday. West Quincy got on the scoreboard first, late in the first quarter, when RB Thomas Murray raced for a 54-yard TD run. The teams battled to a scoreless second quarter. Elks DB Gianni Peres and DE Michael Potter both had turnovers for their teams. West Quincy entered the locker room with a 6-0 lead.

Quincy Point tied the game at 6-6, in the third quarter, when QB Drew Boretti hit TE Michael Potter on a 36-yard TD pass.

The Elks answered with a 21-yard TD run by Murray to take a 12-0 lead. The Elks scored again late in the fourth quarter when LB Thomas Murray had and intercepted return for TD. Murray also added the 2-point conversion kick as the Elks defeated the Panthers 20-6.

The Panthers had strong performances from Jarod Walker, Borretti, Potter, Erick Lomanno, Jacey Ham, Brian Johnson, a Thomas Goode and Oscar Li.

The Elks (1-0) were led by Gianni Perea, Murray, Malik Francis, Riley O'Connell, Rean Bego, Sammee Akhouzine and Brandon Baker.

The Panthers will visit the Manets next Sunday at 1 p.m., followed by Elks hosting the Storm at 2:30 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Koch Eyes New Police-Fire Headquarters

said the city would still need to address the needs of the departments it would serve.

"We've still got to deal with the inadequacy and insufficiencies of the existing police station, the overcrowding at 55 Sea St., the overcrowding at the Kennedy Center, and quite frankly Veterans Services, that's not acceptable conditions in that building in today's day and age for dealing with veterans – that was an old bungalow that served a Spanish War veterans post," he said.

The $2.3 million for the citywide traffic, bicycle, parking and pedestrian safety master plan is meant to address long-standing traffic and parking woes. Koch said Quincy is not alone when it comes to parking and traffic concerns, but its proximity to Boston complicates matters.

"Traffic has been, is and will be an issue for this city going forward; in fact, I would suggest in most communities in Metropolitan Boston it's an issue," Koch said.

"What makes ours more challenging is we're a cut-through city for a lot of people coming up 3A from the south. When the highway is backed up, people jump off and try to cut through the various parts of the city. In addition to our own day-to-day situation traffic-wise, we have that complication. As the South Shore continues to grow, there is more traffic coming up 3A everyday."

Koch said the citywide study would look at key intersections and chokepoints and identify possible fixes.

"What we're doing is we're taking a look at the entire city, look at all the major intersections, look at all the chokepoints, and see what kind of a master plan could we then develop and implement where it will make a difference," Koch said.

"For example with the public safety headquarters, as part of that look, we're going to look at should we widen Sea Street with another queuing lane – and Southern Artery for that matter on the police station side – to help move platoons of traffic in a better way through there."

The mayor cited the reconstruction of the intersection of Hancock and Squantum Streets near North Quincy High School as an example of the type of future projects the study could identify.

"We did a major improvement at North Quincy High School – Hancock and East and West Squantum Streets. It's an incredible, the difference that has made," Koch said. "We widened, added lanes, new synchronization. You feel like you get through there in good time whereas before you'd wait three red lights before you got through, which frustrates drivers."

The city would look for state and federal money to undertake the traffic improvements. The North Quincy intersection work, for example, was paid for by a state grant, though the city paid for necessary land takings.

"We'll be looking to the state again to help us with some of these," Koch said.

The study will also look into parking issues, particularly in the neighborhoods near MBTA stations. As part of the city, Koch said the city would look into a revamped parking permit system.

"That's going to be looked at very closely," he said. "What kind of zones do we create? How many of them do we do? Because then you have people from one part of the city parking in someone else's neighborhood, so you want to make sure that it's done zone-wise so somebody from Squantum can't park on Newbury Ave. because they're taking the T.

"A lot of people will do anything to get out of paying for parking. We've got to make it harder for them. I think we have done a lot with signage over the years and with traffic enforcement officers out there, but I think it's time to take it to the next level."

Koch said the Traffic, Parking, Alarm and Lighting Department, led by Michael Coffey, has already commenced preliminary work that will set the stage for the larger study.

"Mike Coffey and his team are already working on that. I know they've had some preliminary meetings with some of the councillors, so we'll be ready to roll with this when we get the engineering company in to do some of this," Koch said.

Creedon Field Night Games Seen Later This Fall

By SCOTT JACKSON

North Quincy High School's football team could begin playing games at Creedon Field later this fall with the construction of the stadium's concession stand – which also houses components for the complex's light towers – now underway.

The field, located near North Quincy High School, was dedicated last November and was used for high school sports beginning in the spring. Day games are being played there again this fall, but football games, which take place on Friday nights, are still being played at Veterans' Memorial Stadium for the time being.

In an interview Monday, Mayor Thomas Koch said it could be four to six weeks before the field is ready to host the varsity football games at night.

"Hopefully within four to six weeks," he responded after being asked when the field would be ready to host football games at night.

"I mean I blasted the engineers about this two weeks ago. I'm not happy – that's putting it mildly – I am not happy it's taken this long to get that completed. This should have been done. There were some issues with the subcontractor. There is so much going on, you lose track a little bit of how things are sliding schedule-wise… It's going to be magnificent when it's finished, but this is taking way too long."

Koch said the concession stand, now under construction, would hold the components for the lighting system.

"The concession building is more than a concession building. It does house all the power and the controls for the whole complex," Koch said. "They're building it as we speak – that's going up as we speak."

The mayor also plans to add more bleachers to the stadium, though that is separate from the ongoing concession work.

Koch said that plans are also being made to relocate the GOALS program – an alternative middle and high school program for at-risk students that now operates in a building on Hunt Street next to the field. If a suitable site for the GOALS program were found, the current facility would be converted to a fitness center for North Quincy High students.

"The goal is to relocate the GOALS program – I've had those discussions with the superintendent…and make a weight room facility/fitness center," Koch said. "Quincy High has a nice fitness center…we want to have that some opportunity for the athletes at North. That would be the plan here."

The mayor said the GOALS program, which stands for Gain Opportunities, Acquire Learning Skills, is a valuable program for the city to have.

"It's a great program. If a kid has some challenges getting through high school and you just throw them on the street, that kid's not going to have a shot in life," Koch said.

"The GOALS program gives an opportunity for a little bit more one-on-one to get these kids through and get a high school diploma. I think it's a really important program for the city. It really is. Some of it is behavioral. Some of it is some challenges these kids have.

"I think it's a good investment that we've made."

Quincy's First Food Truck, Music Festival To Feature The James Montgomery Band

Sept. 30th Noon To 6 P.M. At Coddington St. & QHS Front Lawn

Mayor Thomas Koch announces that The James Montgomery Band will be the Food Truck and Music Festival Headliner.

"We are thrilled to have a world class entertainer like James Montgomery and his band headline the festival," Koch said.

Quincy's first annual Food Truck & Music Festival will be held Saturday, Sept. 30th, from noon to 6 p.m. The festival will take place on Coddington Street in Quincy Center, and on Quincy High School's front lawn.

The festival is free and open to all and will feature over 20 food trucks and a few boutique-type trucks and tents, along with an eclectic mix of music for all on the main stage and kids stage.

"These are the type of cultural events that the community desires," Koch said. "We hope to put together a signature Quincy event every month as we move toward Quincy's 400th anniversary. It's also a great event to bring others to our historic and vibrant city and an event like this, just off the Quincy Center T is a great way to do that."

The main stage will host live music from noon to 6 p.m., closing with The James Montgomery Band. Montgomery has toured with major artists, including Aerosmith, Bonnie Raitt, Bruce Springsteen, the Allman Brothers, Steve Miller and others. He has jammed on stage with B.B. King, Buddy Guy, John Lee Hooker, Jr. Wells, James Cotton, Charlie Daniels, Greg Allman, Laverne Baker, Patti LaBelle, and Peter Wolf among others, including an impromptu session with Mick Jagger at New York's "Trax".

Other festival acts will include, Trusty Sidekick, Liz Bills and more.

For those 21 and over, there will be a beer garden with several craft beers provided by the Pour Garden truck and Foodzilla on Wheels.

Other trucks will include Gotta Q Barbecue, Just Say Cheese, Montillio's, Ben & Jerrys, Teri Tummy Asian, Fenway Sausages, Jamaica Me Hungry, Spicy Salaa, Tracey Girl Waffle, Travelin Bones and more.

WRKO Host Doug 'VB' Goudie Book Signing At Cronin's Publick House

WRKO morning host, author and former Fox 25 personality Doug "VB' Goudie will appear this Thursday at 8 p.m. at Cronin's Publick House, 23 Des Moines Rd., Quincy Point, to discuss and sign his popular new book ACK in Ashes: Nantucket's Great Fire of 1846.

On the night of July 13th, 1846, the island of Nantucket went to bed after another busy day as a bustling one-industry town (whale oil) which was known throughout the world. On the morning of July 14th, 1846, Nantucket woke up to find that it was all gone, and everything the island had become up until that point was destroyed overnight by a devastating fire.

The book tells of how the resilient people of Nantucket battled back, even though an ocean separated them from any help. Goudie, a regular visitor to Nantucket, had sought to learn about the Great Nantucket Fire of 1846 but couldn't find much information, so he researched and wrote the book himself.

Thursday will also be a special night at Cronin's as Foolosopher Pub Quizmasters Kevin and Stephanie Glennon host their final game after nearly a decade at the pub. There will be a $50 cash pub quiz first prize in their honor as they take a sabbatical to raise their twins.

NY firm Geeks Who Drink will take over the pub quiz at Cronin's on Thursday nights. There is no charge to play and all are welcome.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

HOW DO YOU CARRY YOURSELF?

Changes in the way that we walk should not be considered to be an inevitable part of aging. However, a slower step, slight limp, or a shuffle or tilt while walking could be indicative of an underlying medical condition that should be diagnosed and treated before it leads to possible limitations of mobility and independence. With this in mind, the chiropractor carefully assesses each patient's gait with the possibility of finding a nervous system condition or a bone/muscle/joint disorder. For instance, spinal cord compression in the neck region can interfere with gait and cause loss of balance and coordination. It can also lead to "foot drop," which is ankle weakness that causes the toe to drag while walking.

Function and balance of the spine and pelvis depend on coordinated support from the feet and legs, especially during gait. It is because of this interdependence that chiropractors must consider the lower extremities when evaluating spinal problems and complaints. To schedule an appointment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We accept most major insurance plans. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. "Foot drop" is sometimes accompanied by a high lifting of the leg to avoid catching the toe on the ground.

incumbent Nina Liang and first-time candidate Stephen F. Tougas.

DiBona was the highest vote getter Tuesday with 4,919 votes – some 882 votes ahead of his nearest competitor. Raymondi was second with 4,037. Only 103 votes separated Laforest (3,624) and Mahoney (3,521) in the third and fourth spots. Liang polled 3,095 for fifth while Tougas had 552 in the sixth spot. Seventh-place finisher Stanley Dong Fang Xiao had 392 votes and was not nominated.

The top three vote-getters in the at-large race in November will be elected to two-year terms.

In the four-way field in Ward 1, former School Committeeman David McCarthy topped the preliminary with 1,395 – some 1,050 votes ahead of second-place finisher Joseph C. Murphy (345 votes). McCarthy and politifcal newcomer Murphy will vie for the open Ward 1 seat Nov. 7. Daniel J. Davis was third with 308 votes and Michael Falcione fourth (167 votes.)

In the three-way race for two nominations in Ward 5, incumbent Kirsten Hughes finished first with 687 votes – 135 votes ahead of Michael Hurley who won the second nomination with 552 votes. Third place went to John Rodo Rodophele who polled 179 votes. Hughes, who is serving as the city council president, and Hurley – a first-time candidate – will square off in the Nov. 7 final.

In the three-candidate field in Ward 6, incumbent William Harris was first with 934 votes – 305 votes ahead of second-place finisher Herbie 'Alie' Shaughnessy (629 votes). Third place went to Steven R. Striffler with 244 votes. Harris and Shaughnessy – will vie for the Ward 6 seat Nov. 7.

In the city-wide at-large run-off, DiBona won an impressive 20 of the city's 30 precincts including Ward 6 Precinct 5 in Squantum with 636 votes – the highest number by any candidate in any precinct Tuesday. Second in Squantum was Anne Mahoney with 437 votes. DiBona also finished tied in Liang in Ward 5 Precinct 2.

Raymondi, a former Ward 2 councillor, swept all five precincts in Ward 2 and also topped the at-large field in Ward 4 Precinct 4 and Ward 5 Precinct 1.

Laforest was the top vote-getter in Ward 1 Precinct 5 – Houghs Neck – with 479 votes – 17 more than DiBona's 462 votes.

Liang finished first in one precinct – Ward 6 Precinct 2 – with 89 votes – four votes more than DiBona (85 votes.)

Turnout was a dismal 14.48 percent city-wide as only 8,728 of the city's 59,465 registered voters went to the polls Tuesday. Turnout was highest in Ward 6 Precinct 5 in Squantum as 37.76 percent – 910 out of 2,410 registered – cast ballots. Turnout also surpassed 30 percent in Ward 1 Precinct 5 – Houghs Neck – where 821 out of 2,390 registered voters or 34.35 percent went to the polls.

Political observers expect turnout will be higher for the final election in eight weeks but estimates by some range from 20 to 25 percent. The Nov. 7th election will feature a contested race for three school committee seats that should create some additional voters at the polls. But the mayor's seat is not on the ballot this year and thus could keep turnout low even for a final election.

Besides the at-large and council races in Ward 1, Ward 5 and Ward 6, voters will also elect three school committee members Nov. 7. There are six candidates seeking the three school seats – and two of the seats are open because Mahoney opted to run at-large and current committee member Barbara Isola is not seeking re-election.

The six school committee candidates are:

Incumbent Emily Lebo, 354 Highland Ave.; former councillor Doug Gutro, 36 Marlboro St.; Anthony Andronico, 126 Charles St.; David Jacobs, 11 Dunns Ct.; Mark Sauter, 76 Longwood Rd. and Geraldine Manning, 1035 Southern Artery.

The top three vote-getters in the school committee race will win a four-year term in November.

There are no other contested races Nov. 7. That's because Mayor Thomas Koch is at the half-way mark of a four-year term and incumbent councillors Brad Croall (Ward 2), Ian Cain (Ward 3) and Brian Palmucci (Ward 4) are running unopposed this year.

The mayor's seat will next be in the hands of the voters in the fall of 2019.

New Ordinance Would Give City Ability To License Sober Homes

By SCOTT JACKSON

An ordinance now pending before the City Council would grant Quincy the ability to license sober homes operating within the community.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci introduced the measure at the council's meeting Sept. 5. The ordinance was co-sponsored by Councillors Kirsten Hughes and Margaret Laforest.

Sober homes are currently unregulated, and courts have interpreted federal law – including the Americans with Disabilities Act – as protecting them from regulation. Palmucci, an attorney, said the city should begin regulating them.

"They exist in a loophole in the law, popping up in places where they shouldn't be, primarily in single-family neighborhoods," he said in a phone interview Monday. "We know nothing about who owns them, who manages them and the patients they treat."

Under the proposed ordinance, the owners and managers of sober homes would have to provide their names, addresses and other identifying information to the city as part of the license application. An operation plan for the sober home and the rules and regulations for tenants living their would also have to be submitted as part of the license application, and the operator would also have to affirm only recovering addicts would be allowed to reside in the home, and that those who "pose a direct threat to the health or safety of others," including registered sex offenders and pre-prison parolees would not be allowed.

The city could deny the license application, or revoke a current license, if false or misleading information was provided on the application, or pertinent information was omitted.

The license could also be denied or revoked if the owner had been fired within the past five years, or a staff member had been fired in the past year, for physical assault, sexual harassment, embezzlement, theft, falsifying a drug test or selling or furnishing illegal drugs or alcohol; if the owner is in recovery for addiction and has been sober for less than full years; or if there were repeated violations of the home's policies and procedures.

Palmucci said the council's oversight committee, which he chairs, would hold a meeting in the next 30 to 60 days to hear testimony from stakeholders. He hopes the ordinance is approved before the council's current term expires at the end of the year, though he does expect it to be challenged in court.

"It's something that's much needed," Palmucci said. "I think we'll be one of the first communities in the country to regulate sober homes and I expect we'll have to defend it in court."

Palmucci said he worked with the office of Mayor Thomas Koch and the city's legal team to draft the ordinance. Koch, in an interview Monday, signaled his support for the regulations.

"I do believe that this city in general has been open to a lot of these homes and organizations that do good work for our brothers and sisters – we're all part of the same humanity – that have some challenges. However, if you've invested in a single-family home and you're living in a neighborhood that is such, I'm not sure that it's very fair to introduce next door whatever you want to call it – sober home, group home, rooming house for folks who are trying to stay sober," Koch said.

"I think it's reasonable to set some guidelines in the community," he added. "The challenge is the federal government through court cases has indicated these are protected under the Americans with Disabilities Act, which I think is a real stretch, but that's how the court has found it in recent years. We're going to give it a good faith effort to tighten it up."

Koch said he has also asked the city's assessors whether sober homes operating in single-family neighborhoods could be taxed at a higher rate than residential properties.

"I've got my assessors looking at it the issue as well to see if we can maybe triple or quadruple the assessment on it based on what they're doing with that house, and maybe that will curtail some of it," the mayor said.

"It's a frustrating issue because we're dealing with one hand tied behind our back because of some of the federal laws, or the way those laws have been interpreted."

Houghs Neck Congregational

The Sunday morning worship service at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave. starts at 10 a.m.

Pastor Steven Vandergrift will lead the service and preach his sermon. Susan Stimpson and Jeff Craig will serve for the Diaconate. The choir will sing under the direction of Minister of Music, Steve Reed.

This is Sunday School Rally Day for children age 2.9 years through grade 8. They will enjoy activities downstairs in Fellowship Hall after a special children's message from Pastor Steve.

Any questions or to register your child email Jaime Gordon at jaimegordonmk@gmail.com. The church offers a nursery for little ones not yet old enough for Sunday School.

On Tuesday, Sept. 19 the Seaside Social Club meets at 6:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall with president Gayle Mackay. Mark Carey of the Quincy Film Bureau will speak about "Making Movies in Quincy."

Program starts at 7 p.m. Refreshments are hosted by Gail Freel and Sue Rheault. All are welcome to attend.

Celebration Of New Pastor At Community United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate the Blessing of an Adoption, the receiving of a New Member through Transfer, as well as The Appointment of a new Pastor, the Rev. Rebecca E. Baumann, at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday, Sept. 17.

Pastor Becky began her pastorate July 1 upon the retirement of former pastor, the Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden.

Various members of the congregation will present symbols of ministry to the new pastor who will, in turn, place each item upon the altar. A Bible, water, the bread and cup, Hymnal and Book of Worship, the denominations's Book of Discipline and a globe are among the symbols to be presented. Each represents differing aspects of the ministry here in Quincy, within the denomination and across the globe. The last item to be received by the pastor will be a sole representing "this yoke that has been laid upon her and the responsibility represented by this."

Unlike other pastors who the church has journeyed with, the new pastor has been with the church for a long time. As a child, Becky attended Wollaston Methodist Church and was an active member in Sunday School, youth groups, basketball league, choir and many other church activities.

Following a career in health info. management, Becky said she felt a calling to Ordained Ministry and earned her theological degree at Boston University School of Theology. Throughout her vocation, she has served congregations in Rockland, Groton, CT; Mansfield, CT, and Newport, R.I. before returning home.

Luncheon will be served following worship featuring grilled hot dogs and side dishes provided by the congregation.

RELIGION

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center will have a Worship Service at 9:30 a.m. Guest Preacher, David Wang will preach the sermon entitled "The Blessing of Forgiveness." Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church Worship Services and its numerous group activities. Bethany has an active Missions and Growth Committee doing various charity works.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon - 1 to 3 p.m. Please visit us at our Web Page: www.bethanycongchurch.org for updates and activities. Thanks to the Video Ministry, if you're unable to attend worship service on Sundays, the Bethany Church Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6 p.m. on Thursdays and 10 a.m. on Sundays on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays. The church is wheelchair accessible.

Quincy Point Congregational

Sunday, Sept. 17 worship starts at 10 a.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Rev. Stan Duncan will be preaching. Sunday School will be in session. After worship, all are invited to fellowship in the Social Hall complete with light refreshments and friendly conversation.

If you wish to enroll your child in Sunday School give the church office a call at 617-773-6424. The children usually depart partway through worship to go to class.

The Sunday School will start their mission work this year by learning about honey bees and then raising funds to donate to Heifer International to buy honey bees for farmers in need. The children and youth have so many unique opportunities like: learning an instrument, singing in the choir or even helping with videotaping church worship. It is a well-rounded and meaningful program for children and youth. Stop by any Sunday and see what all the "BuZZ" is about.

Many other groups at the church are congregating again for the season as well.

Prayer Shawl Ministry meets on Sept. 21 at 10 a.m. in the QPCC library. The knitters meet every first and third Thursday of the month.

Handbells and choir begin practice on Thursday, Sept. 21 at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. respectively in the upstairs choir room. Then Sept. 26 at 11 a.m., the weekly Bible study resumes for the study of books 1 &2 Peter, Life Lessons with Mac Lucado. All are welcome, ring the doorbell by the Dunkin Donuts entrance for weekday meetings.

We assemble every Sunday for worship at 10 a.m., we are handicap accessible and the doors are wide open for all to come gather together!

There will be a St. Francis Pet Blessing on Sunday, Sept. 24th at 11 a.m. on the lawn of the Abbey Road side of the church. Bring your pet, a photo of your pet or even a stuffed animal to be blessed (pet carriers are leashes are encouraged).

Donations for the Quincy Animal Shelter will be collected. See www.quincyanimalshelter.org for items on their wish list.

OBITUARIES

Audrey E. Campbell, 89

A funeral service for Audrey E. (Morrill) Campbell, of Quincy, formerly of Bridgewater and Stoughton, was held Sept. 8 in the Sheehan, Lowe & Powers Funeral Home and Cremation Services, 115 Monk St., Stoughton. The Pastor Rev. Rebecca L. Cho officiated.

Mrs. Campbell passed away unexpectedly Sept. 2 at Boston Medical Center. She was 89 years old and the beloved wife of the late George A. Campbell.

She is survived by her loving daughter Dyanne Gardiner with whom she made her home of Quincy and her grandchildren, Timothy Gardiner of Watertown, Shane Campbell of Easton and Holly (Campbell) Loring of N. Chelmsford.

AUDREY E. CAMPBELL

Mrs. Campbell was also a loving mother to the late Alan R. Campbell and a loving sister to the late Frederick Morrill, Herbert Morrill, Wendell Morrill and Eldon Morrill.

Mrs. Campbell was born on March 22, 1928 in Stoughton and was the only daughter of the late Frederick and LuLu (Lyle) Morrill. She attended Stoughton Public Schools and was a graduate of Stoughton High School.

Mrs. Campbell was employed as a bank teller by the former Norfolk County Bank and Trust in Stoughton. She was also employed by the Town of Stoughton as a computer programmer.

Her hobbies included gardening, and planting flowers. She was also an active member and former president of the Woman's Club at The First United Methodist Church in Stoughton. She will be missed by all who had the pleasure of knowing her.

Burial was at Maplewood Cemetery, North Stoughton.

Memorial donations may be made to The First United Methodist Church of Stoughton, 109 Pleasant St., Stoughton, MA 02072.

Sabina M. Stenberg, 86

A funeral Mass for Sabina Mary (Kavanagh) Stenberg, 86, of Quincy, was celebrated Sept. 8 at Saint Ann Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Stenberg passed away peacefully June 4 at Marina Bay Nursing and Rehabilitation in Quincy.

She was born in Boston on Oct. 4, 1930 to Martin and Margaret Kavanagh of Galway, Ireland. She was a lifelong resident of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Stenberg was most proud of her accomplishments as an influential educator and businesswoman with beauty schools in Boston, Quincy, and Wollaston, as a fundraiser and founding board member of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, as a model for the Bonds of Israel, in her many roles in local politics including her most recent as a senator on the Massachusetts Silver Hair Legislature, and in receiving her bachelor's degree from UMASS Boston in 1999 at 68 years old.

She is survived by her sister and her sister's husband, Eileen and John Flood; her brother Brendan Kavanagh, daughter Margaret Zecker, daughter-in-law Jan Stenberg, niece Brenda Ferzacca, four grandchildren: Garrett, Sheamus, Lauren, and Liam; and four great-grandchildren: Ethan, Abigail, Henry, and Greyson.

SABINA M. STENBERG

She was predeceased by her son, Peter Stenberg, and her brothers Christopher, Desmond, and Tom.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to ARC of Massachusetts to continue Sabina's vision of help, education, and equality for persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities http://thearcofmass.org/.

Rosalie Gabel, 91

A funeral service for Rosalie (Gross) Gabel, a longtime resident of Quincy was held Monday at Schlossberg & Solomon Memorial Chapel, 824 Washington St., Canton.

Mrs. Gabel passed away Sept. 7 at the age of 91.

She was born on May 26, 1926 in Brooklyn, N.Y., the youngest of three children born to Lillie and Arnold Gross. She graduated from Hunter College of NYU with a BA, and later earned an MA in Special Education from Eastern Nazarene College.

Mrs. Gabel was a teacher of the deaf in the Boston Public Schools and ultimately ran the infant program at the Horace Mann School for the Deaf in Boston. After retirement, she worked at Worldwide Travel in Quincy in order to share her love of travel with clients.

She married her husband, Arthur Gabel, on July 4th 1945, while he was on short-term leave from the Army. They enjoyed 59 years of marriage filled with camping trips, folk and classical music, exotic vacations, and dancing.

Mrs. Gabel was a vital member of Beth Israel Synagogue as well as the wider Quincy Jewish community, as Arthur was director of the Quincy Jewish Community Center. When Arthur passed away in 2004, she moved to Linden Ponds in Hingham, and later moved to The Arbors in Stoughton. During these years, she enjoyed congregational activities at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom in Hingham, where she met many new friends and renewed friendships with several people from Quincy.

Mrs. Gabel is survived by her four daughters: Jane (and Chip) Carnathan of Hillsborough, NC, Elizabeth Gabel of Vallejo, CA, Deborah Adelberg of Quincy, and Emily (and Jonathan) Prigot of Canton; by grandchildren Paul (and Diane) Carnathan of Lilburn, GA, Jesse (and Kandace) Carnathan of London, UK, and Rebecca Prigot of Seattle, WA; and by a great grandson, Max Carnathan of Lilburn, GA.

Her family is appreciative of the care provided to her by the staff of The Arbors, Integra Home Health Care Services and Old Colony Hospice, as well as the friendship and care extended to her by Rabbi Shira Joseph of Congregation Sha'aray Shalom and her many friends.

Burial was at Baker Street Cemeteries, West Roxbury.

Expressions of sympathy may be sent to Old Colony Hospice, 321 Manley St., W. Bridgewater, MA 02379.

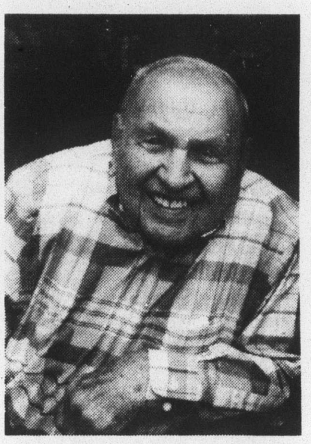
Alfred J. Oliverio, 100



ALFRED J. OLIVERIO

A funeral Mass for Alfred J. "Chick" Oliverio, 100, a lifelong resident of Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Joseph Church, Quincy.

Mr. Oliverio died Sept. 8 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

He was born in Quincy on June 9, 1917. His late parents, Joseph and Giovina (Della Barba) Oliverio, immigrated to Quincy from the Abruzzo region of Italy. Mr. Oliverio was a lifelong resident of Quincy and graduated from Quincy High School. He was also a proud Army veteran of World War II. He drove a tractor-trailer for the US Postal Service for 30 years and at one time owned his own ice delivery business.

After retirement, Mr. Oliverio spent his winters in southern Florida where he enjoyed time with many friends. At home in Quincy Point, he maintained a well-known garden started by his father. He sold vegetables and flowers and gave much of the garden away to family, friends, and neighbors. He would often say his father instructed him to always keep up the garden so that the family would have food to eat if needed.

One of his favorite past times was going to the race-track with his brothers and friends. Mr. Oliverio loved dog racing and spent many happy days at Raynham, Taunton, Wonderland and tracks in Florida.

He is survived by a brother, Albert Oliverio, of Weymouth, a sister in law, Claire Oliverio, of Quincy and several nieces and nephews who loved him dearly and cared for him tenderly in the last several years. Uncle Chick was so proud of all their many accomplishments, and he will be greatly missed by everyone. He was also the brother of the late Anthony, Henry, Kaiser, and Nicolas Oliverio and Mary Oliverio Johnson.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE
2017-139

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council to be passed at a later date:

BE IT ORDAINED, the City Council if the City of Quincy that the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended as follows;

In Title 17 City of Quincy Zoning Ordinance Chapter 17.16 Use Regulation, Section 17.16.020

In Title 7 Special Residential Regulations add the following new section:

7.2 Sober Homes

1.0 Purpose

The purpose of this ordinance is to address issues relating to sober houses in Quincy. Structured sober houses provide housing for individuals in recovery from addiction to drugs and/or alcohol, including people who may have co- occurring mental health issues, as they transition from the treatment setting to life in the community. This housing assists individuals to return to the community through support in an alcohol- and drug-free, home-like environment.

This ordinance is intended to protect the residents of sober houses from operators who engage in abuse, neglect, mistreatment, fraud, and/or inadequate supervision of this vulnerable population as well as to protect the residents of structured sober living homes and the neighboring community from operators who fail to provide a supportive, residential family-like living environment necessary for the residents to achieve and maintain sobriety, in a manner consistent with the reasonable expectations of residents living where sober houses are located in regard to their quality of life.

2.0 Definitions

As used herein, the following terms shall have the following meanings.

Operator A company, business or individual who provides services to or for a sober house, including the placement of individuals in a residence, setting house rules, and/or governing the behavior of occupants while residents of the home. An operator does not include a property owner or property manager that exclusively handles real estate contracting, property management, and leasing of the property and who does not receive compensation for services under the first sentence, above.

Parking Plan A plan that provides for adequate off-street parking to insure that residents of the sober house and abutting residents can safely and conveniently park their vehicle(s).

Reasonable Accommodation A change, adaptation or modification of Quincy Zoning regulations to allow a person seeking to take advantage of sober housing to reasonably do so in the city of Quincy.

Sober House A dwelling unit occupied by more than four (4) persons, all of whom are in recovery from chemical dependency and considered handicapped under the Federal Fair Housing Act Amendments of 1988, that provides a non-institutional residential environment in which the residents willingly subject themselves to written rules and conditions, including prohibition of alcohol and drug use (except for prescription medications obtained and used under medical supervision), intended to encourage and sustain their recovery.

3.0 Regulation and Oversight

A. License Required

No sober house may operate within the city without first obtaining a license as provided in this chapter. No person shall open or operate a sober house or working for a sober house in the city until the information required in this section has been provided to the City Clerk. The Operator of any sober house in the city shall be responsible for updating all required information on a monthly basis, as necessary. Application for this license within 60 days of the effective date of this ordinance by any current operator, and within 30 days of the date of application for an occupancy permit for all new operators.

B. License Application

Every applicant for a license to operate a sober house shall provide the following information and documentation:

(1) The name and full street address of the structured sober living home;

(2) The name, full street address, mobile and land phone numbers, email address, and driver's license or government issued identification number of the property owner and the Operator;

(3) After a house manager is hired, each house manager's name, full home living street address, mobile and land phone numbers, email address, and driver's license or government issued identification number;

(4) If the operation of the sober house involves a lease, a copy of the lease then currently in effect;

(5) The operation plan for the sober house, including supervisory roles and responsibilities, all plans that facilitate the rehabilitative process and those that address the maintenance and control of the property including parking, noise abatement and the like, all consistent with local ordinances;

(6) The tenant rules and regulations, written intake procedures and relapse policy, and discharge plan;

(7) An affirmation by the Operator that only residents (other than the house manager(s)) who have the disability of addiction to drugs and/or alcohol as defined by state and federal law are eligible to reside at the sober house and the home will not admit persons who pose a direct threat to the health or safety of others such as persons on the sex offender registry or prison pre-parolee;

(8) A blank copy of every form that residents and potential residents are required to complete; and

(9) A signed and dated safety certification that the following safety devices are installed and fully functional as well as a schedule for self-inspecting each device:

a. Functioning smoke detectors in the sleeping rooms and common areas

b. Functioning carbon monoxide detectors

c. Functioning fire extinguishers in plain sight and/or clearly marked locations

d. Interior and exterior of the property is in a functional, safe and clean condition and free of fire hazards.

C. License Issuance

Upon receipt of the foregoing information, the City Clerk shall issue the license required by this chapter as an administrative/ministerial matter. The City Clerk may deny the license for a sober house and may deny any transfer of a current license or revoke a current license only under the following circumstances:

(1) The owner or operator has provided materially false or misleading information on its application or omitted any pertinent information;

(2) Any owner or operator has an employment history in which he or she was terminated during the prior five years or any staff person has an employment history in which he or she was terminated in the prior year, due to physical assault, sexual harassment, embezzlement, theft, falsifying a drug test, or selling or furnishing illegal drugs or alcohol;

(3) Any Operator of a sober house who is in recovery from drug and/or alcohol addiction who has been clean and sober for fewer than two full years as of the date of application for this license or the date of employment;

(4) Repeated violations of the operating rules and regulations submitted as part of the application for the license, and/or the supervision requirements in the sober house for the residents during hours of operation, the structured sober living home's rules and regulations, written intake procedures, relapse policy, or discharge procedure and policy.

D. Parking Plan

The Operator of a sober house shall provide a parking plan for review and approval by the director of Inspectional Services or his designee providing for off street parking to accommodate residents and to address parking impacts of the residence on the abutters.

4.0. Severability

If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion of this ordinance or any part of the code adopted herein by reference is for any reason held to be invalid or unconstitutional by the decision of any court of competent jurisdiction, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions thereof.

5.0. Council Review

Recognizing that this ordinance necessarily implicates an individual's rights of privacy and association, various competing interests of residents in the community, and Federal and State regulations that govern housing and/or sober houses, the City Council shall annually, at its first meeting in March, schedule a committee review of this ordinance so as to insure that it is both lawfully and effectively achieving its purpose.

OBITUARIES

John A. Farmer

A Mass of Christian Burial for John A. Farmer, age 79, of Quincy, will be celebrated Saturday at 10 a.m. at Saint Agatha Church, East Milton.

Mr. Farmer passed away peacefully Monday after a brief illness, surrounded by his loving family.

Mr. Farmer was born on March 7, 1938 in Winthrop. He was raised in North Adams and graduated from Saint Joseph High School in 1956. He attended North Adams State College before joining the Army in 1958. A lifelong Elvis fan, he loved to say they were both stationed in Germany at the same time. Mr. Farmer was admired for his easygoing manner and great sense of humor as a husband, father, uncle, and friend. His favorite role, however, was being Poppy to his three grandchildren.

Mr. Farmer had a long and successful career in the banking industry working in government banking, serving municipalities across the northeast. He began his career at Hancock Bank in Quincy and retired as a senior vice president from Bank of Canton after more than forty years in banking. In 1993, he graduated from the LEAD Program at Eastern Nazarene College, completing his bachelor's degree and proving that it is never too late to achieve a personal and professional goal. A parishioner of Saint Agatha Church in Milton for more than forty years, he was truly a man of faith with a strong commitment to the Catholic Church. His other passions included playing golf as an active member of Wampatuck Country Club, watching the Patriots win five Super Bowls, and rooting for the Red Sox as a proud member of Red Sox Nation.

He was a leader in the community, serving on many boards including the Quincy College Board of Governors, the South Shore Y.M.C.A, the Quincy Cemetery Board of Managers, Neighborhood Club of Quincy, and was a Distinguished Past President of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy.

He is survived by his wife of 50 years, Judy; and daughters Jill Farmer Possehl and husband Jimmy of South Boston; Erin Farmer Noonan and husband Michael of Pelham, NH; and three cherished grandchildren, James Possehl, Katie Noonan, and Johnny Noonan. He also leaves behind his sister-in-law Jane Marshall and nephew Patrick Marshall of Gloucester; and sister-in-law Ginny Farmer of FL; several cousins; and nine nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents James and Lucy (Martin); his sister Lucy Anne and brothers Paul, James, Mark, and Michael Farmer.

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Friday at the Sweeney Brothers, Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

At the request of the family, interment services, with military honors, at the Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne will be private and at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to Partners In Health, his nephew Dr. Paul Farmer's non-profit health care organization. Visit https://donate.pih.org/give-today or mail donations to Partners in Health, 800 Boylston St., Suite 1400, Boston, MA 02199-8190.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE
2017-148

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council to be passed at a later date:

BE IT ORDAINED, the City Council if the City of Quincy that the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended as follows;

By striking section 5.44.080 of Chapter 5.44 SHOPPING CARTS and including the following:

5.44.100 Disposition of Abandoned Shopping Carts

The Department of Public Works, or other designee by the City Council, may remove any shopping cart found in any public place. Confiscated shopping carts shall be held at the Department of Public Works until redeemed by the owner. The Department of Public Works shall notify the owner of the shopping cart by telephone call, electronic mail and/ or regular mail that the cart is in the possession of the City. If after fifteen days of notice the shopping cart(s) is not redeemed, the City may dispose of the cart in any manner it deems fit, such as public auction, recycling or crushing.

By striking the last two sentences of 5.44.080, which should be 5.44.090 but for a scrivener's error and substituting the following:

A second or subsequent failure to comply with this ordinance may result in the issuance of a monetary fine of not less than $75.00 and not more than $300.00 per event. Each day a violation exists shall constitute a separate offense. Any fines collected pursuant to this ordinance shall be deposited into the general fund.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good time for the usually outspoken Lamb to be a bit more discreet. You still can get your point across, but do it in a way less likely to turn off a potential supporter.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Good news: All that hard work you put in is beginning to pay off. But you need to watch that tendency to insist on doing things your way or no way. Be a bit more flexible.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might want to delay making a decision on the future of a long-standing relationship until you check out some heretofore hidden details that are just now beginning to emerge.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your reluctance to compromise on an important issue could backfire without more facts to support your position. Weigh your options carefully before making your next move.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) This is a good time for ambitious Leos or Leonas to shift from planning their next move to actually doing it. Your communication skills help persuade others to join you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Relationships -- personal or professional -- present new challenges. Be careful not to let a sudden surge of stubbornness influence how you choose to deal with them.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might need more facts before you can decide on a possible career change. But you should have no problem making a decision about an important personal matter.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You're respected by most people for your direct, no-nonsense approach to the issues. But be careful you don't replace honest skepticism with stinging sarcasm.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A newly emerging situation could require a good deal of attention and some difficult decision-making. However, close friends will help you see it through.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family matters need attention. Check things out carefully. There still might be unresolved tensions that could hinder your efforts to repair damaged relationships.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Of course you deserve to indulge yourself in something special. But for now, tuck that bit of mad money away. You'll need it to help with a looming cash crunch.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A temporary setback in your financial situation is eased by changing some of your plans. You'll be able to ride it out quite well until the tide turns back in your favor.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for understanding people's needs. You have a low tolerance for those who act without concern for others.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Mark Wahlberg tops Forbes Magazine's list of highest-paid actors for 2017 with $68 million (pretax), thanks to "Transformers: The Last Knight"; "Daddy's Home 2," arriving Nov. 10, with Will Ferrell and Mel Gibson; and the ironically titled "All the Money In the World," with Michelle Williams and Kevin Spacey, due Dec. 8. This doesn't include the fortune he's making from Spectrum commercials and "Wahlburgers" (the series and the hamburger joints). He also makes big bucks for producing.

No. 2 is "The Rock," Dwayne Johnson, up $50 million this year with $65 million from "Baywatch," "Jumanji" (out Dec. 20), "Rampage" (coming April 20), "Skyscraper" (July 13 release) and "Fighting With My Family." He also added coin for successfully producing.

Another actor producing for really big bucks is Vin Diesel, whose slice of the billion-dollar grosser "The Fate of the Furious," made him No. 3 at $54 million, with help from "The Return of Xander Cage" and "Guardians of the Galaxy, Vol. 2."

Coming in at No. 4 is Adam Sandler, who went to Netflix this year in a big way and raked in $50 million for "Sandy Wexler," with Oscar-winner Jennifer Hudson, Kevin James, Terry Crews and Rob Schneider; "The Meyerowitz Stories," with Ben Stiller, Emma Thompson and Dustin Hoffman; and "The Week Of" with Chris Rock and Rachel Dratch. Add monies for writing, producing and lending his voice to the animated "Hotel Transylvania 3," and it stacks up big.

No. 5 Jackie Chan still is the top grosser in China, where he made seven films this year, as well as "Shanghai Dawn," the sequel to "Shanghai Knights" (2003), again with Owen Wilson; and "The Foreigner," with Pierce Brosnan, for a total of $49 million.

Remember Steve Howey of "Reba"? He's gone to the dogs! His just-released film, shot in 2015, is "Unleashed," in which a cosmic storm turns him (a dog) and the family cat into two perfect men who vie for dates with their mistress. When you watch the film, see if you can spot Kathy Garver, who played older sister Cissy in the 1960s sitcom "Family Affair."

Brad Pitt is returning to acting in the sci-fi epic "Ad Astra," with Tommy Lee Jones, Donald Sutherland, Jamie Kennedy and Ruth Negga, in which he searches the solar system for his missing father. Pitt has 35 projects optioned to produce and/or star in. That's one way to get over a divorce!

Two-time Oscar winner Hillary Swank, now onscreen with Channing Tatum in the mediocre "Logan Lucky," has completed "55 Steps," with Helena Bonham Carter and Jeffrey Tambor; "What They Had," with Michael Shannon, Robert Forster and Blythe Danner; and is executive producing and starring in "Intimate Strangers." No doubt it will be a "Swank Production."

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Blinking-Eye Clocks --- Clocks were an important part of the Victorian home. Large grandfather clocks were kept in the front hall or living room to tell time, ring chimes on the hour and even tell the phases of the moon. The only public sources of time were the train station, city hall or church tower clocks. Smaller clocks that told time were kept on the fireplace mantle and were made to be decorative with bronze figures as part of the case in formal homes, and plain or even comic cases in others. Almost all clocks had to be wound for up to eight days.

Bradley & Hubbard, a Connecticut company that made many iron and other metal items, had an 1857 patent for a figural novelty clock that could blink its eyes. "Blinkers," also called "winkers," were made in many shapes. An organ grinder with a monkey, Topsey, Mammy, Sambo the Banjo Player and John Bull examples have sold in auctions during the past five years for prices from $500 to about $1,000.

John Bull is a character who was a popular symbol of England from 1712 to the 1940s. New England Auctions sold a 16-inch John Bull blinking eye clock for $416 in 2016.

Q: I have a coffee bin that was in my grandparents' general store in the late 1800s or early 1900s. It's marked "Dilworth's Prime Grade Coffee." The markings were made with a stencil. There is a shipping label on top, but I can't read the date. Does it have any value?

A: Dilworth's was in business in Pittsburgh during the late 1800s and early 1900s. John Dilworth was one of the founders of a wholesale grocery company, which operated under various names until 1881, when it became Dilworth Brothers Co. Collectors like early advertising items and if the lettering is in good condition, your bin has value. The shipping label is a plus. Large wooden coffee bins sell for $300 to $500.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was American author and political activist Barbara Ehrenreich who made the following sage observation: "No matter that patriotism is too often the refuge of scoundrels. Dissent, rebellion and all-around hell-raising remain the true duty of patriots."

* Coke has the honor of being the first soft drink in space. Members of the Space Shuttle Challenger drank the beverage from a specially designed "Coca-Cola Space Can."

* Andrew Jackson, the seventh president of the United States, was one tough son of a gun. In his youth, his fighting prowess won him fame as a national hero for defeating the British at the Battle of New Orleans during the War of 1812 -- and he never slowed down, it seemed. At the age of 67, he was at a speaking engagement when a member of the audience pulled out a gun and tried to shoot him. When the gun misfired, President Jackson used his walking stick to beat his attacker almost senseless.

* If you're like the typical human, it takes your brain about 0.0004 seconds to retrieve any given memory.

* Even in these modern days, certain maritime traditions hold on. For instance, when a new ship is launched for the first time, the water that first touches the ship is caught in a bottle. Once sealed, that bottle stays with the ship; it's typically displayed in the captain's office, near the bridge.

* On a per-capita basis, residents of Mexico consume more carbonated drinks than people in any other country on Earth.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Stuffed peppers bake nicely when put into the wells of a greased muffin tin.

* Wondering which loan you should focus on first in your debt-free strategy? Shoot for the one with the highest interest rate, generally. Or, if you're the type who needs motivation beyond the knowledge that you are freeing yourself financially, stack them smallest to largest. When you pay off the balance on the smallest loan, fold that extra payment up to the next smallest loan and so on until you are debt-free!

* "Want a nice smelling hamper? I give a coffee filter a spritz of perfume and put it in the bottom. There's no bad smells in my closet, even with a hamper full of workout wear." -- E.L. in South Carolina

* "Pickle juice: What is it good for? Lots! You can drink it if you have a muscle cramp, or in the summer when it's really hot and you're working out to keep from getting dehydrated. But I sometimes like lightly pickled veggies (carrots, cukes and peppers), so when I'm done with the last pickle, I pour the juice and some rough chopped veggies in a saucepot, bring it to a boil and put them right back in the pickle jar. Put it in the fridge, and you'll have pickled veggies in a few days!" -- M.A. in Alabama (Be sure to eat within a week!)

* D.M. in New York writes: "If you are making chocolate cake, replace the water in the recipe with an equal amount of chocolate syrup for a good, deep chocolate flavor." Yummy! Or, just add a squirt to a box mix. That works, too.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. A.W. 9/14

Quincy Symphony Orchestra Outdoor Concert Saturday

4:30 P.M. At Adams Field Part Of 20th · Quincy Artsfest Celebration

QUINCY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA musical director Yoichi Udagawa and musicians stand in appreciation of audience applause at the QSO's outdoor concert at Adams Field during last year's Quincy Artsfest. The orchestra will again perform at this year's Artfest - the 20th annual celebration of the arts. The concert is set for Saturday, Sept. 16 at 4:30 p.m. at Adams Field, Merrymount Park. The two-day Artsfest will take place at Adams Field Saturday, Sept. 16 and Sunday, Sept. 17.

The 20th annual Quincy Artsfest will again feature the spectacular sound of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra in a free open air concert at historic Adams Field in Merrymount Park.

This is the third year that Yoichi Udagawa, the Music Director and Conductor, will lead the orchestra as part of the Quincy Artsfest a two-day celebration of the arts in Quincy. The symphony will perform on Saturday, Sept. 17th at 4:30 p.m.

The Artsfest Committee noted that a new earlier starting time has been created with an eye towards encouraging families with young children and senior citizen to all enjoy the show and as well make it an opportunity for others to enjoy the concert and then adjourn to a local restaurant for dinner. Sometimes adults are reluctant to bring young children to concerts that are performed indoors as they fear they may someway disrupt the event.

"Our outdoor setting is perfect for families," said Quincy Recreation Director Barry Welch. "Each year the crowd has grown as the word has spread of the quality of the music that is on display by the talented members of this first class organization who volunteer their incredible skills for the enjoyment of all. The committee emphasized that this Quincy jewel makes it unnecessary to travel to Boston to hear classic music played to perfection."

There will be bleacher seating available, however spectators are encouraged to bring a lawn chair or blanket as there is ample space to settle in or picnic on the outfield grass in front of the stage.

For this unique concert Udagawa has selected the following music to have

The good-natured Udagawa enjoys interacting with the audience at the QSO's concerts and has been known to wear festive hats at the QSO's annual holiday concert in December.

THIS YEAR marks the third in a row that the Quincy Symphony Orchestra will perform at the Quincy ArtsFest at Adams Field. The concert will begin at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16th at Adams Field located at Merrymount Park.

Bricks for Veterans Program

Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

the orchestra perform: The Star Spangle Banner by Key, Meistersinger Prelude by Wagner, Carmen Suite by Bizet, Hoedown by Copland, Pirates of the Caribbean by Ricketts, Bacchanale: Samson et Dalila by Saint-Saens in the opening set. After intermission they will perform: Hooray for Hollywood by Williams, Harry Potters Wonderous World, Magnificent Seven by Bernstein, Semper Fidelis by Sousa, Armed Forces Salute by Lowden, the 1812 Overture Finale by Tchaikovsky. They finish with the Stars and Stripes by Sousa.

Sponsor of this year's concert will be Quincy Access Television, who will also for the third year tape the performance for later broadcast on Quincy Access TV. Spectators are encouraged to arrive early in order to browse the exhibition tents with over 300 works of art and photography on display. In the event of inclement weather on Saturday the first option for the event will be to hold the event at the same outdoor location on Sunday at 2 p.m. If that is not possible then the event will be moved inside to the Quincy High School Auditorium on Coddington Street with the same starting time of 2 p.m.

Council Votes 7-0 For Bond

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday night approved an $11.54 million bond to pay for repairs at numerous buildings throughout the city – including schools, libraries and firehouses – and also study the feasibility of constructing a new combined police and fire headquarters on the site of the current police station.

The bond was one of four introduced by Mayor Thomas Koch earlier this month as part of his newest capital improvement plan, which he had unveiled in April. The council's finance committee was set to meet Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. to consider the remaining three items, including $7.1 million for a new Quincy Animal Shelter on Quarry Street, $2.3 million for a citywide traffic and parking study, and $2.7 million to acquire the former St. Mary's School on Crescent Street, where Koch hopes to build a new elementary school.

The council approved the $11.54 million bond in a 7-0 vote Monday; Councillors Ian Cain and Kirsten Hughes were not present for the meeting. The council's vote came after an hour-long public hearing during which

Quincy School Officials Outline Substance Abuse Prevention Initiatives

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy public school officials will be drawing on several resources to develop and strengthen substance abuse prevention programs for the coming school year.

Director of Student Support Services Maura Papile outlined the plan and timeline during the Sept. 13 school committee meeting. She said the district is using a case study from the National Academies of Medicine to frame the school department's programs to deal with the opioid crisis that has gripped the area.

"Quincy uniquely has taken the approach to address the epidemic of substance abuse through creating and supporting protective strategies and providing intervention for our students," she said. "Our program provides universal programs which seek to reach all students, selective programs which focuses on specific needs of the students and community, and indicated programs that help those students needing more support."

Papile said a National Academies of Medicine study shows that prevention is the key to head off substance abuse.

"Thirty years of research validates that prevention is effective in promoting positive health in our children," she said. "Prevention is the best investment we can make for our students and

Bi-Lingual Councillor At-Large Candidates Forum At NQHS Oct. 11

Quincy Asian Resources Inc. is partnering with Asian Community Development Corporation and South Cove Community Health Center to organize a bi-lingual forum for councillor at-large candidates on Wednesday, Oct. 11 at North Quincy High school from 6 to 7 p.m.

Six candidates who have been invited to participate in the forum are incumbents Noel DiBona and Nina Liang, former Ward 2 councillor Daniel Raymondi, Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, School Committeewoman Anne Mahoney and first-time candidate Stephen Tougas.

Candidates' comments will be simultaneously translated to Cantonese and Mandarin at the forum. Refreshments will be provided.

The forum is free to the public and all residents are welcomed to attend.

The Sun Begins Its 50th Year

The Quincy Sun begins its 50th year with this issue as "Historic Quincy's Hometown Weekly Newspaper."

The first issue of The Sun appeared Sept. 26, 1968 and since then we have focused our news coverage exclusively on Quincy.

We are proud to carry the name Quincy in our banner.

We have been blessed with loyal readers down through the years who like having a newspaper devoted to their community and interests.

We also have readers in just about all of the 49 other states, former Quincy residents, who want to keep up on what's going on "back home." As they say, "Once a Quincyite, always a Quincyite."

The Sun has won a number of New England Press Association awards through the years.

The publication was also designated a National Blue Ribbon Newspaper for its "high standards of service to the community."

And, it has also been recognized by many local organizations for its service to the community.

A newspaper has a responsibility to the community and its readers to report the news fairly and accurately. This has been our guide and commitment since 1968 and will continue to be.

The Sun is now one of the few remaining independent newspapers and not part of a multi-chain.

As we begin our 50th year, we again want to thank you – our readers and advertisers – for your continued support and encouragement these past 49 years.

And a special thank you goes to our faithful news carriers and dedicated delivery drivers who bring The Sun to Quincy homes and newsstands.

All of you are as much a part of The Quincy Sun family as we the staff.

We look forward to the future with optimism and faith in Quincy.

Thank you, all of you, most sincerely.

Beach Cleanup Sept. 30

The public is invited to join the Friends of Wollaston Beach on Saturday, Sept. 30 from 10 a.m. to noon to participate in this year's Massachusetts Coastsweep.

Volunteers should plan to meet on Wollaston Beach near the yacht clubs.

Coastsweep Massachusetts was formed in 1987 and is part of an annual event to raise awareness and clean beaches from Boston to Bimini. The International Coastal Cleanup brings volunteers together to remove marine debris — trash, fishing line, and any other human-made items — and collect data on the specific types of debris being found to help identify and address the behaviors that cause the debris.

Not only does the clean-up preserve and protect the beach's fragile ecosystems, but the data collected in Coastsweep is invaluable in identifying the sources of pollution to better allocate ever-dwindling resources on the state and federal level.

To learn more about FWB or the cleanup, see wollastonbeach.org for further details and signup information. To join, dues are $10 per year. An application can be printed from the website. When complete, send to Friends of Wollaston Beach, c/o Maureen Mazrimas, Treasurer, 49 Bayberry Rd, Quincy, MA 02171.

Details of FWB's Annual Meeting will be published in an upcoming issue of The Quincy Sun.

Don Martin Appointed Quincy Park Director

Paul Franz Returns As Dept. Project Manager

By SCOTT JACKSON

Don Martin is the new executive director of Quincy's Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department, replacing Paul Franz, the former executive director who will return to his previous post as a project manager in the department.

Mayor Thomas Koch announced the personnel changes Monday, and City Clerk Nicole Crispo swore in Martin to his new post that afternoon.

Martin, a Quincy Point resident, has more than 20 years as a manager in both the private and public sectors, according to the mayor's office. Since 2010, he has helped manage major projects for the city, including the new Quincy High School and Central Middle School; the installation of solar arrays atop school buildings; and most recently, the city's aggressive lead-water removal program in schools.

Martin is a long-time soccer coach, leading Quincy High's girls team from 2001 to 2012 and he was a member of the board of directors for Quincy Youth Soccer for 27 years. In 2011, he opened the Marina Bay SportsPlex, an indoor sports facility for young people and adults.

"I'm very happy for you, Don, and your family," Koch said during the Monday afternoon ceremony.

"You have served the city well in many capacities, but I think there is probably none more important than the one you're about to step into. I want to welcome you onboard, wish you the best

New Middle School Construction Project On Schedule

By TOM GORMAN

The Sterling Middle School construction project is progressing on schedule as the foundation for the city's newest school takes shape.

"The summer has gone very, very well," PCA360 project director Tom Kirwin told the school committee on Sept. 13 during an update on the project that began in the spring. "We really have made good progress. Schedule-wise, we are on budget. Some of the more challenging aspects of this project are now behind us."

The new Sterling Middle School is being built behind the existing school on Granite Street and will replace the 80-year facility. Officials said measures have been taken to minimize disruption during school days while the project is carried out.

The new, modern school will be ready for students in the spring of 2019. Once the new school is opened, the existing structure will be demolished.

Site work on the project began in May. The construction zone was fenced off and when school let out for the summer, excavation began for the foundation. Also, a section of the existing school was taken down to make way for the new building.

Kirwin explained that the challenges this summer centered around taking down the rear of the existing school as well as completing deep excavating and clearing rocks and granite shale - the latter involving blasting.

"These are all challenging things to do considering we are only a few small steps from many neighborhood homes," he said.

PCA360 Project Manager Brian LaRouche said crews are now working on underground utilities and the foundation.

"It's an enormous excavation that goes behind the school up close to the existing school," he said.

LaRouche noted that the hill children used for sledding has been removed and replaced with a mound of excavated soil.

"We named it Mount Sterling," he said.

The soil will be backfilled once the foundation is completed.

LaRouche said that during the summer, "selective demolition" was conducted of the existing school where the gym, locker rooms and a vertical section of classrooms were taken down.

"We put the building back together so that it is serviceable for the next two years for the students," he said.

About 40 construction crew members worked 10 hours, six days a week during the summer in order to have the site ready when students returned this month.

Several temporary changes have been made to the existing school site.

Crews relocated the basketball court and installed a new parking lot. A pathway

SOARING DEMAND FOR DIAMONDS

Consumers apparently feel secure enough in their financial well-being that they are willing to spend their discretionary cash on one of the most popular luxury items - diamonds. In fact, U.S. demand for diamonds, which accounts for more than half of the world's diamond consumption, increased 4.4 percent to a record $41 billion last year. The demand for rough diamonds remains strong, and as the price of polished diamonds has gained steadily and remained stable, consumers have every reason to invest in this traditionally valuable commodity. Of course, the word "commodity" does not begin to describe the natural beauty of one of the earth's most remarkable creations. This is one luxury item that is well within the reach of nearly everyone.

At Rogers Jewelry, we have come to believe that selecting diamond jewelry is more involved than purchasing an automobile and every bit as complicated as buying a home - there are that many variables to consider. Don't make this important decision alone. Simplify your life and trust an experienced, qualified jeweler to guide you through the intricacies of fine gemstone purchase. When you're considering the investment in diamond jewelry, we're ready with a spectacular selection at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. PH: 617-773-3636. Serving Quincy since 1944; now let us serve you.

Preliminary Election Observations

The preliminary election is in the books and now it's on to the final election Nov. 7.

We have a few observations to make and the first is the turnout last Tuesday.

Sum it up with one word: pathetic.

A paltry 14.68 percent of the city's 59,465 registered voters – only 8,728 – bothered to cast ballots. Turnout was higher in the traditionally more robust precincts including Ward 6 Precinct 5 in Squantum that led the way with 37.76 percent (910 out of 2,410 voters) and Ward 1 Precinct 5 in Houghs Neck with 34.35 percent (821 out of 2,390 voters).

But overall turnout was rather sad.

How sad?

Consider twice the number of voters went to the polls for the preliminary election held Sept. 11, 2011 – the day this country was attacked by terrorists. The 9-11-01 preliminary election was a carbon copy of last Tuesday: there was a city-wide run-off for councillor at-large plus three contests for ward councillor.

Turnout on that tragic Tuesday 16 years ago this month was 28.86 percent of the city's 52,253 registered voters. Despite the horror, uncertainty and anxiety created by the plane hijackings – two occurring on flights originating at nearby Logan Airport in Boston – a few hours after the polls opened, 15,079 voters still managed to cast ballots.

Take your pick as to why the vote was anemic on Sept. 12. It was just a preliminary? The real election is Nov. 7. Voter fatigue? Since the last city election in 2015 we've had Presidential Primaries and the Presidential election last November.

Maybe a little of both.

Or something else?

The real question is how many additional voters will go to the polls Nov. 7.

Another 5 or 10 percent (2,950 to 5,900) perhaps. On the one hand, there are six candidates running for three school committee seats; that should bring out more voters. But on the other hand there is no draw for mayor because Mayor Thomas Koch is at the half-way point of a four-year term. The mayor's seat will be in the hands of the voters again in 2019.

Some may question why even have a preliminary election?

Well, the city charter requires it when there are more than a certain number of candidates for mayor, school committee and city councillor. Eliminating preliminary elections would require a change to the city charter – probably by initiative petition.

We will go on record now stating we oppose eliminating preliminary elections. They have worked well and only in recent times has turnout declined so dramatically.

The problem isn't with the election process – it could very well be with the voters who may feel disenfranchised with elected officials and how they represent them. If they feel government isn't working for them, perhaps they've reached a cynical point and would prefer to sit out the process because they believe in the end it doesn't matter who is elected.

Perhaps the voting process needs to be updated and more in line with today's digital age.

There will probably be a day when votes can be cast not at a precinct but in the comfort of our own home via a computer. We seem to do everything else digitally may it be buying groceries, shopping for clothes or paying our bills.

The virtual voting precinct is on the horizon, officials believe, but for now there is ample opportunity to cast your ballot the old-fashioned way.

Can't make it to the polls on Election Day? Take an absentee ballot and vote at your convenience. Maybe early voting – a success leading up to the 2016 Presidential Election last November – will be utilized for state elections and someday city elections. That could help boost turnout but would require additional resources (police details, poll workers) that frankly the city may not be able to afford.

The only other thing we will mention is that this fall's election represents the potential for a significant turnover in local office holders. There are contested races for three council at-large seats, three ward seats and three school committee seats. That's 9 out of 16 elected seats – more than 50 percent of the decision makers in Quincy.

There will be some new faces in municipal government on inauguration day in January. Voters should make every effort to help decide who these folks are by going to the polls Nov. 7.

ONE OF THE most watched races on the Nov. 7 ballo is for the three city council at-large seats. The order of fin ish in the preliminary election was incumbent Noel DiBona former Ward 2 councillor Dan Raymondi, Ward 1 councillo Margaret Laforest, School Committeewoman Anne Mahon ey, incumbent Nina Liang and first-time candidate Stephe Tougas. The top three vote-getters will win two-year terms

Based on their strong showings in the preliminary i would appear DiBona and Raymondi are favorites to wir two of the three seats. DiBona – who is running city-wide for the third time in five years (school committee in 201 and at-large 2015) topped the ballot with 4,919 votes. Raymondi, who served nearly 30 years in elected office as a ward councillor and a school committeeman before running the Department of Public Works as commissioner for six years until resigning the post this summer – was second with 4,037 votes.

Finishing third was Laforest with 3,624 votes – 413 behind Raymondi and 103 ahead of Mahoney who was fourth with 3,521. Mahoney had 426 votes more than Liang who took fifth with 3,095 votes. Tougas was also nominated with 552 votes.

The Laforest-Mahoney-Liang race for that third at-large seat could be very close.

Among these three competitors – Liang finished ahead of Laforest and Mahoney in three wards – Wards 2, 3 and 5. Laforest was ahead of Mahoney and Liang in Ward 1 and Ward 6. Mahoney was ahead of Laforest and Liang in Ward 4.

The vote by ward amongst Laforest, Mahoney and Liang:

Ward 1: Laforest 1,253, Mahoney 1,021 and Liang 667. Turnout was 23.04 percent.

Ward 2: Liang 353, Mahoney 345 and Laforest 324. Turnout was 11.88 percent

Ward 3: Liang 449, Mahoney 429 and Laforest 355. Turnout was 10.52 percent.

Ward 4: Mahoney 377, Laforest 296 and Liang 237. Turnout was 8.30 percent.

Ward 5: Liang 642, Laforest 634 and Mahoney 606. Turnout was 15.60 percent.

Ward 6: Laforest 762, Liang 747 and Mahoney 743. Turnout was 18.47 percent.

Keep in mind that the order of finish in an at-large preliminary election does not necessarily mean that's how the candidates will stack up in a final election.

In fact, since 1959, the order of finish has changed in the final election from the preliminary election six times.

The fourth place finish has been a good omen for candidates in six preliminaries as they went on to win one of the three seats in the final election.

But in four of those elections, the candidate was the same: John Quinn. He went from fourth to third place in 1959 and 1963, to first in 1967 and to second in 1977.

Another candidate who accomplished this feat was George McDonald. After taking fourth in the 1969 preliminary election he jumped up to first in the final.

The last candidate to win an at-large seat after finishing lower than third in the preliminary election was Paul Harold in 1975. He went from fourth to second in the final.

In the 2001 council at-large preliminary election – the last before this year's run-off – the order of finish did not change. That year incumbents Tim Cahill and Frank McCauley and Joseph Finn took the top three spots in the preliminary. McCauley was 215 votes behind Cahill and Finn was 1,035 behind McCauley. Finishing fourth was John Keenan – 609 votes behind Finn.

In the final, Cahill (7,518 votes) was first followed by McCauley (7,303 votes) and Finn (6,268 votes). Keenan finished fourth again with 5,659 votes – 609 behind Finn.

Turnout for the 2001 final election was almost 50 percent. The big draw that year was the mayor's race. Then School Committeeman William Phelan unseated six-term incumbent James Sheets in one of the closest elections in city history. A recount put the margin at 17 votes – 12,355 for Phelan and 12,338 for Sheets.

THE LAST DAY to register to vote for the Nov. 7th city election is Wednesday, Oct. 18. The Quincy Election Department located in the City Hall glass annex building, 1305 Hancock St., will be open until 8 p.m. Oct. 18.

Scenes From Yesterday

Howard Street Entrance to Fore River Shipyard, Quincy, Mass.

6-Ward Plan OK'd But Councillor Vows Court Action

Federal Court Judge Andrew Caffery accepted the six-ward plan advanced by Ward 4 Councillor Albert Barilaro and approved by the City Council, and then the judge shut off all further debate on the issue that has plagued the city since June.

Thus the preliminary election will be held Nov. 6 and the final election on Dec. 4.

"The judge, in essence, overruled a state statute that would have barred us from redistricting again until 1980," said Ward 3 Councillor Theophilus McLelland III, whose political foothold in Ward 3 was wiped out under the Barilaro plan. (Editor's note: The Barilaro plan put Ward 3 Councillor McLelland in Ward 2 and added portions of Ward 3 to Ward 4 Councillor Albert Barilaro's constituency. McLelland chose to run for Councillor at-Large and lost. Barilaro would lose his Ward 4 seat to newcomer James A. Sheets.)

LIONS CLUB ESTABLISHES CAPT. BRUDNO SCHOLARSHIP

The Quincy Lions Club is establishing a scholarship fund in memory of the late Capt. Edward A. Brudno, former Vietnam POW, who died last June.

A special committee, headed by former School Committee Vice-Chairman James F. McCormick, has been meeting to set up the scholarship.

Capt. Brudno's father, Dr. James Brudno, was a charter member of the Quincy Lions Club.

Capt. Brudno's Air Force Phantom jet was shot down in Oct. 1965. He was released with other POWs in February 1973.

Serving on the scholarship committee with McCormick were Lions Members George Riley, City Auditor Alexander Smith and James Sullivan.

Fix The Funding Cliff

By EVA GREENWOOD and CYNTHIA SIERRA

Manet Community Health Center's waiting rooms are thousands of miles from the U.S. Capitol, but what happens –or doesn't happen –under that dome will have a direct impact on our patients.

Community Health Centers like ours bring a unique and important perspective to the national conversation on health care. Manet is part of a nationwide network that started more than 50 years ago to provide quality primary care in places where doctors and services were scarce or non-existent. Health centers now serve as the family doctor to more than 1 in 7 residents in Massachusetts and 27 million Americans in communities all over the country. We save countless lives providing affordable access to primary care. We've helped reduce the incidence of chronic disease in the most challenging rural and urban communities all over America, and we offer patients a more affordable option for preventive care than a hospital emergency room. We generate $24 billion in health care cost savings, according to the National Association of Community Health Centers (NACHC). We are also innovators, working with community partners to respond to public health crises, such as the opioid epidemic and the aftermath of hurricanes Texas and Florida.

There is little doubt that health centers save costs for the American taxpayer. Yet, we're not just another health care program. We are problem-solvers who look beyond medical charts not only to prevent illness, but also to address the factors that actually cause poor health, such as homelessness, lack of nutrition, unemployment and substance misuse. Through the expansion of addiction prevention and services, Manet works daily to stem the devastating tide of the opioid crisis.

For decades, health centers have drawn bipartisan support from U.S. presidents and lawmakers because of our record of success. Yet, such broad support may not be enough to ensure we can continue to serve people who need affordable primary care in the future.

Right now, a severe loss in funding threatens Manet and other health centers in nearly 10,000 communities. This "funding cliff," if not fixed by Congress by the end of this month, will have a direct and immediate impact on the health of our communities, reducing Health Center Program funding by approximately 70 percent. The federal Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has projected that the impact of would be dramatic: closure of 2,800 health center locations, elimination of more than 50,000 jobs, and loss of access to care for more than 9 million patients. Manet serves over 16,000 patients a year at our sites in Quincy, Hull and Taunton. A major reduction in our funding would mean potentially scaling back services, at a transformative time when the need for them is greater than ever.

Please join Manet and health centers across Massachusetts and the nation in calling on our federal lawmakers to extend health center funding before Sept. 30.

We look to our leaders to listen, activate and fix the funding cliff. Our communities' good health depends on it.

Eva Greenwood is the president of the Board of Directors and Cynthia Sierra, Chief Executive Officer, Manet Community Health Center.

Red Cross Encourages Blood Donations During National Preparedness Month

As the American Red Cross responds to wildfires and historic hurricanes, eligible donors are reminded that giving blood or platelets during National Preparedness Month in September is one way to help ensure the Red Cross is prepared to respond to patient emergencies across the country every day.

Hurricane Irma has forced the cancellation of dozens of Red Cross blood drives in the Southeast, resulting in more than 2,100 uncollected blood and platelet donations. Natural disasters like hurricanes can disrupt blood drives and prevent donors from giving, but hospital patients still depend on lifesaving transfusions. Volunteer blood and platelet donors are the only source for blood products needed by hospital patients.

Individuals in parts of the country unaffected by Hurricane Irma are encouraged to give blood or platelets to help ensure a sufficient blood supply. All blood types are currently needed. Appointments can be made by using the Blood Donor App, visiting redcrossblood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS.

To help reduce wait times, donors are encouraged to make appointments and use RapidPass® to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questions online, on the day of their donation, from a computer or mobile device at redcrossblood.org/rapidpass.

As a thank-you, those who come to donate blood or platelets through Sept. 30, 2017, will receive a coupon for a free haircut at participating Sport Clips locations. More information is available at redcrossblood.org/sport-clips.

The American Red Cross has scheduled a blood drive in Quincy on Monday, Sept. 25 from 1 to 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

How to donate blood

Simply download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) to make an appointment or for more information. All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Volunteers needed

Another way to support the lifesaving mission of the American Red Cross is to become a volunteer transportation specialist and deliver lifesaving blood products to local area hospitals. Volunteer transportation specialists play a very important role in ensuring an ample blood supply for patients in need by transporting blood and blood products. For more information and to apply for a volunteer transportation specialist position, visit rdcrss.org/driver.

The American Red Cross shelters, feeds and provides emotional support to victims of disasters; supplies about 40 percent of the nation's blood; teaches skills that save lives; provides international humanitarian aid; and supports military members and their families. The Red Cross is a not-for-profit organization that depends on volunteers and the generosity of the American public to perform its mission.

For more information, visit redcross.org or cruzrojaamericana.org, or visit us on Twitter at @RedCross.

Sheriff's Youth Academy Serves 1,300 Children This Summer

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti announces 1,300 children between the ages of 10 and 14 took part in his Youth Leadership Academy this summer.

The unique academy, which uses an aerial ropes course to teach teamwork and build confidence among young people, ended on Aug. 18 after nine one-week sessions at the Norfolk Sheriff's Office Braintree Public Safety Complex.

"It's amazing to see how much the kids enjoy the program. Their enthusiasm is contagious and infuses us with energy," Sheriff Bellotti said. "They have a tremendous amount of fun, and along the way, they learn about team-building and relying on one another to accomplish things they never even imagined."

Sheriff Bellotti added, "They also learn about the harmful effects of bullying in addition to the importance of fire safety."

This was the 12th summer that the Norfolk Sheriff's Office has run the Youth Leadership Academy. Its programming is facilitated by 33 interns and 99 peer leaders, many of whom attended the academy when they were younger.

Crustless Vegetable Quiche

By MARIE

Recently I met a friend of mine, Gerry, and she told me that she lost her recipe for crustless vegetable quiche. So here it is again – today's recipe is for you Gerry!!

Sometimes for a crust I have used cornmeal but today's recipe calls for sliced onion for a crust.

RECIPE

1 tablespoon butter
1 medium onion, sliced
3 or 4 cups of sliced vegetables: tomatoes, zucchini, spinach and corn. (If you use these they do not need to be cooked.)
(If you use broccoli or cauliflower, they should be cooked slightly first).
(If you use spinach just cut it up)
Salt and pepper to taste
8 large eggs
1 cup of milk
1 cup of grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 400 degrees

Melt butter and sauté onion until golden brown. Slightly grease a deep dish pie plate and spread sliced onion on the bottom of the pie plate. Now spread vegetables evenly over the onion.

In a bowl beat eggs with milk . Add the cheese salt and pepper and mix well. Pour mixture over vegetables and onion. Bake for 45 minutes to 1 hour or until toothpick comes out clean.

Pizza Omelet

By SUSIE

I don't know anyone who does not like pizza. LOVE is more like it. Here is a fun and healthy recipe that could be served for any meal along with a salad.

An estimated 94 % of Americans eat pizza regularly and the average American eats about 46 slices per year, with more than 3 billion pizzas sold per year. A funny statistic is that 36% of people consider pizza to be the "perfect breakfast." So here I am with my pizza omelet for you to try. The crust on this pizza is made with eggs which is a healthy twist and makes a great breakfast.

PIZZA OMELET

- 2 organic eggs, whisked with sea salt and pepper to taste along with a tablespoon of parmesan OR pecorino romano (made from sheep's milk) and ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 tablespoon or so of olive oil to heat in the pan
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 tablespoons of minced red pepper (or mushrooms)
- ½ teaspoon dried basil
- ¼ teaspoon dried oregano
- 3 tablespoons or so of tomato sauce, or spaghetti sauce that is warmed

Coat a small skillet with olive oil and heat until very hot on medium heat. NOT high. Add herbs and onion/pepper/mushroom combo. Cook until fragrant. Now increase heat a bit and add in egg mixture.

Cook as you would a regular omelet by not disturbing it for about 30 seconds, then using your spatula lift edges of omelet up to allow the runny egg to go under and cook. Keep doing this until it is firm enough to flip over. Flip and cook a bit more until done and slide onto plate. Top with warm tomato sauce and serve with a little extra parmesan or romano cheese if you like. ENJOY!!!

Friends Of Blue Hills Celebration Oct. 5

The Friends of the Blue Hills will host their Annual Celebration Thursday, Oct. 5, from 7 to 9 p.m. at The Hoosic Club, 193 Central Ave., Milton.

The evening will include hors d'oeuvres, silent auction, and the presentation of the organization's 2017 Community Partners Awards. Tickets are $35 if purchased by Oct. 2 and $40 at the door and are available at www.FriendsoftheBlueHills.org/Celebrate2017.

The keynote speaker will be Peter Gittleman from Historic New England. He supervises the visitor experience at the organization's 37 sites, including the Eustis Estate in Milton.

The Eustis Estate is a rare surviving example of late 19th century architecture which sits on 80 acres of picturesque landscape at the base of the Blue Hills. Mr. Gittleman, an entertaining and popular speaker, will discuss the history of the estate and its significance to the Blue Hills Reservation.

There will also be a special raffle as part of the festivities: a gourmet dinner for six at the top of the Blue Hills Observatory, catered by The Townshend in Quincy. The Townshend just won the "Best of Boston" award for General Excellence-South.

Tickets for the raffle are $15 each or 3/$35 and can be purchased at www.FriendsoftheBlueHills.org/Raffle2017.

For more information, mail info@FriendsoftheBlueHills.org or call 781-828-1805.

SS Mental Health Seeks Walkers, Runners, And Bikers For Athletic Festival Sept. 23

Friends and supporters of South Shore Mental Health will convene at Wompatuck State Park in Hingham Saturday, Sept. 23 to take part in The McCourt Foundation's Tour de South Shore Athletic Festival.

The annual event, which raises funds to support the fight against neurological diseases and other non-profit causes, will offer a 5K walk or fun run, a 12-mile off-road bike ride, or a 25- or 50-mile bike ride where participants can be part of an established team, a team of their own, or take part as individuals. Post-event activities will include a tailgate lunch featuring food and beverages from south shore restaurants and entertainment within the athlete's village.

As one of The McCourt Foundation's non-profit partners for this year's festival, South Shore Mental Health will receive 80 percent of all proceeds raised by its team. Funds will benefit the organization's Basic Needs Fund which provides financially disadvantaged clients with food, clothing, shelter, and other daily essentials.

To register for the event, make a donation, or learn more, visit www.ssmh.org or contact South Shore Mental Health's Director of Marketing and Development, Margaret Carr at 617-774-1017 or mcarr@ssmh.org.

QHS Class Of 1952 Reunion Oct. 13

Quincy High School Class of 1952 will hold its 55th reunion Friday, Oct. 13 at 6 p.m. in the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry Street, Quincy.

On Satuday, Oct. 14 there will be a reunion brunch at 10 a.m. at the Best Western Adams Inn, Quincy.

For more information, call Joanne (May) Vitti (781-294-0764), Sandra (Berrini) Cavallao (617-773-5981) or Jane (May) Durante (781-826-3913).

What If . . . Workbook Program Oct. 18

What if something unexpected were to happen to you?

Would your family or trusted friend know about your finances, who to contact, your important documents (are they in place?), final wishes, family medical history?

Join the Quincy Council on Aging for a 40-minute presentation by Scituate author Gwen Morgan at the Kennedy Center on Wednesday Oct. 18th at 10:30 a.m.

Morgan will share with us her What If ...Workbook, a fill-in-the-blank organizational guide created and inspired by her work with hospice, the elderly and personal experience. She will discuss finances, contacts, legal documents, final wishes, family medical history, legacy and much more.

Books will be available for purchase. Light refreshments will be provided.

Registration is required. To register call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church Craft Fair Dec. 2

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual Yuletide Craft Fair Saturday, Dec. 2 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Vendors will offer speciality items. There will also be a homemade luncheon featuring hot dogs.

Tables are available at $30 each. Call the church office at 617-773-3319 to reserve a table.

The church is handicap accessible at the front of the building on Beale Street, near the flag pole. There is a stone path from the street to the entrance.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Bursitis: Causes, Diagnosis, Treatment

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-F

Bursitis is a painful condition that affects the small, fluid-filled sacs, referred to as bursae. These bursae cushion the bones, tendons and muscles near your joints.

Bursitis appears when bursae become inflamed. The most frequent locations for bursitis are in the shoulder, elbow and hip. However bursitis can also crop up in your knee, heel and the base of your big toe. Bursitis often occurs near joints that execute frequent repetitive motion.

Treatment typically involves resting the affected joint and safeguarding it from further trauma. In most cases, bursitis discomfort subsides within a few weeks with proper treatment, but recurrent flare-ups of bursitis are not uncommon.

If you have bursitis, the affected joint may possibly:

- Feel achy or stiff
- Hurt more when you move it or press on it
- Look swollen and red

Discuss with your doctor if you develop:

- Disabling joint pain
- Sudden inability to move a joint
- Excessive swelling, redness, bruising or a rash in the affected area
- Sharp or shooting pain, especially when you exercise or exert yourself
- A fever

The most customary triggers of bursitis are repetitive motions or positions that put pressure on the bursae around a joint. Examples may involve:

- Throwing a baseball or lifting something over your head repeatedly
- Leaning on your elbows for extended periods
- Extensive kneeling for tasks such as laying carpet or scrubbing floors

Other causes consist of injury or trauma to the affected area, inflammatory arthritis such as rheumatoid arthritis, gout and infection.

Anyone can develop bursitis at any time, but particular factors can increase your risk:

- Age. Bursitis becomes more common with aging.
- Occupations or hobbies. If your work or hobby requires repetitive motion or pressure on particular bursae, your risk of developing bursitis increases. Examples include carpet laying, tile setting, gardening, painting and playing a musical instrument.
- Other medical conditions. Certain systemic diseases and conditions, such as rheumatoid arthritis, gout and diabetes increase your risk of developing bursitis. Being overweight can enhance your risk of developing hip and knee bursitis.

Diagnosing begins by consulting your primary care provider, who may refer you to a rheumatologist who specializes in joint disorders. During the physical exam, your doctor will examine various spots around your affected joint to try to determine whether a specific bursa is triggering your pain.

Your doctor may also inquire about:

- Did your pain come on suddenly or gradually?
- What kind of work do you do?
- What are your hobbies or recreational activities?
- Does your pain occur or worsen during certain activities, such as kneeling or climbing stairs?
- Have you recently fallen or had another injury?
- What treatments have you tried?
- What effect did those treatments have?

Doctors can often diagnose bursitis based on a medical history and physical exam. Testing, if needed, might include:

- Imaging tests such as, X-rays, Ultrasound or MRI might be used if your bursitis can't easily be diagnosed by a physical exam alone.
- Your doctor might order blood tests or an analysis of fluid from the inflamed bursa to pinpoint the cause of your joint inflammation and pain.

Bursitis commonly improves on its own. Conservative measures, such as rest, ice and taking a pain reliever, can reduce the discomfort. If conventional measures are not successful, you might require:

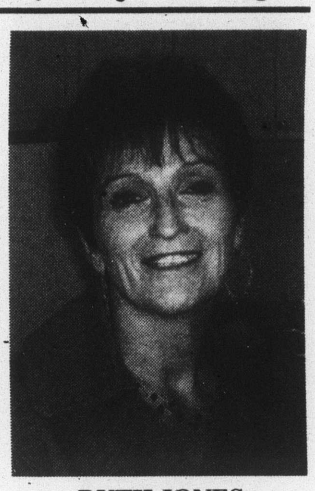
- Antibiotic medication if the inflammation in your bursa is caused by an infection.
- Physical therapy or exercises that can strengthen the muscles in the affected area to ease pain and prevent recurrence.
- Injections such as a corticosteroid drug injected into the bursa to relieve pain and inflammation in your shoulder or hip. This treatment generally acts quickly and, in many cases, one injection is all that may be necessary.
- Temporary use of a walking cane or other assistive devices that will help relieve pressure on the affected area.
- Rarely, surgical removal of the inflamed affected bursa may be necessary.

Additionally there are several lifestyle changes and home remedies you can utilize to relieve the pain of bursitis including:

- Rest and avoid overuse of the affected area.
- Apply ice to reduce swelling for the first 48 hours after symptoms occur.
- Apply dry or moist heat, such as a heating pad or taking a warm bath.
- Take an over-the-counter medication, such as ibuprofen (Advil, Motrin) or naproxen sodium (Aleve), to relieve pain and reduce inflammation. Some are available in a form you apply to the skin.
- If you sleep on your side, cushion your knees by placing a small pillow between your legs.

Bursitis is a relatively common condition, but because many people treat it at home and do not see a doctor, it is difficult to know exactly how prevalent it is. While not all types of bursitis can be prevented, you can reduce your risk and the severity of flare-ups by altering the way you do certain tasks. Examples include:

- Using kneeling pads. Use some type of padding to reduce the pressure on your knees if your job or hobby requires a lot of kneeling.
- Lifting properly. Bend your knees when you lift. Failure to do so puts extra stress on the bursae in your hips.
- Wheeling heavy loads. Carrying heavy loads puts stress on the bursae in your shoulders. Use a dolly or a wheeled cart instead.
- Alternate repetitive tasks with rest or other activities. Take frequent breaks.
- Maintaining a healthy weight. Being overweight places more stress on your joints.
- Strengthening your muscles can help protect your affected joint. Exercises to strengthen muscles should only be done after the bursitis has gone completely.
- Warming up and stretching before strenuous activities to protect your joints from injury. Before vigorous exercise, it is best to warm up for at least 5 to 10 minutes. Activities could include walking at a good speed, slow jogging, or a cycling machine.



RUTH JONES

Bursitis may reappear, particularly if you engage regularly in strenuous exercise or physical labor. Being informed, making smart choices and taking measures to avoid further strain or injury, will help circumvent this recurrence.

BID Hospital-Milton Expands Robotic Surgery Program

Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton (BID-Milton) has expanded its long-standing robotic surgery program. Several leading robotic surgeons, including four from Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, joined the growing program and began performing robot-assisted surgery at BID-Milton this summer.

The hospital also increased the types of operations that could be performed robotically. In addition to urologic conditions, robot-assisted surgery also can now be performed for certain gynecologic and urogynecologic conditions as well as for gynecologic cancers later this year.

"BID-Milton is an ideal location to offer a wide variety of robotic-assisted surgery options," explained Peter Chang, MD, MPH, director of the Prostate Care Center at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, who is now performing robotic prostatectomies (removal of the prostate) at BID-Milton. "We have an outstanding group of experienced robotic surgeons from the medical center, Atrius Health, South Shore Urology and Greater Boston Urology, and the surgical staff here is top notch. Patients can receive the same care as in Boston but much closer to home."

Robot-assisted surgery is minimally invasive. Instead of one "open" incision, the surgeon operates through three of four smaller incisions which are roughly the size of a button each. Through these tiny incisions, the surgeon inserts a miniaturized high-definition camera and surgical instruments with the help of the "robot's" mechanical arms. The surgeon controls the camera and instruments from a computer console located to the side of the operating table.

In the hands of an experienced surgeon, robot-assisted surgery offers more precision and flexibility. The miniaturized camera provides a magnified, three-dimensional view inside the body and the robot's mechanical arms greatly improves control of the surgical instruments while making it possible to operate in hard-to-reach parts of the body.

Numerous medical studies have shown that minimally invasive robotic surgery reduces blood loss as well as tissue and nerve damage. Patients have a shorter hospital stay, usually overnight, and are able to return to normal activities more quickly than with the traditional open surgery.

BID-Milton began offering robotic-assisted surgery for removal of the prostate gland several years ago. In addition to this operation, the hospital now provides robotic surgery for:

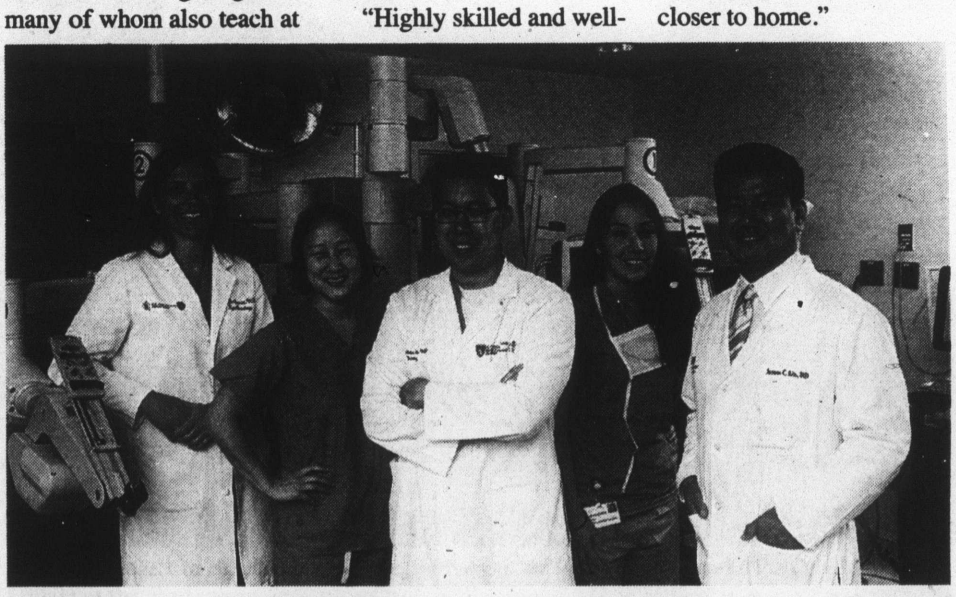
- Hysterectomy
- Removal of the ovaries (Complex oophorectomy)
- Pelvic floor prolapse (Uterosacral colpoplexy)
- Cervical cancer
- Endometrial cancer

BID-Milton obstetrician and gynecologist Alice Shin, MD, of Milton Women's Health, is one of the physicians now performing robot-assisted surgery at the hospital. "My colleagues, Dr. Roger Lefevre and Dr. Leslie Garrett, and I are very pleased to begin offering this type of proven, minimally invasive surgery as an option to our patients. Local women can now receive advanced surgical care in gynecology, urogynecology and gynecologic oncology without leaving the community."

Edward Reardon, MD, chief of surgery at BID-Milton emphasized the importance of a robust robotic surgery program. "BID-Milton has one of the fastest growing surgery programs in the state. The field of robot-assisted surgery will continue to grow, and we can now offer patients easy access to several leading surgeons, many of whom also teach at Harvard Medical School, in a convenient, high-quality and lower-cost community hospital setting."

To prepare for the expansion of the robotic surgery program, BID-Milton provided an extensive training program for its operating room staff and surgical physician assistants, including having them assist on robotic surgery cases at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center.

"Highly skilled and well-trained clinicians and support staff are fundamental to a successful robotic surgery program," said Ashley Yeats, MD, vice president of healthcare quality and clinical integration and chief medical officer at BID-Milton. "We are fortunate that we have a very strong surgical staff and group of anesthesiologists to support this program's patient care. This is yet another great example of bringing 'downtown care' closer to home."



BETH ISRAEL DEACONESS Hospital-Milton recently expanded its robotic surgery program by adding several new surgeons and increasing the types of operations that can be performed using minimally invasive robot-assisted surgery. Shown are several members of the hospital's robotic surgery team (l to r) Leslie Garrett, MD, gynecologic oncologist; Janet Li, MD, urogynecologist; Peter Chang, MD, urologist; Alexandra DiRaimo, PA, surgical physician assistant; and James Lin, MD, urologist. Photo Courtlesy BID Hospital-Milton

By MARIE

Recently I met a friend of mine, Gerry, and she told me that she lost her recipe for crustless vegetable quiche. So here it is again – today's recipe is for you Gerry!!

Sometimes for a crust I have used cornmeal but today's recipe calls for sliced onion for a crust.

RECIPE

1 tablespoon butter
1 medium onion, sliced
3 or 4 cups of sliced vegetables: tomatoes, zucchini, spinach and corn. (If you use these they do not need to be cooked.)
(If you use broccoli or cauliflower, they should be cooked slightly first).
(If you use spinach just cut it up)
Salt and pepper to taste
8 large eggs
1 cup of milk
1 cup of grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 400 degrees

Melt butter and sauté onion until golden brown. Slightly grease a deep dish pie plate and spread sliced onion on the bottom of the pie plate. Now spread vegetables evenly over the onion.

In a bowl beat eggs with milk . Add the cheese salt and pepper and mix well. Pour mixture over vegetables and onion. Bake for 45 minutes to 1 hour or until toothpick comes out clean.

Pizza Omelet

By SUSIE

I don't know anyone who does not like pizza. LOVE is more like it. Here is a fun and healthy recipe that could be served for any meal along with a salad.

An estimated 94 % of Americans eat pizza regularly and the average American eats about 46 slices per year, with more than 3 billion pizzas sold per year. A funny statistic is that 36% of people consider pizza to be the "perfect breakfast." So here I am with my pizza omelet for you to try. The crust on this pizza is made with eggs which is a healthy twist and makes a great breakfast.

PIZZA OMELET

- 2 organic eggs, whisked with sea salt and pepper to taste along with a tablespoon of parmesan OR pecorino romano (made from sheep's milk) and ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 tablespoon or so of olive oil to heat in the pan
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 tablespoons of minced red pepper (or mushrooms)
- ½ teaspoon dried basil
- ¼ teaspoon dried oregano
- 3 tablespoons or so of tomato sauce, or spaghetti sauce that is warmed

Coat a small skillet with olive oil and heat until very hot on medium heat. NOT high. Add herbs and onion/pepper/mushroom combo. Cook until fragrant. Now increase heat a bit and add in egg mixture.

Cook as you would a regular omelet by not disturbing it for about 30 seconds, then using your spatula lift edges of omelet up to allow the runny egg to go under and cook. Keep doing this until it is firm enough to flip over. Flip and cook a bit more until done and slide onto plate. Top with warm tomato sauce and serve with a little extra parmesan or romano cheese if you like. ENJOY!!!

Bursitis: Causes, Diagnosis, Treatment

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-F

Bursitis is a painful condition that affects the small, fluid-filled sacs, referred to as bursae. These bursae cushion the bones, tendons and muscles near your joints.

Bursitis appears when bursae become inflamed. The most frequent locations for bursitis are in the shoulder, elbow and hip. However bursitis can also crop up in your knee, heel and the base of your big toe. Bursitis often occurs near joints that execute frequent repetitive motion.

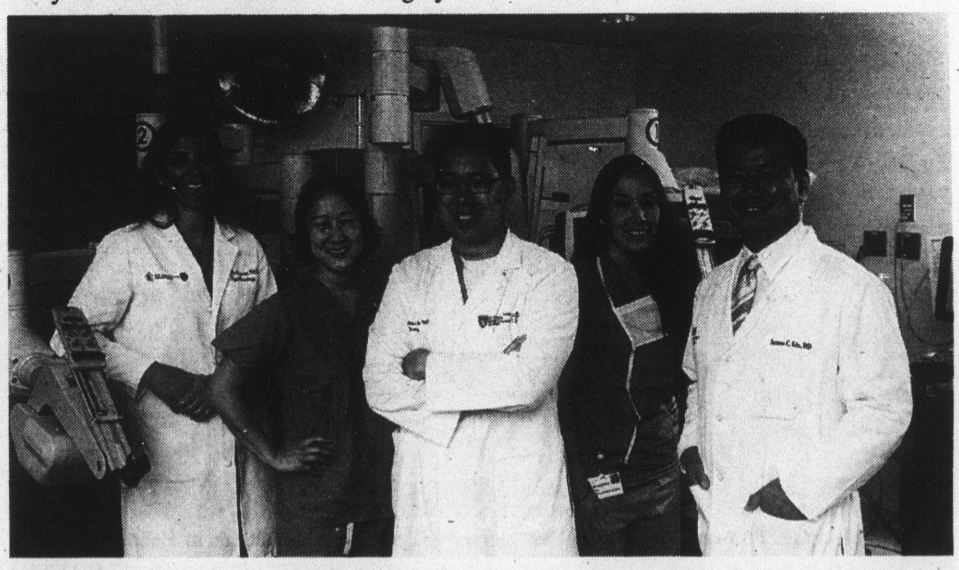
BID-Milton obstetrician and gynecologist Alice Shin, MD, of Milton Women's Health, is one of the physicians now performing robot-assisted surgery at the hospital. "My colleagues, Dr. Roger Lefevre and Dr. Leslie Garrett, and I are very pleased to begin offering this type of proven, minimally invasive surgery as an option to our patients. Local women can now receive advanced surgical care in gynecology, urogynecology and gynecologic oncology without leaving the community."

Edward Reardon, MD, chief of surgery at BID-Milton emphasized the importance of a robust robotic surgery program. "BID-Milton has one of the fastest growing surgery programs in the state. The field of robot-assisted surgery will continue to grow, and we can now offer patients easy access to several leading surgeons, many of whom also teach at Harvard Medical School, in a convenient, high-quality and lower-cost community hospital setting."

To prepare for the expansion of the robotic surgery program, BID-Milton provided an extensive training program for its operating room staff and surgical physician assistants, including having them assist on robotic surgery cases at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center.

"Highly skilled and well-trained clinicians and support staff are fundamental to a successful robotic surgery program," said Ashley Yeats, MD, vice president of healthcare quality and clinical integration and chief medical officer at BID-Milton. "We are fortunate that we have a very strong surgical staff and group of anesthesiologists to support this program's patient care. This is yet another great example of bringing 'downtown care' closer to home."



BETH ISRAEL DEACONESS Hospital-Milton recently expanded its robotic surgery program by adding several new surgeons and increasing the types of operations that can be performed using minimally invasive robot-assisted surgery. Park Conservancy To Honor Mayor Walter Hannon With Charles Francis Adams Award Sept. 28

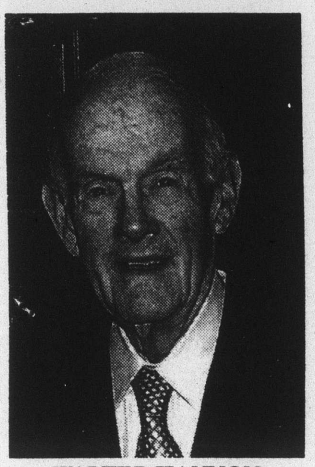
Presentation At Historic Dorothy Quincy Homestead

Former Mayor Walter Hannon will be recognized by the Quincy Park Conservancy with their Charles Francis Adams II Award on Thursday, Sept. 28th.

The Conservancy chose Hannon for his dedication to improving the Quincy park system during his tenure as mayor and for his role in transforming the former Quincy landfill site off Ricuitti Drive into the Quarry Hills Recreational Facility.



WALTER HANNON

The awards event will be held in garden party style at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead on Thursday, Sept. 28th. The beautiful historic property is located on the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road, adjacent to the Furnace Brook. The award ceremony will run from 5 to 7 p.m. Light hors d'oeuvres will be provided with beverages.

Tickets to the unique event are $100 per person or $150 per couple. Tickets can be purchased at the event. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Quincy Parks Conservancy, a registered 501©3 non-profit formed to promote and enhance Quincy's beautiful and historic parks and open spaces.

Hannon served as Quincy's 27th mayor during a vital time in its modern history (1972-1975). As mayor he worked to fund and improve Quincy's park system throughout its many neighborhoods. Hannon led a group called Quarry Hills Associates that conceptualized, designed, and oversaw the transformation of the former Quincy landfill into an amazing recreational facility in West Quincy. Today, it hosts 27 holes of championship golf, hiking trails, historic quarry areas, soccer fields, and the city's premier little league baseball complex.

"We are honored to recognize such an important figure in the history of Quincy," said Conservancy President Dave Murphy. "Mayor Hannon's legacy is one of vision and foresight for generations of residents that will follow. Hannon's impact on this city will likely be similar to the award's namesake, who realized the benefits that Merrymount Park would have on future inhabitants on Quincy. His impacts, on the parks and city planning, will be enjoyed and appreciated for generations to come."

Former recipients of the Charles Francis Adams II Award include House Majority Leader Ron Mariano and local businessman and philanthropist Ed Keohane.

Charles Francis Adams II, the great-grandson of President John Adams and grandson of President John Quincy Adams bequeathed the land to the city that is now Merrymount Park. He fought tirelessly during the 1880s to encourage the city to have a public pleasure-ground for its people. He had a distinguished career that included service as a Union soldier during the Civil War, Harvard graduate, and President of the Union Pacific Railroad. He also went on to Chair the Massachusetts Park Commission. He was the President of the Massachusetts Historical Society and the American Historical Society.

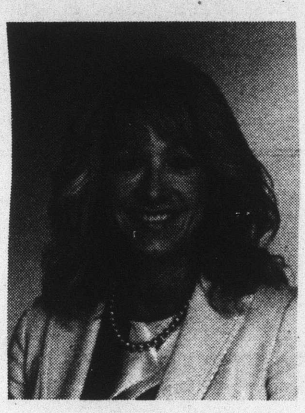
Lynn Sullivan President MountainOne Investments

Lynn Sullivan has been appointed president of MountainOne Investments and senior vice president of Community Banking and Cash Management Sales, announces MountainOne President and Chief Executive Officer Robert Fraser.

"I am excited to have Lynn join MountainOne," Fraser said. "Her background and past accomplishments will serve us well as she works to expand MountainOne Investments and enhance our retail banking business. Lynn's professional experience, which spans from community banking to regional banking and, most recently, a money center institution, will be key as we grow these business lines and seek to provide meaningful financial solutions to customers."



LYNN SULLIVAN

Prior to joining MountainOne, Sullivan served in roles of increasing responsibility at several banks; most recently as an executive director for National Cash Management Sales. Over the past several years, she has had sales and leadership roles at several financial institutions in private banking, investment services, and retail banking.

In her role at MountainOne, Sullivan will be responsible for the growth of MountainOne Investments through the recruitment of new financial advisors serving mid and south Berkshire County, and by establishing an investment presence in MountainOne's eastern Massachusetts markets. In her community banking role, she will provide leadership and develop strategies to grow deposits and create deeper banking relationships with MountainOne clients.

Sullivan attended Bay Path University, and holds FINRA Series 7, 24 and 66 registrations.

Social Security Matters

Taxing Social Security Benefits

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: My wife started collecting Social Security at her full retirement age of 66. I am 60 and still working, and I think it is unfair that we must add her Social Security earnings to mine when we file taxes. She has also worked some this year. Do we need to add this amount she received to our wages when we file? Signed: Overtaxed

Dear Overtaxed: We regularly hear from people who, like you, are upset to find that their Social Security benefits can contribute to their tax liability. After all, you paid into Social Security with your taxable earnings so benefits shouldn't be taxable, right? Well they weren't when Social Security was first enacted in the late 1930s. But way back in 1983 Congress changed that to make up to 50 percent of benefits taxable if your income was over a certain limit, and then in 1993 another income threshold was added to make up to 85 percent of benefits taxable. And yes, since you're married and file jointly all of your combined income, including any earnings either of you have, affects the amount of your Social Security benefits that will be taxable. Without getting into the reasons or fairness, here's how taxing Social Security works:

Social Security uses what's called "provisional income" to determine if your benefits are taxable. Provisional income includes the Adjusted Gross Income (AGI) amount on your tax return, with certain deductions (i.e., tax-exempt interest) and any non-taxable income added back in, plus 50 percent of you total Social Security benefit - in other words your total gross income plus half of your total annual Social Security benefit. If your provisional income exceeds certain levels, a portion of your Social Security becomes taxable income; if it doesn't exceed those limits your benefits aren't taxable.

The income levels to determine tax liability are different depending upon whether your tax filing status is "single" or "married filing jointly." Single people with provisional income of $25,000 or less and married couples filing jointly with provisional income of $32,000 or less pay no income taxes on their benefits. For single people with provisional income between $25,000 and $34,000 and married people with provisional income between $32,000 and $44,000, up to 50 percent of their benefits are taxable. And for those over those income thresholds, up to 85 percent of benefits are taxable.

If there's any good news in this, it's that only your gross income in excess of those thresholds count when computing the amount of your Social Security that is taxable. Take, for example, a couple whose total provisional income is $60,000, about $15,000 of which is one half of their total combined Social Security benefits. Zero percent of the first $32,000 of provisional income is taxable; 50 percent of the income between $32,000 and $44,000 ($12,000) is taxable; and 85 percent of the provisional income over $44,000 is taxable. So to do the math for this example:

- 0 percent of the first $32,000 is taxable Social Security income
- 50 percent of the income between $32,000-$44,000 is taxable Social Security income (50 percent of $12,000 equals $6,000)
- 85 percent of the income amount over $44,000 is taxable Social Security income (85 percent of $16,000 equals $13,600)

These three segments are added together to compute your taxable Social Security income. In this example for a married couple with $60,000 in provisional income, $0+$6,000+$13,600 equals $19,600 in taxable Social Security income. In other words, $19,600 of their total $30,000 Social Security benefit is taxable (about 65 percent in this example).

So yes, adding Social Security income to your wages can have tax implications but it is the current law. Although there are active proposals in Congress to eliminate taxing of Social Security benefits, none have gained enough traction to predict success. For this reason, you should always consult with a Tax Advisor whenever any additional income might increase your tax liability.

School Officials Outline Substance Abuse Prevention Initiatives

families. The time for that investment is now. Much of what you will see in our timeline is dedicated to prevention."

Papile said the district's partners including Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey and Norfolk Sheriff Michael Bellotti have committed to fund some programs and initiatives this year. The Thompson family, in memory of their late son, Ryan is donating $28,000 to sponsor programs for leadership and teacher training as well as individual support for students.

Papile added that the district's students themselves will be playing a key role.

"Our greatest resource is our students and they will be answering the call to help each other in peer leadership roles," she said.

Papile explained that just before school started this month, she met with the student support team including guidance counselors, psychologists and health educators and interventionists to look at the district's goals that focus on wellness, prevention and student leadership.

"We are taking a very unified approached using a lot of different strategies at a lot of different levels," she said.

Earlier this month, Papile said the high schools' mentoring programs began and Mayor Thomas Koch's substance abuse prevention task force met to begin mapping out strategies.

Papile, along with QPS Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, met with Quincy police to discuss having the school department's health educators team up with the DARE officer at the elementary and middle levels and include them in teacher training and family nights.

"We want to be more collaborative with them (DARE)," she said. "(DARE) is a great resource."

Health teachers are being included with online marijuana prevention training in response to its legalization in the Bay State. Papile said presumptions about marijuana being harmless and legal is proving challenging to officials.

"Alcohol use and marijuana use for our adolescents is probably the biggest risk factor right now in brain development and a path to addiction," she said. "We are very concerned about brain chemistry and development for adolescent and the risk marijuana use poses."

On Sept., 25 school officials will meet with Boston Children's Hospital representatives to plan a science based curriculum for the district about brain function and how addiction happens.

"We hope to offer this to students and families," said Papile.

Other programs that will be offered during the school year include presentations, plays and speakers about addiction, social behavior and wellness.

Papile said Bay State Counseling Services last year provided training to guidance counselors and high school nurses to do small group interventions. A representative from the organization is coming back this year to meet with school psychologists to add more content to the curriculum about addiction.

"We're trying to do some large group professional development and bring it back to the schools to personalize it," said Papile.

Papile said students will also help in substance abuse prevention.

"We really want the kids to spread the message to other kids," she said.

In other matters, Director of High School Curriculum and Programs Dr. Elizabeth Hallett informed the committee that the district's dual enrollment program, now in its third year, is expanding. The program is offered through a partnership with Quincy College and allows high school students to earn college credit.

Specific courses, aligned with Quincy College's curriculum, are taught by the district's high school teachers. Students who successfully complete the dual enrollment courses received both a high school credit and three college credits. The credits can be transferred to most colleges in the nation.

Hallett said the first year of the program had four courses and 50 students. Last year, the program expanded from four to nine course offerings with 65 juniors and seniors enrolled. The program also implemented workshops for the 11 instructors.

This year, Hallett said there are 17 courses for both high schools. Among the new courses being offered are honors level chemistry and physics for Quincy High School students. Hallett added that North Quincy is in the process of offering a similar course.

Additionally, a CATV (Cable Access Television) program is being offered at both schools.

Hallett said discussions are underway with foreign language, math, English Language Arts and history departments to expand offerings to the dual enrollment program. Some of these programs may be offered the last semester of this school year or next fall.

"Currently, we are in the student recruitment phase," she said.

Hallett noted that a collaboration of Quincy College and the district is being discussed to create an early college/high school program.

"This would offer general educational foundational courses in the mass transfer block that can be transferred to any Massachusetts higher educational institution," she said.

DeCristofaro told the committee that the district enrollment has increased by 157 students this fall. The high schools picked up about 100 students and the elementary level saw an additional 30 students. The total enrollment is up to near 9,600 students.

Despite the increase in the number of students, DeCristofaro said the district has "very, high quality class sizes."

Thank You From Johnson Family

Our family would like to thank the City of Quincy, and especially the Quincy Fire and Police Departments, for the impressive, respectful, and honorable way it showed its appreciation for our dad, Paul Johnson, and his 30 years of service to the city. We were touched by the support from Chief Barron and his fellow firefighters, both active and retired. The tribute to our dad from the pall bearers, to the bagpiper, to the 'last alarm' formation and firefighter salute as the funeral procession passed by headquarters was emotional and heartwarming. Thank you to the motorcycle officers who stood at attention and saluted at every light and intersection, and at the final turn into the cemetery. It meant so very much to our family during this difficult time in our lives. It makes us even prouder to live in such a great city.

With gratitude,

4 Lanes Travel Open On New Fore River Bridge

Transportation Secretary and CEO Stephanie Pollack joined Acting Highway Administrator Jonathan Gulliver, members of the Massachusetts legislature, and local officials at a news conference in Quincy Sunday highlighting the opening of the new Fore River Bridge to four total lanes of traffic on Saturday, Sept. 16, weeks sooner than originally anticipated as part of the ongoing bridge replacement project.

The Fore River Bridge carries Route 3A over the Fore River between Quincy and Weymouth.

"We are pleased to have opened two lanes of traffic in each direction on the new Fore River Bridge which serves as an important link between Quincy and Weymouth and the South Shore region," said Transportation Secretary and CEO Stephanie Pollack. "We have appreciated the cooperation of the traveling public, civic leaders, and local community throughout our construction operations and look forward to completing this bridge replacement project."

"We thank the crews who have worked 20 hours per day to get us to this point where four total lanes of traffic are now able to travel along the new Fore River Bridge," said Acting Highway Administrator Jonathan Gulliver. "While there is still work to be completed, including dismantling the existing bridge and finishing installing sidewalks and bicycle lanes, we are proud to reach this significant interim milestone."

The new bridge has several benefits including a higher lift span, meaning fewer bridge raisings for vessels traveling underneath the bridge, and a quicker raise time, meaning traffic is stopped for less time when the bridge is raised. The bridge also has a solid concrete deck, which is quieter than the old temporary bridge.

Capacity along the bridge was reduced to one lane in each direction on the evening of June 2, 2017, in order to allow crews and contractors to continue construction operations and begin demolition activities on the existing temporary bridge.

On the evening of Aug. 16, 2017, MassDOT reached a significant milestone when all vehicular traffic was shifted off the existing temporary Fore River Bridge and onto the new replacement bridge. This achievement marked the end of service for the temporary bridge and has allowed crews to continue demolition operations. Full Beneficial Use on the project is expected to be achieved by June, 2018.

The new bridge is the third movable bridge at this location, the first being a swing bridge constructed in the early 20th century. The 1902 swing bridge was replaced by a bascule bridge in 1936 when it was determined that the earlier bridge presented a hazard to navigation of the river. In the late 1990's the 1936 bridge was found to be deteriorated and traffic was directed off it and onto the existing temporary bridge. The new permanent vertical lift bridge carries the 32,000 vehicles that use the 3A corridor each day.

'Abigail Adams Smith And The Evolution Of Breast Cancer Treatment' Topic Oct. 3 At Crane Public Library

The Abigail Adams Historical Society (AAHS), stewards of the birthplace of Abigail Adams, in partnership with the Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Cancer Center, South Shore Hospital, and the Thomas Crane Public Library will present Abigail Adams Smith and the Evolution of Breast Cancer Treatment from Colonial America to Today on Tuesday, Oct. 3, from 7 to 8:30 p.m.in the Community Meeting Room, Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Abigail and John Adams's daughter Abigail ("Nabby") Adams Smith, born in Braintree (now Quincy) in 1765, was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1810, undergoing a radical mastectomy in 1811. Despite the surgery, cancer spread throughout her body, causing her death at age 48 in 1813.

Abigail Adams expressed her grief at the loss of her daughter with the words, "The wound which has lacerated my Bosom cannot be healed."

Two experts on breast cancer and the history of medicine will discuss Nabby Smith's case.

David Jones, M.D., Ph.D., the A. Bernard Ackerman Professor of the Culture of Medicine at Harvard University, and Suniti Nimbkar, M.D., FACS, medical director of the Breast Care Center at South Shore Hospital in clinical affiliation with Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Cancer Center and clinical instructor at Harvard Medical School, will offer their insights into the evolution of the diagnosis and treatment of breast cancer from the early 19th century to today.

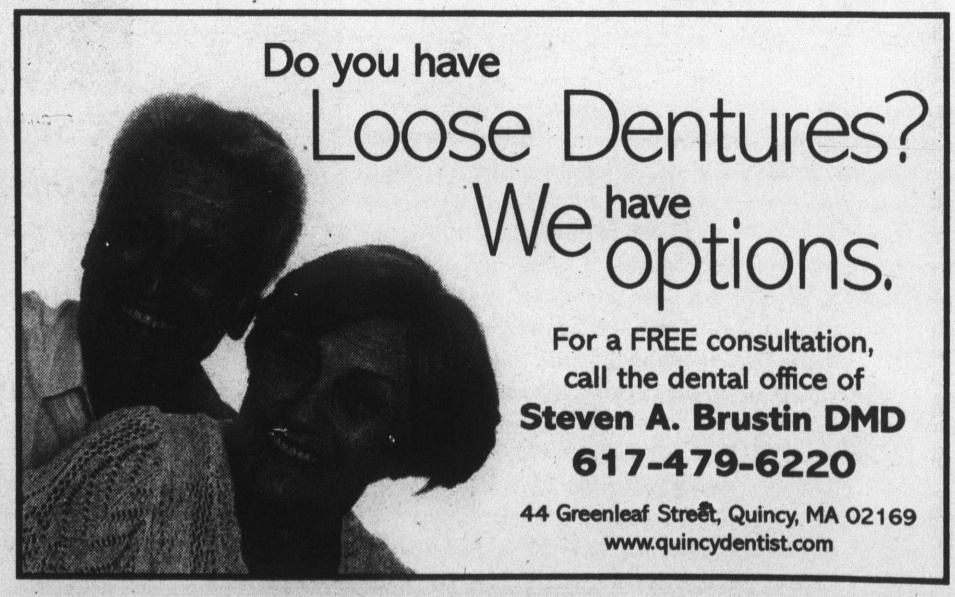
Admission is free; reservations are not necessary.

Mite Box Thrift Shop Opening Oct. 4

The Parish of St. Chrysostom announces The Mite Box Thrift Shop, 1 Linden St., Wollaston, will open on Wednesday, Oct. 4th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the season.

The shop features a new selection of merchandise.

Regular hours are Wednesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and the first Saturday of the month starting Oct. 7.



New Middle School Construction Project On Schedule

was constructed that runs from Roberts Street up to the existing school and connects with Granite Street.

Also, air conditioners were placed in several second floor classrooms that overlook the construction area. LaRouche explained this allows the windows to remain closed during warm days to keep out noise.

"This is to make sure students aren't impacted by the sounds," he said.

LaRouche said steps have been taken to make sure students are not disrupted during construction.

"We have a school that is in session and being used," he said. "There has been quite a bit of work done to make sure that the school is running seamlessly. As far as the students were concerned, when they came back, the school felt very similar to the way it was, less the gym."

Over the next several weeks, LaRouche said the foundation work will continue where re-bars will be installed and "significant" concrete pours will be carried out. After Thanksgiving, the steel frame will begin to rise. In January, construction of the exterior of the building will begin.

The new school will be set into the hillside toward the back of the site. The rear section of the school will have three levels while the front, facing Granite Street, will have two floors.

"The first floor lines up to Granite Street," said LaRouche.

The lower levels will feature the gym and auditorium. The upper level will house the seventh and eighth grade academic areas. The fifth and six grades will be located on the lower floors. LaRouche noted that the fifth grade will have its own separate entrance.

The new school will have a common area and an atrium where a "monumental staircase" will lead to the second floor. Part of the second floor will overlook the atrium which LaRouche described as "light and airy."

LaRouche said that the new school will be built "up tight and close to the existing school."

Because of that, he said some "interesting technologies" are being used.

"It's pretty progressive," he said.

LaRouche said that students from both the high school and middle school would be invited to view the construction technologies being employed.

School committee member Anne Mahoney said this opportunity for aspiring construction workers would be "exciting for them to see the construction phase."

Mahoney also questioned how many labor unions were employed on the project as well as the percentage of Quincy workers.

Kirwin said that all major trades are represented and LaRouche noted there is "a very strong Quincy presence" on the job.

LaRouche said a webcam on the site will allow those interested in keeping tabs on the project and monthly updates would be provided.

School Committee member Emily Lebo said she liked the design of the Central Middle School that opened a few years ago. LaRouche said Ai3 Architects designed Central as well as the new Sterling project.

"Same designer, different design," said LaRouche.

Quincy Public Schools Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro praised the work of the contractor, Bond Brothers of Everett, as well as the PCA360 project managers and the city's public buildings personnel for the having the site ready for the first day of school.

City Solicitor and Sterling Building Committee Chairman James Timmins also commended the Sterling staff for seamless opening of school.

"What we see on the site this summer is the product of a little over a year-and-a-half of planning and a lot of hard work of the staff of Sterling," he said.

The new 95,155 square-foot, middle school will accommodate up to 430 students in grades five through eight and qualifies as a "green" building due to its environmentally-friendly design.

The Massachusetts School Building Authority is reimbursing the city more than 73 percent, or $39 million of the total $59 million cost.

Don Martin Park Director

on behalf of all the folks that are behind, and I know together we will continue to succeed."

Martin said he was overwhelmed by the show of support from his former colleagues in the Public Buildings Department who were on hand for his swearing in, as well as other city officials present for the ceremony. He said he truly loves Quincy.

"I truly love the city," Martin said. "You ask anyone, Quincy is my love. I didn't grow up here, but I feel like I grew up here."

Prior to his contractual work for the city, Martin was a project manager for the Vicor Corporation in Andover, a position where he implemented programs targeting the company's production efficiency, the mayor's office said. He was also a senior production manager at the company during his 20-year tenure.

Martin is a United States Army veteran, serving as a combat engineer with the 54th Engineer Battalion in West Germany. He was honorably discharged in 1977.

Franz had been named head of the department in September 2016 after the previous executive director, Christopher Cassani, resigned to take a job in the private sector that August. Franz had previously been a project manager within the department and he recently told the mayor he wished to return to that position because he prefers to work in the field rather than handling the administrative work of overseeing the department's day-to-day operations.

"Paul's forte and Paul's love is really out in the field and we've seen his work over the years, along with others'. I worked by his side over the years on a number of projects," said Koch, who was previously the city's park director.

"I think the city will be better served with the arrangement that we're making now going forward."

The position of executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department has a $106,131 salary in the city's budget for the current fiscal year.

Free Computer Seminar At Norfolk Registry Of Deeds

Hosted By Register Of Deeds William O'Donnell Oct. 17

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will host a free informational seminar on how to research computer assisted land records at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Dedham from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 17.

The seminar is geared for both real estate professionals and the general public.

O'Donnell noted the program will include a brief presentation complete with reference materials and hands-on exercises. There will also be opportunities to ask both basic and advanced questions. Computer assisted land records are currently available both at the Registry and on the Internet at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

"These services have proven to be invaluable tools for our customers. We hope that this seminar will be both helpful and informative," O'Donnell said.

There is no charge for the seminar, but anyone planning to attend is asked to register by calling Alicia Gardner at 781-461-6104 or by email to agardner@norfolkdeeds.org. Include your name, address, email and a daytime phone number when you register.

Board OKs Quirk Mazda Proposal

At McGrath Highway And 5 Brackett St.

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Planning Board has given its approval to a proposal by auto dealer Daniel Quirk to build a new Mazda dealership at the corner of McGrath Highway and Brackett Street that could open as early as next summer.

The board unanimously approved Quirk's proposal to build the new dealership at 91 McGrath Highway and 5 Brackett St. during its meeting on Sept. 13. The Conservation Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals both signed off on the project in June.

Quirk plans to raze the existing buildings on site – a dealership building and the former home of Yellow Cab – this fall, Jim Burke, an engineer for the project, said shortly after the board's vote. The foundation for the new building could be installed later this fall before winter arrives, and the bulk of construction is set to take place next spring with a summer 2018 opening anticipated.

The new building will stand two stories tall with nearly 24,000 square feet of space inside and an 18,786 square foot footprint. Parking for 142 vehicles will be provided on site – 44 vehicles on display, 36 for customers, 30 for employees and 32 for service/storage – plus others displayed in the showroom.

As part of the project, Quirk plans to improve upon the 92,176 square foot parcel by installing stormwater control systems and other underground utilities, reconfiguring the layout of the parking lot and creating new landscaping – including the removal of invasive species along the Town Brook and planting native species along the river bank.

The project was well received at a July 19 Planning Board hearing on the proposal. Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest voiced her support for the plan at that meeting, crediting Quirk for working with the neighborhood on plans for DANIEL QUIRK received approval from the Planning Board on Sept. 13 to construct a new Mazda at 91 McGrath Highway and 5 Brackett St., currently the site of another Quirk building and the former home of Yellow Cab. the state. Perdios asked the Planning Board to require Quirk to seek a Chapter 91 permit from the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection, or a letter from DEP saying it doesn't apply.

"It's never been a showstopper – Chapter 91 is something that just requires public access. If they have parking along the river, they may have to adjust the parking to provide a walkway," Perdios said.

Christopher Harrington, the attorney representing Quirk before the board, said a notice of intent had previously been filed with the DEP for the project, and neither the state agency nor the Conservation Commission raised any concerns about Chapter 91. Harrington also noted the new building on site would be farther away from the Town Brook from the existing buildings and Quirk would be replacing invasive plants with native ones along the brook, including the publically owned portion of the river bank closest to the river.

Coleman Barry, the Planning Board's vice chairman, suggested there could be an opportunity for Quirk to work with a community group on public access to that portion of the brook.

"I think that there may be an opportunity here for [Quirk] to perhaps work with a group in the city who is interested in taking on this project," said Barry, who is also the chairman of the Quincy Community Preservation Committee.

Harrington said he would be happy to make the suggestion to his Quirk, and added that there could be enough public land adjacent to the brook to provide for a walkway.

One other item was on the Planning Board's agenda for the Sept. 13, a continued public hearing on the proposal by the Massachusetts Budhi Siska Society for a new four-story, 10,000 square foot learning center at 54 Massachusetts Ave. and 15 Glenwood Way in Quincy Point. The board allowed the applicant to withdraw the project from consideration without prejudice.

Six Bars, Stores Fail Compliance Checks

By SCOTT JACKSON

Six establishments – four liquor stores and two bars – will be called before the Board License Commissioners after failing compliance checks because they sold alcohol to minors.

The Quincy Police Department conducted the compliance checks in recent weeks using grant money, according to Lt. Peter Turowski, the department's liquor inspector.

Turowski said the six establishments that failed the checks were: Callahan's Tap, 296 Copeland St.; the Presidential Pub, 29 Temple St.; Hancock Liquors, 229 Quincy Ave.; Lucky Wine & Liquors, 66 Newbury St.; Presidential Liquors, 25 Scammell St.; and Wollaston Wine & Spirits, 58 Beale St.

The owners of establishments will be called before the licensing board at a future date, where they could be subject to punishment.

During the compliance checks, which police advertise in advance, an individual under the age of 21 is sent inside stores, bars and restaurants with marked currency and asks to be served alcohol. The establishment fails if the individual is sold alcohol.

"It's very simple to pass, you just have to ask for ID," Turowski said. "We're not trying to trick them – we have no fake IDs. You're supposed to check ID each and every time."

The lieutenant said the number of licensees that fail the compliance checks varies from year to year, with six being on the high side.

"It's a little high," Turowski said. "The last two times we did it we didn't catch anybody."

The grant that funds the compliance checks also pays for the Cop in a Shop program, Turowski said. In that program, plainclothes officers stay inside liquor stores and their parking lots to spot underage individuals trying to find straw buyers to purchase alcohol for them.

$11.5M OK'd For Schools, Firehouses, Libraries

the capital plan received nearly universal support from those who spoke, including firefighters, library supporters and board members, and volunteers from the animal shelter.

Before voting on the bond, the council unanimously approved cutting $1.3 million from the $12.84 bond Koch had initially requested. The $1.3 million would have paid for the purchase of the former Bryan Post on Broad Street, but Paul Hines, the city's public buildings commissioner, said that purchase would not be considered until after the feasibility study for public safety headquarters is completed.

Hines said the $11.54 million approved Monday night would mostly go towards much-needed maintenance.

"Though it is a sizeable amount of money, there is really nothing grandiose here," he said. "With the exception for the study of the future municipal public safety headquarters, really it's addressing a lot of deferred maintenance. Upgrades, improvements, are really not there. It's repairing the buildings.

"The need is great – the list could go on and on, and as the years go forward it will be supplemented, but these are immediate needs."

The bond approved Monday includes $3.86 million for improvements to the city's school buildings. Among other items, it will pay for new gym bleachers, auditorium seating, carpeting, rooftop chillers, and more efficient interior lighting at North Quincy High; a study for a possible addition to Beechwood Knoll; asbestos removal at various buildings; re-commissioning the HVAC control systems at several schools; and work at the Lincoln-Hancock pool, including new showers in the locker room and designing a new ceiling.

Paul Bregoli, the vice chairman of the School Committee, spoke in favor of the various school projects during the public hearing portion of the meeting.

"I'm asking this evening that we work together. We can't work without you," Bregoli said. "I'm hoping you see a way to approve the capital improvement plan this evening."

Nearly $2.9 million is included for the various branches of the Thomas Crane Public Library. The lion's share, $2 million, will go towards the first phase of engineering and exterior repairs for the Richardson Building and the Aiken and Coletti additions to it. Also included are funds for a new HVAC system at the Adams Shore branch, new carpeting at the North Quincy branch, and roof repairs at the Wollaston location.

During the public hearing, six residents spoke in favor of the library projects, including Tina Cahill, a member of the library's board of trustees, and Dianne Dopp, the president of the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

"We all know that we need to invest in our facilities in order to maintain them; just like every home and every building, you need to give them TLC in order to preserve their structural and cosmetic integrity," Cahill said. "We will never regret spending money on the facilities in our city."

"I do urge you to approve the request for our library buildings," Dopp said. "The Thomas Crane is such a vital part of the lives of the people of Quincy and we owe it to our community and to our kids and future generations to maintain these beautiful historic buildings."

Monday's bond also includes $2.84 million that will go towards the Fire and Police Departments. Of that money, more than $1.3 million will go towards police and fire radios, and $500,000 will be spent on the feasibility study for the combined public safety headquarters. The remaining funds, nearly $1 million, are primarily for work at the city's firehouses – including asbestos removal, roof and window work, and re-supporting truck bays.

Four firefighters spoke at the meeting, highlighting the needs of the city's firehouses. Mike Palaza, the president of Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792, said the current firehouses are on average 75 years old and ran through a list of issues at the fire stations that need to be addressed and will be through the bond.

"Are our stations so bad that we can't work in them and you're going to have to put us out in trailers on the streets? No, but possibly that may happen if these are not addressed," Palaza said. "Either we pay now from this bond to fix these issues, or we as a city are going to be paying a lot more money down the road."

Kevin Ferent said he was hospitalized for ten days after inhaling a harmful substance at one of the fire stations, and now has a mass on his right lung that needs to be checked annually.

"We as firefighters should not have to be concerned with getting hurt or sick at the firehouse," Ferent said.

Monday's bond also includes $600,000 to repave the parking lots at various schools and firehouses; $535,000 for technology upgrades, including a new email system, infrastructure management software and tree management software; $400,000 for a new heating plant at the Kennedy Center and $25,000 for masonry work at the building; $120,000 for asbestos removal and plumbing work at the Fore River Clubhouse; $100,000 for HVAC work at various city buildings; $95,000 for a security system at City Hall; $35,000 for snow guards at the Coddington Building; and $25,000 for the stands at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The council discussed the $11.54 million bond for nearly 90 minutes Monday, with members speaking in favor of addressing the city's maintenance needs.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said was glad the concerns at the firehouses were being addressed.

"The firehouses are definitely antiquated," she said. "It's important that they're getting modernized and upgraded, because those buildings work 24/7/365. As first responders, they're always there for us."

Councillor Noel DiBona said the city should take advantage of its AA+ bond rating and address the maintenance needs now.

"We can kick the can down the road a lot longer, but in my personal opinion it's going to cost us more down the road," he said.

Councillor Nina Liang said she and other councillors had toured firehouses with Palaza, and she understood the need to repair those buildings.

"It's absolutely terrifying when you're walking under a ceiling that's being held up by jacks and there is a 60,000-pound fire truck above your head," Liang said. "It's incredibly terrifying."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci supported the funding for the firehouse repairs, but said city and fire officials should come together and identify which firehouses are most in need of replacement.

"I've been in the West Quincy fire station," he said. "I have no doubt it needs the repairs that are called for here, but I also have no doubt that it needs to be replaced."

The proposed $7.1 million animal shelter, which would be located on city-owned land on Quarry Street near a planned dog park, received the most support from residents at Monday's public hearing. Nine people, many involved with the Quincy Animal Shelter, spoke of favor of the new building, which would also provide a new home for the city's animal control officer and the Quincy Police Department's K9 officers.

Karen Carpenter said more and more people will move to Quincy as development in the city continues, and those new residents will either have pets of their own or be looking for ones to adopt.

"Given the amount of housing that is being built in Quincy now, I assume that Quincy stands to attract a lot of new residents. This will of course mean that there will be a new generation of companion animals moving here as well, and there will be new families and individuals looking to adopt pets," Carpenter said.

"If Quincy is going to give it her all in terms of revitalization, then we must take into account this important community resource that helps all of us."

Brianna Geary, the shelter's feline manager, said the shelter is important not only to the animals there, but also to the 150 people who volunteer there.

"The shelter helps the animals in the community, but it also helps the volunteers who come through the door," she said. "It's a place that brings a sense of being part of a family and doing something concrete to help Quincy and the residents – both two- and four-legged."

Joseph Murphy, a candidate for the open Ward 1 seat on the council in this fall's election, spoke during the public hearing portion. Murphy said he liked the items in the capital improvement plan, but has heard concerns from residents that roads and sidewalks are not being addressed during the current phase of the plan.

"The taxpayers of Quincy tell me when I door knock that they're concerned about their roads and sidewalks and they're concerned that this document doesn't address that fast enough," he said.

Dept. Of Public Works Changes To Save $56,000

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday night approved a reorganization of the Department of Public Works that will save $56,000.

The changes, sought by new Commissioner of Public Works Al Grazioso, include eliminating the position of compliance officer, which had an $88,000 salary. The city engineer will take over most of that position's responsibilities and will receive an increase in salary to $120,000 from $106,000. The operations/contract manager will also see an increase in responsibilities, and the position's salary will rise to $80,000 from $75,000.

Grazioso also sought to eliminate the job of sewer and water operations manager and replace it with a business manager responsible for the financial operations of the whole Department of Public Works. The eliminated position had an $81,400 salary and the new business manager position has an $88,400 salary.

The salary for the superintendent of public works will increase from $113,500 to $120,000.

The changes will result in a net savings of $56,187, Grazioso said.

The council approved the reorganization in a 7-0 vote. Councillors Ian Cain and Kirsten Hughes were not present Monday.

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris said the council would be smart to approve the changes and save money.

"This is one of the things that we do – we try to save the taxpayers' dollars. The restructuring of jobs that are taking place will save the taxpayers' money, plain and simple," Harris said.

"It would be a smart move on the council's part and I commend our new commissioner of public works on starting this."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said the council should give Grazioso the resources he sought because of the high expectations members have for the public works commissioner.

"I think the cook should be able to choose his hold ingredients. If we hold the DPW commissioner to a high level, a high standard here, and we have a high level of expectations of him, we should give him the resources that he says he needs in order to reach that level," Palmucci said.

"If he doesn't, well then we can have a word with him, but right now he's asking us for some resources and I think we should give them to him."

Volunteers From GD In Quincy Help At Local Veterans Cemeteries

Employees from General Dynamics Mission Systems in Quincy volunteered during their lunch break Sept. 7 and Sept. 11 to remove flags and flag holders at Mount Wollaston and Pine Hill cemeteries in Quincy.

The flags are disposed of in a proper manner, and the holders are cleaned and stored before being back on display at veterans' graves between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

As a lifelong resident of Quincy, Richard Joyce was familiar with the flags placed at these cemeteries. As a member of the employee engagement committee with General Dynamics, he saw this as a great opportunity to help the local community. The team of volunteer employees picked up about 1,700 flags and holders between the two cemeteries.

"I'm so grateful that this group called and asked if they could help," said George Bouchard, Graves Registration Officer at Quincy's Veterans Services office. Employees are already looking forward to the opportunity to place the flags back at the graves next Memorial Day.

The group of volunteers from General Dynamics were John Fischer, Hanna Thomas, David Nordyke, Erik Carlsson, Roger Remy, Ross Jarvis, Evelyn Sabbag, Richard Joyce, Lorraine Costigliola, and Junior Guimares. Also joining to help were retired U.S. Air Force veterans Chris Barrett and Hank Bradley, a former director of Quincy Veterans Services.

General Dynamics Mission Systems in Quincy is located in the Fore River Shipyard and develops unmanned underwater vehicles (UUV) and other related technologies for defense, commercial, and scientific customers worldwide. LOWE'S OF QUINCY recently helped renovate the handicap ramp (left) at Quincy Veterans Services on High School Avenue as well as spruce up the front of the property with flowers and shrubs (right). Standing on the renovated handicap ramp are (from left) volunteer Tom McCormack, George Bouchard of Quincy Veterans Services and project coordinator and human resources manager Letiy Orellana.

Lowe's Of Quincy Helps Veterans

Lowe's of Quincy recently donated material and time to renovate the handicap ramp and stairway at the Quincy Veterans Services office on High School Avenue.

In addition, they planted flowers and shrubs to beautify the front of the building. Lowe's awards a grant of $2500.00 each year to the Quincy store for the charity of their choice.

Project coordinator and human resources manager Letiy Orellana wanted to do something very special this year. She noticed a number of veterans who worked in the store and came up with the idea of helping the local veterans in Quincy. Quincy Veterans Services was honored to be chosen for this project, as the ramp was in dire need of some work.

Lowe's not only donated all the materials, they also had employees volunteer to do the labor, some of them veterans. George Bouchard of Quincy Veterans Services as well as volunteer Tom McCormack were also there to lend a helping hand. With 10 volunteers in total, the project did not take long at all. The volunteers were both honored and happy to be a part of re-building the ramp for those veterans who need to gain access to the office.

Quincy Veterans Services and the City of Quincy would like to thank Orellana, her employees and Lowe's for their support in helping our veterans.

Interfaith Social Services Halloween Drive Gives Costumes To Those in Need

Interfaith Social Services is in need of new and gently used Halloween costumes, or monetary donations to purchase new costumes, for their annual Halloween Drive. Every October the organization distributes costumes to hundreds of children served through their food pantry.

Interfaith's programs are a safety net for thousands of children and families from the South Shore who are struggling to make ends meet. Many of these families do not have the means to walk into a store and purchase costumes for their children. Through the Halloween Drive, these children will be given costumes so that they may have the opportunity to enjoy Halloween festivities.

"This year our organization is celebrating our 70th anniversary," said Interfaith's executive director Rick Doane. "Back in 1947 Quincy and South Shore residents started working together to help local children in need. Distributing these Halloween costumes is one of the many ways that we are carrying that mission forward, bringing joy to children who are living in difficult situations. It is amazing to see the happiness on these kids' faces when they find that perfect costume."

Larger-sized children's costumes (for 10-12 year olds) are especially needed. "We run out of those larger sizes every year," said Doane. "We need everyone's help to make sure that doesn't happen again. We are so grateful for all of the amazing local residents who embrace this program, donate and make it possible."

Here's how to help: Stop by Interfaith, located at 105 Adams St., Quincy, during business hours to drop off your donation. Donations must be received by Monday, Oct. 16. Hours are Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and Tuesday 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

For more information, or to make a monetary donation, visit www.InterfaithSocialServices.org.

The team was without Shorn Hawthorne, who missed the entire game with an injury and in the second half they did not have Brian Nguyen either, both of whom are senior captains. Despite that adversity, they played a competitive brand of football but ultimately the Milton Wildcats were too much to handle and they fell 27-12 in the contest.

"I thought we took a huge step forward this week," Presidents head coach Bill Reardon said. "I told the kids I thought last week wasn't who we were. We're better than that. But this time, we were us. We found our physicality and we played hard. We played good Quincy High football. Unfortunately, we made too many mistakes. But if we improve on those going forward, we're gonna do well."

The Presidents struck first in the contest, driving the ball 71 yards downfield to make it 6-0 in the first quarter. Quarterback Colin Keaveny capped off the drive as he hit Brenden Fitzpatrick with an 11-yard touchdown pass to give the Presidents the lead. Fitzpatrick was the Presidents leading wide receiver on the day, recording 81 receiving yards on three catches.

As the quarter progressed, so did the Wildcats offense. They charged downfield, but the Presidents prevented them from converting on fourth down to end the first quarter.

Although the Presidents defense held strong, the Wildcats were able to put themselves in favorable territory yet again as they blocked a Presidents punt. With 2:05 left in the second quarter, they managed to punch in a short touchdown run in the red zone. They also hit their extra point attempt to take a 7-6 lead.

On the following possession, the Wildcats got a stop once again and forced the Presidents to punt. They took over on the 26-yard line and used three long passes to take a 13-6 lead just before the first half ended.

Although the Presidents entered the second half down by a score, they did not give in. With under a minute remaining in the third quarter, running back Nate Steinberg-Johnson, who helped fill in for the injured Hawthorne, ran in a 6-yard touchdown run to make it a one-point game. Having a stout offensive line led by Jamal Williams helped the junior running back in his effort as he exceeded 50 rushing yards.

The Presidents were not able to piece together another scoring drive after that but in the last five minutes of the game, their opponent added some insurance points by putting up an additional pair of touchdowns.

Defensive back Kervens Boutins also filled in for Hawthorne and Reardon said he was impressed with what he saw from him.

Reardon also said he thought fellow defensive backs Aidan O'Connell, who had an interception in the first half, and Mike Lomanno, played well.

Lomanno was matched up against Milton's No. 1 wide receiver, Eddie Hassell, who is also a standout basketball player, for most of the game. Regardless, Lomanno made sure Hassell did not have a touchdown in the game.

"We contained their guy to just a couple of catches and kept him out of the end zone," Reardon said. "I was very impressed with that effort."

With Nguyen down in the second half, the team also turned to sophomore Thomas Le at linebacker and he filled in admirably for the Presidents.

"We've been preaching it all preseason: everyone needs to be ready and have that next man up mentality," Reardon said. "Those kids get the reps, they're focused and when their time was called, they were ready."

The Presidents head to Silver Lake next Saturday, Sept. 23, in hopes of earning their first win of the season.

Red Raiders Roll Past Sachems For First Win, 37-30

By BRUCE MARQUIS

Behind a dominating offensive line and a monster performance from junior running back Win Tran, the North Quincy High School Red Raiders lanced the Saugus Sachems ("Chiefs") 37-20 at Saugus' Stackpole Field last Saturday.

The win evens the Raiders 2017 record to 1-1 after last week's heartbreaking last-minute loss to Silver Lake; the Sachems dropped to 0-2 having lost handily to St. Mary's of Lynn the previous week. In this first ever meeting between these city and suburban schools both teams were fighting to improve on their 2-9 records of the previous season.

It was an unusual day time game for the 21st century, when most high school games are contested under the lights, however the game was not as close as the final score indicated as the visitors took a 37-7 lead on the first play on the fourth quarter on a 14-yard TD scamper by Tran. Saugus scored two late touchdowns against the Raiders' back ups, including a 25-yard fumble recovery after a botched Raider hand off.

In the game's opening drive the Sachems moved the ball to the North Quincy 32 before two incomplete passes, including one batted down by junior nose tackle Ty Finn, ended the drive. Taking over on its own 32, the Red Raiders' junior quarterback Tim Layden deftly led the his team on a 10-play drive culminated by a 4-yard TD run by Tran. The longest play of the series was a 18-yard completion by Layden to senior Captain Chris Donaghey.

After stopping Saugus again after six plays, the North Quincy defense turned the ball over to its offense on its own 24-yard line. Again the offensive line opened the holes on an 8-play drive, all runs, culminating in a 21-yard dash by Chris Donaghey. After the conversion by junior kicker Kieran O'Driscoll, who scored 7 points on the day, the Raiders led by a score of 14-0.

The offensive line of junior center Finn, senior guards and Captains Devon Ganno and Alex Pham, senior tackles Josh Moore and Jeff Sullivan, and tight ends senior Luca Smith and junior Nelson Walinjom dominated the home team's defense, wearing them down as the hot sunny afternoon beat down on them. North Quincy rolled up 237 yards on the ground on 35 carries, including 17 carries for 121 yards by Tran, an average of more than 7 yards per carry, including 2 touchdowns. He also caught a 34-yard TD strike from Layden in the third quarter, breaking four tackles as he bulldozed into the end zone.

Filling in for injured junior running back Nathan Sleiman, the Donaghey twins, Chris and Connor, both seniors and captains, combined for 82 yards on 7 touches including Connor's startling 35-yard touchdown run at 6:12 of the third quarter. This was set up by a interception of the Sachem's Mike Mcbee by North Quincy's junior corner back Andrew Airosus.

The Raiders piled up.393 yards of total offense,, including 156 yards in the air by Layden as he completed 7 of his 11 throws. They had no turnovers. The Sachems settled for 263 total yards, 144 through the air.

The North Quincy defense was led by tackles Finn, Ganno and senior Elmer Lainez, ends Pham and Tran and linebackers Walinjom, Smith and senior Jake Roos. The secondary of senior Dimitiri Legaspi, Airosus, and the Donaghey's provided adequate pass coverage and shoe top tackling when needed.

A key development n the game was towards the end of the first half. After the Sachems had scored on a 5-yard touchdown pass and converted the extra point to tighten the score to 14-7, the Red Raiders took over on their own 30-yard line with only 40 seconds left. Three straight completions by Layden, highlighted by a diving catch by Airosus for a 30-yard gain, brought the ball to their opponent's 25-yard line. After a Saugus time out negated a 42-year field goal by O'Driscoll, he drilled the next one through the uprights again to take a 17-7 lead into halftime.

After the game jubilant North Quincy head coach Mark Nutley lauded the entire team, but gave special praise to the offensive line that opened holes, blocked well down field and protected Layden when he passed. He said the Raiders were able to impose their will on the home team and that Layden's leading of the offense was a key to the win. On defense he praised Finn, Ganno, Pham and Airosus in particular. Also, he acknowledged Tran's outstanding game.

When asked about this week's opponent, Archbishop Williams High School, the Raiders' coach said, "They are a hungry team," with a record of 0-2 having lost to Middleboro 32-12 this past Friday night.

The Red Raiders will play the Bishops Friday night at 7 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. City officials had considered moving the game to Creedon Field for a 4 p.m. kick off but decided Tuesday afternoon to play the game at Veterans' Stadium at 7 p.m. There were great expectations for this year's Red Raiders team which is now 1-1. A win against Archbishop Williams could help propel them to a 6 or 7 win, or more, campaign.

Quincy-North Quincy X-Country Bows To Dux.

By GEOFF HENNESSY

QNQ came up with plenty of improved performances but Duxbury had too much depth to overcome the Dragons, dropping both ends of the dual, the boys losing 20-41 and the girls losing 25-33. The good news was that most of the returning team members ran faster than their home opener a year ago showing that improvement has happened.

Freshman Ronan Kelly ran wire-to-wire for an impressive 14:46 win over the 2.5 mile Pageant course. Ryan Polsgrove was 7th and Nick Ouellette was 11th.

On the girls' side Maeve Kelly and Abby Murphy battled with Isabel Foley and Katie Cass of the Dragons for most of the course. Over the final 400 meters Murphy just couldn't reel in Foley and took 2nd. Freshman White and a fast closing Devin Hiltunen took 4th and 5th. But Duxbury took the next three places with Olivia Palazzi 10th. Freshman Lezly Acevedo was 12th.

QNQ was without the services of Camryn Dastrup, a transfer from Chicago who had to return to the Midwest for a family issue but has returned for the next meet vs. Plymouth South.

"We're getting better week by week. Its still early but I see no reason to be concerned. Our top kids are faster than a year ago and add those freshman runners and we'll be where we need to be come October and November," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. The team hosted Plymouth South Tuesday at Pageant in a meet that could be moved around due to Hurricane Jose and all the rain it will bring.

NQ Volleyball Off To A Strong Start

By TOM JOYCE

After making it to the playoffs last season, it appears an experienced North Quincy High girls' volleyball team is strong once again.

In their second game of the season, a home match against Hanover Sept. 13, the Red Raiders controlled the contest for its duration. As a result, they came away with a 3-0 win (25-10, 25-21, 25-11) to improve to 2-0 on the season.

"It was good," Red Raiders head coach Kerry Ginty said. "We're still working out some kinks in our lineup, but we came out with great energy and came out and played in front of a great crowd again. It feels good to get rolling with the season."

The Red Raiders got off to a hot start in their first set. Although they allowed the opening point, they went on a 5-1 run after that and after letting up a pair of unanswered points, they ran away with the set, going on a 6-0 run to give themselves a 12-4 lead. From there, they had the upper hand and coasted to a 25-10 win.

In the second set, the Red Raiders carried over that same strong momentum. They begun it on a 7-0 run. It was a significant advantage, but Hanover fought back hard. They went on an 8-5 run to cut the Red Raiders lead to four. Late in the set, they even came within a point, trailing 20-19. Ultimately, after a timeout was called the Red Raiders regrouped, came back strong and outscored their opponent the rest of the way to to take the set 25-21.

"I think we had kind of let them into the game with a lot of our errors," Ginty explained. "Once we were able to cut some of those out, we were able to play our style of volleyball which was a little bit of faster. We could pick the pace of the game back up again."

Although they allowed the first two points in the final set, the Red Raiders got hot early as they went on a 15-3 run to take a 15-5. From there, there, Hanover was able to keep it close, but the Red Raiders came away with a 25-11 win in the final set.

On the attack, Julia Klincewicz and Camryn Burgio led the way for the Red Raiders. Burgio had a team-high eight kills while Klincewicz added seven more.

Ginty said Sharon Yang played well defensively. She also noted she was impressed with the way her team passed in the win.

"That always translates to running a good offense," Ginty said. "I think that went really well today."

Kelly Phelan's 17 assist were a game-high while Kayli Wu had eight assists and Jennifer Butka added seven more.

Experience is on the Red Raiders side this season. They have six seniors on their varsity squad.

"It's great," Ginty said. "We have such great leadership this year and it makes my job a lot easier. They know the drills we're running in practice. I don't have to explain much. They know the system and they know the culture and come to practice everyday ready to work. This group of seniors from top to bottom have been leaders this year and it's helping me tremendously."

At this point in the season, the Red Raiders biggest focus is trying to find the best starting six to play the duration of the game.

"We have a lot of versatility which is great," Ginty said, "but it makes it tough to put together a solid six in certain positions."

This year, the varsity roster is composed of: Sharon Yang, Kelly Phelan, Lindsay Lee, Lydia Chan, Kayli Wu, Annie Trinh, Elizabeth DiMattio, Aleskandra Qose, Julia Klincewicz, Sara Wong, Ivy Chiu, Jennifer Butka, Olivia Liang, Camryn Burgio and Jessica Caldwell.

Week 2: Panthers Claw Past Manets, Elks Outrun Storm

Quincy Youth Football League Highlights

By SEAN HALPIN

The Houghs Neck Manets hosted the Quincy Point Panthers in game one of the Week 2, Varsity Double Header at Veterans' Memorial Stadium Sunday.

The Manets got on the scoreboard first when Running Back Michael Cascarano ran for a 4-yard TD. QB Stephen Gallant rushed for the conversion, as the Manets led 7-0 on the opening drive. The Panthers answered with a long drive capped off by a 1-yard TD plunge by QB Drew Boretti. The conversion attempt failed and the Manets maintained a 7-6 lead, at the end of the first quarter.

The Manets mounted a long drive to open the second quarter. Manet Backs, William Ploof, Gallant and Andrew Engren combined for some fine running. Cascarano capped the drive with a 6-yard TD run. The conversion run failed and the Manets led 13-6, early in the second quarter.

The Panthers got the Ball with just 1:25 left in the first half. Panther Fullback, Jarod Walker moved to quarterback and hit WR Jaycey Ham on a 38-yard TD pass and time expired on the half. Quincy Point entered the locker room trailing by one point, 13-12.

The Panthers took the ball to open the second half and drove it down to the Manet 6-yard line. Four downs later the Manets defense held the Panthers on a goal line stand. The rest of the second half continued to be a defensive stalemate.

The Panthers got the ball back, late in the fourth quarter. Starting on their own 30-yard line, and under 2 minutes left to go, the Panthers drove the ball down the field. QB Jarod Walker completed a 46-yard pass to Jaycey Ham and was tackled out of bounds at the 4-yard line. Panther RB Michael Potter took the handoff and leaped into the end zone on a 4-yard TD run to take the lead. QB Drew Boretti rushed for the conversion as the Panthers defeated the Manets, 19-13.

In Game Two of the Quincy Youth Football doubleheader, the West Quincy Elks played host to the Squantum Storm. The Elks scored on their first offensive series, when QB Gianni Perea threw a 16-yard TD pass to TE Riley O'Connell. PK Thomas Murray added the conversion kick and the Elks led 8-0.

On the ensuing series, Elk Defensive End Gabe Valerino recovered a Storm fumble on 26-yard line. The Elks capitalized as RB Thomas Murray rushed for a 26-yard TD run and added the 2-point kick, giving the Elks an 16-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

The Elks scored again early in the second quarter when QB Gianni Perea passed to Gabe Valerino for a 17-yard TD pass. Murray's kick was good for the conversion as the Elks led, 24-0. Perea threw another TD pass to WR Malik Francis, late in the second quarter. The Elks entered the locker room with a 30-0 lead.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE

"Repetitive stress injuries" (RSIs) is an umbrella term for conditions that are generally caused by placing too much stress on a joint. They vary in type and severity. Most are linked to the stress of repetitive motions at work or injuries in sports. They may occur from heavy use of a computer keyboard; continuous hand tool use; or a training motion on the practice field that places stress on a joint, pulling on the tendons and muscles around the joint. When the stress occurs repeatedly, the body does not have time to recover and becomes irritated. Chiropractic treatment of RSI often involves manipulating joints to increase mobilization and remove stress from adjacent tendons, ligaments, and muscles.

When you come to FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC for pain from RSI, we will conduct an interview with you, review your medical history, and perform an examination. If you are diagnosed with RSI, we can develop a treatment program specific to your situation, your life, and your needs. To schedule an appointment for chiropractic care, please call 617-472-4220. Our family-oriented practice is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Chiropractic treatment of repetitive stress injury also includes postural and ergonomic advice that helps avert stressful motions.

Mass Bay Credit Union Donates 320 Student Backpacks

At Parker Elementary School

Mass Bay Credit Union recently donated and distributed 320 backpacks filled with supplies to kindergarten through 5th grade students at Parker Elementary School in Quincy.

The school identified the need for backpacks and communicated it to Mass Bay through the Credit Union's involvement with the Quincy Community Partnership Program. Mass Bay not only ordered the supplies and backpacks, but also the staff at its Quincy 1250 Hancock St. branch stuffed them all and delivered them to Parker Elementary.

At the school, Mass Bay team members had a great chance to meet and chat with many of the Parker Elementary School students, teachers and administrators, including, Principle Margaret MacNeil, and Quincy Schools Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, and hear how their donation will be put to great use.

Quincy Girls Volleyball Team Gaining Experience

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High girls' volleyball team may have plenty of new faces in their rotation this season, but they are still able to battle competitively against tough Patriot League foes.

The Presidents (2-3) fought hard and made a solid comeback effort, but they fell, 3-1 (18-25, 23-25, 25-18, 21-25), to Plymouth North at home on Monday evening.

"I think we came out quiet and timid but later on we got aggressive as the game went on," Presidents head coach Jacqui Niosi said. "That's what we need to do all game. Plymouth North is a really feisty team, so you've got to get out from the start of the game and play tough."

Much of the first set was a battle of both sides going back and forth. The Presidents trailed 12-10 midway through before Plymouth North started gaining some momentum. In the end, the Presidents fell in the set 25-18.

The Presidents got off to a hot start in their second set, scoring the first three points to go ahead in it. Plymouth North then gained momentum and went up 10-5. From there, the Presidents went on an 11-4 run to take a two point lead, 16-14. From there, the set was a battle. Their opponent was able to tie it at 23 apiece before scoring the last two points so the Presidents dropped it, 25-23.

Plymouth North really gained some momentum early in the third set; they ran out to a 7-0 lead before the Presidents could respond. After that however, the Presidents battled back hard, going on a 6-2 run, cutting the deficit to three. From there, the Presidents continued to dominate the set. They went down by three, 18-15 and from there, they went on a seven point run to win it 25-18.

"At the beginning of the third set I told them this is where they decide what kind of team we're going to be this year," Niosi said. "Were they going to roll over, or were they going to fight back? It was nice to see them fight back."

For the duration of the fourth set, the two teams went back and forth, not surrendering much ground at all. At first, it was 5-5. Next, it was 10-10 and the set was even tied at both 16 and 21 apiece. From there, however, Plymouth North was able to put up four unanswered points and that was enough to win the match, 25-21.

Shannon Foley and Colleen Connor led the Presidents with ten digs apiece while River Barrett led the team with six aces and 20 assists. Allison McMorrow led the team with seven kills in the contest and Julianne Gazzola finished right behind her, adding six more on the day.

After losing last year's heavy senior class to graduation, the Presidents do not have the most experienced squad anymore. Most of their team is new to the varsity level and while they have enjoyed bits of success, they are still adjusting to the varsity level.

"We have the potential to play really great defense," Niosi said. "We've just got to figure ourselves out. A lot of them haven't played together yet, so we're trying to get that experience under our belt and only time will do that."

The Presidents varsity roster this season consists of: Allahna Brown, Allison McMorrow, Alyssa Ruan, Colleen Connor, Gabby Gomes, Gianna Franceschini, Julia McQuaid, Juliana Tracey, Julianne Gazzola, Meghan Davis, Reagan Hutchens, River Barrett, Ro Molina, Shannon Foley, Sommer Davenport and Tammy Ma.

Angela Grasso Takes Part In NFL Celebration

Angela Grasso of Quincy was among the over 200 Dean College students to participate in the 2017 NFL pregame celebration held at Gillette Stadium Sept. 7.

The students, including Arts and Entertainment Management (AMGT), Business, Dance and Sport Management majors, participated as stunt card group members, banner holders and dance performers as the New England Patriots faced the Kansas City Chiefs in the NFL opener.

This is the second opportunity for Dean College to participate, having previously performed in the NFL pregame celebration in September 2015.

The opportunity was brought to life through The Center for Business, Entertainment and Sport Management at Dean College, a partnership with the Kraft Sports Group.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, Sept. 10, at approximately 2:30 p.m., Officer Cheryl Potter was dispatched to the Police station lobby to speak to a victim of an assault and battery which just occurred on Palmer Street.

Upon arrival, the officer learned from the 31-year-old male victim that he was assaulted about 15 minutes earlier when he came out of the Palmer Street Market. After purchasing rolling papers and a soda, the victim got on his bicycle and started riding away from Germantown. A white car pulled over to a nearby crosswalk just ahead of him and the male inside motioned for him to come over to his vehicle.

The victim stated he recognized the driver as a former friend but due to multiple issues they no longer speak. The victim said the driver yelled out to him, "Are we good?" The victim rode his bicycle over to the driver's side door and asked what he meant by that statement.

The victim said the suspect then flung open his door and knocked him off his bicycle while spilling his soda to the ground. He said the suspect exited his vehicle with a large machete in his hand, described as being about two feet long in length with a black handle. The victim said the suspect struck him on his left shoulder, the back of his head and as he put his left forearm up to block the head strikes, he was struck at least two times on his left forearm with the machete.

Seeing that there were no significant flesh openings caused by the machete, the officer inquired where his wounds were and the victim said, "I was slapped with the machete" indicating that he was not hit with the blade edge but rather the blunt section. The victim showed two small open wounds on the top of his left forearm.

Brewster Ambulance arrived on scene in the Police lobby where they examined the wounds; however the victim refused medical assistance. It was determined the suspect resides in Germantown so Officers John Leuchte, Dan Parisi and Paul Matthews responded to the area and located him standing by his vehicle. He was placed under arrest and transported to the station for booking by Officer Leuchte.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer Potter continued her investigation by questioning the suspect after Miranda rights were given. He said he has had problems with the victim for about a year. The suspect said the victim came over to his house today and they initially talked about some of the issues but it soon turned into verbal threats against each other. The suspect left the area but admitted he confronted the victim later on Palmer Street. The suspect said he pulled over and the victim punched him through his open driver's side window and then tried to open his car door. He said they "tussled" back and fourth but he never had or used a machete.

The suspect's vehicle was searched but no machete was found. The vehicle was turned over to a female who identified herself as the suspect's girlfriend and mother of their child. This female was questioned about the incident and said she was with the suspect during the incident, but then recanted and apologized for lying.

Officer Potter informed the victim the suspect was under arrest. The victim was about to leave the station lobby when the suspect's girlfriend arrived with the $40 bail fee. The victim left the station, riding his bicycle home, but soon after returned to the lobby and told Officer Potter the female with the bail money just drove by him and a passenger in her car gave him the middle finger from the window. He added there was another vehicle following hers and the passenger in the front seat yelled out, "I'm going to f@#$%^& kill you" and drove away. The victim said he recognized the passenger as a friend of the suspect's. He added he knows that the male owns firearms and believes they have valid licenses to carry these firearms.

The suspect, a 30-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with assault and battery dangerous weapon. Nice Work!

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION announced that victims of the telemarketing tech support scam who lost money will soon get an email with instructions to claim a partial refund. The refunds are the result of an FTC case against "Advanced Tech Support", also known as "Inbound Call Experts." At the end of a lawsuit brought by the FTC and the State of Florida, a federal court in Florida ordered the company to pay $10 million for customer refunds. The company deceived hundreds of thousands of people by pressuring them into buying computer services they didn't need. According to the FTC, the company used online ads, search results, and partnerships with software developers to lure consumers to call Advanced Tech Support. Then their telemarketers used high-pressure sales tactics to sign people up for unneeded technical support subscriptions and services, sometimes for hundreds of dollars. The FTC's emails about refunds in this case will come from subscribe@subscribe.ftc.gov. Your email will have a claim number and a PIN that will give you access to apply for a refund. If you get an email, follow the instructions and respond by October 27, 2017.

If you choose, you don't have to click on the link in the email. You can start the claims process at ftc.gov/TechSupport or call the refund administrator at 877-793-0908. It's a good idea to be cautious about clicking on links in emails. The FTC is using emails for this claims process so more people will get money back. You never have to pay to get a refund in an FTC case. Anyone who asks you to pay for a refund is a scammer. Report them to the FTC.

St. Francis Pet Blessing at Quincy Point Congregational

There will be a St. Francis Pet Blessing on Sunday, Sept. 24th at 11 a.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church on the lawn of the Abbey Road side of the church.

Bring your pet, a photo of your pet or even a stuffed animal to be blessed (pet carriers are leashes are encouraged). Donations for the Quincy Animal Shelter will be collected. See www.quincyanimalshelter.org for items on their wish list.

"Mumble, Grumble, Tumble and Fall" is the sermon that Peter Johnston, M. Div will be preaching on Sunday, Sept. 24th during 10 a.m. worship at Quincy Point Congregational Church. 444 Washington St. Sunday School will be in session.

After worship, all are invited to fellowship in the Social Hall complete with light refreshments and friendly conversation.

If you wish to enroll your child in Sunday School give the church office a call at 617-773-6424. The children usually depart partway through worship to go to class. The Sunday School will start their mission work this year by learning about honey bees and then raising funds to donate to Heifer International to buy honey bees for farmers in need. The children and youth have so many unique opportunities like: learning an instrument, singing in the choir or even helping with videotaping church worship. It is a well-rounded and meaningful program for children and youth. Stop by any Sunday and see what all the "BuZZ" is about.

Many other groups at the church are congregating again for the season as well. Prayer Shawl Ministry meets on Sept. 21 at 10 a.m. in the QPCC library. The knitters meet every first and third Thursday of the month. Handbells and choir begin practice on Thursday, Sept. 21 at 6:30 and 7:30 pm respectively in the upstairs choir room. Then Sept. 26 at 11a.m., the weekly Bible study resumes for the study of books 1 &2 Peter, Life Lessons with Mac Lucado. All are welcome, ring the doorbell by the Dunkin Donuts entrance for weekday meetings. We assemble every Sunday for worship at 10 a.m, we are handicap accessible and the doors are wide open for all to come gather together.

OBITUARIES

John A. Hession

A funeral Mass for John A. "Sean" Hession, a resident of Weymouth, was celebrated Monday in St. Jerome Church, Weymouth.

Mr. Hession died peacefully at home surrounded by his beloved family on Sept. 12, the Feast of the Holy Name of Mary.

He was a native of Athenry, Co. Galway, Ireland, and was a veteran of the U.S. Army. He lived in St. Ann's Parish in Quincy for over 30 years and, prior to his death, he was a member of St. Jerome's Parish in Weymouth.

Mr. Hession was a gifted educator, retiring as an English teacher after 32 years of service for the town of Winthrop school system. He had a heart for the Spiritual and Corporal Works of Mercy of the Catholic Church and throughout his life he was involved in many charitable and pro-life organizations. Mr. Hession made frequent pilgrimages to Medjugorie and loved to share with others what he received there. He loved his Irish heritage and was involved in the local Irish community.

He was preceded in death by his loving, faith-filled wife Margaret "Marian" Hession. He was the devoted father of Elaine Corrigan and her husband Sean of St. Augustine, FL, and Paul Hession and his wife Kristi of Abington. Cherished grandfather of Mary-Elizabeth, Caitlin, John Paul and Patrick Corrigan of St. Augustine, FL, and Liam Hession of Abington. Dearest brother of Della Stockwell of Hertfordshire, England, Rose McMullin of Dorchester, Michael Hession of Athenry, Co. Galway, Frank Hession of Shantraud, Killaloe, Co. Clare, Detta Malloy of Castlebar, Co. Mayo, and the late Noreen Hession and Paul Hession. Also survived by many nieces, nephews and good friends.

Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to attend the visiting hours on Sunday 2-6 p.m. in the McDonald Keohane Funeral Home NORTH WEYMOUTH at 40 Sea Street (off Route 3A - Bicknell Square). Relatives and friends will gather in the funeral home at 9:45 a.m. on Monday prior to the Funeral Mass in St. Jerome Church, Weymouth at 10:30 a.m.

Interment at St. Mary Cemetery, Randolph.

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, North Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to Comunità Cenacolo America, 1050 Tallyrand Ave., Jacksonville, FL 32206 hopereborn.org or to Friends of the Unborn, P.O. Box 69224, Quincy, MA 02269-2246.

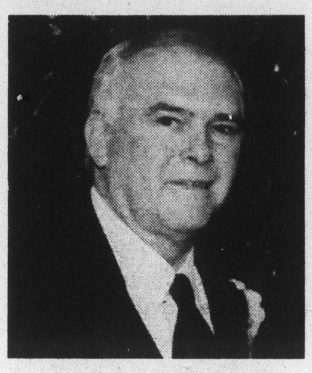
John J. Hughes, 66

A funeral Mass for John J. Hughes, 66, of Quincy was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Hughes died Sept. 12 surrounded by the family he cherished.

The beloved husband of 42 years to Edith (DesRoches) Hughes of Quincy. Loving father of Adam Hughes and his wife Carolyn of Needham, Kirsten Hughes and her husband Philip Doherty of Quincy and Jonathan Hughes and his wife Catherine of Arlington. Son of the late Gerald and Helen Hughes. Brother of Ann Marie James of Quincy, Gerald Hughes of VA, Mary Ellen Burke of West Roxbury, Kathleen Manna of NJ, Theresa Hughes of Milton, Stephen Hughes of Dorchester, Christine Burke of ME, Michael Hughes of Braintree, Bernadette Connolly of Quincy, Laurette Hughes of VT, Joseph Hughes of MI, Francis Hughes of RI and Peter Hughes of Spencer. Devoted "Pa" to John Philip Doherty, Malcolm Ian Hughes, Benjamin Lewis Doherty and Emily Wei-Li Hughes. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Mr. Hughes grew up in Savin Hill. He was a double



JOHN J. HUGHES

Eagle—graduating from Boston College High School and Boston College. After graduation, Mr. Hughes became an HR director, traveling around the world. In addition to travel, he loved to golf and he enjoyed following New England sports teams. The foundation of his life was his family, he cherished them all. William C. Corea, Ph.D., 65

William C. Corea, Ph.D., age 65, died Sept. 11.

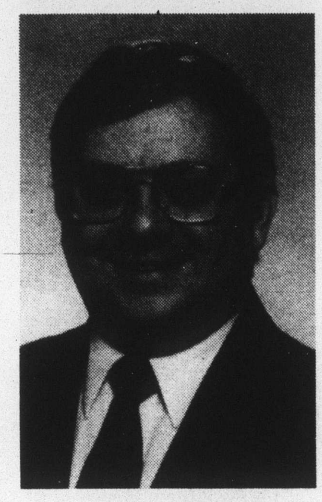
Dr. Corea was born on April 15, 1952, to the Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea and the Rev. M. Alicia Corea of Quincy serving as co-pastors of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

He began his education at Milton Academy at the age of 4 in the fall of 1956 and graduated in June 1970 with honors. He entered college in September 1970, graduating with a Bachelor Degree with honors in geological sciences in the Class of 1974. Entering MIT in September 1974, he earned a Master of Science Degree in Earth and planetary sciences in June 1978.

In April 1979, Dr. Corea married Patricia Jean "Patty," a marriage that lasted until his death. His studies at MIT culminated in a degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1981 in the field of geology.

In July 1981, Dr. Corea accepted a position with Chevron Oil Field Research Company in the research arm of Standard Oil Company of California in southern California. A series of transfers and promotions led him and Patty to Houston, Texas, and San Ramon, Calif., and a final position as senior staff researcher with Chevron Energy Technology Company. Dr. Corea retired in November 2013.

He joined the Society of Professional Well Log Analysts in 1989 and was elected president of that organization in 1996. He was also elected president of Chevron's in-house petrophysical conference and served in that position until 2000.



WILLIAM C. COREA, PH.D.

Dr. Corea was a member of the American Geophysical Union, Society of Petroleum Engineers, International Association of Sedimentologists and SEMP, the Sedimentological Society. He was elected to full membership in Sigma Xi, the scientific honor society, in 1981.

In 2015, Dr. Corea celebrated 40 years of membership in the American Association of Petroleum Geologist and Geological Society of America. He authored nine patents and traveled throughout the world interpreting oil well data as Chevron's representative on projects and was credited with recognizing significant producing zones.

Dr. Corea was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer on Dec. 1, 2016.

Graveside services will be arranged by Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy, at a later date.

Gasoline Prices Down 5 Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are down five cents this week, according to AAA Northeast.

"AAA's Sept. 18 survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.65 per gallon. The Massachusetts price is three cents above the national average for regular unleaded of $2.62. A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 55 cents lower at $2.10.

"As Gulf Coast refineries come back on line and production picks up, we see prices at the pump leveling off and now dropping," said Mary Maguire, Director of Public and Legislative Affairs. "Historically, hurricane-related price spikes are dramatic but brief."

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 30 cents, from a low of $2.49 to a high of $2.79. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Someone has some suggestions to offer regarding your new project. You might find them helpful. Remember to avoid speculation and to stick with just the facts, Lamb.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An old friend suddenly reappears. Whether this proves to be a boon or a bane in the Bovine's life depends on the reason for this surprising reappearance. Be cautious.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Vital information finally emerges, allowing you to make that important personal decision. You can now move your focus to an upcoming professional development.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might not like seeing so many on-the-job changes. But some of them could open new opportunities for the Moon Child's talents to shine to your best advantage.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An apparently solid-gold opportunity beckons the Lion. But check to see if all that dazzle isn't just a sprinkling of surface glitter. Check it out before making a commitment.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A close friend could offer advice on how to handle a difficult family matter. But in the end, the decision has to be made based on what is best for you and those you love.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Family problems are best worked out with all those concerned contributing suggestions that will ease tensions. Stay with it until a workable solution is found.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Expect to hear more about an offer that has piqued your interest. You earn respect for insisting on solid facts, not just a fancy talk about potential opportunities.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) What seemed to be a reasonable workplace request might need to be defended. Don't fret. You have both the facts and a surprise ally on your side.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A bit of capriciousness might be just what you need. Plan to kick up your heels in a round of fun and games with family and friends this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Although some of your plans might have to be put on hold, things do begin to take a turn for the better by midweek. Your financial crunch also eases.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your financial picture begins to brighten by week's end. There also are favorable changes in your personal life. Someone you care for has good news to report.

BORN THIS WEEK: You seek balance, but not at the expense of justice. You would make a fine judge.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Kristen Wiig is headed for superstardom. The recent "Despicable Me 3," which she voiced along with Steve Carrell, grossed $975 million. The just-released psycho-horror film "Mother," with Oscar-winners Jennifer Lawrence and Javier Bardem, will be followed by "Downsizing," with Matt Damon, Christoph Waltz, Neil Patrick Harris, Alec Baldwin, Laura Dern and Jason Sudeikis (out Dec. 22). The Venice Film Festival screening brought unanimous praise from ALL the critics and received a 100 percent favorable rating from Rotten Tomatoes.

It's about villages constructed in Norway to house downsized human beings (a la "Honey, We Shrunk Ourselves"). "Downsizing" means your assets are worth a hundred times more, and your consumption and waste are so little that you're part of saving natural resources and the environment. The drawback is that the process is irreversible and poses the question: Would you want to be tiny in a world where others are giants?

Wiig has "Where'd You Go, Bernadette," with Cate Blanchett, in the can and is now working on "The Heyday of the Insensitive Bastards," a film with seven vignettes that explore the difference between fantasy and reality, memory and history, and the joy and anger of the human condition. The film also stars Matthew Modine, James Franco, Kate Mara, Amber Tamblyn and Natalie Portman. It also will mark the film debut of Oscar- and talk-show host Jimmy Kimmel, as Mr. Chipmunk. Wiig next takes on the American version of the German-Austrian comedy-drama "Toni Erdman," with Jack Nicholson as her father.

Melissa McCarthy was No. 4 on Forbes list of top earning actress at $18 million. We now know why she didn't flinch when CBS canceled "Mike and Molly." McCarthy and husband Ben Falcone's production company has entered into co-production deals with several studios. Already completed is "Life of the Party," a co-production with Warner Bros./New Line, written and produced with her husband (who also directed). It's slated for release May 11, and also stars SNL alums Maya Rudolf and Chris Parnell, in addition to "Modern Family's" Julie Bowen.

"The Happy Time Murders," a co-production with The Jim Henson Company co-starring Maya Rudolf, arrives Aug. 17, followed by "Margie Clause," a co-production with Warner Bros. and New Line aiming for 2019 release. McCarty also is slated for two more films with Warners/New Line, two with 20th Century Fox, one with Universal and another with Paramount Pictures. She and Falcone also produced 12 episodes of the TVLand series "Nobodies" and has her own fashion line. She's making so much money she could buy CBS and fire the people who canceled "Mike and Molly"!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Coco Chanel Chandelier -- Coco Chanel (1883-1971) is a well-known French fashion designer who changed the look of women's clothes and jewelry, and created the famous perfume Chanel No. 5 during the 20th century. But few know she also designed some chandeliers and other furnishings for her apartment and for customers. A rolled-arm sofa and a rock-crystal chandelier probably are her best-known pieces. She included animal figures and mirrors in abundance. Colors like black, gold, brown, honey, beige and cinnabar were backgrounds for Coromandel folding screens and antique furniture. A famous Coco Chanel-designed gilt-metal and rock-crystal chandelier sold at New Orleans Auctions in 2016. It was designed by Coco with Robert Goossens, a Parisian jeweler. The frame has interlocking hearts and ovals with large rock-crystal chunks hanging below. Metal leaves covered the 12 light sockets. The impressive 40-inch-high and 31-inch-diameter chandelier sold for $37,500.

Q: In the 1930-1950 period, would Minton dinnerware normally be found in middle-class or upper-middle-class homes? Where might it have fit in the dinnerware hierarchy, compared to Royal Doulton, Spode or Wedgwood?

A: Minton dinnerware was owned by royalty, the wealthy and the upper middle class. In some homes, it was the "good" china used only on special occasions. Minton was made in the Staffordshire region of England beginning in 1796. It became part of the Royal Doulton Tableware Group in 1968. The brand is now part of WWRD Holdings. Minton china is no longer made.

Q: I have Currier & Ives' "American Homestead Winter" with the original government copyright notice. I can't find any information on the old copyright mark in the bottom left corner of the print that's followed by the letters "HFA." Do you know what this stands for?

A: The letters "HFA" stand for Haddad's Fine Arts, Inc., a company in Anaheim, California, that does reproductions of works of art. The company sells only to businesses, not directly to consumers. Your print is a reproduction of an original Currier & Ives print. Reproductions are common, and average-size prints sell for less than $30.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was 20th-century American philosopher, writer and educator Susanne Katherina Langer who made the following sage observation: "If we would have new knowledge, we must get us a whole world of new questions."

* In Western cultures, the owl is associated with wisdom, but in some Asian countries, it's traditionally a symbol of stupidity.

* In the 9th century, a Norseman named Sigurd Eysteinsson earned the name Sigurd the Mighty while helping to lead the Viking conquest of what is now northern Scotland. As part of a continuing effort to expand his Scottish conquest, Sigurd challenged a native ruler, Mael Brigte the Bucktoothed, to a battle. Each leader was supposed to bring 40 men to the battle, but Sigurd broke his own rule and brought 80 warriors. Unsurprisingly, Brigte lost. After beheading his defeated foe, Sigurd displayed Brigte's head on his saddle as a trophy of war. He got his just desserts in the end, though; as he rode, Sigurd's leg was scratched by Brigte's buck teeth. The seemingly insignificant wound festered, and Sigurd the Mighty was killed by the infection.

* You may already know that seahorses mate for life. You may not be aware, though, that as they swim, they keep their tails linked together.

* Those who study such things say that Napoleon Bonaparte was partial to cashmere underwear.

* Beards may be trendy these days, but if you prefer the clean-shaven look, you belong to a group that goes back further than you think. Cave art dating back to 10,000 B.C.E. depicts grown men with no beards.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* If you use cold water to clean all of your clothes, you'll save about $40 a year in electricity costs. Your clothes will last longer too. And consider a clothesline for air-drying items like towels and sheets on nice days. That saves electricity as well.

* "I just filled a nick in my wood floor with a brown crayon. It totally works. I just rubbed it into the mark, and then used a soft rag to work it in. You can't even tell where it was. I thank my dad for this tip." -- C.L. in Arizona

* "To see the numbers on my socket set, I used my wife's red nail polish. I painted it over the numbers and then quickly used a tissue to wipe off the excess. The red color sunk into the indentations, making the numbers easier to read." -- E.L.D. in Indiana

* "To get my kids to do chores, I sometimes will leave the tasks I want done written on sticky notes. The kids have to complete the tasks and turn in the notes to me in order to get their allowances. Some money is just given, but more chores means more money. It motivates them to do more." -- L.P. in Florida

* You may have heard this before, but some people don't believe it: Skip the fabric softener on your towels, because while it does make them soft and fluffy, it also takes away their efficiency at absorbing water over time. If your towels don't dry like they used to, double wash them -- one cycle with hot water and added baking soda (which also de-stinks them) followed by another hot water cycle with only vinegar. It'll do the trick!

Bricks for Veterans Program

Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

Traffic Study Gets First Green Light

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposed $2.3 million bond to pay for a citywide traffic and parking study cleared its first roadblock when it got unanimous approval from the City Council's finance committee.

The committee gave the green light to the bond at its meeting on Sept. 20, and the full council could approve it as soon as Oct. 2. Mayor Thomas Koch had sought money for the study as part of the capital plan he introduced in the spring.

Michael Coffey, the director of the city department responsible for traffic, said the purpose of the traffic study has shifted after several councillors had raised concerns about its scope in the spring. The study is now more focused on "delivering some near-term traffic flow and safety improvements and also on qualifying the city for state and federal grants to pay for the improvements," as opposed to an analysis of traffic, parking, pedestrian and bicycle issues in the city, Coffey said.

The city will work with AECOM, an engineering firm, to finish a completed streets policy for Quincy and apply for Massachusetts Department of Transportation complete streets funding for roads identified as a priority. AECOM's Dave Derrig said the MassDOT complete street program is one that focuses on improvements for all modes of transporta-

Blacks Creek Improvements Eyed

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city is partnering with an engineering firm to map out improvements to Blacks Creek meant to boost flood protection while also enhancing the health of the marsh.

Funding for the study of the marsh was included in the $2.4 million allocated by the City Council in May for the design, engineering and permitting of improvements to nearby Merrymount Park. The $2.4 million for Merrymount Park was included as part of larger $27 million bond that includes other park projects, such as Hancock-Adams Green, and will be paid for using hotel tax receipts.

Mayor Thomas Koch said engineering firm Tighe & Bond is working with the city to craft a plan for Blacks Creek. The goal is to increase capacity in the marsh to provide better flood protection while at the same time improving the conditions in the marsh.

"As part of the Merrymount Park study, design, engineering work, we're also looking at Blacks Creek from a couple different perspectives," Koch said. "One is, over the years with the silt that travels down the brook and comes into the creek, it builds up and we lose capacity for volume of water for flood control. Number two is we believe through not only dredging but some improvements it will help the environment and ecology of the creek as well.

"For those folks who don't know, Furnace Brook feeds into Blacks Creek and then Blacks Creek feeds into the Atlantic Ocean by way of Quincy Bay, so it's a real important site for the city, both from a natural viewpoint but also from a flood control viewpoint. We're going to do everything we can to enhance both."

St. Mary School Purchase Passes First Test

By SCOTT JACKSON

The proposed purchase of the former St. Mary School, where the city hopes to put a new elementary school to serve West Quincy students, passed its first test.

Mayor Thomas Koch had proposed a $2.7 million bond to purchase the site of the former school on Crescent Street, one of four pieces of his latest capital improvement plan. The City Council's finance committee unanimously approved the purchase Sept. 20; final approval for the bond could come as soon as Oct. 2 at the next regular council meeting.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins said West Quincy lost two elementary schools in the 1980s when the city had to make budget cuts after the passage of Proposition of 2 ½. Students from the area are now being bused to schools outside the neighborhood, such as the Montclair School.

"Back in the early '80s under Proposition 2 ½, two schools – the Gridley Bryant and the Willard School – both closed in West Quincy and since that period of time those neighborhoods have not been served by a neighborhood school," Timmins said.

"The mayor and the superintendent and the school committee have discussed this issue, at least conceptually, because students now are bused, predominantly to Montclair."

Quincy and the Archdiocese of Boston have a purchase and sale agreement already in place for the St. Mary School, which closed in 2010, Timmins said; the school was appraised for about $2.5 million this spring and had an assessed value of $3.26 million in 2016.

Koch has said he plans to seek funding from the Massachusetts School Building Authority to pay for a portion of the cost of the constructing the new school. Timmins said the city is looking at possible interim uses for the site before work on the new school begins.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, whose district includes West Quincy, welcomed the plan to build a new school on the Crescent Street site.

"I think this is a reasonable effort by the administration to secure a future site of a school," Palmucci said.

"When the mayor first came up with the idea and the thought to potentially do it, he contacted me. I contacted some neighbors who live on Crescent Street and the general feeling was it was a school before. You can't find too many spots where you're talking about a future school that in the past already was a school so it's not like you're dropping some new use in a neighborhood."

Councillor Noel DiBona said enrollment at both Lincoln-Hancock and Montclair has increased by more than 80 students over the past decade, and Clifford Marshall's enrollment has gone up by more than 20 students in that time. Building a new school, he said, would alleviate the burden on those buildings and cut down the traveling some students do each day.

"We need to alleviate this and this is a proactive approach to what we're foreseeing for children in the city of Quincy," DiBona said. "This is very important for the city of Quincy and our children."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, who is the chairman of the finance committee, said the new school would help the city meet its goal of keeping class sizes low.

"I see the value in this. I represent some of the aforementioned schools – particularly Lincoln-Hancock and Clifford Marshall – I know we're certainly growing and expanding," Croall said.

"The goal of the exercise is obviously to deliver a solid educational curriculum with very tight class size – by tight I mean low – so this will help achieve that."

Committee OKs Reduced Animal Shelter Bond

Mayor Seeks $7.1 Million But Finance Committee Approves $3.55 Million; Palmucci, Finn Seek Designs Before Signing Off On Full Amount

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council's finance committee approved a $3.55 million bond to pay for a new animal shelter after several members balked at ponying up the full $7.1 million sought by Mayor Thomas Koch before schematic designs for the 21,000 square foot building are completed.

The committee on Sept. 20 spent nearly two-and-half-hours deliberating the request for the bond to pay for the new animal shelter. The $3.55 million bond was approved unanimously after an amendment to cut in half the initial $7.1 million sought by the mayor passed in a split vote.

The final council vote on the $3.55 million bond could come as soon as Oct. 2.

Koch had proposed constructing the new animal shelter on a city-owned parcel of land on Quarry Street this spring as part of his latest capital plan; the city will also build a dog park on site using funds from a $27 million bond, funded by hotel tax receipts, which was approved in May.

The 21,000 square foot building will include space for the new Quincy Animal Shelter, as well as a spay/neuter clinic, the Quincy Police Department's K9 Unit, and the city's animal control officer.

Koch had sought a $7.1 million bond to pay for the project, including schematic design of the new building. Several councillors said they were hesitant to approve the full request without the schematic design being completed, though all agreed a new animal shelter is much needed. Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci proposed cutting the bond amount in half after Councillor Joseph Finn raised concerns about the lack of a schematic design.

"I'm in the private, non-profit world," Finn said. "If I appear before my board of directors and said 'give me x amount of capital dollars to go up and do this' and I didn't have a single rendering for them or at that point show some conceptual design…I'd get laughed out."

"I concur 100 percent with Councillor Finn – I don't see any reason why we need to approve the full $7.1 million tonight," Palmucci said.

"I think I can safely speak for everyone, we all agree you need a new animal shelter and you're going to get a new animal shelter. It's a priority…however, we have a fiduciary obligation to the taxpayers."

Warren Freedenfeld, the architect retained by the city to design the new building, said he understood that some councillors would want to see renderings before approving funding, and that approach would be OK.

"I can appreciate your wanting to see what it is you're funding. It's like going to an auto dealer and saying, 'I want to buy a car, can I see it?'" Freedenfeld said. "Taking a step-by-step approach should be fine."

Councillors approved Palmucci's amendment was approved in a 6-2 vote with.

GOING GREEN!

If you ever had any doubt that colored gemstones were as valuable as their colorless counterparts, consider the price that the "Rockefeller emerald" recently brought at auction. The 18.04-carat emerald, which was once owned by the Rockefeller family, sold at auction in New York, on June 20, 2017, for $5.5 million. At $305,000 per carat, the Rockefeller emerald broke the world record price-per-carat for an emerald sold at auction, eclipsing the old record of $280,000 per carat set by Elizabeth Taylor's emeralds in 2011. These records reflect the high regard in which Colombian emeralds are held due to their exceptional color and clarity. Other colored gemstones are similarly appreciated and valued based on their own criteria. One look shows why.

Passport Day Saturday

The Boston Passport Agency will host a special passport day on Saturday, Sept. 30 as part of the U.S. Department of State's Passport Awareness Month.

This year, the State Department's public awareness campaign focuses on the benefits of getting a U.S. passport card and how both products (the passport book and card) are great forms of photo ID. The event on Saturday is a convenient way to apply for the first time or renew your passport.

Saturday's special passport day will take place at the Tip O'Neill Building, 10 Causeway St., Boston.

Payment is by credit card, personal check or exact cash (no change is given).

Applicants may choose routine service (4-6 weeks) or expedited service (2-3 weeks). Expedited service costs an additional $60.

Applicants will be seen on a first come, first service basis and no appointment is necessary.

For information on passport forms and fees, or to learn more about Passport Awareness Month, visit Travel.State.Gov.

Remembering Bob Gohl

The Quincy Sun family was saddened by the passing of longtime cable TV news producer and reporter Robert Gohl who died Sept. 13 at the much too-young-age of 67.

Bob was more than a producer for the Sun's cable TV news show during the 1980s. He was really a pioneer who provided a professional and steady hand as this local newspaper segued into a new platform of delivering local news via cable TV during its infancy.

Bob produced the Quincy Sun Cable News – a half hour news program – daily in the Sun's newspaper office for about a decade. He was more than just the producer. Bob filmed local news on location with a video camera, interviewed news sources, wrote the script for the news anchors and finally edited the entire show before it broadcast locally in the afternoon Monday through Friday.

Bob covered a lot of ground for The Sun and enjoyed his work. He attended city council and school committee meetings; community events, sports, breaking news and the political scene. He knew just about every news maker in the city and treated all of them with respect.

Bob was selfless, reliable and hard working. His passion for the news industry was as strong as his work ethic. He would work days, nights and weekends – whenever and whereever news happened. Bob was undaunted in his pursuit of local news always getting some footage or off-camera comments for a story. He was as sure as the sun at dawn, the moon at midnight.

My father, Quincy Sun founder and longtime Publisher Henry Bosworth, hired Bob shortly after the newspaper got the rights to produce and air video news on the Quincy Sun cable channel. It was first Channel 8 – "Great on 8," we used to say. Later the channel was changed to Channel 26.

Henry had faith in Bob and Bob produced for The Sun. Their boss-employee relationship was typical of any TV newsroom or newspaper in America. At times there were spirited exchanges between the two creative thinkers but, in the end, the show always got done and provided an important news service for local residents for many years.

I first met Bob when I was just starting out as a news reporter for The Sun in the mid 1980s. I found him affable, amusing and sincere. We'd talk shop (news) and hobbies (music). Anyone who met Bob Gohl knew within five minutes that he was one of the biggest and devout Beatles fans around.

Once in a while he'd call on me to fill in at the anchor desk if one our regulars was away on vacation or couldn't come in for the day for one reason or another.

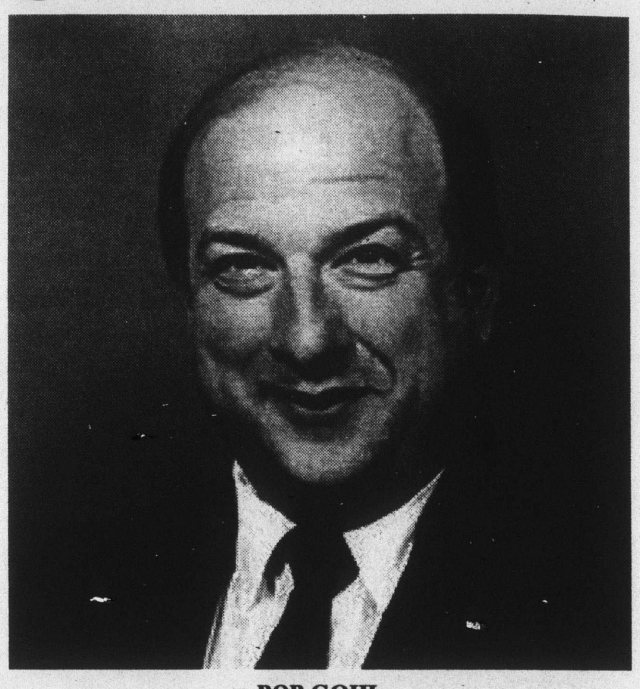
He'd arrived at the Sun office extra early and write the script well in advance of the news show just so that you'd have time to rehearse before filming. He'd have all the equipment set up, too, just to give you an idea of where the camera was to help put you at ease.

There were other times we'd go off to some film shoot. Bob had a penchant for driving some pretty small cars. I remember one old blue Honda Civic that was barely bigger than a roller skate or so it seemed. It was filled with equipment and other gear but it got us where we had to be. If the shoot such as a press conference was running late to start, Bob would utter his trademark complaint, "Hurry up and wait."

One time Bob drove John Noonan, one of the regular anchors on the Quincy Sun TV News, and me to Anthony's Pier 4 in Boston. The year was 1984 and former President Gerald Ford was making a campaign stop on behalf of Elliot Richardson, the former U.S. attorney general who was making a bid for the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate. Ford had come to Boston to endorse Richardson who was perhaps best known for his refusal during Watergate to obey President Nixon's order to fire a special prosecutor.

John Noonan was like Quincy's Walter Cronkite or David Brinkley. An elder statesman who was likeable, fair and dogged in his reporting. John was also pretty savvy. At the press conference in Boston, John asked President Ford if he thought President Nixon should apologize to this nation for the Watergate scandal.

Ford, who had pardoned Nixon after the disgraced president resigned from office following Watergate and his impeachment in the summer of 1974, took the question, paused, and then answered, "Yes, I do think he owes this nation an apology."



BOB GOHL

Another Tribute To Bob - Page 26

The rest of the assembled media picked up the quote and it appeared on several Boston and national news programs later that evening.

There were other anchors who were featured on the news program including Leslie Douglas. Leslie has written her own tribute to Bob which appears on Page 26.

The Sun Cable TV news program, admittedly a lot of work, was also a lot of fun its day. It got you out of the office and brought you in contact with a lot of interesting folks.

I can remember one shoot about 33 years ago (can it be that long ago?) when Bob and I went to Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore headquartered in Quincy. Dave Cowens, the Boston Celtics legend, was in town to help support CP. It was June of 1984 and the interview was the day after the Celtics defeated the Los Angeles Lakers to win the NBA Championship. I got to talk a little hoop with a future Hall of Famer, a big thrill for me.

Cowens was very kind and took all our questions. I was so focused on not screwing up the interview that I didn't see that Cowens was standing beside a small boy with CP holding himself up with a small walker. A photo that someone gave me shows Cowens talking to me as a I held a microphone and the little boy with a great big grin standing next to his basketball idol.

Bob Gohl was also a bit of perfectionist who always strived to do better. He was constantly on the lookout for better cameras, better lighting, better editing equipment, even better VHS tapes (this was long before digital files.)

Bob even went on a mini-crusade to freshen up our news anchor desk here inside the office. One day the familiar blue curtain that served as a backdrop was gone. It was replaced with a towering wooden wall with blue boxes on a painted gray background. We affectionately called it our "Jeopardy" set. We used it extensively including an interview with Sen. Ted Kennedy who always made it a point to stop by The Sun when he was in Quincy.

Bob also had a keen marketing eye. He had a suggestion for running an ad for The Sun newspaper on the TV news with the Beatles' song "Here Comes the Sun" as the intro.

We tend to measure time by days, months and years. But those we meet and share time with are also benchmarks of our lives.

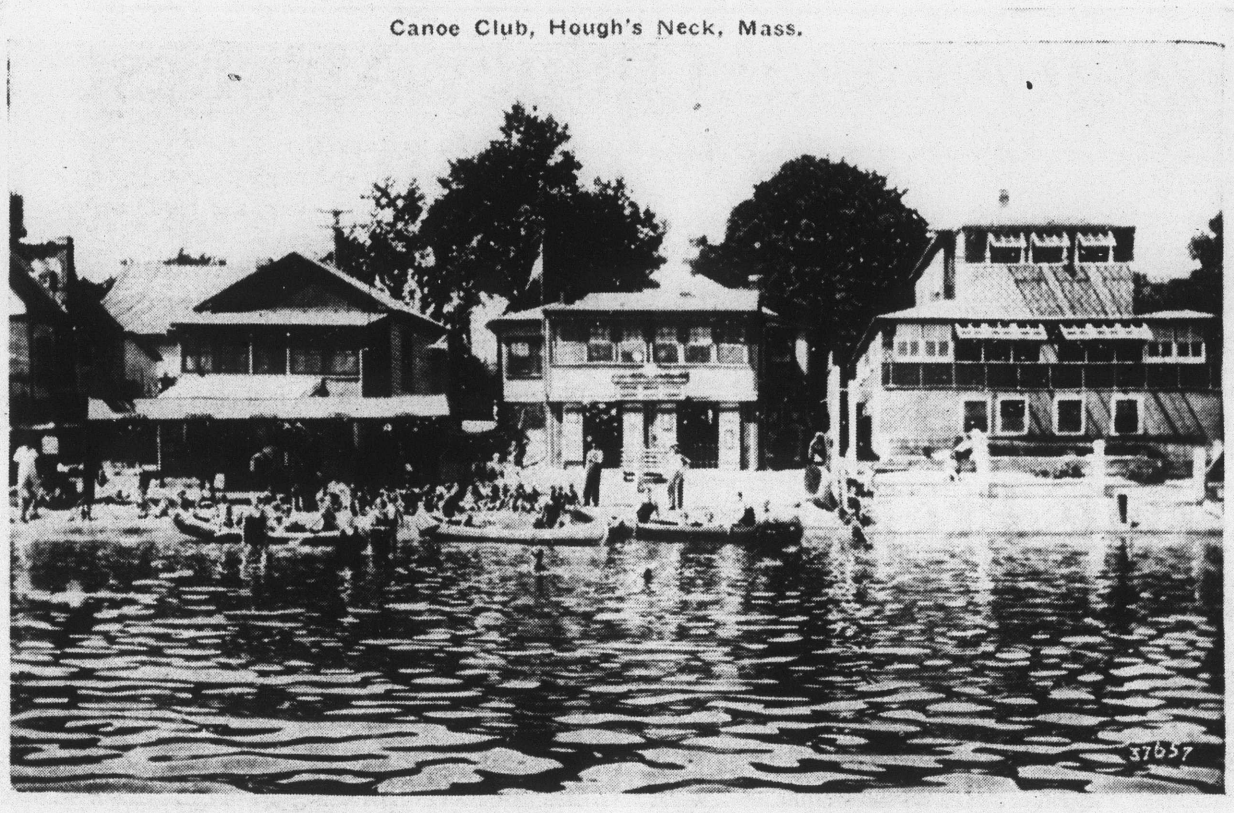
Bob Gohl was one of those benchmarks.

He made an indelible impression if you were fortunate to meet him and he became a lifelong friend and colleague.

Bob was a wonderful person who left us way too son.

His legacy at The Sun will be cherished and remembered forever.

Scenes From Yesterday



THIS POSTCARD is an early 1930s view of what was then known as the Canoe Club in Houghs Neck. It was not far from the public landing on the south beach between Thomas Street on the left and Harvey's Lane just out of view on the right. The scene is quite different today; the houses have all changed and a seawall and breakwater protect them. At the time in Quincy you could also rent canoes at Blacks Creek in Merrymount and near Bethel Beach on the Town River. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Commends QPS Approach To Preventing Drug Abuse

I commend the Quincy Public Schools' diverse approaches to preventing drug abuse. It's one thing to tell kids the reasons that drugs and alcohol are no good for them and the consequences. More than that, we should be preparing them for how to respond. Here is my suggestion.

Defense. With guidance, kids can brainstorm the kinds of responses they can make to different ploys and different arguments thrown at them. Next, do role play. In real life, they just may remember how to respond and draw upon that. They need to be prepared for how to deal with the heat of the moment for cool heads and common sense to prevail. This includes the pervasive atmosphere that surrounds any of us growing up; many kids are curious about substances, including alcohol. How to deal with that curiosity, too – knowing it's there, wanting to see what it's all about?

Besides that curiosity, of course, as you know, is peer pressure. Peer pressure can be insidious ("Go on, it won't hurt you"..."Don't be a wimp" ...etc.). It takes a strong, confident kid to face this. I believe preparing them with role play can do a lot to keep our kids safe and healthy and, as they mature, have a chance to achieve their goals.

Among its other services, Manet Community Health Center expanded its addiction prevention and services, too. Eva Greenwood and Cynthia Sierra of Manet asked us to call on our federal lawmakers to extend health center funding before Sept. 30. So do it now! (But Washington, D.C. is not "thousands of miles" from Manet's waiting rooms; 435 is more like it!)

Congratulates Quincy Sun On Reaching Milestone

Henry Bosworth was my dear friend and I also was his attorney.

Fifty years ago Henry Bosworth came to me and told me he wanted to start a local paper for the people of the City of Quincy. He told me he was going to call it The Quincy Sun. I prepared all the legal papers and went into Boston and filed the new corporation.

The paper has met with amazing success through the work of Henry Bosworth and now through his son and successor, Robert Bosworth.

I am very proud of having been the attorney for The Quincy Sun and having to help create this great newspaper.

Kudos To Park Department

Hi, I am writing to you to give a shout out to the Quincy Parks Dept.

I'm happy to see how the Quincy Parks Dept. is doing such good work in their job, and I personally live near a park and I appreciate how well the parks are maintained and how they are kept clean. I also enjoy all the improvements, like fixing the old courts and softball fields.

Finally, I would like to thank the people who work in the office. They are so nice when I have called with questions. I just wanted to comment on how good the parks look and are maintained. Thank you for listening.

South Quincy MBTA Study Gets Negative Reaction From Public

Members of a study team examining the environmental impact of a proposed MBTA station in South Quincy received a distinctly negative reaction from a group of local residents at a public workshop.

About 100 residents attended and 15 of them spoke out.

Officials of the MBTA and a Boston consulting firm appeared at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School to inform residents of the nature and scope of a study now underway to determine the feasibility of extending the MBTA Red Line from Quincy Center to an area between Independence Avenue, and Centre Street, in South Quincy. However, all speakers voiced strong disapproval of the proposal.

"I'll do everything in my power to keep this station from being built," said Robert Cerasoli, Democratic candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District. Rep. Joseph Brett, while affirming he was in favor of rapid transit extension southward, stressed that, "We don't need a terminal a half-mile from Quincy Center."

Pasquale DeStefano, chairman of the South Quincy Civic Association, stated, "Nobody's demonstrated a need for a station." He added that, "Thousands of residents in the area had signed a petition opposing the project."

(Editor's note: The station was built and opened in 1983.)

SHEETS SEEKS PUBLIC AGENDA AT MEETINGS

Ward Four City Councillor James A. Sheets wants to make City Council meetings "more meaningful to audience observers by distributing agenda copies to them before each meeting." Sheets planned to introduce a resolve at the Oct. 7 council meeting requesting such a distribution of council agendas. There had been criticism by spectators at special council meetings during the summer that they were unable to follow what was taking place.

Sheets indicated that with agenda in hand, the observer would experience more "educational and positive exposure" to the workings of city government.

Squantum Playground Voted Top Arts, Crafts Project

O'Rourke Playground 2nd, Montclair Playground 3rd

This year's Quincy Recreation Arts and Crafts display at City Hall Plaza saw a year of exceptional projects with over 300 ballots cast with an outstanding voter turnout from both the public and the playgrounds.

Each of the 16 parks spent many hours creating their projects, which made for a fabulous final display and a close competition.

Coming in first place this year was Squantum's "MOANA SHIP." The race for second place was extremely close. Taking second place this year was "SLURPEE CUP" by O'Rourke. Third place went to Montclair Playground's "TOY STORY ALIENS."

Arts and Crafts Specialists Jackie McAllister, Caitlin Bulger and Mallory Devoe organized the display.

The Recreation leaders at the winning playground, Squantum Playground, are Timothy Layden, Kiera Clifford, Morgan Murphy. Participants Cara and Elizabeth McDonald, Ella and Henry Gates, Julia Gillespie, and Danny Freeman spent many hours creating the "MOANA SHIP."

Second place playground, O'Rourke, was led and created by Recreation leaders Ryan Harty, Molly Minton, Declan Murphy and Gina Ash with help from Nicole and Kailey Dalton and Jenny Ayles to create the "SLURPEE CUP."

Coming in third place this year was Montclair's "TOY STORY ALIENS" led by leaders Greg Clarke, Jenn Butka, Isabelle Flaherty and Brian Pham with help from Maggie Webber.

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch also thanked the local merchants who supported this event by donating prizes to the winners.

"Their generosity helps to make this great event possible," Welch said. "Many thanks for the kind generosity of Bravo, Time Out Pizza, Ginger Betty's Bakery, Fratellis, Harry's, Confectionately Yours, Sofias and Louis.

"They helped to make this year's event tremendously successful once again.

Chicken And Potato Casserole

By MARIE

There is nothing like making an entrée all in one dish. Today's recipe for a chicken and potato casserole does just that. You can prepare this in the morning and put it in the oven when you are ready.

RECIPE

1 small onion, finely chopped
1 small red bell pepper, finely chopped
4 tablespoons of butter
¼ cup flour
1 cup of milk
Salt and pepper to taste
¼ pound of American cheese or any favorite
1 and ½ cups cooked, cubed chicken.
1 and ½ cooked diced potatoes, (you can use sweet potatoes or a combination of sweet and regular potatoes)

In a skillet place the butter and sauté the onion and bell pepper until wilted. Stir in flour mixing well.

Slowly add milk and the salt and pepper. Now add cheese and cook until cheese melts and thickens lightly. Add the cooked, cubed chicken and potatoes and mix well.

Pour into a 1 quart slightly greased casserole dish. Bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven for 25 minutes.

Golden Milk

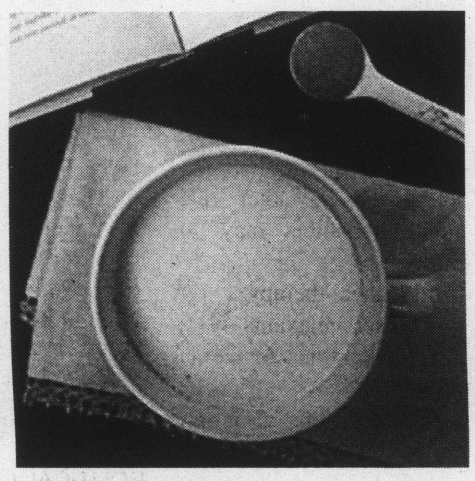
By SUSIE

Ever hear of Golden Milk?

Golden milk may seem trendy, but it has a long rich tradition dating back thousands of years, within the ancient branch of medicine in India known as Ayurveda, it is considered a medicinal "tonic" that nourishes the body and mind, as well as tasting delicious. It is known to help support the nervous system, as well as reduce inflammation in the body and help to achieve a better night's sleep!

The recipe can be customized (I add cardamom and extra cinnamon). Moms in India give it to children to soothe them and adults use at night still according to tradition.

Making Golden Milk from scratch only takes about 15 minutes and can be customized according to taste. Adding black pepper aids in the absorption of the curcumin so it is important to add some in, as recipe states.



- 2 cups milk of choice (I use coconut milk since I do not consume dairy milk, whole organic grass fed milk is best if you use dairy, otherwise there are a variety of milks: cashew, almond, macadamia nut, flax, or hemp)
- 1 tsp turmeric
- 1/2 tsp cinnamon
- pinch of black pepper (increases absorption)
- 1/4 tsp ginger powder
- 1 tsp or more of raw honey
- ½ tsp cardamom (optional)
- 1 tsp virgin coconut oil or ghee (optional)

Directions:

Whisk all ingredients except for the honey in small saucepan until almost boiling. Then stir in the honey while in mug. Drink immediately.

'Straight From Broadway', What Christmas Means To Me' Performances At Common Market

JM Productions Announces Show Dates

JM Productions announces performances for November and December at the Common Market Restaurant, 97 Willard St., Quincy.

Broadway Divas Alexa Green and Michelle Dowdy star in "Straight from Broadway."

Show dates are Thursday, Nov. 2, matinee at noon, doors open at 11:30 a.m.; Friday, Nov. 3, matinee at noon, doors open at 11:30 a.m.; and Friday evening, Nov. 3, 8 p.m. performance; doors open at 7:30 p.m.

For tickets call The Common Market at 617-773-9532.

"Straight from Broadway" is an intimate collection of American songbook, top-charting radio hits and Broadway classics.

Alexa Green has become one of the most sought after new voices and rising stars of this generation. She is best known for her turn as Glinda in the Los Angeles and San Francisco companies of the hit Broadway musical "Wicked." After playing to sold out audiences for nearly two years, she went on to appear alongside Neil Patrick Harris and Patti LuPone in the international cinematic release of Stephen Sondheim's "Company" with The New York Philharmonic Live from Lincoln Center.

Alexa has toured both nationally and internationally as a singer and actor, known for her wide vocal range and dramatic musical flexibility. She most recently released her debut album, SO GOOD on Grammy Award winning record label, Broadway Records and won Best New Solo Recording at the 2016 Broadway-world Awards. Alexa is currently studying for her MA in Vocal Pedagogy at Columbia University and is a teaching artist in musical theatre, rock and popular voice.

Broadway veteran and cabaret extraordinaire Michelle Dowdy is one of the longest running leading ladies celebrating over 400 performances as Tracy Turnblad in the hit Broadway musical "Hairspray." A nightlife and cabaret scene favorite, she is the most recent 2017 Mac Award Winner for Piano Bar Entertainer of the Year as a singing mixologist at the world famous Don't Tell Mama in New York City. Michelle has traveled the world as a guest entertainer on cruise ship stages for over ten years. Her debut solo album, A BRASS ACT, spans Broadway favorites and American Songbook classics and is available on iTunes. Michelle hosts numerous nightlife staple shows and can be seen in concerts all over New York City. She can currently be seen as Betty Jean in "he Marvelous Wonderettes" off-Broadway.

JM Productions also announces show dates for "What Christmas Means to Me." Dates are Wednesday, Dec. 6 at noon (matinee) with doors opening at 11:30 a.m.; Thursday, Dec. 7 at noon (matinee) doors open at 11:30 a.m. and Friday, Dec. 8 at noon (matinee, doors open at 11:30 a.m.) and Friday, Dec. 8 evening show starting at 8 p.m. with doors opening at 7:30 p.m.

"What Christmas Means to Me" is a holiday musical revue tailor made to kick off the holiday season. This one-stop shopping dining and musical event is a perfect solution for family, office or friends holiday gatherings.

Conceived and directed by John F. McDonald, Jr., "What Christmas Means to Me" is a bright and enthusiastic musical revue featuring "traditional" and "not so traditional" holiday songs and monologues. The show is rich in variety and has a consistently high quality of music with a superb cast of performers. We even have a sing-along and holiday contest with prizes for our audiences.

McDonald's concept is to keep things simple while maintaining a fast pace. The review is presented in one act. McDonald presents finely tuned monologues and well crafted production values that are sure to please all who attend the event. He uses intricate harmonies and carefully chosen solo pieces that bring the audience along an entertaining musical journey from childhood through adulthood.

"You will be hard pressed to find a person in our audiences who won't be able to relate in some way to this sentimental production" McDonald said.

For more information call The Common Market at (617) 773-9532 or JM Productions at (857) 333-4199.

Multiple Sclerosis: Symptoms, Risk Factors, Treatments

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-F

Multiple sclerosis (MS) is a potentially disabling disease of the brain and spinal cord.

In MS, the immune system attacks the protective sheath (myelin) that covers nerve fibers and triggers a disruption of communication between the brain and the rest of the body. Ultimately, the disease can cause the nerves themselves to deteriorate or become permanently damaged.

Multiple sclerosis signs and symptoms may contrast greatly from person to person and over the course of the disease contingent on the location of affected nerve fibers. They may include:

- Numbness or weakness in one or more limbs that typically occurs on one side of your body at a time, or the legs and trunk
- Partial or complete loss of vision, usually in one eye at a time, often with pain during eye movement
- Prolonged double vision
- Tingling or pain in parts of your body
- Electric-shock sensations that occur with particular neck movements, especially bending the neck forward
- Tremor, lack of coordination or unsteady gait
- Slurred speech
- Fatigue
- Dizziness

People with multiple sclerosis also may develop:

- Muscle stiffness or spasms
- Paralysis, typically in the legs
- Problems with bladder, bowel or sexual function
- Mental changes, such as forgetfulness or mood swings
- Depression
- Epilepsy

The majority of those with MS experience periods of new symptoms or relapses that develop over days or weeks and usually improve partially or completely. These relapses are followed by calm periods of disease remission that can last months or even years.

About 60 to 70 percent of people with relapsing-remitting MS ultimately develop a steady progression of symptoms, with or without periods of remission, known as secondary-progressive MS. A handful of people with MS encounter what is known as primary-progressive MS, a gradual onset and continual progression of signs and symptoms devoid of any relapses.

While the cause of multiple sclerosis is unknown, it is well documented that this immune system malfunction destroys myelin (the fatty substance that coats and protects nerve fibers in the brain and spinal cord). Myelin can be paralleled to the insulation coating on electrical wires. When the protective myelin is injured and nerve fiber is exposed, the messages that move along that nerve may be slowed or obstructed. The nerve itself may also sustain damage.

Research suggests that both genetic and environmental factors may play a part in the development of MS. These factors may increase your risk of developing multiple sclerosis:

- Age. MS can occur at any age, but most commonly affects people between the ages of 15 and 60.
- Sex. Women are about twice as likely as men are to develop MS.
- Family history. If one of your parents or siblings has had MS, you are at higher risk of developing the disease.
- Certain infections. A variety of viruses have been linked to MS, including Epstein-Barr, the virus that causes infectious mononucleosis.
- Race. White people, particularly those of Northern European descent, are at highest risk of developing MS. People of Asian, African or Native American descent have the lowest risk.
- Climate. MS is far more common in countries with temperate climates, including Canada, the northern United States, New Zealand, southeastern Australia and Europe.
- Certain autoimmune diseases. You have a slightly higher risk of developing MS if you have thyroid disease, type 1 diabetes or inflammatory bowel disease.
- Smoking. Smokers who experience a primary event of symptoms that may signal MS are more likely than nonsmokers to develop a second event that confirms relapsing-remitting MS.

Diagnosing multiple sclerosis often relies on ruling out other conditions that might produce comparable signs and symptoms. Your healthcare provider may recommend:

- Blood tests, to help exclude other diseases with similar symptoms.
- Lumbar puncture in which a small sample of fluid is removed from your spinal canal. This test can show abnormalities in antibodies that are associated with MS.
- MRI, which can reveal areas of MS lesions on your brain and spinal cord.
- Evoked potential tests, which record the electrical signals produced by your nervous system in response to stimuli.

Since there is no cure for multiple sclerosis, treatment normally focuses on accelerating the recovery from attacks, reducing the progression of the disease and management of MS symptoms. Some people have such mild symptoms that treatment is unnecessary.

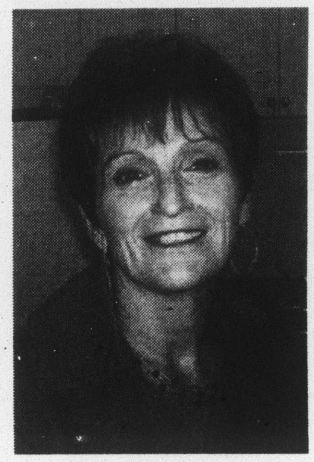
Treatments for MS attacks may consist of corticosteroids or plasma exchange. For primary-progressive MS, Ocrelizumab is the only FDA-approved disease-modifying therapy. It slows worsening of disability in people with this type of MS. For relapsing-remitting MS, numerous disease-modifying therapies are available. Other treatment modalities may include:

- Physical therapy
- Muscle relaxants
- Medications to reduce fatigue
- Medications also may be prescribed for depression, pain, sexual dysfunction, and bladder or bowel control problems

Many people with MS utilize an assortment of alternative therapies to help manage their symptoms but there are few studies that corroborate their efficacy in managing symptoms. Guidelines from the American Academy of Neurology advocate the use of oral cannabis extract for muscle spasticity and pain, but do not recommend cannabis in any other form for other MS symptoms due to a lack of evidence. The guidelines also do not endorse the use of herbal supplements or magnetic therapy for alleviation of MS symptoms.

If you have been diagnosed with MS, there are measures you can take on your own, to help relieve the signs and symptoms:

- Get plenty of rest.
- Exercise
- Cool down. MS symptoms often worsen when your body temperature rises.
- Eat a balanced diet. Results of small studies suggest that a diet low in saturated fat but high in omega-3 fatty acids, such as those found in olive and fish oils, may be beneficial.
- Relieve stress.



RUTH JONES

Living with any chronic illness can be difficult so maintaining normal daily activities is vital. Discuss your feelings and concerns about living with MS with your doctor. Keep in mind that staying connected to friends and family and continuing to pursue hobbies that you enjoy and are able to do, can help in managing the stress that occurs when living with MS.

South Shore Mayors Connect To Fight Hunger

The mayors of Braintree and Weymouth recently rolled up their sleeves to help feed their constituents in need. They spent the morning serving clients at Interfaith Social Services, which operates one of the largest food pantries in Greater Boston, distributing more than 500,000 meals to South Shore residents every year.

Braintree Mayor Joseph C. Sullivan and Weymouth Mayor Robert L. Hedlund assembled meal orders, sorted food and distributed it to clients who visited the food pantry that morning. This is the third year that the mayors have come together to fight hunger as part of Interfaith's "Mayors Day."

"This year Interfaith Social Services' celebrates our 70th anniversary," said Rick Doane, executive director of Interfaith Social Services. "For the past seven decades South Shore residents have been donating and volunteering to sustain Interfaith's programs, which help so many of our neighbors in need. We are very grateful that Mayors Hedlund and Sullivan were able to honor that legacy of service by working side by side with our volunteers today. I know it meant a lot to our clients to see their elected officials literally putting food on their families' table."

Since 1947, Interfaith Social Services has been a safety net for South Shore families. In addition to their food pantry, Interfaith operates a mental health counseling center (accessible to anyone in the region), homelessness prevention program and budget counseling services. Many of the clients served by Interfaith's programs are residents of Weymouth, Quincy and Braintree.

"I am pleased to support an organization that provides so much for families and individuals on the South Shore" said Mayor Joseph C. Sullivan. "Hopefully, these small efforts will make a big impact on the daily lives of our neighbors in need."

"When families need help, they turn first to the people and communities they know and trust," said Mayor Robert L. Hedlund. "That's what makes this work so important. Interfaith Social Services provides food and assistance to thousands of families every year. We should never forget the incredible efforts needed to make this work possible, nor the hundreds of community members that volunteer their time helping others."

Quincy's Mayor Thomas Koch has participated in the event in previous years, but a scheduling conflict didn't allow him to be at the pantry on the 21st.

Anyone interested in donating to or volunteering at Interfaith is encouraged to contact Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28 or pdaniels@interfaithsocialservices.org.

Social Security Matters

IRMAA And Medicare Premiums

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: Due to my adjusted income in 2015 my wife and I (70 & 66) now have over $400 taken from our monthly Social Security fixed income to pay for our share of Medicare. I was let go from my last company of 27 years while I was on medical leave. I had to pull out money from my 401k to live on and that showed as an increase to my 2015 income. Why do seniors get punished for trying to survive and not lose all they have worked for? I never heard of this type of action taken against retired seniors before. Was it an ACA (Obamacare) regulation so the government can steal from the elderly? Signed: Frustrated

Dear Frustrated: Well, no, it's not some kind of Government conspiracy against senior citizens, but rather it's a consequence of the Medicare Modernization Act of 2003 (which took effect in 2007) affecting Medicare Part B premiums, and of the ACA, which took effect in 2011 affecting Part D premiums. Both of these laws targeted higher income beneficiaries by causing them to pay higher Medicare Part B and Part D premiums, depending upon their filing status and income level. I'm afraid what you have come up against is something called "IRMAA", or the Income Related Medicare Adjustment Amount. And since Medicare premiums are usually deducted from Social Security benefits, those affected see their benefit check get smaller.

Without getting into all the different income levels and higher premiums for each filing status, I'll just focus on your personal situation. Since you are married and, I presume, filing jointly on your income taxes, as long as your combined Modified Adjusted Gross Income (MAGI) is under $170,000 there is no surcharge to either your Part B premium or your Part D premium. If your MAGI is more than $170,000, your Part B premium increases to anything from $187.50 monthly to $428.60 monthly depending upon your income level, and a supplement of from $13.30 to $76.20 is added to your Part D premium (all dollar values are for 2017). It sounds as though the 2015 withdrawals from your 401(k) were enough to push you over the income limit, causing Medicare premiums for both you and your wife to increase for 2017 (Note that Medicare reviews tax returns from two years prior to make the income determination).

Now for a little light at the end of the tunnel: Medicare recognizes that beneficiaries sometimes have a major "life-changing event" which can cause their income level to be unusually high for a given year, thus activating Medicare's IRMAA clause. You can request that Medicare review your situation and base your Medicare premium on a subsequent year's lower income (e.g., 2016), but you will need to prove to Medicare that your IRMAA should be less. To do this, you may start by using Form SSA-44 found at https://www.ssa.gov/forms/ssa-44.pdf or you can make an appointment at your local Social Security office and request reconsideration of your IRMAA amount in person. Even if the initial review results in rejection, you have several appeal options available to you, starting with submitting form SSA-561 "Request for Reconsideration" which can be found at https://www.ssa.gov/forms/ssa-561.pdf, and continuing if necessary to a review by an Administrative Law Judge, by the Medicare Appeals Council, and even by the Federal District Court, if necessary. And if you are successful, you might be getting a letter from Social Security notifying you that you'll be getting a refund of the excess of those higher IRMAA-related Medicare premiums which you've been paying.

Point Karaoke Bar Granted All Alcohol License

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Quincy Point karaoke bar has received the go-ahead from the city's licensing board to serve hard alcohol in addition to beer and wine.

The Board of License Commissioners on Sept. 19 granted an all-alcohol license to Jazz Moon Karaoke, which operates inside the Kam Man Plaza at 217 Quincy Ave.

The karaoke bar previously had a beer and wine license. The licensing board in April had imposed a five-day suspension on Jazz Moon Karaoke, with three days to serve, after Quincy police found 77 bottles of liquor on site and menus featuring cocktails made with hard alcohol while investigating the near-fatal stabbing of the bar's owner, Jasmine Le, in February. The stabbing remains under investigation.

Police Lt. Peter Turowski, the department's liquor inspector, said at the time Jazz Moon Karaoke had no other infractions in recent years. The bar has been open for 13 years.

William Phelan, Le's attorney and a former mayor of Quincy, said Jazz Moon Karaoke is facing increased competition and the all alcohol license would increase business, which he said has dropped precipitously this year.

"Jasmine has lived in Quincy for the past 13 years. She has two children she's raising as a single mother now, divorced, and trying to make ends meet," Phelan said. "This change in category will certainly go a long way in assisting her to do that."

The bartenders at Jazz Moon Karaoke will be TIPS certified, Phelan said. Turowski offered to provide Le with contact information for a TIPS instructor she could use to train any new employees.

The licensing board unanimously approved the request for an all-alcohol license.

"I know you experienced a setback; it was difficult for you," Fire Chief Joseph Barron said. "I wish you the best of luck."

In other business on Sept. 19, the board granted a common victualler license to Unchained Pizza, which operates inside the strip mall at 550 Adams St.

The popular pizzeria was forced to close after the roof of the building it is located in collapsed amid record-breaking snowstorms in February 2015. The building at 550 Adams St. was one of at least five in the city whose roof collapsed after nearly 100 inches of snow fell during a four-week period starting in late January of that year.

Unchained Pizza was allowed to re-open in late August because it had previously been operating in the city for several years, but was required to come before the board for the new license, which was quickly granted.

The board also granted a pair of common victualler licenses to pizza shops who will be operating under new ownership going forward – Quincy House of Pizza at 379 Washington St. and Copeland Street Subs and Pizza at 150 Copeland St. The new owners of both said no changes are planned at the eateries.

In additional business, the board continued until Tuesday a request for a special use/all-alcohol permit for the ghost ship planned at the USS Salem in the weeks before Halloween.

Fright Island LLC is seeking to run the ghost ship from Sept. 29 to Oct. 31 and hopes to open for 19 days during that time. The ghost ship would be open Thursdays to Sundays, except for the final week when it would be Wednesday to Monday for Halloween. The proposed hours are 7 p.m. to midnight on Fridays and Saturdays and 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. on other nights.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall had requested the hearing on the proposal be continued to this week's meeting so he could learn more about the plans.

Music and Movement with Rubi

On Saturday, Oct. 7th at 10 and 10:30 a.m. sing and dance with Rubi Lichauco! Rubi brings her popular preschool program to Quincy so put on your favorite dancing shoes and join us for this lively mix of music and movement for children ages 0-4 accompanied by an adult.

This program has become so popular there isn't room to move and dance as we would like so we have decided to split the group in two. No registration is required; when the 10 a.m. session fills we will close the doors. Please spend some time in the children's room choosing books or playing with our early literacy activities while you wait for the 10:30 a.m. session. Thank you for your cooperation we really think two smaller groups will make this program more fun for everyone.

Middle School STEAM

Students in Grades 5-8 are invited to join us on Tuesday, Oct. 10th at 2 p.m. for the first in our monthly series of Middle School STEAM events. This month we'll be exploring Art with acrylic paints on canvas. Get your inspiration from masters like Mondrian or Rothko use a math concept like the Fibonacci sequence or create your own design.

Each month we will be exploring a different STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art and math) topic. We've planned the first couple of programs but we'd love to hear what you would like to do.

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books

Brand New! Chickadees Book Club for children in grades 1 and 2! This group works a little bit differently than our other book groups sort of a cross between book group and storytime.

The Chickadees will meet in five week sessions on Monday evenings at 6:30 p.m. in the Main Library children's room. During our first session (Nov. 13-Dec. 11) we will get used to the idea of reading and discussing stories to promote reading comprehension by reading a different story each week and discussing it. As the year goes on we'll tackle longer books that will take the whole five weeks to read and discuss. Registration is required for the Chickadees and begins Tuesday, Oct. 31st at 9 a.m. online at thomascranelibrary.org, by phone at 617-376-2411 or in person at the Main Library Children's Room.

Questions? Call the Children's Room at 617-376-2411 and ask for Mrs. Miller.

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets on the 2nd Thursday of each month this month we'll be meeting on Oct. 12th at 7 p.m..to discuss Say What? By Margaret Peterson Haddix

Sukie is worried - her parents are acting strange. When she runs in the house, her dad asks, "If all your friends jumped off a bridge, would you jump off a bridge too?" When she eats peas with her fingers, Mom yells, "You'll put an eye out with that thing!" What is going on? Have her parents been replaced by aliens? Are they robots with broken circuits? She and her older brothers decide to investigate. And what they discover leads to a kids-against-parents WAR!

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. The Club will meet on Tuesday, Oct. 10th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

This month we will be discussing pets. We'll start off our regular themes with books about pets. These books can be sad or silly or serious. They can be about cats, dogs, goats, snakes, whatever pets you want!

Too busy to join us this month? Stop by the library anytime to find out about when we'll be meeting next.

Preschool Discovery @ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler any time between 10 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 12th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

This month we will be exploring colors. We'll be sorting colors, mixing colors, even separating colors out using markers and coffee filters.

This program does not require registration.

Science Saturday – Sciencetellers Tall Ships & Pirate Tales

Join the Sciencetellers on Saturday, Oct. 14th at 10 a.m. in the large meeting room at the main library as they use their unique blend of storytelling and hands on science experiments to teach us about actions and reactions.

Ahoy! People don't just build on land. They build on water, too! Set sail with us on a thrilling action-packed adventure about a crew of quirky pirates marooned on a deserted island. With mutiny and high-tide looming, they must rescue their salty captain and find a way to construct a ship before all hope is lost … at sea! Planks, sails, rigging, rails... what else could building a pirate ship possibly take? Throughout the story, volunteers from the audience will help us explore the incredible science behind clouds, flash paper, air pressure, inertia, explosions and more. Don't miss this refreshing nautical tale with a twist!

This program is best suited for children ages 4-10 accompanied by an adult.

Dungeons and Dragons Encounters

New and experienced players ages 10 and older are invited to join us on Tuesday, Oct. 17th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room for this introduction to D&D 5th edition game play. Take on the role of a fantasy hero in this monthly Dungeons and Dragons game.

We will help you customize an Adventurer's League D&D character you can use both in our monthly adventures and at other D&D Organized Play.

Your group of adventurers will start out at level one and take on the module from the 5th Edition D&D Starter Set. Unravel the mysteries of the Lost Mine of Phandelver and what monsters and treasures lie within!

Childrens Movie Matinee @ Adams Shore - Goosebumps

Join us at the Adams Shore Branch on Thursday, Oct. 19th at 2:00 for a showing of Goosebumps, based on the book series by R. L. Stine.

Upset about moving from a big city to a small town, Zach Cooper finds a silver lining when he meets the beautiful girl, Hannah, living right next door, and makes a quick friend in Champ. But every silver lining has a cloud, and Zach's comes when he learns that Hannah's mysterious dad is in fact R.L. Stine, the author of the bestselling "Goosebumps" series. As Zach starts learning about the strange family next door, he soon discovers that Stine holds a dangerous secret: the creatures that his stories made famous are real, and Stine protects his readers by keeping them locked up in their books. When Stine's creations are unintentionally released from their manuscripts, Zach's life takes a turn for the weird. In a crazy night of adventure, it's up to Zach, Hannah, Champ, and Stine to team up and get all of these figments of Stine's imagination - including Slappy the Dummy, the girl with the haunted mask, the gnomes and many more - back in the books where they belong to save the town.

Rated PG Runtime 1 hour 43 min

Saturday Storytime

Do Something Now About On Street Parking

READERS FORUM

I wanted to write this letter in hopes to be published in your paper.

I am a lifelong resident of Quincy as is my husband and my parents.

We have lived in the house we are in, in Squantum, since 1969.

Over the past few years there has been a huge increase in the traffic and on street parking in Quincy.

There is so much on street parking that our school buses cannot even get around our streets and children have no sidewalks to walk on.

We need to get a parking ordinance in that if you have a driveway, you need to use it, no ifs, ands or buts. There is no reason for people to be on street parking when they have a driveway. On street parking not only causes issues with traffic but also with buses, snow removal, trash trucks, delivery trucks, oil delivery trucks, etc.

We have been personally attacked because of on street parking issues.

Last year we started having issues with our neighbors parking on the street (with their driveway empty) and deliberately blocking our driveway. We went over on two separate occasions to nicely ask him not to block our driveway and the situation got worse. They were parking on the street 24/7, parking on the sidewalk so children had to walk in the street, they would block our driveway so we couldn't get in and out of our own driveway. I have video of my husband not even being able to get into our driveway because there was snow and this vehicle was in the street. As the situation got worse we began to take pictures and we reached out to our ward councillor to get a no parking sign so this would stop.

Our ward councillor brought no parking sign request to the council and it was passed on 12/6/16.

The signs were installed on 1/13/17.

Our councillor then had them removed one week later with no approval on 1/20/17.

On 2/21/17 our councillor brought it in front of the council to remove signs.

Since this has happened our situation has gotten worse with our neighbors. Now they wake up in the morning and move their vehicles out to the street and go back in the house (as their driveway is empty all day) then they move the vehicles back to the driveway before they go to bed.

The ward councillors and the mayor have to look at this traffic and parking situation and take it seriously.

Something needs to be done immediately. I am hoping with the election coming new people will come in and take charge and start to straighten out the chaos.

Neighbors should be respectful of each other. Very sad.

Very disgusted in our politicians,

Lee Ann Zappi

Houghs Neck Garden Club Programs

The Houghs Neck Garden Club begins a new year of monthly talks and programs on Oct. 4 with "Bring the Outdoors In."

Barbara Graceffa, an interior decorator with nearly 30 years of experience creating attractive and functional spaces will talk to club members about how to enhance their living spaces with plants and flowers. In 2008 Graceffa opened her own interior decorating business. She also writes a weekly column "Ask Barbara Graceffa" for The Quincy Sun. This is an opportunity for members and guests who have a problem area in their home to bring a photo and ask Barbara's advice.

The meeting will be held in the MWRA Community Room at Nut Island, second floor, 149 Sea St., starting at 7 p.m. with refreshments and a brief business meeting followed by the program at 7:30 p.m. New members are welcome.

The Club was successful in obtaining a grant through the Community Preservation Act through which it is arranging for the removal and replacement of blighted ornamental trees and making other improvements at the Leo Kelly Park, one of the sites planted and maintained by the HNGC. Our thanks go to Mayor Koch, the Quincy City Council, and the Quincy Community Preservation Grant Program for making this possible, and to the Parks Department for their support of the coordination of the project and for being helpful in so many ways.

In other club news, the recipient of a scholarship offered this year by the Houghs Neck Garden Club was Maysoon Khan, a graduate of Quincy High School who entered Emerson College this Fall. Graduating high school seniors resident in Quincy for the last two years who have been accepted to a school of higher learning and plan to concentrate in horticulture, environmental studies, or an allied field were invited to apply for the award(s) through notices in local papers.

The Club is a member of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts and National Garden Clubs, Inc.

To find out more about the Club visit our website at: http://hngc123.wix.com/houghsneckgardenclub/.

October Events, Activities For Children At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES
Thomas Crane Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following events and activities for children during October

Drop in Storytimes

Drop in storytimes are offered for babies and preschoolers weekday mornings through Oct. 26th. Stop by the library or check our website thomascranelibrary.org for details

Children's Movie Matinees @ North Quincy

Monday afternoons at 3 p.m. Join us at North Quincy for a movie matinee. Our movies for October:

Oct. 2nd Disney's live action Beauty and the Beast Rated PG runtime 129 min

Oct. 16th Hoot Rated PG runtime 91 minutes

Oct. 23rd LEGO Batman Rated PG runtime 104 minutes

Oct. 30th Monsters, Inc. Rated PG runtime 92 minutes

Music and Movement with Rubi

On Saturday, Oct. 7th at 10 and 10:30 a.m. sing and dance with Rubi Lichauco! Rubi brings her popular preschool program to Quincy so put on your favorite dancing shoes and join us for this lively mix of music and movement for children ages 0-4 accompanied by an adult.

This program has become so popular there isn't room to move and dance as we would like so we have decided to split the group in two. No registration is required; when the 10 a.m. session fills we will close the doors. Please spend some time in the children's room choosing books or playing with our early literacy activities while you wait for the 10:30 a.m. session. Thank you for your cooperation we really think two smaller groups will make this program more fun for everyone.

Middle School STEAM

Students in Grades 5-8 are invited to join us on Tuesday, Oct. 10th at 2 p.m. for the first in our monthly series of Middle School STEAM events. This month we'll be exploring Art with acrylic paints on canvas. Get your inspiration from masters like Mondrian or Rothko use a math concept like the Fibonacci sequence or create your own design.

Each month we will be exploring a different STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art and math) topic. We've planned the first couple of programs but we'd love to hear what you would like to do.

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books

Brand New! Chickadees Book Club for children in grades 1 and 2! This group works a little bit differently than our other book groups sort of a cross between book group and storytime.

The Chickadees will meet in five week sessions on Monday evenings at 6:30 p.m. in the Main Library children's room. During our first session (Nov. 13-Dec. 11) we will get used to the idea of reading and discussing stories to promote reading comprehension by reading a different story each week and discussing it. As the year goes on we'll tackle longer books that will take the whole five weeks to read and discuss. Registration is required for the Chickadees and begins Tuesday, Oct. 31st at 9 a.m. online at thomascranelibrary.org, by phone at 617-376-2411 or in person at the Main Library Children's Room.

Questions? Call the Children's Room at 617-376-2411 and ask for Mrs. Miller.

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets on the 2nd Thursday of each month this month we'll be meeting on Oct. 12th at 7 p.m..to discuss Say What? By Margaret Peterson Haddix

Sukie is worried - her parents are acting strange. When she runs in the house, her dad asks, "If all your friends jumped off a bridge, would you jump off a bridge too?" When she eats peas with her fingers, Mom yells, "You'll put an eye out with that thing!" What is going on? Have her parents been replaced by aliens? Are they robots with broken circuits? She and her older brothers decide to investigate. And what they discover leads to a kids-against-parents WAR!

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. The Club will meet on Tuesday, Oct. 10th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

This month we will be discussing pets. We'll start off our regular themes with books about pets. These books can be sad or silly or serious. They can be about cats, dogs, goats, snakes, whatever pets you want!

Too busy to join us this month? Stop by the library anytime to find out about when we'll be meeting next.

Preschool Discovery @ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler any time between 10 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 12th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

This month we will be exploring colors. We'll be sorting colors, mixing colors, even separating colors out using markers and coffee filters.

This program does not require registration.

Science Saturday – Sciencetellers Tall Ships & Pirate Tales

Join the Sciencetellers on Saturday, Oct. 14th at 10 a.m. in the large meeting room at the main library as they use their unique blend of storytelling and hands on science experiments to teach us about actions and reactions.

Ahoy! People don't just build on land. They build on water, too! Set sail with us on a thrilling action-packed adventure about a crew of quirky pirates marooned on a deserted island. With mutiny and high-tide looming, they must rescue their salty captain and find a way to construct a ship before all hope is lost … at sea! Planks, sails, rigging, rails... what else could building a pirate ship possibly take? Throughout the story, volunteers from the audience will help us explore the incredible science behind clouds, flash paper, air pressure, inertia, explosions and more. Don't miss this refreshing nautical tale with a twist!

This program is best suited for children ages 4-10 accompanied by an adult.

Dungeons and Dragons Encounters

New and experienced players ages 10 and older are invited to join us on Tuesday, Oct. 17th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room for this introduction to D&D 5th edition game play. Take on the role of a fantasy hero in this monthly Dungeons and Dragons game.

We will help you customize an Adventurer's League D&D character you can use both in our monthly adventures and at other D&D Organized Play.

Your group of adventurers will start out at level one and take on the module from the 5th Edition D&D Starter Set. Unravel the mysteries of the Lost Mine of Phandelver and what monsters and treasures lie within!

Childrens Movie Matinee @ Adams Shore - Goosebumps

Join us at the Adams Shore Branch on Thursday, Oct. 19th at 2:00 for a showing of Goosebumps, based on the book series by R. L. Stine.

Upset about moving from a big city to a small town, Zach Cooper finds a silver lining when he meets the beautiful girl, Hannah, living right next door, and makes a quick friend in Champ. But every silver lining has a cloud, and Zach's comes when he learns that Hannah's mysterious dad is in fact R.L. Stine, the author of the bestselling "Goosebumps" series. As Zach starts learning about the strange family next door, he soon discovers that Stine holds a dangerous secret: the creatures that his stories made famous are real, and Stine protects his readers by keeping them locked up in their books. When Stine's creations are unintentionally released from their manuscripts, Zach's life takes a turn for the weird. In a crazy night of adventure, it's up to Zach, Hannah, Champ, and Stine to team up and get all of these figments of Stine's imagination - including Slappy the Dummy, the girl with the haunted mask, the gnomes and many more - back in the books where they belong to save the town.

Rated PG Runtime 1 hour 43 min

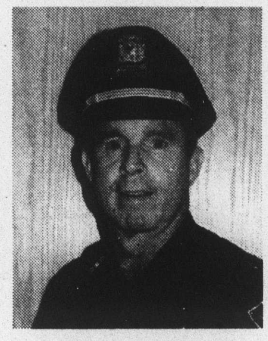
A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON



LT. DAN MINTON

On Thursday, Sept. 14, at approximately 11 a.m., Officer John O'Donnell was dispatched to Marina Drive to speak with the maintenance supervisor regarding a past larceny of bicycles.

The supervisor said he believed he just saw the suspect vehicle drive by within the last 4-5 minutes, describing the vehicle as an older red Jeep Grand Cherokee or Wagoneer, with a partial Vermont Reg. of EWL. Officer O'Donnell checked the area but was unable to locate the vehicle, so he returned to interview the supervisor in depth. He said one of the residents reported to him that she observed a suspicious vehicle (the Jeep) leave the underground garage.

Officer O'Donnell interviewed the witness. She said she was taking out trash when she noticed a loud older Jeep with Vermont plates in the garage being operated by a "scruffy" male in his late-30s to 40. She was able to get a partial plate. She noticed the Jeep had several bicycles stowed in the rear. The vehicle then exited and she went to the area where she saw the vehicle coming from, which was in front of a bike rack where her son kept his bicycle. She noticed that the bicycle was gone and called management.

A review of the security video provided a clear description of the suspect as he put bicycles in the back of his vehicle. It was also determined that the suspect vehicle may have a broken back window possibly caused by one of the bicycles shifting in the cargo area. This information was distributed to all officers to be on the lookout for the suspect vehicle. Soon after, a victim of the bicycle thefts came forward and described his bicycle as a red Specialized brand valued at $3,000.

Later on the same day, Anti-Crime Officer Michael Brandolini received information that the suspect vehicle had been seen on Spear Street. The officer made numerous checks for the next few days with no results. On Sept. 18th, at approximately 9:30 a.m., Officer Brandolini, on foot, made another check on Spear Street and saw a male exit a house. The male fit the suspect description provided in Officer O'Donnell's report. The male jumped on a bicycle that was similar in description of one of the bicycles stolen.

As Officer Brandolini neared the driveway of the residence in question, he observed a red Jeep Cherokee vehicle parked on Granville Avenue. The vehicle had a Vermont license plate that had the same digits provided by the witness where the thefts occurred. The rear cargo door window was broken out. The officer determined that the plate belonged on a Ford passenger car and was attached to the Jeep.

Officer Brandolini left the immediate area to avoid detection and then contacted Detective Karvelis, who was investigating the case. As Detective Karvelis headed to the area, the male suspect came back to the Spear Street address on the red Specialized bike. When the suspect parked the bicycle next to the Jeep, the detective and the officer approached him, asked for identification and detained him on a threshold inquiry. Detective Karvelis advised the suspect of his Miranda Warnings and he volunteered to speak with the officers.

The suspect repeatedly stated it was his bicycle, so Detective Karvelis took a photo of the bike and sent it to the victim, who confirmed the bike as his based on markings on the bike. The suspect was advised of this and he confessed that the bike was stolen and that the Jeep was his. He then said that he knew where additional stolen bicycles were located and that he could recover them.

Detective Pepdjonovic arrived on scene and the suspect was transported to a Parker Street address, where 3 additional bicycles were recovered. One of these bicycles was a white and blue Trek which was also listed as stolen. The suspect then voluntarily went to Quincy Police Headquarters for further questioning. The suspect said he drove his red Jeep Cherokee with the VT registration to Marina Bay in Quincy and stole the bicycles. The suspect was told that he would be summoned to Quincy District Court for the theft charges and he was given a ride back to his apartment.

While driving to this location, Officer Brandolini contacted the detectives to inform them of additional information that he received; that there may be additional bicycles in the basement of the suspect's residence. Detective Karvelis asked the suspect if he would show them these bikes and he said yes. At this location, numerous bikes were located.

On Sept. 20th, Detective Landry contacted victims listed in the initial Marina Bay report and located another victim of the bike thefts and informed her that they recovered the bike. The detectives went to the suspect's residence and presented him with a Quincy Police Consent to search form and read it to him. After signing the release, the suspect led the Detectives to his bedroom area where an additional bike was recovered. He said that he stole that bike too. He also said that there were additional bikes at the Parker Street location.

After numerous bicycles were recovered, the suspect, a 30-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with 5 counts of receiving stolen property over $250 and three counts of larceny from a building. A total of 8 bikes were recovered as a result of this investigation. Additional charges may be added once further victims have been identified. Nice Work!

Traffic Study Gets First Green Light

tion – walking, biking, transit and driving – for people of all ages and abilities.

"The design elements incorporate all of that," he stated. "No more just the road for the cars and forget the pedestrians, the cyclists and others."

Derrig presented a timeline for the complete streets program to the committee. City officials and staff will develop a policy for the program in November and present it to the council in December and, if approved, to MassDOT in January. A prioritization plan would be developed during the spring of 2018, with the city applying for MassDOT funding by October 2018. Derrig said Quincy could receive up to $400,000 annually for the program.

The city will also work with the AECOM on road safety audits, which could make the city eligible for additional grants, an audit of all traffic signals in Quincy to determine which ones should be prioritized for replacement, and community meetings to gather input form the public.

Coffey said the bond also includes about $1.5 million for design and construction of improvements, which could be used to cover quick-fix items or as matching funds for grants the city might receive.

Several councillors welcomed the change in focus of the traffic study.

"This is certainly something that we need in the city desperately as we grow and as development really starts to encroach on our neighborhoods and technology and different apps and things also start to make their ways into our neighborhoods," City Council President Kirsten Hughes said. "This is much appreciated and it's great."

"From hearing the residents, they've expressed that there has been a lot of discussion around the traffic issue but nothing has been done," Councillor Nina Liang said. "This outline shows the steps that are going to be taken to have some actual action happen."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest also was in favor of the proposed study, but was less optimistic about state funding given the city's experience trying to get a project in her district completed.

"I wish I could share your optimism of the state stepping to the table, but we have been partnering with the state on the Sea Street/ Quincy Shore Drive intersection as well as the Sea Street corridor for years now…and no action," Laforest said.

"We've been talking about widening that intersection the entire eight years I've been in office."

Coffey touted several steps his department, the Traffic, Parking, Alarm and Lighting Department, plans to undertake to speed up traffic flow at certain intersections where a left lead arrow will be installed to give vehicles turning left a chance to get through the intersection. Coffey said those arrows could be added at the intersections of Billings Road and Hancock Street, West Squantum Street and Harvard Street, Kendrick Avenue and Franklin Street, and South Street and Southern Artery.

"It's a frustrating thing when you're sitting there and you've gone through three cycles because someone is trying to take a left turn," Coffey said. "If we can push a little more traffic through some of these a little faster I think everybody will be happier."

City, Engineering Firm Eye Blacks Creek Improvements

"Merrymount Park is a very important park," the mayor added. "A lot of people view it as they go play ball there, but it's much more than that. It's a tremendous natural area that is important to our environment, so we're looking at every aspect of it."

Koch said there is presently no estimate for how much the improvements to Blacks Creek would cost, and there is no timeline for the improvements. He expects Tighe & Bond to complete the study in about six months, but any improvements would require a number of state and federal permits.

"There is money set aside for all the design work. That's the phase we're going through now. Tighe & Bond is the company that is looking at the dredging, how much we would need to dredge, the extent of it, where would that dredge [material] go, can it be put on site somewhere, does it have to be trucked off somewhere," Koch said.

"There is a lot of permitting – a ton of environmental permitting – that goes with it any time you try to do dredging. This is just the start of all of that, but it is part of the whole program, as is the look of the whole marsh, which goes all the way over to the other side of Fenno Street."

The city is also planning to replace the tide gates under Quincy Shore Drive that separate Blacks Creek from Quincy Bay – the bridge is owned by the state, but the city owns the tide gates. A capital improvement bond approved by the City Council in 2011 included money to replace the tide gates, but Koch said the city is still waiting for approval from federal regulators.

"We've been waiting four years for the EPA at the federal level for us to replace those tide gates," Koch said.

"That was part of our capital improvement program a number of years ago when we did a lot of flood control projects…it's been a significant amount of time dealing with the federal bureaucracy to try to improve the marsh."

Koch said the tide gates currently in place need to be closed at low tide before a storm hits and then reopened at a low tide after it passes. The new gates would be able to open and close at any time, which the mayor said would be beneficial for both flood control purposes and the health of the marsh.

"The old gates could only be opened or closed in a very short window. The new gates can be opened and closed at any point during a tide during a storm. They're closed more often than they should because of that. With a new system, we're automated. The health of the marsh will be improved because they won't need to be closed during the whole duration," Koch said.

"It's an improvement for flood control, but it's also going to improve the health of the marsh right out of the box. I'm not sure why the EPA is so slow on the issue."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest recently hosted a community meeting that included a presentation from Tighe & Bond on the upcoming Blacks Creek study. About 50 people attended the meeting, representing the various neighborhoods that surround the marsh.

"There are a lot of different puzzle pieces that all lead in [to Black's Creek]," Laforest said. "There are a lot of different stakeholders and a lot of them were in the room."

"It was a good conversation as this project begins," she added.

Laforest said Tighe & Bond would soon be rolling out a mapping tool that will allow residents to identify areas of concern in the neighborhoods around the marsh and add historical data. The engineering company would then use that information as it identifies improvements to Blacks Creek.

REBA Meeting At Registry Of Deeds

The Real Estate Bar Association for Massachusetts (REBA) will hold its next breakfast meeting at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds Wednesday, Oct. 11 at 8:30 a.m.

The Registry is located at, 649 High St. in Dedham. The meeting will be held in the Hannon Annex on the basement level.

"I am delighted that REBA has chosen the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds to hold their upcoming meeting," said Norfolk Registry of Deeds William O'Donnell. "The Registry values its relationship with REBA and other key stakeholders in the real estate and lending industries. REBA has been an outstanding leader in its field for more than 150 years and does a wonderful job in promoting and educating its members."

The meeting, sponsored by Herbert H. Landry Insurance Agency and Belmont Savings Bank, will include an overview of issues important to REBA members along with an update on legislation before the Massachusetts legislature affecting real estate conveyancing. The meeting will also include a discussion on the Commonwealth's new marijuana law and its impact on condominium living.

All REBA members and guests are welcome, regardless of their practice concentration. The program is free of charge.

Interested participants are requested to RSVP by Oct. 6th to Nicole Cohen at cohen@reba.net.

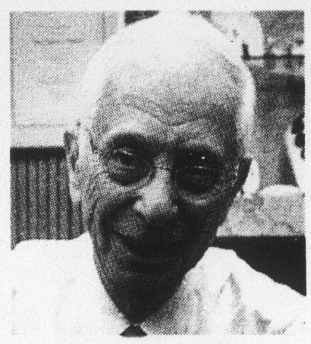
Quincy College, College Trust To Honor Mark Bertman Oct. 26

Longtime Quincy Advocate, Businessman, Leader Recipient Of Quintessential Award

The Quincy College Trust, a non-profit foundation established to receive charitable donations, scholarship, and endowment funds in support of Quincy College and its mission to provide an affordable and accessible post-secondary education to its students will present the 2017 Quintessential Award to Quincy native, Mark Bertman.

The Quincy College Trust will honor Bertman with the 2017 Quintessential Award on Thursday, Oct. 26 at The Tirrell Room, 245 Quarry St., Quincy.

The award is presented to an individual who is Quintessential which by Quincy College definition is an individual who embodies or possesses the essence of something.



MARK BERTMAN

Bertman is a past member of the Quincy College Board of Governors, the first President of the Quincy College Trust and the proprietor of Rogers Jewelers in Quincy Center.

"Mark is Quintessential Quincy; he has spent years advocating for the City of Quincy, Quincy College and most importantly, its students. He is a man who embodies what it means to support others as they strive to improve their lives through education. It is with great pleasure that the Quincy College Trust presents Mark Bertman with the 2017 Quintessential Award as we recognize his many contributions to our community," said Tina Cahill, director of Institutional Advancement at Quincy College.

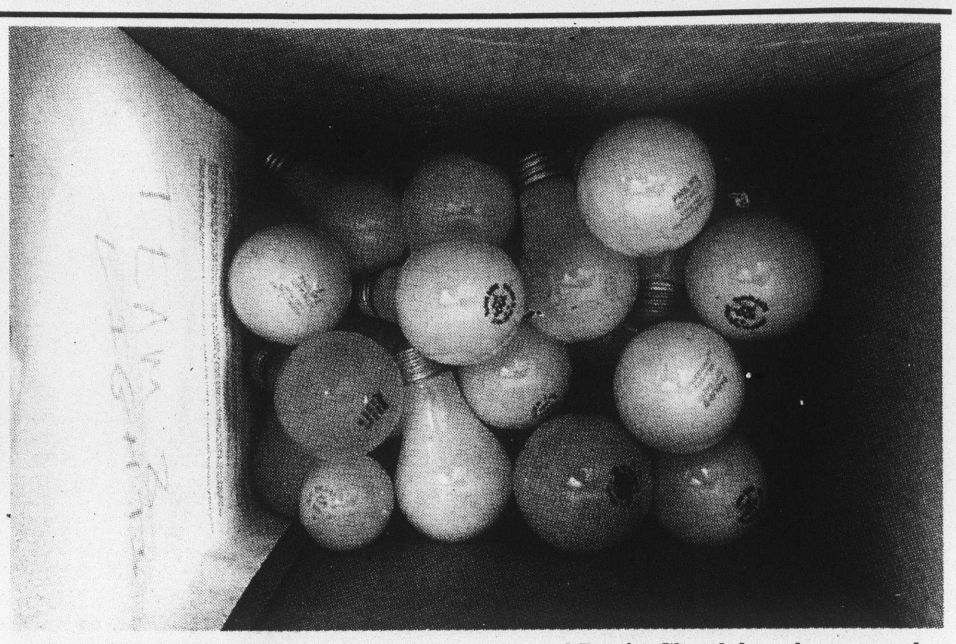
A VOLUNTEER demonstrates the new energy-efficient smart thermostat to Ruth Coulimore at Central Baptist Church.



OLD INCANDESCENT light bulbs removed at Central Baptist Church by volunteers and replaced with more energy-efficient LEDs.

Central Baptist Church Weatherized To Control, Reduce Energy Use

A team of volunteers recently made the Central Baptist Church in Quincy Center more energy efficient, preventing the church from having another expensive heating disaster like it did last winter.

Imagine for a moment walking into your home to find your radiators have burst. The horror! Water everywhere. Broken boiler. Burst pipes. Ruth Coulimore walked into this disaster one Sunday morning in her home away from home, the Central Baptist Church on Washington Street.

An oil delivery went to the wrong tank and the church's fuel tank was empty. It was the coldest day of the year. The water in the pipes froze and burst the heating system in several places.

With the help of the Home Energy Efficiency Team (HEET) and a group of Harvard University volunteers, this will never happen again.

Earlier in September, a new smart thermostat was connected to Coulimore's home computer. Now, when cold winter nights threaten to freeze those pipes again, she can check her home computer and, if needed, turn the thermostat up a bit. The thermostat will also send her an emergency email if the indoor temperature drops too low. Now the church can safely set back its thermostat when unoccupied with confidence, saving money.

Volunteers from the Harvard Kennedy School of Government came to learn how to connect these smart thermostats and participate and various other energy efficiency actions, all of which will decrease the energy use and carbon footprint of the church.

The simple act of changing 39 incandescent light bulbs to new LEDs will save the church $40 each month on its electricity bills. The church expects to save more than $2,000 annually from the work done in September.

HEET organizes these weatherization events for non-profit groups with high energy bills. HEET is a grassroots non-profit dedicated to cutting greenhouse gas emissions and teaching others how to do the same.

"We do it to fight climate change and the melting of the ice caps, which are swelling the oceans," said HEET's Jason Taylor. "But saving money on church energy bills is a great thing too."

This HEET work has been funded from the Imago Dei Fund and others, so it cost the church nothing but materials.

Justin Galler, one of the Harvard volunteers, said, "I had such a blast…is there any potential to arrange another day of volunteering like this?"

Yes, there is. Groups can call 516-900-HEET (4338) or send an email to audrey.schulman@heetma.org to indicate that you are interested in making your organization's property more energy efficient. HEET will create an energy report and develop a plan for reducing your energy use.

Coulimore commented, "How do you find such great team leaders? You folks did a wonderful job at Central Baptist Church in Quincy. Without your leadership we would be wondering what to do next. Thanks so much for your skills and your leadership. God Bless."

Pinwheels Spin For Peace At Atherton Hough School

By TOM GORMAN

On the fence in front of Atherton Hough School, pinwheels with messages of peace and hope spun in the gusty wind from Tropical Storm Jose on Sept. 21 as students and teachers participated in the Pinwheels for Peace project as part of the 36th annual International Day of Peace.

"There are a lot of symbols and words of peace on the pinwheels," said principal, Robin Moreira.

Two days earlier, the entire school stopped to make the pinwheels. All the teachers worked with the students in designing and putting them together.

"We all stopped at the same time," Moreira said. "We wanted to do a school-wide activity that would translate from kindergarten to the fifth grade."

Some of the fifth grade students helped the younger students with their pinwheels.

"They (fifth graders) cut the holes for them and they (younger students) colored the pinwheels," Moreira said.

Students drew colorful symbols on the pinwheels. Some had written messages of peace.

Rain on Sept. 20 delayed the staff's plan to place the pinwheels on the front fence so when students arrived the following morning – International Day of Peace - they would be greeted by the spinning pinwheels and their messages.

During the day on Sept. 21, each class went outside to place their pinwheels on the fence. Students carefully positioned the pinwheels on the top bar of the fence.

The principal said she recently became aware of the Pinwheels for Peace project.

It was started in 2005 by two Coconut Creek, Florida high school art teachers, Ann Ayers and Ellen McMillan, according to the Pinwheels for Peace website. The idea was to offer a way for students to express their feelings about the way of the world in commemoration with the International Day of Peace.

COLORFUL PINWHEELS spin in the wind in front of the Atherrton Hough School on International Day of Peace.

The first year saw more than 1,300 schools participating throughout the world where about 500,000 pinwheels were created. The project has since involved more than 3,500 schools and organizations with more than 4.5 million pinwheels spinning on International Day of Peace.

"The project was quickly embraced by their students and the entire school community and by millions of art teachers, teachers, parents, children and adults who desire peace in our world," stated the Pinwheels for Peace website.

The pinwheel harkens to a simpler time, according to the website.

"A pinwheel is a childhood symbol – it reminds us of a time when things were simple, joyful, peaceful," stated the Pinwheels for Peace website. "The spinning of the pinwheels in the wind will spread thoughts and feelings about peace throughout the country and the world."

The project's website stated that the pinwheels are not a political statement, but simply offer a public statement about peace as well as creating a public art exhibit.

Moreira said she registered her school with the project.

"Many schools throughout the country register as a way to celebrate peace," she said.

As part of the International Day of Peace observance, Moreira said that teachers read age-appropriate stories about peace to the students. Additionally, songs about peace were sung and class discussions were held.

The observance was started in 1981 by a United Nations resolution to provide a day of peace where the world could share a "date for all humanity to commit to peace above all differences and to contribute to building a culture of peace," states the International Day of Peace website. The observance has been held every Sept. 21 since.

Moreira noted the line of pinwheels on the school's front fence spinning vigorously in the wind. "They're really spinning out there," she said. 'They look great. The kids love looking at them."

Lyons (2 Goals) Leads Quincy Over NQ In Girls Soccer

By TOM JOYCE

In a bout between the Quincy High and North Quincy High girls' soccer teams last week both teams played hard, but early momentum was the difference-maker.

The Presidents were able to get off to a hot start and because of it, they topped the Red Raiders, 4-1, at Veterans Memorial Stadium last Saturday.

"It really feels good," Presidents head coach Seth Harmon said. "They've been putting in hard work these past few weeks and have really been working together as a team. We kept our intensity for almost the entire game."

For the duration of the first half, the Presidents controlled play. About 10 minutes into the contest, the Presidents struck first; Megan Lyons scored on a 2-on-1 goal to put the Presidents

Red Raiders Battle Back To Defeat Presidents, 2-1

By TOM JOYCE

The North Quincy High boys' soccer team did not give up, and it resulted in them picking up a win in a highly competitive match against the Quincy Presidents.

The Red Raiders surged in the second half and were able to notch a 2-1 win over the Presidents last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"It was huge," Red Raiders head coach Rich Hanlon said of beating the Presidents. "It had been a good seven years since we beat Quincy. They have a lot more numbers than us, but I always tell the boys, 'you can only play 11 at a time.'

Red Raiders Edged By Archbishop Williams, 8-7

By TOM JOYCE

The North Quincy High football team has a talented squad, but they ran into some tough luck last week.

The Red Raiders (1-2) played a strong game, but fell to the Archbishop Williams Bishops, 8-7, in the final minute of their battle at Veterans Memorial Stadium last Friday night.

"The big thing we talked about about is we need to finish," Red Raiders head coach Mark Nutley said. "We need to finish drives and finish plays. We've had two home games that we played a tough team and played a good game, but came out on the short end. The guys didn't quit. They kept fighting on both teams: for Silver Lake week 1 and then Archies. We just have to make plays when it comes down to it. That's the frustrating part. We're two plays away from being 3-0 right now."

Archbishop Williams received the ball on the opening drive of the game and while they were able to cross the ball over midfield, the Red Raiders stout defense was able to force them to turn the ball over on downs.

When the Red Raiders got the ball, they had some success moving the ball, but it would not be until their second possession that they would piece together a scoring drive.

After forcing a three-and-out late in the first quarter, the Red Raiders regained possession at their own 25-yard line with 1:24 remaining in the first quarter. From there, they would fight their way downfield, primarily on the ground. Quarterback Tim Layden (11 attempts, 76 yards) and running backs Nate Sleiman (17 attempts, 62 yards) and Win Tran (8 attempts, 35 yards) got most of the team's carries on the day and on the third play of the drive, Tran had a 24-yard run to put the Red Raiders in Bishops territory. It was also Tran who finished off the drive which lasted 7 minutes and 34 seconds; he punched in a 3-yard touchdown run with 4:50 remaining in the first half to give his team the lead. Kieran O'Driscoll kicked a successful extra point to put the team up 7-0.

Late in the third quarter, the Bishops found themselves driving down field, mixing up runs and passes. On first and ten on the Red Raiders' 34-yard line, the Bishops appeared to be in a good position to take the lead with under a minute remaining in the third quarter. However, they were unable to capitalize as Conor Donaghey made an interception to give the Red Raiders possession.

On the Red Raiders possession following the interception, they started with the ball on their own 2-yard line. They capitalized on the situation and used as much of the clock as they could when they had the ball. Layden picked up three first downs on the ground on the first five plays of the drive, so a potential safety was no longer a threat. The Red Raiders' drive was stopped at their own 41-yard line, but they were able to use 6:51, putting the game late into the fourth quarter.

The Red Raiders were able to get a few stops on the drive, but the Bishops successfully converted on fourth down three times as they continued driving the ball downfield and with under a minute remaining in the game; they scored on a 3-yard touchdown run. Instead of going for the tie after scoring, the Bishops went for a 2-point conversion and were successful, so they took an 8-7 lead.

At that point, there just was not enough time for the Red Raiders to piece together a winning drive, although Layden (6-for-11 passing, 42 yards) did complete four consecutive passes to start the drive.

Defensively, nose guard Ty Phin, strong safety Win Tran and defensive end Nelson Walinjom excelled for the Red Raiders.

"We came in with a pretty good plan and we had some guys step up," Nutley said. "For 43 minutes defensively, we were flying around, we were a physical team and we held them to under 100 yards offensively before that last drive. Defensively, we played a great game."

The Red Raiders travel to Hanover Friday night for a 7 p.m. kick off against the Indians.

up 1-0.

Just two minutes later, Lyons doubled the Presidents' lead. She scored on a breakaway goal.

While that would be sufficient scoring for the Presidents in the game, they were not finished. With 18:47 remaining in the first half, Maeve Walsh scored the Presidents' third goal of the game, capitalizing on a second chance scoring opportunity off a rebound.

Although they came into the second half trailing by three goals, the Red Raiders would not give up. Less than a minute into the second half, MaryKate McAleavey knocked in her team's first goal of the game from the right side.

As the contest came to a close, the Presidents were able to add on an insurance goal; with 2:33 remaining in the match, freshman Emilia Henry scored the Presidents' fourth goal of the game.

The Red Raiders might not have come up with the win, but they were pleased with the way they played as the game progressed

"I thought we won the second half," Red Raiders head coach Emily Rooney said. "We outplayed them I thought. We just need to come out strong in the first half. We've been a second half team, but we need to work on playing the full 80 minutes. If we do that, I think we could get the win."

This season, the Red Raiders have a more experienced squad with eight seniors on their team: Emily Burtuccio, Maggie McGoldrick, Jillian Hallisey, Cora Cluett, Sam Striffler, Maeve Keane, Celia Hussey and Olivia Hussey. That certainly has its benefits for the team.

"We have some great leadership on the team," Rooney said. "Jill Hallisey is probably one of the best leaders we've ever had. She just leads the team by example and is a vocal leader as well. All of our seniors are great. We're definitely going to miss them next year, but we are appreciating them now."

Rooney said she is impressed with her team's character this season and that while they may have a large senior class, she likes the potential of her freshmen who are currently on varsity: Fiona Smith, Mikayla Kennedy and goalkeeper Victoria Talarico.

"Being able to have them for four years is definitely exciting," Rooney said.

The Presidents may only have four seniors this season--Taylor Routhier, Liana Cunningham, Kari Wismar and Lauren Saccoach--but their leadership is strong. Each of the four is a captain this season.

"They're four that have been with me on varsity since their freshman years and have bought into what we're working on," Harmon said. "They're doing that with the incoming freshmen. I really think everyone on the team is a leader at this point."

During the win, Harmon was impressed by the Presidents' speed and he said at practice, their main focus has been working on their transitions between offense and defense. That said, his team's strong performance on Saturday leaves him optimistic for their games to come.

"If we can play as quickly as we did in the midfield, we should do well the rest of the way in the Patriot League," he said.

Red Raiders Battle Back To Defeat Presidents, 2-1

"We just played our hearts out –especially in the second half. They've got a lot of really good players on Quincy; we were lucky to shut them down."

It did not take the Presidents long to gain an edge in the contest. Senior captain Kevin O'Shea scored the first goal of the game about five minutes in, giving the Presidents a 1-0 lead. They played tough defense throughout the contest, so they were able to keep that lead coming into the half. In the later minutes of the second half, however, the Red Raiders were able to mount a comeback.

First, it was the Red Raiders top goal scorer, Vangjiel Gjerco, who tied it up at one apiece. He scored a goal with 20:19 remaining in the matcht It was Gjergo's 10th goal of the year.

Eight minutes later, the Red Raiders found themselves moving the ball downfield once again. This time, it was Doug Brown who kicked in the go-ahead score, putting the Red Raiders up 2-1 with 12 minutes remaining in the match.

Although the Presidents had the ball deep in enemy territory late in the match, the Red Raiders defense was able to hold off the threat, so they were able to pick up the win.

"North played well and I give a lot of credit to them," Presidents head coach Mark Spendlove said. "My game plan didn't pan out and I put a lot of that on myself. I didn't use my bench very well. We didn't execute well enough either. Our final pass was not good enough and we didn't take advantage of the play we did."

"We've got to sit down and have a rethink about the way we're doing things," he added. "We've just got to go to work and redefine our season."

Spendlove said in addition to O'Shea, goalkeeper Brendan Corbett played well, as did Melvin Gonzalez and Angel Ortiz defensively.

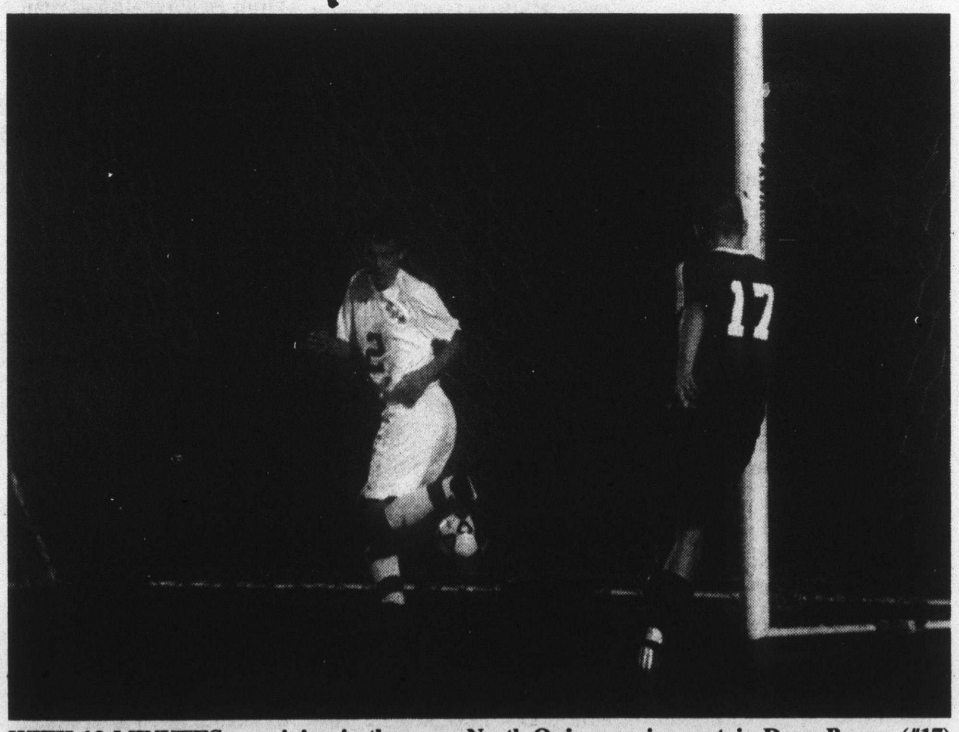
For the Red Raiders, Ilian Valencius was strong in net; he recorded 18 saves in the win.

Defensively, Colby St. Marie, David Papajani, Erion Mbrice, Emiliano Mbrice and Yun Lin shined in their team's win. Midfielder Ryan Fantin also helped the Red Raiders move the ball downfield well.

The win had a special meaning for Hanlon, who is in his 18th and final year coaching the Red Raiders. In all, he has coached soccer in Quincy for 38 years.

"I was starting to wonder if it was ever going to come," he said of another win over the Presidents. "We had some tough ones. We had one where the goalie pulled a ball out of the net and only one person didn't think it was a goal –the referee. We lost that one, 2-1. We've had a lot of games like that. Last year, they beat us pretty good – 6-1. When they got the first goal, I was thinking, 'please don't let it be one of those games again.' But with the group I have, I knew they'd play tough. That's why you play 80 minutes. It's a great sport and I'll continue to support the team and come around."

Hanlon also added he plans to stay around soccer in the town after this season and that he believes the Red Raiders program will be in good hands with his two assistant coaches: Chris Ranft and Tim Smith.



WITH 12 MINUTES remaining in the game North Quincy senior captain Doug Brown (#17) puts the Red Raiders ahead 2-1 with the eventual game winning goal.

Ciara Forde Leads Simmons Over Regis

Junior midfielder Ciara Forde of Quincy netted two goals last Saturday to lead the Simmons College women's soccer team to a 4-2 victory over Regis (Mass.) in a Great Northeast Athletic Conference contest at Daly Field in Brighton.

The Sharks extended their unbeaten streak to three straight and improved to 3-3-2 overall, including 2-2-1 in league play, while the Pride fell to 2-4-0 and 2-3-0 on the season. The contest marked the first match as conference opponents since Regis joined the GNAC to start the 2017-18 campaign.

Youth Soccer Jamboree Nov. 4

THE FALL Quincy Youth Soccer Program is underway working with kids from age 4 to 15. QYS will be holding a jamboree for the fall house teams on Saturday, Nov. 4th at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Current and new players can register at this time for the spring season and take advantage of the early bird prices. QYS offers both house and travel teams. The recreational house teams play in Quincy and do not require tryouts. The Travel Program is a more competitive program dedicated to those who are more serious about soccer and and want to compete against kids from other local cities and towns. There are tryouts to be on a team, and everyone is encouraged to try out during specified times. For more information visit the Quincy Youth Soccer website: quincyyouthsoccer.com.

Quincy Youth Basketball Registration, Open Gyms

Quincy Youth Basketball is accepting registration for the 2017-2018 season and will be soon be holding open gyms in the coming weeks in anticipation of celebrating its 15th year.

Quincy Youth Basketball, Inc. is a non-profit youth sports organization, organized and administered by Quincy parents and families of current and former youth participants. We offer experienced, adult coaches and set locations and schedules for practices and games. All games are scheduled for specific gyms and are played one game at a time per gym. Practices and games are held in various Quincy public school gyms on Friday evenings and games are each Sunday.

Quincy Youth Basketball focuses on smaller teams for Grades 3 through 12. This allows each player the opportunity to fully participate during the games and receive excellent skill development at practice.

Practice is one hour per week on Friday nights beginning in mid-November. Games begin the first Sunday in December and continue into March for playoffs. All games are officiated by IAABO certified referees.

The fee for Grades 3 through 12 is $135 and includes instruction, games, and game jersey.

The Under 8 Duffy League for first and second graders is an instructional, boys and girls program that focuses on the fundamentals of the game of basketball for the first part of the season and games for the second part of the season. Teams are limited to no more than 12 players and include one to two adult coaches per team. The fee for Grades 1 and 2 is $80 per player and includes instruction and practice shirt. Practices and games are one hour a week on Saturdays beginning in mid-November and continuing into February.

QYB also offers an introduction to basketball for Quincy Kindergarteners. It is structured and fun.

QYB Travel Divisions for boys Grades 4-8 compete against the cities and towns of the South Shore. Tryouts will be held in October/early November. Tournament programs organized by our parent volunteers are sponsored for girls.

Quincy residency for all new players is required along with a photocopy of the player' s certified birth certificate.

Families are encouraged to register on-line or by mail by accessing the QYB website at www.quincyyouthbasketball.net.

Look for Open Gym notices as an opportunity to register in person, meet parent volunteers, and learn how you can volunteer for this community program.

DEEP-SEATED PROBLEM

The "piriformis" muscle, located deep in the buttock, begins at the lower spine and connects to the upper surface of each femur (thighbone). This small muscle helps stabilize the hip, leg, and pelvic area. When it becomes inflamed, after sitting too long or rotating the leg outward (as when driving), this small muscle can harden and press on the "sciatic nerve," causing pain in the buttocks that radiates down the leg to the ankle or middle of the foot. It may also be felt in the lower back. Sitting usually makes the pain worse while standing or walking often makes it feel better. For longer-term relief, chiropractic treatment can help relieve the cause and effects of an inflamed piriformis muscle.

A chiropractic approach to diagnosing piriformis syndrome includes a full evaluation of your spine and pelvis and the related musculature. To schedule an appointment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We accept most major insurance plans which included but not limited to Blue Cross Blue Shield, Harvard Pilgrim, Tufts, Mass Health Standard, Neighborhood Health Plan, Medicare, Network Health. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. While the symptoms of piriformis syndrome and sciatica are so similar that they may be indistinguishable, the two conditions are treated vastly differently.

Emily Bryson UAA Runner Of The Week

Brandeis University women's cross country junior Emily Bryson of Quincy has been named the University Athletic Association (UAA) Runner of the Week for Sept. 18.

Bryson was honored for her performance at the 2017 UMass Dartmouth Shriner's Invitational, where she was the race's runner-up out of 299 runners. Her time of 18:03 over the five-kilometer course put Bryson just nine seconds off the winning pace. She has been a top-four performer at each of her races at UMass Dartmouth, finishing fourth as a rookie and third as a sophomore. Bryson's twin sister Julia was eighth overall at the meet with a time of 18:47.

Brandeis was ranked 34th in Division III entering the meet at UMass Dartmouth. The Judges finished in third place out of 40 teams despite resting one of their top rookies. Brandeis is back in action next Saturday, September 30th, at Keene State College.

This is the ninth career UAA Athlete of the Week honor for Emily Bryson – her sixth during cross country season to go with three from track and field.

Bryson is a 2015 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Bob Gohl Reporting: A Tribute From Friends, Colleagues

By LESLIE DOUGLAS

Stay tuned: at any moment, there may be live footage of Heaven transmitted to your TV screen!

Yes, on Sept. 13th, famous videographer/radio news reporter Bob Gohl signed off peacefully from this earth for the last time leaving behind a trail of mangled cables, mountains of DVDs and a monumental loving legacy of creativity, generosity and community dedication…all sprinkled with popcorn!

Robert Davidson Gohl was born in Brookline on July 10, 1950. He was the adopted son of Oscar Donald and Helen Esther (Davidson) Gohl and adored his baby sister Diane. He was predeceased by his biological mother Frances M. (Joudrey) Mills.

He was educated at Weymouth Public Schools as well as Emerson College where he received his Bachelor's Degree and Eastern Nazarene College where he received his teacher's certification.

In 1995, he became the devoted husband of Laurie Ann (Litchfield) Gohl. They lived in Plymouth for the past 22 years, previously Bob resided in Quincy.

I was blessed to have met Bob in 1984 when I joined the Sun Channel 8 News Team. It really was "Great on 8!" Together we covered all the local news and special events from Quincy Bay Race Week to the Jerry Lewis Telethons, from city council meetings to mayor's inaugural balls. There was no event that was held without Bob stumbling backwards to catch every shot. Even Santa couldn't come to town in the annual Christmas parades without Bob on the camera to record it!

Bob was always there for friends in need – with no hesitation. He was my hero many times . . . but especially when he saved my daughter's wedding by swooping in at the last minute to replace the scheduled videographer who was grounded in a California airport when our church bells began to chime!

Bob's home library reflects the many, many years of filming and editing of his professional life. He had worked for most of his life for Quincy Sun Channel 8 TV News, WATD Radio station in Marshfield and the former WJDA Radio Station in Quincy. He is also credited with creating a special program of taping services at Quincy Point Congregational Church where he was a very active parishioner and Youth Camp counselor for many years.

Bob loved his life: his

career, his family, the Beatles, the Three Stooges, Oscar Meyer wieners . . . and eating in general. And if you loved the Beatles too, you might have experienced what Donna Gray did:

"After having worked many years together at The Quincy Sun, he would call me from his new location in Plymouth and say: 'I am coming up to see you! I have made copies of everything for you!' He would bring me concert CDs, magazine articles, anything Beatles – and he would never take a cent of reimbursement."

Bob's generosity and kindness are well known.

Bob loved the company of his long-time wife Laurie and their life together was surrounded by music and travel. They took many trips as avid dedicated Beatles fans, most recently including a trip to London and Liverpool, England. Bob's life embodied the philosophy of the Beatles he so enjoyed: "In the end, the love you take is equal to the love you make."

On Sept. 18th funeral services held at the QPC began fittingly with Paul McCartney's "Let It Be" sung by talented soloist Bulent Guneralp. This wonderful celebration of Bob's life was led by longtime friend Rev. William Harding:

"I met Bob in the 9th grade . . . he was the AV King, racing down the halls.

"This was also when he made his first movie entitled 'Superman.' As writer, producer and director, he cast his neighborhood friends in starring roles and shot the film "on location" in his backyard. I asked him how he created the special effects-like flying. He explained he had Superman standing on a big box in flying position, with arms reaching forward and told him to jump as high and as far as he could. Then at mid-air, Bob shut the camera off. Then he would move the box . . . and repeat . . . filming only while Superman was off the ground. It made for a wiggly-looking flight, but you can appreciate the creativity behind it!"

Rev. Harding continued:

"Bob also loved camp. As a child, the first time his parents put him on the bus to Camp Winni, he was kicking and screaming . . . but when it was time to come home, he didn't want to leave. He loved it! He went on to become a lifelong camp advisor in the youth program at QPC. Bob really enjoyed the children. He loved his parents, he loved his sister and he loved God and his church. He believed people should come together, forgive and move on."

Bob's friend Bubba also shared his fond memories of camp: "We met in 1969 and Bob was always running around with the camera. He was the counselor and when the kids would get in trouble, Bob would say loudly to them: 'I DON'T WANT TO KNOW!' and then get them quietly out of trouble. Later I was so honored to be asked to be Bob's best man: he was a great man – the most loved man I know –and leaves a great legacy."

Grant Baxter spoke next.

"We met in Pilgrim Fellowship, the church youth group. We tortured him with teasing! But he was always a good sport and loved to laugh and be a prankster himself. I admired that he loved to learn, was so open minded and showed such kindness. But he could yell when he got mad and boy could he snore!"

"Last May I was so happy to visit and to bring him – wheel chair and all – to what turned out to be his final Beatles concert in Onset . . . and yes, he had the camera going even then! The band members all knew him and came over to talk with him and spend some time with him."

Bob will always be a well-known and well-loved media icon in both Quincy and Plymouth. He was a very unique and creative man with an affable manner and joking nature, full of fun and laughter . . . and he drew us all into his world surrounded by love.

Despite his busy life, he always found time for community service and friends.

Please note the comments of some of those friends below.

Bob's final message to us all was in the form of the final song he selected to close his funeral service: "Keep on the Sunny Side of Life."

"When I think of Bob, I think first of all the fun times we had at the Quincy Sun in the "golden age" of Henry and Tom, Leslie and John, Muriel, Debbie, Cheryl and all the advertising folks. We were a family. And Bob added his own unique personality to the mix, with his energetic dialogues with Henry, Three Stooges jokes, aromatic lunches and his endless energy to cover stories, which sometimes resulted in him falling asleep as he filmed Quincy City Council meetings. He was also always obliging and a good friend. Truly a good soul. We were all so happy when he and Laurie found each other and began a happy married life together. Together in good times and harder times. So well suited to each other. You'll be missed Bob, you were truly one of a kind and we were lucky to call you a friend. I'm so sorry for your loss, Laurie and family."

Nancy McLaughlin

"So very sorry to hear of Bob's passing. He was a very talented man!! My condolences to his family. Makes my heart warm to read of his loving family. They don't make them like Bob anymore."

Jodi (Purdy) and Charlie Quinlan

"Every time I think of Bob, I remember the joy on his face as he showed us around his studio!!!! All those tapes!!!! He was a funny, loving and happy man!!!! We are better off for knowing him!!!"

Donna Rafuse

"Bob has a piece of my heart and lives on in mine. We had a longtime relationship on and off camera. I had my own cable show and he did the videoing for a special "Meals on Wheels" presentation we did. I love this man. Laurie, you have been blessed." Debra Bunszel

"I'm very sorry for his passing. He was a joy to know."

Jim Rober

"I loved Mr. Gohl's news reports. He was the essence of local news reporting and the main reason for listening. Mr. Goal was a standard bearer, a goal to strive toward. He will be missed."

3. Let us greet with the song of hope each day,
Though the moment be cloudy or fair,
Let us trust in our savior always,
Who keepeth everyone in his care.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church

A tradition, created as a unifying gesture of ecumenism in 1936 by the Presbyterian Church, will be celebrated Sunday, Oct. 1 at the 10:30 service at Quincy United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

This long-standing Christian tradition was adopted by the Methodist Church following acceptance by the Federation Council of Churches in 1940. The worship focus is the observance of the eucharist and the breaking and sharing of breads from around the world. As the service begins, members will carry to the altar a variety of breads. Recognizing that bread is universal and cultural, the church will place upon its altar injera, pita, rice cakes, cornbread, tortillas, day-old bread, short-bread, as well as an empty plate symbolizing the millions of children who hunger daily.

The United Methodist Church has an open Communion Table. All persons and all ages are welcome at the table. Only grape juice is served in the chalice out of respect for those who are unable to consume alcohol. Additionally, gluten-free wafers are offered.

The church is dedicated this World Communion Sunday to the promotion of peace and justice throughout the world.

Anna M. Frenning

A Mass of Christian Burial for Anna Marie Frenning of Quincy was celebrated Sept. 23 in Boston's Basilica, Our Lady of Perpetual Help (Mission Church), Boston.

Ms. Frenning died Sept. 18.

Born and raised in Boston, she later resided in Quincy.

The daughter of the late Carl J. and Elizabeth G. (Lawler) Frenning, she was the sister and sister-in-law of the late Carl J. and Dorothy M. Frenning. She leaves one nephew, Carl of South Hero, VT; one niece, Dorothy of Assonet; devoted friend, Marie Keeler, and many other devoted friends.

Ms. Frenning was employed by New England Telephone for 45 years, followed by 21 years at a private law firm. Her passion for the piano brought joy to the many Quincy residents of her housing complex where she served as music director for annual senior productions. In addition, Ms. Frenning brought humor and happiness into the lives of the senior citizens who resided at 1000 Southern Artery by hosting Friday night sing-a-longs, which they loved. Some of Anna's happiest days were spent at 1000 Southern Artery. She also was a professional pianist at many establishments on Cape Cod.

Interment at New Calvary Cemetery, Boston.

Memorial donations may be made to Little Sisters of the Poor, 86 Highland Ave., Somerville, MA 02143, littlesistersofthepoorboston.org.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Nancy A. Snyder, 69

Nancy A. Snyder, 69, of Quincy and Plymouth, died peacefully Sept. 17 in her home after a long illness.

Mrs. Snyder was the beloved wife of Richard Snyder and daughter of the late Mary and Louie Vecchiola.

She was the sister of Rita and late husband John Veneau of Braintree, Sister Carol and Dick Salvaggio of Quincy. She is also survived by six nieces and one nephew.

Shannon Grant Program: 'Teamwork 2017'

THE TEAMWORK 2017 PARTNERSHIP between the Quincy Police and Recreation Department recently held a cook out at the new basketball court located at Kincaide park one of two sites for the summer Charles Shannon Grant supervised by the two departments.

MEMBERS OF THE QUINCY TEAMWORK 2017 team at the August 5th basketball tournament in Somerville. The team finished one and two in the annual round robin tournament with the eight Shannon grant communities that share in the MAPC grant from the State.

A change in locations did not slow the progress of the popular Shannon Grant collaborative program that brings together staff of the Quincy Recreation Department and Quincy Police Officers for "Teamwork 2017." This program is dedicated to providing safe and relevant youth recreational opportunities at two locations for the past ten years during the summer school vacation.

With the construction of the new middle school on the grounds of the current Sterling Middle School, the long-standing basketball court and other recreational facilities no longer available for the program which is in its eleventh year. With support of Mayor Koch, and the Quincy Park Director Paul Franz, a new basketball court was built just across the street at the Kincaide Park in time for the summer season. The new court is the centerpiece of activity and well-received by participants both young and old.

According to Barry Welch, the city Recreation Director, the Shannon Grant Community Safety Initiative is funded by the State and administrated by The Metro Mayors Coalition includes seven other communities surrounding Boston. All communities have a prevention partner and law enforcement partner that bring together communities to share best strategies to provide positive programs for at risk youth. The second area of this year's program is the Fenno Street playground on the grounds of Merrymount Park.

As part of the annual program, all communities take part in a one day basketball tournament which brings youth from all eight communities into a round robin tournament, providing refreshments and motivational speakers. This year's Quincy teamwork 2017 team went one and two, losing to Revere and Medford in close games and then defeated the host team Somerville to round out the day. Quincy finished second in the three point contest.

A recent cook out was held at Kincaide Park to celebrate the program and was hosted by the staff of the recreation and police officers who volunteer to supervise the programs. These special events and the ongoing activities have proven to effectively bring together youth and law enforcement and recreation staff while building trust between the participant groups as well as new perceptions that carry over past the time spent in positive recreation activities. Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan, a long time supporter of this program, appointed Lt. Dan Minton to coordinate the police volunteers who once again this year has made arrangements with Dennis Lane, the owner and operator of the Adams Street 7 -11 and President of the New England 7 - 11 to provide hundreds of store coupons that the officers give to youth in the program who exhibit sportsmanship and positive leadership skills. Funding was recently strongly supported by the Quincy's legislative delegation and approved by the Governor for FY2018 ensuring the program will run again next July and August.

Blue Hills Fall Foliage Sunset Hike Oct. 14

The Friends of the Blue Hills and Blue Hill Ski will be sponsoring a free self-guided fall foliage hike to the top of Great Blue Saturday, Oct. 14 from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Enjoy the season's finest fall colors from the summit of the region's highest hill.

Complimentary hot cider and apples will be served at the top of the mountain, and hikers are encouraged to bring a picnic dinner to enjoy at the summit. Sunset will be at approximately 6 p.m.

This is the only opportunity to hike down Great Blue at night. After sunset, the ski area lights will be on to guide the way. For safety reasons, all hikers should check in at the ski area at the base of the hill before and after the hike. Hikers are encouraged to bring flashlights if they have them.

The Blue Hill Observatory will be open from 4:30 to 7 p.m. and will provide tours and viewing for a nominal charge. Free parking is available at Blue Hills Ski Area, 4001 Washington St., Canton.

Ferry Service Continuing Through Nov. 30

By SCOTT JACKSON

The ferry service connecting Quincy to Boston and Winthrop has been extended through Nov. 30.

Quincy partnered with Winthrop this year on the ferry program, which connects the two communities with Boston's Rowes Wharf and Seaport District. The program, dubbed the Marina Bay Ferry, is in its second year.

The Marina Bay Ferry service had been scheduled to end Oct. 1 when the agreement with the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation for use of the pier at Squantum Point Park expired. Maureen Geary, the Quincy officials coordinating the ferry program, said on Tuesday that her counterparts in Winthrop have told her the service will now extend through Nov. 30.

Ferry service had been suspended beginning Sept. 19 as Tropical Storm Jose approached New England, but was slated to resume on Wednesday. Geary said the ferry, the 73-passenger Valkyrie, was able to undergo maintenance while the service was suspended.

The Valkyrie will operate on a different schedule in October and November than it did over the summer. Geary said the new schedule would be released this week and posted at the pier and online – the ferry service has its own website, mbferry.com, and Facebook page, facebook.com/marinabayferry.

The Marina Bay Ferry began operating this season on June 19. Geary said there were 3,000 boardings made at Squantum Point Park – for passengers headed to both Boston and Winthrop – through the first 90 days of this season.

This season's ridership is comparable to last year's, Geary noted. She said that was welcome news, given that last year's service included trips to Spectacle Island, which helped buoy interest in the program, as well as Rowes Wharf and Winthrop.

"It's comparable to last year, but we also had trips to Spectacle Island then," Geary said. "Tourism to Spectacle Island really brought the numbers up last year."

Spectacle Island service was not offered this year; instead Winthrop officials elected to provide service to and from the fast-growing Seaport District in addition to Rowes Wharf.

Geary said Quincy officials are already looking into options for next year's program.

"Our plan is to make it bigger and better next year with more runs, which would increase ridership," she said. "We have received positive feedback online and on our Facebook page."

The Meriel Marina Bay project – a 352-unit luxury apartment complex with 17,000 square feet of retail space – is expected to lead to an increase in ferry ridership next year as more and more tenants move continue to move in, Geary said. Bozzuto, the company behind the project, has touted access to the ferry service in its marketing materials, she explained.

Committee OKs Reduced Animal Shelter Bond

Brad Croall, Noel DiBona, Kirsten Hughes and Nina Liang joining Finn and Palmucci in favor of it; William Harris and Margaret Laforest were opposed, and Ian Cain was not in attendance.

Laforest said Freedenfeld had worked with stakeholders – animal shelter staff, the animal control officer and police – to draft a 12-page list of items that will also be incorporated in the new building.

"There is a 12-page, line-by-line breakdown of expected square footage; there is extensive programming," Laforest said. "There is 12 pages to back up your request."

Harris said the project has received strong support from the project – not only at a public hearing two nights prior to the committee meeting, but also from his constituents.

"I'm in favor, 1,000 percent, of a new animal shelter. I myself will support it. I will support my ward, who has asked me to support it," Harris said. "If I hear any differently over the next week or so, I certainly will rethink things, but right now I know the people in Ward 6 have asked me to support this project."

Freedenfeld, a principal at Boston-based Freedenfeld & Associates opened the meeting by highlighting numerous animal shelters his firm has designed nationwide, including ones in San Francisco and Orange County, Calif., which have more than 60,000 square feet of space inside. In total, Freedenfeld's firm has designed more than 450 shelters across the U.S.

"Today's animal shelters have come a long way from the prison-like dog pounds that they used to be," Freedenfeld said.

"Today's animal shelters are a fun place to be, an educational place to be and actually an inspirational place to experience. Today's animal shelters are an integral part of the community, like a community center or town library or children's museum."

The new animal shelter would take up 8,482 square feet in the new building, the police K9 Unit 3,161 square feet, animal control officer 1,458 square feet, the spay/neuter clinic 1,358 square feet, and 1,633 square feet of space would be for shared uses, Freedenfeld said.

"If you look really carefully at the program that was designed for this – line-by-line, item-by-item – I think you will find there isn't one irresponsible line item," he stated. "There is no Taj Mahal aspect to this. The program is very clear and very directed to what is in the best interest of the animals, the caretakers and the visitors."

Freedenfeld highlighted several features the firm incorporates into the shelters it designs that will be included in the new Quincy Animal Shelter. Among them is what he dubbed an 'interactive public corridor.'

"It's kind of like the center aisle of a typical shopping mall," Freedenfeld explained. "It enables visitors to fully experience and fully partake in all the wonderful facets of a shelter."

The new shelter will also feature what Freedenfeld called 'canine cottages,' which he said would enable the dogs to live in an environment similar to being in a home.

The current Quincy Animal Shelter, at 56 Broad St., has about 2,600 square feet of space; the building was originally meant to house only the city's animal control officer, and part of the facility was subsequently turned into a shelter.

Quincy Native Premieres Debut Documentary

Quincy native Frank DiCesare announces the premiere of his short documentary, "Blacksmith," Saturday, Oct. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Jefferson Theater in Beaumont, TX. Produced in conjunction with Lamar University, "Blacksmith" is a 16-minute documentary that highlights the work of Rob Flurry, the resident blacksmith at the Spindletop-Gladys City Boomtown Museum in Beaumont. Unlike the blacksmiths portrayed in the media today, Flurry's craftsmanship is that of the old-school artisan. Instead, Flurry relies solely on nature's elements of fire, iron, air, and water (along with his own strength) to hammer out beautiful creations within the smoky furnace of his shop.

Mr. DiCesare was born in Quincy and was educated at Stonehill College, where he received is B.A. degree in English in 1991. He also received his M.A.T. in English Education from Boston University in 1995.

Wollaston Beach Cleanup Saturday

The public is invited to join the Friends of Wollaston Beach on Saturday, Sept. 30 from 10 a.m. to noon to participate in this year's Massachusetts Coastsweep.

Volunteers should plan to meet on Wollaston Beach near the yacht clubs.

Coastsweep Massachusetts was formed in 1987 and is part of an annual event to raise awareness and clean beaches from Boston to Bimini. The International Coastal Cleanup brings volunteers together to remove marine debris — trash, fishing line, and any other human-made items — and collect data on the specific types of debris being found to help identify and address the behaviors that cause the debris.

Not only does the cleanup preserve and protect the beach's fragile ecosystems, but the data collected in Coastsweep is invaluable in identifying the sources of pollution to better allocate ever-dwindling resources on the state and federal level.

To learn more about FWB or the cleanup, see wollastonbeach.org for further details and signup information. To join, dues are $10 per year. An application can be printed from the website. When complete, send to Friends of Wollaston Beach, c/o Maureen Mazrimas, Treasurer, 49 Bayberry Rd, Quincy, MA 02171

Details of FWB's Annual Meeting will be published in an upcoming issue of The Quincy Sun.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

earlier at Burger King, just several stores away. At that time, the suspect was highly intoxicated in the Burger King lobby and underneath him were several bottles of Vanilla extract that he had consumed.

The suspect was sent via Brewster Ambulance to QMC for medical evaluation.

Officer Parisi began looking for the suspect and came across the male from the prior incident inside Papa Gino's restaurant, which is located between Star Market and the Burger King. At his feet were several empty packages of Vanilla extract. He was escorted outside of the store and at that time Officer Parisi located another bottle of Vanilla extract in the suspect's right front pocket and several more in his attaché case.

The suspect slurredly said, "Take me somewhere so I can get help." He was brought back to Star Market where he was positively identified. The store manager told the officer that the manager of Rite Aid had tipped him off about the suspect because she had caught him stealing Smirnoff Vodka from her business.

The suspect, a 51-year-old East Boston resident, was placed into custody for shoplifting and transported to the Quincy Police station for processing by Officer Acevedo. According to his criminal record, the suspect has 22 cases of shoplifting and multiple larceny charges.

Nice Work!

IF YOU GET A CALL FROM EQUIFAX; "This is Equifax calling to verify your account information." Hang up immediately! Don't tell them anything. The caller is a scammer. Like the IRS, Equifax will not call you out of the blue.

That's just one scam you might see after the recent Equifax data breach. The scammer wants your personal information in order to start identity fraud or to access your credit card(s).

Don't provide any personal or financial information unless you've initiated the call and it's to a phone number you know is correct, rather than just a call back number.

Don't trust caller ID. Scammers can spoof their numbers so it looks like they are calling from a particular company, even when they're not. Don't respond to robo-calls (recorded calls). Don't press 1 to speak to a live operator or any other key to take your number off the list. If you respond by pressing any number, it will probably just lead to more robocalls.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although you love being the focus of attention, it's a good idea to take a few steps back right now to just watch the action. What you see can help with an upcoming decision.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) "Caution" continues to be your watchword this week, as a former colleague tries to reconnect old links. There are still some dark places that need to be illuminated.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Making a good first impression is important. Revealing your often hidden sense of humor can help you get through some of the more awkward situations.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Taking that Cancer Crab image too seriously? Lighten up. Instead of complaining about your problems, start resolving them. A friend would be happy to help.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A widening distance between you and that special person needs to be handled with honesty and sensitivity. Don't let jealousy create an even greater gap between you two.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Congratulations. Your handling of a delicate family matter rates kudos. But no resting on your laurels just yet. You still have to resolve that on-the-job problem.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might surprise everyone by being unusually impulsive this week. But even level-headed Libras need to do the unexpected now and then.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A period of turmoil gives way to a calmer, more settled environment. Use this quieter time to patch up neglected personal and/or professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new relationship could create resentment among family and friends who feel left out of your life. Show them you care by making more time for them.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Concentrate on completing all your unfinished tasks before deadline. You'll then be able to use this freed-up time to research new career opportunities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're right to try to help colleagues resolve their heated differences. But keep your objectivity and avoid showing any favoritism 'twixt the two sides.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your personal life continues to show positive changes. Enjoy this happy turn of events, by all means. But be careful not to neglect your workplace obligations.

BORN THIS WEEK: People of all ages look to you for advice and encouragement. You would make an excellent counselor.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- The CW is updating the classic ABC series "Dynasty," which ran from 1981-89. The show was produced by Richard and Esther Shapiro (who are onboard for this reboot) and made stars of John Forsythe, Linda Evans, Joan Collins and Heather Locklear. Meredith Markworth-Pollack will create the fashions, picking up for the late Nolan Miller, who received six Emmy nominations (four for "Dynasty) and finally won one in 1984.

Assuming the role of Blake Carrington (John Forsythe) is Grant Show, of the soap "Ryan's Hope" (1984-87), 158 episodes of "Melrose Place," and more recently, 44 episodes of Lifetime's "Devious Maids" (2013-16). Becoming Cristal Carrington (Linda Evans) is Peruvian-Australian actress Nathalie Kelley (yes, Cristal is now Hispanic) of "The Fast and the Furious: Tokyo Drift" (2006) and most recently in The CW series "The Vampire Diaries" (2009-17).

The complicated Steven Carrington (played first by Al Corley and then Jack Coleman), will be in the hands of Aussie actor James McKay, who was in "Dressmaker" (2015), with Kate Winslet; "Hacksaw Ridge" (2016); and "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Men Tell No Tales" (2017). His character will be gay, out and vocally proud of it. Playing Sammy Jo (originally Heather Locklear) will be Elizabeth Gilles, who starred in 51 episodes of "Victorious" (2010-13) and the FX series "Sex & Drugs & Rock & Roll" (2015-2016).

Show is 55 and Kelley is 32 and Hispanic, which will change the dynamic between Blake and Cristal. The original locale was Denver, and now it will be Atlanta. Netflix will make the show available the day after it airs on the CW. The producers have promised Alexis Carrington Colby (immortalized by Joan Collins), will be back, but they haven't said who will play her or when she'll appear. The CW will give us our first look Oct. 11.

The ABC show "The Good Doctor," which just premiered, stars 25-year-old Freddie Highmore, of Camden Town, London, in the title role, He starred in "Finding Neverland" (2004) when he was 12 years old, and in "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" (2005) when he was 13, both starring Johnny Depp. At 21, Highmore starred as young Norman Bates in "Bates Motel" (2013-2017). Freddie is godfather for his "Bates Motel" co-star Vera Farmiga's son, Renn Hawkey Flynn.

Farmiga has "The Commuter," with Liam Neeson and Sam Neill, opening Jan. 12; the sci-fi thriller "Captive State," with John Goodman, due Aug. 27, 2018; and "Godzilla: King of the Monsters," with Ken Watanabe, Kyle Chandler and Bradley Whitford, attacking theaters May 22, 2019. Farmiga went from the mother of monster (Norman Bates) to running from a monster ("Godzilla") ... now that's a real stretch for an actress.

KOVELS® Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

All-Wooden Washboard--The 19th century in the U.S. was a time of invention. The patent office at first required a working model of an invention, but later, just accurate drawings and details were enough. Victorians loved gadgets and specialty tools. There were hundreds of patents granted for apple peelers, lighting devices, corkscrews, fruit jars, washing machines, washboards, toasters, napkin rings and cooking pots, and today there are collector clubs for almost every one of these specialties.

An unusual all-wooden washboard was sold in 2016 by Hess Auction Group. It has threaded wooden rollers instead of a corrugated metal or glass rubbing surface. The maple rollers rolled in opposite directions and, according to the ads, the "screw threads do all the work." The first wooden rollers were made by the Hubbard Brothers, and the Mother Hubbard Roller Washboard was a popular item sold door-to-door in the early 1900s. The washboards were no longer made after 1935, because they were not needed if you had an electric washing machine. At the 2016 auction, a Mother Hubbard Patent Roller Washboard sold for $195.

Q: How much are the 1996 edition of Pokemon cards worth? The cards are American and Japanese, and are in albums, but a few are missing. We think some might be worth something. How can we find out?

A: Pokemon started out as a video game for Game Boy in February 1996. The name Pokemon is a contraction of the words "Pocket Monster." The first Pokemon cards were Pocket Monster cards issued in Japan in October 1996. There were 102 cards in the set. The first Pokemon cards in English were in the Demo Game pack, issued in limited quantity in December 1998. The first set of 102 cards in English was issued in the U.S. in January 1999.

There are over 700 different Pokemon characters today. Incomplete sets of cards sell online for a few dollars. Value is determined by rarity and condition. The best place to find current values is to go to a card show or to a store that sells cards.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was anti-apartheid activist, Nobel Peace Prize winner and South African president Nelson Mandela who made the following sage observation: "If you want to make peace with your enemy, you have to work with your enemy. Then he becomes your partner."

* In 1946, there were only 10,000 privately owned television sets in the United States. By 1952, that number had grown to 12 million.

* Those who study such things say that the mouth of an anteater is only an inch wide.

* Alexander III of Macedon earned the moniker Alexander the Great by embarking on an unprecedented military campaign in Asia and north Africa after he became king at the age of 20. By the time he was 30, his empire stretched from Greece to present-day India. One of the things that made his army different is that he required his soldiers to be clean-shaven. He felt that during battle, beards made a convenient handhold and could be grabbed by their enemies.

* You might be surprised to learn that there is no such thing as a poisonous snake. Of course, there are venomous snakes. What's the difference, you may ask. Well, something that is poisonous has detrimental effects when you ingest it -- for example, poisonous mushrooms. As a general rule, eating snake meat won't hurt you. Because snakes inject the toxin into your bloodstream, they're venomous.

Thought for the Day: "A writer -- and I believe, generally all persons -- must think that whatever happens to him or her is a resource. All things have been given to us for a purpose, and an artist must feel this more intensely. All that happens to us, including our humiliations, our misfortunes, our embarrassments, all is given to us as raw material, as clay, so that we may shape our art." --Jorge Luis Borges

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Kids love their sports, and here are a couple of tips from a seasoned coach: "Have one bag per sport if you are playing multiple sports; make sure each bag is stocked with all the items you'll need to practice effectively. If you wear gear that collects sweat (football or hockey pads and other safety gear), be sure to spray it with a disinfectant/deodorizer after each use and hang it to dry between uses." -- Coach P. in North Carolina

* "A great way to use smaller pumpkins for outdoor decorations for Halloween is to get a small one for each letter in your family's last name. Carve one letter into each pumpkin. Set them up with candles and line them up in front of your house. Then, you can light them and make a fun message. Also, you could use Halloween-themed words, like 'Boo' and 'Spooky,' etc." -- V.S. in Wisconsin

* Here are two tailgating tips: Designate a cooler just for kids with appropriate beverages and small snacks. Also, use colored chalk to create a "don't pass" line around the grill area.

* To eat a healthier meal, start by filling half your plate with veggies. Limit starches to a quarter of your plate and protein sources to the other quarter. Begin and end with a glass of water. That's a great start!

* If you haven't already, find out if your routine utility services and banking have electronic statements. You can save yourself the trouble of filing and storing all that paper, which you likely won't need. Electronic statements can be saved on a portable drive, accessed anytime and printed out only when necessary.

Happy Anniversary to my wonderful wife Katherine. Nine fantastic years and a lifetime to go! I love you, Larry 9/28

Holy Spirit Novena
Holy Spirit. You who solve all problems, light all roads so I can obtain my goal; You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life You are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank You for all things as You confirm once again that I never want to be separated from You, even in spite of all material illusions. I wish to be with You in eternal glory. Thank You for your mercy toward me and mine. Say this prayer for three consecutive days, the favor will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Prayer must be published immediately without mentioning the favor. A.W. 9/28

Councillors Want Developers To Pay For Street Work

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal introduced by four city councillors Monday night would require developers to pay into a special fund for traffic and parking improvements.

Councillors Brian Palmucci, Brad Croall, Kirsten Hughes and Nina Liang introduced the measure, a home rule petition, at Monday's meeting. It was referred to committee and will be discussed at a later date. As a home rule petition, the bill would require approval from the council, Mayor Thomas Koch, the state Legislature and Gov. Charlie Baker.

The home rule petition introduced Monday would grant the city permission to establish a traffic and parking rehabilitation and improvement fund. Separate legislation at the local level would then be required to create the fund.

The city would be allowed to require developers – residential, commercial and industrial – to contribute up to 1 percent of building costs into the new fund. New one-, two- and three-family homes would

New Zoning Sought For Wollaston Center

By SCOTT JACKSON

Changes to Quincy's zoning code meant to jumpstart mixed-use development in Wollaston Center were introduced at Monday night's City Council meeting.

City Council President Kirsten Hughes, who represents Wollaston Center as Ward 5's councillor, unveiled the proposed zoning changes Monday. The proposal was referred to committee and will be reviewed at a later date.

Hughes has proposed creating an overlay district for Wollaston Center, similar to the one the city has already established in Quincy Center. Hughes said the proposal includes recommendations made by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, which in 2013 released a study outlining steps the city could take to spur development in Wol-

City To Honor Korean War Vets At Veterans Day Parade Nov. 11

By GEORGE NICHOLSON
Director
Quincy Veterans Services

Continuing with this year's theme, as begun with the Flag Day Parade, when the City's Korean War veterans were honored collectively as the parade marshals, the City of Quincy would like to honor as many of its Korean War veterans as possible during this year's Veterans Day Observance ceremonies Saturday, Nov. 11.

As was done with our Vietnam Veterans during last year's Veterans Day ceremony, the city would like to make a special presentation to the veterans of the Korean War.

Over 1,500 Quincy residents saw service during the Korean War. Thirty-eight of them gave their lives in that effort and are memorialized on our Korean War Memorial monument outside of Veterans Stadium. Korean War veterans who were residents of Quincy at the time they enlisted or are residents of Quincy now, are asked to call the Quincy Veterans Services Office at 617-376-1192 and leave their contact information so that a list of recipients can be compiled for planning, seating and presentation purposes.

Please note that, for all who wish to participate and be recognized during this ceremony, the deadline for providing this information will be Friday, Oct. 20th. Please note that for the purpose of this ceremony, the residency requirement is the only qualifier. Where and how you served during the Korean War is not a factor.

Families of those Quincy Korean War veterans who are deceased may also apply for recognition during this ceremony.

Substance Abuse Drug Task Force Meeting Oct. 10

Councillor at-Large Noel DiBona will hold a meeting of the Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force Tuesday, Oct. 10 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall), 1305 Hancock St., Quincy.

Representatives from the Quincy Police Department, Quincy Fire Department and Brewster Ambulance, as well as Norfolk County Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey and state Sen. John Keenan will speak about what they are advocating at their state, county and local levels.

"We need a group effort from our public safety departments, state and county elected officials and activists to combat the epidemic," DiBona said.

The Task Force will hear public input from the audience at 6:30 p.m.

The open forum will allow activists and the public to speak.

DiBona put forth a resolution in March 2017 to ask for more education and open communication about substance abuse, focusing on the opioid epidemic. DiBona had the first meeting on June 5 and Laura Martin of the Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force held a presentation in the City Hall Chambers.

The second meeting is set for next Tuesday, Oct. 10.

$3,400 Donation Supports Quincy Police D.A.R.E. Program

Local Dunkin' Donuts franchisees in Quincy recently presented a check to the Quincy Police Department for $3,400 to support their D.A.R.E. program.

D.A.R.E., Drug Abuse Resistance Education, is a substance abuse prevention program that seeks to eliminate drug use, violent behavior, and gang membership both domestically and internationally. The donation will help fund the Quincy Police Summer D.A.R.E. Program which brings together more than 100 local children in the summertime between the ages of 10-12 for two weeks to teach students decision making for safe and healthy living. Guest speakers including nurses, EMT's and more are invited to speak and the kids are led by 25 peer leaders from local high schools that they can learn from.

The funds will also go towards classroom programs led by Officers Don Sautter and John Grazioso who have been on the force for a combined 50+ years. Together, they lead about 1,600 children in 5th and 7th grades every school year. These funds will be used to purchase books, materials and supplies for school and summer programs.

TRACING OPAL'S ORIGIN

More than 90% of the world's precious opals come from Australia. One hundred million years ago, the current central Australian deserts were composed of a great inland sea that was laden with silica sediment deposited around its shoreline. As the sea receded, the silica was released into the cracks in the rocks. Australian gold diggers found the first deposits of precious opal in 1863, and mines began production in 1890. Only opal with a perfectly aligned grid of silica spheres will show play of color, created through diffraction. The brilliance of the colors in October's birthstone is determined by the regularity of the grid. The strength of the colors also depends on the background body color and the gemstone's transparency.

Reading about opals may teach you a little about this dazzling beauty, but it is important to turn to a dedicated professional when you are considering their purchase. At Rogers Jewelry, we can counsel you on quality, differentiating between colors, and choosing the cut, and we can also advise you on the right type of setting and mounting. Looking for a unique opal for someone with an October birthday? We invite you to visit soon at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, and let us show you what an exciting gift opal jewelry can be for any occasion. PH: 617-778-3636.

Don't Forget: We pay cash for Gold - Platinum - Diamonds... highest prices paid.

Beware Of New Medicare Scams, Says Norfolk DA Michael Morrissey

By GAYLE BELLOTTI Coordinator,
Senior Programs
Norfolk County District Attorney's Office

Beginning in April of 2018, Medicare will stop using individual social security numbers for identification and will instead provide beneficiaries with new identification numbers called Medicare Beneficiary Identifiers (MBIs). The change is part of a larger effort to reduce seniors' exposure to identity theft and fraud by better protecting coveted social security numbers.

Although intended to protect victims from fraud and identify theft, scammers are using this Medicare change to scam seniors and rob them of their hard earned money. Scammers are calling Medicare beneficiaries pretending to be employed by Medicare and seeking to verify their Medicare number before Medicare can issue their new MBI. Believing they are taking important next steps in obtaining their new Medicare card, unsuspecting beneficiaries provide their old Medicare number to scammers. Unbeknown to the Medicare beneficiary, they just provided their sensitive social security number to a scammer to exploit.

Other Medicare beneficiaries are receiving telephone calls from scammers indicating they work for Medicare and threaten to shut off their Medicare benefits if they do not cooperate and verify their existing Medicare number. Others are being ordered to forward payment to scammers before they will receive their new Medicare card.

It is important for beneficiaries to know that Medicare will not call you to obtain or verify your Medicare numbers. They already have them. There is no "confusion" with your Medicare care number, regardless of what a caller might say.

Each member's new Medicare card will arrive without any action or payment on your part and will be mailed to the same mailing address that Medicare uses to correspond with you regularly. The new card will not change your current Medicare coverage or benefits.

If you receive a call from someone purporting to be from Medicare, hang up and report the call to Medicare at 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) and to the Massachusetts Senior Medicare Patrol Program (MA SMP) at 800-892-0890 or at www.MASMP.org.

Please share this information with family and friends to protect them from such scams.

The Massachusetts Senior Medicare Patrol Program advises beneficiaries to Protect, Detect and Report. Whether you believe your personal identifying information has been compromised through a Medicare scam or any other kind of scam, you are encouraged to follow these tips:

Protect: Never give out your Medicare number to a stranger or solicitor. Medicare does not call or visit you to sell you anything. Don't carry your card unless you need it. Save Medicare Summary Notices and Part D Explanation of Benefits. Shred them when no longer needed.

Detect: Carefully review your Medicare Summary Notice and Part D Explanation of Benefits for mistakes. You can access your Medicare account 24 hours a day at www. MyMedicare.gov. Look for charges for something you did not get, billing for the same thing twice and services not ordered by your doctor.

Report: Report errors, fraud or abuse you suspect as soon as possible to Medicare

• On Oct. 16, 1773, the first public statement against the British Parliament's Tea Act, a document known as the "Philadelphia Resolutions," urges all Americans to oppose the British tax. Two months later, a group of colonists disguised as Mohawks boarded three British tea ships and dumped 342 chests of tea into the harbor.

• On Oct. 22, 1797, Andre-Jacques Garnerin makes the first parachute jump from a hydrogen balloon 3,200 feet above Paris. As he had failed to include an air vent at the top of the prototype, Garnerin oscillated wildly in his descent, but he landed shaken but unhurt.

• On Oct. 17, 1906, Wilhelm Voigt, a 57-year-old German shoemaker, impersonates an army officer and leads an entire squad of soldiers to help him steal 4,000 marks from the mayor's office. Voigt humiliated the German army by exploiting their blind obedience to authority. The Kaiser thought the story was funny.

• On Oct. 20, 1944, U.S. Gen. Douglas MacArthur wades ashore onto the Philippine island of Leyte, fulfilling his vow to return to the area he was forced to flee in 1942 under orders from President Franklin Roosevelt.

• On Oct. 21, 1959, the Guggenheim Museum, home to one of the world's top collections of contemporary art, opens in New York City. The bizarrely shaped white concrete building resembled a giant upside-down cupcake. Today, 900,000-plus visitors visit the Guggenheim yearly.

• On Oct. 18, 1968, John Lennon and Yoko Ono are arrested for drug possession in London. Days earlier, an announcement that Ono was pregnant created a scandal because both were married to other people.

• On Oct. 19, 1985, the first Blockbuster video-rental store opens, in Dallas. The store had 8,000 tapes displayed on shelves and a computerized checkout process. At its peak in 2004, Blockbuster had 9,094 stores.

AARP Monthly Fraud Update - October

BY CINDY CAMPBELL
AARP Massachusetts
Communications Director

Did you know that someone's identity gets stolen every two seconds?

The AARP Fraud Watch Network provides tips and resources to help spot and avoid identity theft and fraud so you can protect yourself and your family. AARP watchdog alerts keep you up to date on con artists' latest tricks. It's free of charge for everyone: AARP members, non-members, and people of all ages.

The AARP Fraud Watch Network is:

An Educator: Get real-time alerts about the latest scams, tips on how to spot them, and the inside scoop on how con artists think so you can outsmart them before they strike.

• A Watchdog: Our nationwide scam tracking map gives you access to a network of people who've spotted scams and the opportunity to pass along your own experiences, so together we can beat con artists at their own game.

• A Resource: Get connected to a real live person trained in how to avoid fraud and advise you if you or a loved one has been scammed by calling our fraud hotline or attending a forum in your community.

• Free for Everyone: Anyone, of any age, can access our resources at no cost.

SCAM ALERT #1:

In the aftermath of Hurricanes Harvey and Irma, and Maria, charity scams are coming at us by text, email, phone and social media. Scammers look to take advantage of our desire to help victims. If you plan to donate, make sure your money is going to the right place. Check Charity Navigator (www.charitynavigator.org), Charity Watch (www.charitywatch.org) and Give.org to verify names and organizations before opening your heart – and wallet.

SCAM ALERT #2:

The Equifax data breach is scary stuff, with half of the U.S. population affected. You can take steps to protect against identity theft. Consider putting a freeze on your credit reports by contacting Equifax, Experian and TransUnion. You'll have to lift the freeze when applying for credit, however. Closely monitor all statements from current bank accounts and credit cards and research whether credit monitoring is right for you.

SCAM ALERT #3:

A new scam in the name of the Make-A-Wish Foundation is cropping up across the country. Someone from the "Consumer Protection Agency" (which does not exist) will call to inform you you've won $450,000 as a second place winner in the Make-A-Wish Foundation Sweepstakes (which also does not exist). Guess what else doesn't exist? The money! You'll be asked to pay an upfront processing fee of $4,500. If you don't have the cash, the caller will offer to loan it to you – you just need to supply your bank routing information for a wire transfer. A similar scam raked in $20 million when it was pulled seven years ago. If you get a call like this, hang up!

SCAM ALERT #4:

If you get an email from the IRS or FBI saying that you are "required" to complete a questionnaire regarding a new tax compliance law, click delete. It's a fake and is intended to get you to click a link to said questionnaire. Once you do, you download "ransomware" which will hold the data on your computer hostage until you pay the thieves to unlock it. Report any ransomware attempt or attack to www.IC3.gov and forward any IRS-themed scams to phishing@irs.gov.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Report scams to local law enforcement. Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more information on fraud prevention.

Knights of Columbus Meat Raffle Friday

Talk, Walk To Explore History Of Germantown

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures program and the Thomas Crane Public Library are hosting a free two-part program to explore the history of Germantown.

Long time Quincy educator and local historian Harold Crowley will give an illustrated talk at the library Community Room on Monday, Oct. 16 at 7 p.m.

On Saturday, Oct. 28, Crowley will lead a walking tour of Germantown to see some of its historic sites such as the Germantown glass works and some of its oldest homes. For the walk, participants should meet at the parking lot of Snug Harbor Elementary School, 333 Palmer Street at 10 a.m.

For more information and rain date rescheduling of walk, call 617-472-0799.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS a late 1940s postcard reproduction showing the old Capitol Theater building that was located at 1573 Hancock St. in Quincy Square. One of Quincy's first theaters it was built by Henry Kincaide, a leading local businessman and politician. He opened it around 1915 to show silent moving pictures and run vaudeville shows. With its balcony it had 1,382 seats. It was known as the Quincy Theater until the end of World War II when it was renamed the Capitol. The theater closed in the early 1950s just before the Korean War and remained boarded up for many years until it was used as part of the old Sears & Roebuck store. When Sears closed it became part of the Quincy Fair Mall. The building has since been demolished and the site is now a city-maintained parking lot adjacent to the new Cliveden Place Condominium complex. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Suggestions For On-Street Parking Problem

I'm writing this letter in response to the previous letter regarding on-street parking. This is definitely a citywide problem and I'd like to make a few suggestions that I think would help solve some of the parking problems in the city.

Hire traffic officers, one for each ward, working Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. They would be responsible for enforcing the parking laws.

In addition, two or three additional officers would cover sections of the city that need enforcement from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. There should also be officers covering on Saturdays. Keep the odd/even parking law year round Jan. 1 through Dec. 31.

If the city doesn't want to enforce the parking laws we have, then take them off the books!

With all the new apartments being built there is only going to be more cars! There will be a time in the future when an emergency vehicle will not be able to get down a street and a life will be lost. No one would want such a tragedy.

Della Chiesa Tops Ticket, Burke's Strength Surprises

The surprising citywide strength shown by Ward Five Councillor George G. Burke featured the preliminary election in which Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and Council President Charles L. Shea were nominated as mayoral candidates. The mayor led his challenger: 8,287 to 4,941.

Burke ran up a 8,049-vote to top the seven councillor at-large candidates. He showed power throughout the city, topping the list in five out of six wards.

Spirited ward councillor fights in Ward 1 and Ward 3 featured the ward council contests. Leo J. Hannon, a real estate broker, topped a list of five candidates in Ward 1 with 1,110 votes, while banker Frank McCauley polled 1,106. In Ward 3, John F. Koegler, 449 votes and Leo Burke, 439 votes, were nominated.

INCINERATOR SITE OPPOSED

A petition of 922 names opposing the location of an incinerator on the Swingle's Quarry property as recently proposed by Peter G. Ruscitto, was introduced in the City Council by Ward Four Councillor George B. McDonald. McDonald said some 300 more names would be added to the petition. McDonald recorded himself in "strong opposition" to the proposed incinerator site.

He explained his opposition was based largely on the fact that trucks would have to pass over streets that are winding and narrow.

QHS's Ajijola (Jola) Laguda Wins National Acclaim

This summer, Quincy High Junior Ajijola (Jola) Laguda entered a poetry contest at her friend's request. The theme of the contest was Rethinking American High Schools and Jola wrote a poem called, "7 Responses to What Did You Get on The Test."

Soon after submitting her entry she was notified that her poem was voted third in the state and it was being submitted to the next level of the contest with entries from around the country. Jola then received an email that her poem was in the top 25, then the top 10 and finally Jola received word that she had written one of the top five poems nationwide. She was flown out to California three times over the summer where she met the other top winners and they became known as "Brave New Voices."

The group attended a poetry festival together in San Francisco, then headed to Los Angeles where they filmed their Red Carpet Appearance on Fox's XQ Super School Live. Brave New Voices was featured on the pre-show and each member was intereviewed about their experience as writers and as high school students.

In addition to being on live TV and the Red Carpet, Jola got to meet and mingle with some celebrities, including Jennifer Hudson. It was a special experience for an incredibily talented young woman who can now officially call herself a poet.

Author, Historian Will Murray At Adams Academy Oct. 11

From Early Pulp To 'Golden Age Of Superheroes'

In the second event in its new History of Popular Culture on the South Shore series, Quincy Historical Society will present an evening with Quincy's own pulp novelist, comic book writer, and literary historian, Will Murray, on Wednesday, Oct. 11, at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy.

Murray will discuss how the tales, heroes, and tropes of pulp magazines and comic books evolved into today's "Golden Age of Superheroes," the dominant entertainment genre in movies and television.

A 1971 North Quincy High graduate, Murray has authored scores of novels and short stories, featuring such classic pulp fiction stalwarts as Doc Savage, King Kong, Tarzan, and the Phantom. For Marvel Comics, he is the co-creator, with Spider-Man co-creator Steve Ditko, of Squirrel Girl, one of Marvel's currently popular characters and star of an upcoming TV series. As a journalist and pop-culture historian, he is a recognized authority on the pulp magazine era. He has reported for Starlog Magazine and in this capacity covered the sets of many major action movies from the '80s through the early 2000s.

Everyone is welcome to attend. There is no admission charge.

Quincy Native Premieres Debut Documentary 'Blacksmith'

Quincy native Frank DiCesare announces the premiere of his short documentary, "Blacksmith," Saturday, Oct. 28, at 7 p.m. at the Jefferson Theater in Beaumont, Texas.

Produced in conjunction with Lamar University, "Blacksmith" is a 16-minute documentary that highlights the work of Rob Flurry, the resident blacksmith at the Spindletop-Gladys City Boomtown Museum (http://www.lamar.edu/spindletop-gladys-city/index.html) in Beaumont, Texas.

Unlike the blacksmiths portrayed in the media today, Flurry's craftsmanship is that of the old-school artisan – no expensive equipment; no modern forge in which to work. Instead, Flurry relies solely on nature's elements of fire, iron, air, and water (along with his own strength) to hammer out beautiful creations within the smoky furnace of his shop.

"I would like to thank Rob, Spindletop, Mahmoud Salimi, Tyler Hargraves, the Lamar University Office of Communications, and the city of Beaumont, for their invaluable help with this project," said DiCesare, who is president and CEO of Oskar Films. "Through four months of late-night filming, these individuals supported my vision for a short film on the art of blacksmithing and helped make it a reality."

"Blacksmith" was filmed in the tradition of poetic documentary – no voice overs, monologue or dialogue is spoken. All of the action is put to music that compliments the mood of the scene.

Following the premiere of "Blacksmith," a short four-minute film titled, "Fire and Steel," will be screened in which Flurry discusses how he got into blacksmithing, what the art means to him and where it's going in today's world of automation. Mr. DiCesare and Mr. Flurry will take questions from the audience after both films are shown. Trailers for "Blacksmith" and "Fire and Steel" can be viewed at http://www.frankdicesare-photo.com/oskar-films.

DiCesare was born in Quincy and was educated at Stonehill College, where he received is B.A. degree in English in 1991. He also received his M.A.T. in English Education from Boston University in 1995.

DICK and NANCY LARACY

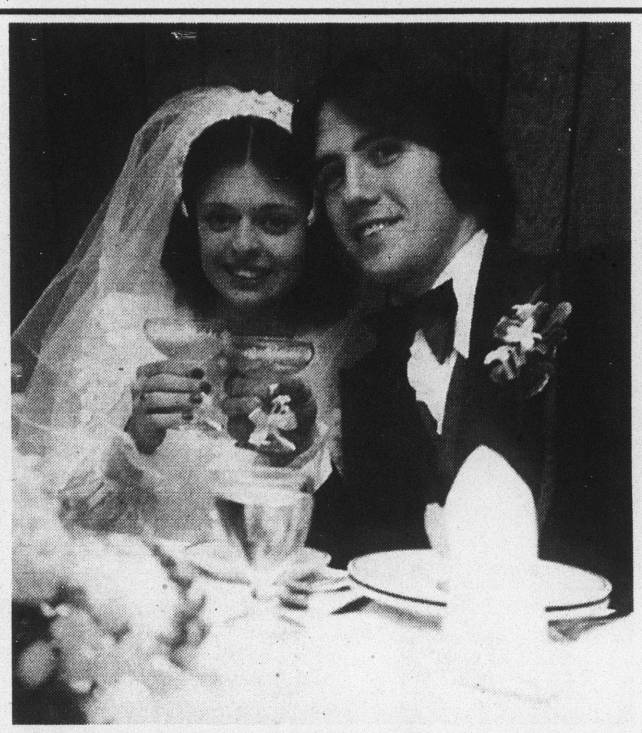
Mr., Mrs. Dick Laracy Celebrate 60th Anniversary

Nancy and Dick Laracy of Quincy recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary at the Hancock Rehabilitation Center after Nancy went through major heart surgery at the Beth Israel Hospital in Boston.

The event was put on by the couples' three children: Edward Laracy of Weymouth, Lori Johnson of Middleboro and Robert Laracy of Abington.

The couple enjoyed a hi-light video commemorating their 60 years of marriage. They were married in Quincy on Aug. 31, 1957.

Dick is a retired Quincy Police detective sargent and Nancy was a housewife. The photo above was taken at the wedding of their oldest grandson on Sept. 9 in Mashpee on Cape Cod, five days after Nancy was discharged from rehab, an event that Nancy was determined to attend.



DEBORAH VENUTO and Albert Vaughn were married Sept. 17, 1977 (above). The Vaughns celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary this past Sept. 17 in the couple's backyard in West Quincy with family and friends (right photo).

Potato Home Fries In Muffin Tins

By MARIE

When the kids come over for breakfast and I want to make home fries it is so much easier to make them like today's recipe – in individual muffin tins.

If there are any leftover they can be reheated in a toaster oven or a regular oven to keep the crispness.

RECIPE

Preheat oven to 375 degrees
2 to 3 potatoes (depending on how many people you are feeding)
1 small onion sliced
Salt and pepper to taste
Rosemary (optional to flavor the potatoes)
2 tablespoons of olive oil

First slice potatoes about ¼ inch thick. Put in a bowl and add olive oil, salt and pepper and toss potatoes until they are coated. Slightly grease 8 to 12 muffin tins.

Place potato slices on bottom and then add an onion slice. Do this until you reach the top of the tin.

Bake approximately ½ hour to 40 minutes.

'Black Magic Peanut Butter'

By SUSIE

I know there are so many "food philosophers" out there and much flawed and biased food articles and even studies. Coconut oil has been in the news recently stating that it is not a healthy oil to consume and "clogs arteries."

I have researched this in depth and we use it and have used it as a therapeutic food for many years. It's even a good fat for folks who are missing a gallbladder since it contains easy to digest MCFA's. It also contains a superior disease fighting fatty acid called Lauric acid (found naturally in human breast milk). It has also been linked to regulation of thyroid as well.

Here is a recipe made by "Chocolate Covered Katie" and she calls it Black Magic Peanut Butter! (She has some yummy and healthy treats on her website to check out as well!) This recipe calls for blackstrap molasses which digests more slowly than ordinary sugar and has been found to be appropriate for diabetics and others with blood sugar challenges, and contains 95 percent of the daily recommended dose of iron, 50 percent of calcium, 38 percent of magnesium, and a good amount of potassium. So please feel good when eating this short and simple recipe!

Loaded with healthy fats and a small amount of healthy molasses, this will be a welcome addition to your diet in the months to come. Spread on sprouted grain bread, or eat by the spoonful. Lots of options!

Try adding in some other things as well if you like!

RECIPE

•1/2 cup organic peanut butter (I like Whole Foods 365 crunchy)
•2 1/2 tbsp organic blackstrap molasses
•1/4 cup virgin coconut oil

Melt coconut oil if not at room temp and simply mix all these ingredients together. Chunky peanut butter tastes best in this recipe! You can also substitute with another nut butter if you do not react well to peanuts.

Maria Droste Counseling Services Internship Program

By STACEY CAMPBELL
Maria Droste
Counseling Services

Maria Droste Counseling Services has been a site for training of graduate-level students since 1995 who are seeking a September to May internship doing Outpatient Mental Health therapy in a clinical setting. Students from many different schools like Boston University, Boston College, Northeastern University, Wheelock College, Cambridge College, University of Massachusetts, Lesley University, Bridgewater State University and Eastern Nazarene College have trained at our agency. Each year, two or three graduate student Interns work 2-3 days per week (in accordance with their school's requirements) to complete their field education.

At Maria Droste Counseling Services, we provide a rich learning experience where our interns can enhance their clinical skills and have the opportunity to be an important part of the day-to-day operations of a small counseling agency. Interns are supervised by a licensed therapist who guides them in their clinical work with clients beginning with assessment, diagnosis, and treatment, and throughout all phases of the client – therapist interactions throughout multiple sessions through termination of a client's chart after therapy has ended. Interns have the opportunity to work with clients who present with a wide range of diagnoses, life stressors, and relationship issues. Our interns have the opportunity to interact with all the clinical staff who, to a person, welcome the interns and invite them to sit in on sessions with them so they can gain experience seeing multiple therapists' styles, and are always available to answer questions as well as provide resources for the intern.

Our internship program has three foci: The clinical interactions with clients; the writing of Diagnostic Assessments, Treatment Plans, and Progress Notes with clarity, accuracy, and the right amount of information that is respectful of clients while also being helpful to other Providers; and being part of a team of staff in a non-profit environment which means being included in the ebb and flow of daily activities of the staff, providing interns the opportunity to be a part of the team. The goal of our internship program is to produce competent therapists who, by internship's end, could be hired by us or any agency, working full time with a full caseload and be able to handle the paperwork requirements. One in three interns stay on as a volunteer or part-time staff. They stay on because they embrace our mission and were treated well.

Maria Droste's 2017-2018 academic school year interns this year are from Boston College. Tthey are Hallie Boas, Highsmith Rich and Maria Swanson.

DOVE
Domestic Violence Ended

We just met, but I think this person is the one!

Written by Jen Bolton,
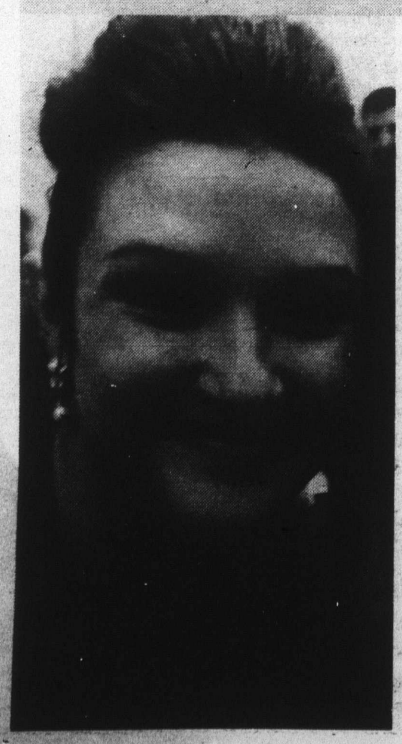
DOVE's Senior Manager of Education & Prevention



You've been searching for what seems like forever! Finally someone comes along that brings some extra light to your otherwise mundane routine. Suddenly nights of eating take out and watching tv on the couch are replaced with exciting and romantic adventures. Life has new meaning and purpose! This new person seems to feel the same way and even starts confessing their love and talking about marriage and kids, what a whirlwind! Should you take a chance on life and go with it? Let's take a step back. A fast and passionate love affair isn't always a sign of trouble in paradise, but it can be a pretty important red flag. Sadly, most abusive relationships start off very quickly with speedy cohabitation and claims of forever love. One of the best ways to avoid finding yourself in an abusive relationship is to take things slowly. Just because your partner is quick to say I love you, doesn't mean you need to run the other way, but you may want to consider setting some boundaries before your lives become completely intertwined. There is no official rule of when it's safe to move forward, but in general, a year is a good amount of time to really get to know someone before moving in together or deciding to get married or start a family. Your new partner may not be excited about your desire to slow things down a bit, but if they are a healthy partner they will respect your wishes. If your partner becomes angry, accuses you of wanting to be with someone else, starts to give you ultimatums or becomes controlling, you may be experiencing an abusive relationship. You are not alone, we are here to help.

Williams Syndrome: Cause, Characterizations, Challenges

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-F

RUTH JONES

Williams syndrome (WS) is a genetic condition that is present at birth and can affect anyone. It is caused by deletion of genetic material from chromosome 7; the expunged area includes more than 25 genes and not all may be deleted so individuals may vary in the amount of genetic material removed.

It is characterized by medical complications, including cardiovascular disease, developmental delays, and learning challenges. These often occur alongside remarkable verbal abilities, highly social personalities and an affinity for music. WS affects 1 in 10,000 people worldwide, an estimated 20,000 to 30,000 people in the United States, and occurs equally in both males and females.

Children with Williams syndrome tend to be social, friendly and engaging. Additionally though, there are major struggles. Numerous babies have life-threatening cardiovascular problems and often children need expensive and ongoing medical care and early interventions, such as speech and/or occupational therapy. As they mature, they struggle with issues such as spatial relations, numbers, and abstract reasoning, which cause daily undertakings to become major challenges. As adults, most people with Williams syndrome will require supportive housing to live to their maximum potential. Many adults with WS contribute to their communities working as volunteers or paid employees in selected fields.

As people with Williams syndrome mature past the structure of school and family endeavors, they often experience extreme isolation which can develop into depression. They are tremendously sociable and feel the normal need to connect with others; however people with Williams syndrome often don't process the usual social cues, resulting in difficulty forming long-lasting relationships.

There are a multitude of physical features and medical challenges which are common to Williams syndrome. However, keep in mind that every child is an individual, the number of features present and which features are exhibited varies from child to child.

Most young children with Williams syndrome are described as having comparable facial characteristics. These features include a small upturned nose, long upper lip length, wide mouth, full lips, small chin, and eye puffiness. Blue and green-eyed children with Williams syndrome can possess a prominent "starburst" or white lacy pattern on their iris. Facial features are more apparent with progression in age.

The majority of individuals with Williams syndrome typically have some form of heart or blood vessel issue. Characteristically, there is narrowing in the aorta producing supravalvular aortic stenosis (SVAS), or narrowing in the pulmonary arteries. There is an extensive range in the degree of narrowing; varying from trivial to severe that may require surgical modification of the defect. Since there is an intensified risk for development of blood vessel narrowing or high blood pressure, as time goes on, periodic monitoring of cardiac status is essential.

Some young children with Williams syndrome can experience elevated blood calcium level. The exact frequency and cause of this problem is undefined. Hypercalcemia can cause extreme irritability or "colic-like" symptoms. Occasionally, dietary or medical treatment is necessary, however in most cases, the problem resolves itself during childhood. Still, a permanent abnormality in calcium or Vitamin D metabolism may still exist and necessitates lifelong monitoring.

Most children with Williams syndrome have a somewhat lower birthweight than their siblings. Sluggish weight gain, especially during the first several years of life, is also a widespread problem and many children are ultimately diagnosed as "failure to thrive". Adult stature is ordinarily smaller than average also. Feeding problems are also customary in infants and young children with WS, these problems have been correlated with low muscle tone, severe gag reflex, poor suck/swallow and tactile defensiveness. These difficulties tend to resolve as the children get older. Many infants with Williams syndrome have an extended period of colic or irritability that typically lasts from 4 to 10 months of age, then resolves. Abnormal sleep patterns with hindered acquisition of sleeping through the night may be associated with the colic. Extreme irritability may also be the result of hypercalcemia in some children with WS.

Dental abnormalities are seen quite often in children with Williams syndrome. Slightly smaller, widely spaced teeth are common, as well as a variety of abnormalities of occlusion (bite), tooth shape or appearance. Most of these dental changes are readily responsive to orthodontic adjustment.

Inguinal (groin) and umbilical hernias are more frequent in Williams syndrome than in the general population and there is a slightly increased incidence of problems with kidney structure and/or function.

Children with Williams syndrome often have more sensitive hearing than other children; particular frequencies or noise intensities can be painful and/or startling to the individual. This disorder often improves with age.

Low muscle tone and joint laxity may be evident in young children with Williams syndrome and as the children get older, joint stiffness (contractures) may develop. Physical therapy is extremely beneficial in enhancing muscle tone, strength and joint range of motion.

Most people with Williams syndrome will have mild to severe learning variances and cognitive challenges. Young children with Williams syndrome often encounter developmental delays, subsequently; milestones such as walking, talking and toilet training are often accomplished somewhat later than is deemed normal. Distractibility is a common predicament in mid-childhood, which can improve as the children get older.

Older children and adults with Williams syndrome often demonstrate intellectual assets and drawbacks. There are specific intellectual areas such as speech, long term memory, and social skills in which performance is quite solid, while other intellectual areas such as fine motor and spatial relations may demonstrate significant weaknesses. Those living with and caring for individuals with Williams syndrome, reveal that this group has a very endearing personality. They have a unique strength in their expressive language skills, and are tremendously polite. They are stereotypically fearless of strangers and show a greater relevance in having contact with adults than with their peers.

While there is no cure for Williams syndrome, numerous families benefit from a team approach where multiple doctors experienced in Williams syndrome collaborate to maximize the child's health, development and overall quality of life.

13 Fearless Things To Know About Your Social Security Number

By KRISTEN ALBERINO
Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

While many of us look forward to Friday, with its end-of-the-workweek designation and our weekend plans, certain cultures consider it an unlucky day. Some people, suffering from triskaidekaphobia, are truly terrified of the number 13. Combine the two factors and it's not surprising that many believe that Friday the 13th is a frightening day.

While superstitions play an important part in the Friday the 13th jitters, we offer a different approach to this "unlucky" day with 13 fearless things to know about your Social Security number and card.

1. Your Social Security number is your link to Retirement or Disability benefits since we use it to record your wages and earnings.

2. There is no charge to obtain a Social Security number and card. This service is free.

3. We keep your records confidential and don't disclose your number to anyone, except when the law requires, or when your information connects you with other government health or social services programs.

4.To prevent identity theft, keep your Social Security card in a safe place with your other important papers and be careful about sharing your number. If asked for your number, find out why your number is needed, how it will be used, and what happens if you refuse to provide it.

5. While you need a Social Security number to get a job or for other services, you often don't need to show your Social Security card. Many organizations can verify your Social Security number directly with us.

6. If your Social Security card is lost, you can replace it up to three times a year with a lifetime limit of 10 replacement cards. Legal name changes and other exceptions will not count toward these limits.

7. You can request a replacement Social Security card with the ease and convenience of our online services if you have a my Social Security account and meet our qualifications. Visit www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

8. If you suspect someone is using your number for work purposes, contact us to report the problem so we can review your earnings and verify that our records are correct. You also may view your annual earnings by accessing your Social Security Statement, one of the many services available with a my Social Security account.

9. If you suspect someone is misusing your number to create credit or other problems for you, report the identify theft with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) at www.identitytheft.gov or by calling 1-877-IDTHEFT. We also recommend that you contact the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) if fraudulent tax refunds or reporting is involved, quickly file a complaint with the Internet Crime Complaint Center (IC3) at www.ic3.gov, and monitor your credit reports.

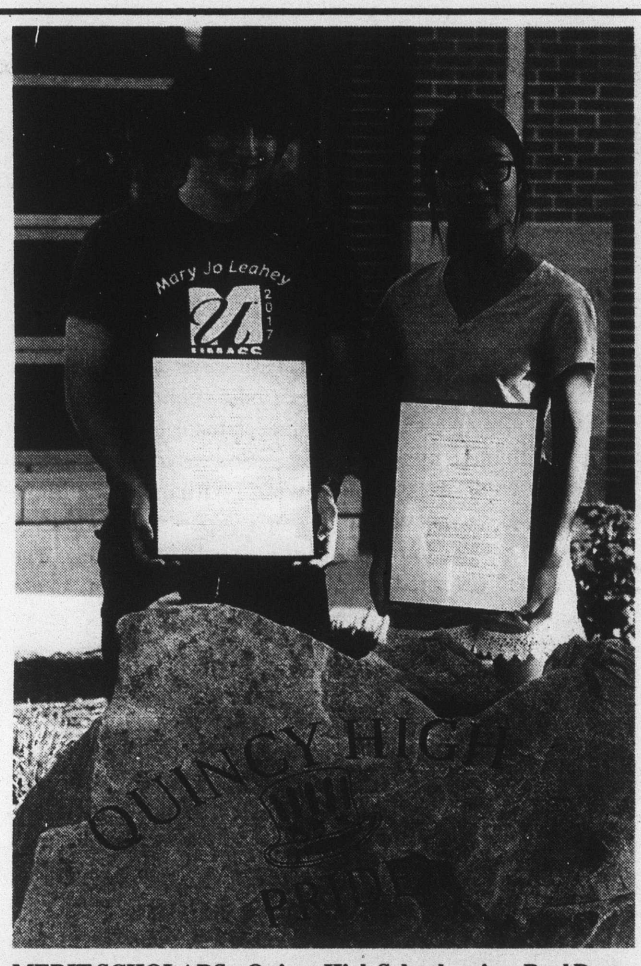
10. The nine-digit Social Security number was initiated in 1936 for tracking workers' earnings over the course of their lifetimes for benefits, not with the intent of personal identification. Since 1936, we have issued over 30 different versions of the Social Security number card.

11. Until June 2011, the first three digits of a Social Security number were determined by the geographical region in which the person lived. Numbers were assigned beginning in the northeast and moving westward. Residents on the east coast often have lower numbers than those on the west coast. Any number beginning with 000 will never be a valid Social Security number.

12. Beginning in June 2011, we assigned Social Security numbers randomly, which protects the integrity of the Social Security number, eliminates the geographical significance of the first three digits of the Social Security number, and extends the longevity of the nine-digit Social Security number.

13. Since November 1936, we have issued 453.7 million different numbers and there are approximately 420 million numbers available for future assignments. We assign about 5.5 million new numbers a year.

Fear not, if you properly protect your Social Security number and card. Information about applying for a Social Security card, name changes, identity theft, and other answers to frequently asked questions is available at www.socialsecurity.gov, or by calling us toll-free at 1-800-772-1213 (TTY 1-800-325-0778).



MERIT SCHOLARS – Quincy High School seniors Paul Donahue (left) and Rachel Shen have been recognized for their performance on the 2016 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Swing Band At Kennedy Center

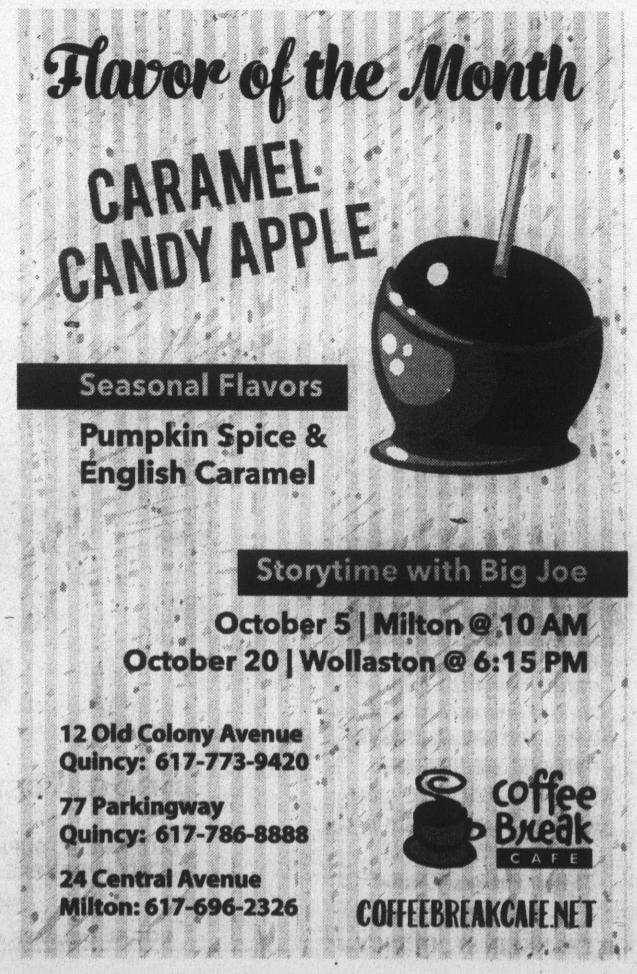
The Olde Kids On The Block swing band is bringing its Big Band Era sound back to the Kennedy Center on Friday, Oct. 20th from 1 to 3 p.m.

The band made up of retired and semi-retired musicians inspires their audiences to dance, tap their feet or just sit and enjoy the wonderful music. A dance band in the style of the big bands of the 50's and 60's, they have been called a "living museum" with a library of music.

Tickets are $6 and are available at the Kennedy Center. For more information, call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.



Social Security Matters

Should I Retire Now Or Maximize?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: I am 66, born 5/17/51, and planning for filing for my social security benefit. My husband is 60 and will be working for the next 7-10 years. We have our own corporation; he is a clinical psychologist and I work for the corporation as office manager. I will still continue to work. I am hoping to invest half of the SS check and use the other half for house projects, mortgage, and travel. Is there anything particular I need to know to apply or how I apply to maximize the most money? Our financial planner said filing or waiting was up to me. We are behind in saving for retirement, but also want to travel while we still are healthy enough to do so. Signed: Wanting to know more

Dear Wanting: Yes it is, indeed, a dilemma trying to decide when to start your Social Security benefits. Keep in mind that for each month you wait beyond your full retirement age of 66, you are earning a 2/3rds of 1% increase in the amount of your Social Security benefit. That equates to 8% increase per year, and that can continue up until your reach age 70. At age 70, you would get 132% of the benefit you were entitled to when you turned 66. Since your birthday is in May, as of right now you've earned an additional 2% in "delayed retirement credits" (DRCs), and if you wait until the first of October to apply you'll get another 2/3rd of 1% increase in your benefit. Since Social Security doesn't compute delayed retirement credits until January of each year, if you apply now you wouldn't actually see the higher benefit until your January payment (which you would get in February). And even though you don't get the DRC increase until January, you won't earn additional DRC's for the months between when you apply and January when they recalculate your benefit. Obviously losing these DRC's doesn't amount to a lot of money monthly, but you'd get the increase for the rest of your life so it would add up over time. Just as obviously, it's hard these days to earn more than 8% on any investment, but that's clearly a judgment only you can make. When you do finally decide to apply, you can do so online by opening an online "My Social Security" account at ssa.gov, via telephone at 1-800-772-1213, or in person at your local Social Security office.

You said that your husband is 60 and plans to continue working. One thing for him to keep in mind is that if he starts Social Security before his full retirement age of 66 + 6 months, his earnings from work will be subject to Social Security's "earnings limit" ($16,920 for 2017) which, if he exceeds it , will cause his Social Security benefits to be reduced by $1 for every $2 he earns over the limit. You don't have that worry because you've already reached your full retirement age of 66 so you're not subject to the earnings test.

Choosing when to apply for Social Security is a decision only you can make. There's a lot to be said for enjoying the money while you're younger, but to maximize your benefits (which you asked about) a case can also be made for waiting a little longer. I hope this gives you enough information to make an informed decision.

New Full-Time Athletic Directors Appointed

QHS: Kevin Mahoney
NQHS: J.J. Niamkey

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy High School and North Quincy High School now each have their own full-time athletic director.

Quincy High's Kevin Mahoney and North Quincy's Jean-Jacque (J.J.) Niamkey were introduced to the school committee on Sept. 27. In addition to the athletic director duties, both will oversee the athletic department's health and wellness initiatives.

Until this school year, the athletic directors were part-time at both high schools, having to balance teaching duties and overseeing the athletic department. Several weeks ago, the committee decided to make the position fulltime since wellness and student support initiatives have been implemented into the position.

Officials said the full-time position would allow for better monitoring of the academic progress of student athletes, evaluation of coaches and substance abuse prevention education. Additional funding for the positions is being provided by Mayor Thomas Koch.

According to the Aug. 22 school committee meeting minutes, Koch said having the two positions fulltime allows more collaboration and interactive planning, increasing student participation in athletics and providing outreach to the middle schools' athletic programs.

Quincy High School Pincipal Lawrence Taglieri said Mahoney has a master's degree in sports management from Quinnipiac University and has been assistant athletic director at the school for the past four years.

"In the time Kevin has been at Quincy High School, he has built up relationships with our students, with our staff and with our families," Taglieri said. "He really understands the role educational athletics plays in high school education. He is terrific addition to our staff and we are very proud to welcome him to our high school community."

Taglieri expressed appreciation to the committee for expanding the position to fulltime, explaining that a fulltime athletic director would be instrumental in carrying out the district's health and wellness initiatives for not only the athletics, but all the students.

Niamkey, who is known as J.J., is a Stonehill College graduate and has a Master's degree in sports leadership from Northeastern University. He has held several positions in the Quincy school system including North Quincy High's athletic department.

Niamkey was also commissioner of the Quincy Neighborhood Basketball League and a member of the North Quincy High football coaching staff.

"He brings an impressive set of qualifications to this position," said North Quincy high Principal Robert Shaw. "He is familiar with everything from impact testing to Aspen and is up to date on all of our health and wellness initiatives we have been working toward the last few years. He also brings a unique combination of knowledge and temperament to the position of athletic director."

Shaw also said Niamkey knows the MIAA and the Patriot League as well as the programs at North Quincy High School.

"Most importantly, he knows our kids," he said.

Shaw also said that Niamkey "will bring a lot of energy and passion to athletics at North Quincy."

"Coupled with his organizational and leadership skills, he will invigorate our programs and anchor our athletics that is a vital culture at NQ and continue the tradition of sportsmanship and physical well-being that have been the hallmarks of our programs for generations," said Shaw.

In another matter, Edward Smith was introduced to the committee as the district's new STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Math) administrator to help support science and technology across the district.

Smith has been a science/technology teacher for 17 years. The past six years, Smith has been the Quincy High School science chairman and has been the summer youth works facilitator for 11 years, according to Senior Middle School Curriculum Director Madeline Roy.

Smith co-chairs the high and middle school digital learning team and holds licenses in general science/technology/engineering and secondary education.

He also has overseen the high school robotics program. Recently, Roy said he took on the middle school robotics program, ensuring funding and entering the students in their first Lego league competition.

Smith worked with Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro in creating the Quincy Robotics Presidents Cup Competition for students and families.

Roy said that Smith will collaborate with teachers, target professional development and expand the STEM program through the district.

"We are very excited to have Ed bring his passion and expertise to the curriculum assessment management team," Roy said. "He will infuse the STEM program system-wide with new and innovative ideas."

Citywide PTO Hosting School Committee Candidates Night At Central Middle School Oct. 16

Citywide PTO will host a School Committee Candidates Night on Monday, Oct. 16th from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Central Middle School.

All six candidates running for School Committee (Anthony Andronico, Doug Gutro, David Jacobs, Emily Lebo, Geraldine Manning, and Mark Sauter) have been invited to participate.

The format of the event will be a question and answer debate from 6:30 to 8 p.m. moderated by Courtney Perdios and Scott Alessandro, co-presidents of Citywide PTO.

A meet and greet following the debate will give all in attendance the opportunity speak directly with the candidates.

Light refreshments will be served during the meet and greet. To submit a question for consideration for the debate, email pto.citywide@gmail.com.

Citywide PTO is a group that brings parents and families from all of the Quincy Public Schools together to discuss issues on a broader citywide level. They are proud to be the link between local schools and the School Committee.

Citywide PTO meets monthly at Broad Meadows Middle School alternating between an open roundtable meeting format and presentations on specific topics with guest speakers. All of their meetings are open to the public and they encourage all to attend.

For a schedule of their meetings, email pto.citywide@gmail.com, or follow them on Facebook under "Quincy Citywide Parents' Council - Citywide PTO".

Paul Costello Appointed Quincy City Engineer

Mayor Thomas P. Koch has appointed Paul Costello, a Massachusetts Professional Engineer with more than 35 years of experience in both the public and private sectors as Quincy's, "city engineer."

Costello was born and raised in South Boston and is a 1984 graduate of Northeastern University. He received a Master's Degree in Business Administration from Suffolk University in 2000.

Costello's career began with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in their infiltration and inflow grant program. He then joined the private sector as a municipal consultant working on the planning, permitting, design and construction of a wide range of engineering disciplines, including water, wastewater and storm water; geotechnical engineering; and transportation engineering.

"Paul brings an extensive background in all facets of engineering," Koch said. "His expertise in storm water management will be extremely beneficial to the city regarding issues with the EPA and the State Department of Environmental Protection."

Costello has extensive experience with applying Geographic Information Systems to municipal-wide engineering planning and project-specific applications. He has also been active with the Neponset River Watershed Association and the Neponset Storm Water Partnership.

During his career, Costello has served as a senior technical engineer, project manager, operations director, chief financial officer and company president. He is most proud of his role as a husband and father of three. After living several years in the Merrymount area of Quincy, he and his family now reside in Hingham.

Household Hazardous Waste Drop-Off Saturday At DPW

around Sea Street onto Southern Artery. Proof of residency is required with a valid MA Driver's License. The City of Quincy provides this free service to assist residents in the proper disposal of hazardous waste and protect the environment.

Some of the eligible items for disposal are oil based paints, thinners, strippers, oils and varnishes, all household cleaners including drain and plumbing cleaners, automotive fluids including oil and gasoline, chemical fertilizers and insecticides, polishes, ni-cad and lithium batteries, roofing tar and driveway sealants.

Of the utmost importance is all mercury containing products such as thermostats, thermometers, fluorescent tubes, CFL (swirly) light bulbs, button batteries and mercurochrome. Once released into the environment, mercury persists for long periods of time and does not degrade into harmless chemicals. Mercury can damage the nervous system, brain, kidneys, liver and immune system. Developing brains and nervous systems of children are very sensitive to mercury.

When gathering products for the drop-off event leave materials in original containers and tighten all caps and lids. Sort and pack items separately in sturdy upright boxes. NEVER MIX CHEMICALS. Pack your car the morning of the event and drive directly to the DPW. Do not smoke while handling hazardous material and do not bring children in the car with you.

Items not accepted at the hazardous materials drop-off day are latex paint, tires, ammunition, fireworks and explosives, commercial/industrial/biological waste, prescription medicine and radioactive waste.

For the proper disposal of these materials visit the City's website www.quincy-ma.gov/Government/PWD/Trash.cfm, and scroll down to "How can I get rid of..."

Forum Promotes Inclusive Innovation, Diversity In Entrepreneurship

By ELEANOR KENNEDY

"There definitely have been times when I have walked into a room and had people underestimate me because I am a woman."

These are the words of Barbara Clarke, angel investor and Co-Founder of The Impact Seat, an organization which consults and works with individuals and companies whilst promoting inclusive innovation.

Clarke was one of three guest panelists at a special event held organized by South Shore Innovation at West of Chestnut apartments in Quincy recently.

The event theme was inclusive innovation and diversity in entrepreneurship. EdTech entrepreneurs Phillip Ellison and Joel Liu were the other panelists.

They treated guests to insights into the struggles they face in their entrepreneurial journeys due to their ethnic backgrounds.

Ellison who founded 'Young Leaders 4 Change', an advocacy and fundraising group which promoted civic awareness in New York City during the 2012 Presidential election, said that despite his struggles, he would do it all again.

He said: "Someone once asked me 'if you knew what it took from the beginning, would you do it?' and I said I would because now the skills and assets I have are vastly different from when I saw the opportunity of the social impact.

IMPACT SEAT FOUNDER, Barbara Clarke, speaks at the recent Inclusive Innovation event held at West of Chestnut apartments in Quincy.

"The biggest struggle is just getting out there, getting out into the world and learning."

Ellison is also co-founder of ULink, a tech-enabled venture that aims to alleviate the college and transfer advising gap in American community colleges.

Chinese entrepreneur Joel Liu agreed with Ellison's sentiments. He compared his journey to coding, but explained running a business with more than nine million users is understandably much more of a challenge.

"In both cases, you run into many problems," Liu said. "Coding is more simple because there is one problem to solve, but when you run a business, you have many problems at once and you need to find what the problems are and fix them and that is much harder.

Liu, who founded Diigo, a web-based application that helps students read and research better, moved to the US just three months ago and noted that the stark differences in culture between the States and his homeland have added to the challenge.

These challenges, as they are with most entrepreneurs, include finding a successful co-founder and investors.

But for Barbara Clarke, she joked that as she is the person with the money, the ball is in her court.

"I can do what I want," she laughed, "but there definitely are a lot of presumptions about women in innovation. People wonder if you are the investor or if the person next to you the investor. My portfolio is 100 percent gender diverse, and that's the way I want it to be."

South Shore Innovation Founder Eric Braun said the gathering of people from diverse backgrounds was an encouraging sign for the future of entrepreneurship.

He said: "So many people had different diverse ideas, and some were working on startup companies. I think the panel was really successful at scratching the surface on the issues of diversity and what's important when you are an entrepreneur.

"Overall, everybody left very happy and excited. At South Shore Innovation, we are looking forward to the opportunity to continue to cultivate entrepreneurship."

SSI Board Member Steve Eby added: "Diverse companies are more successful for two reasons. Bringing diverse ideas and creativity to the business and better understanding the diversity of your customer base to meet their needs."

West of Chestnut Property Manager, Sam Diss, said: "West of Chestnut was thrilled to offer our Club Suite for the Inclusive Innovation Panel Discussion and Networking event. We take great pride in our beautiful amenity spaces, and strive to be a good community partner; working with groups like South Shore Innovation is one way that we can help contribute to the dynamic fabric of the greater Quincy community."

South Shore Innovation is a 501(c)3 helping underserved and underemployed people create startups, learn entrepreneurship and be more successful beyond the first mile and beyond the cities as they navigate the loops, bumps and the long grind.

This fuels startup growth, facilitates innovation and provides positive impact to the broad community that needs to grow stronger beyond the cities.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church Yard Sale Saturday

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual Fall Yard Sale Saturday, Oct. 7 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the church lawn, weather permitting.

The yard sale was originally set for Sept. 30 but was postponed to this Saturday due to rain.

Crane Library Bookstore Offers Special Collection

Books On John F. Kennedy, Irish History On Sale Oct. 12

A special collection of books on the subject of John F. Kennedy will go on sale at the Crane Library Bookstore beginning on Oct 12th along with an array of books on Irish history.

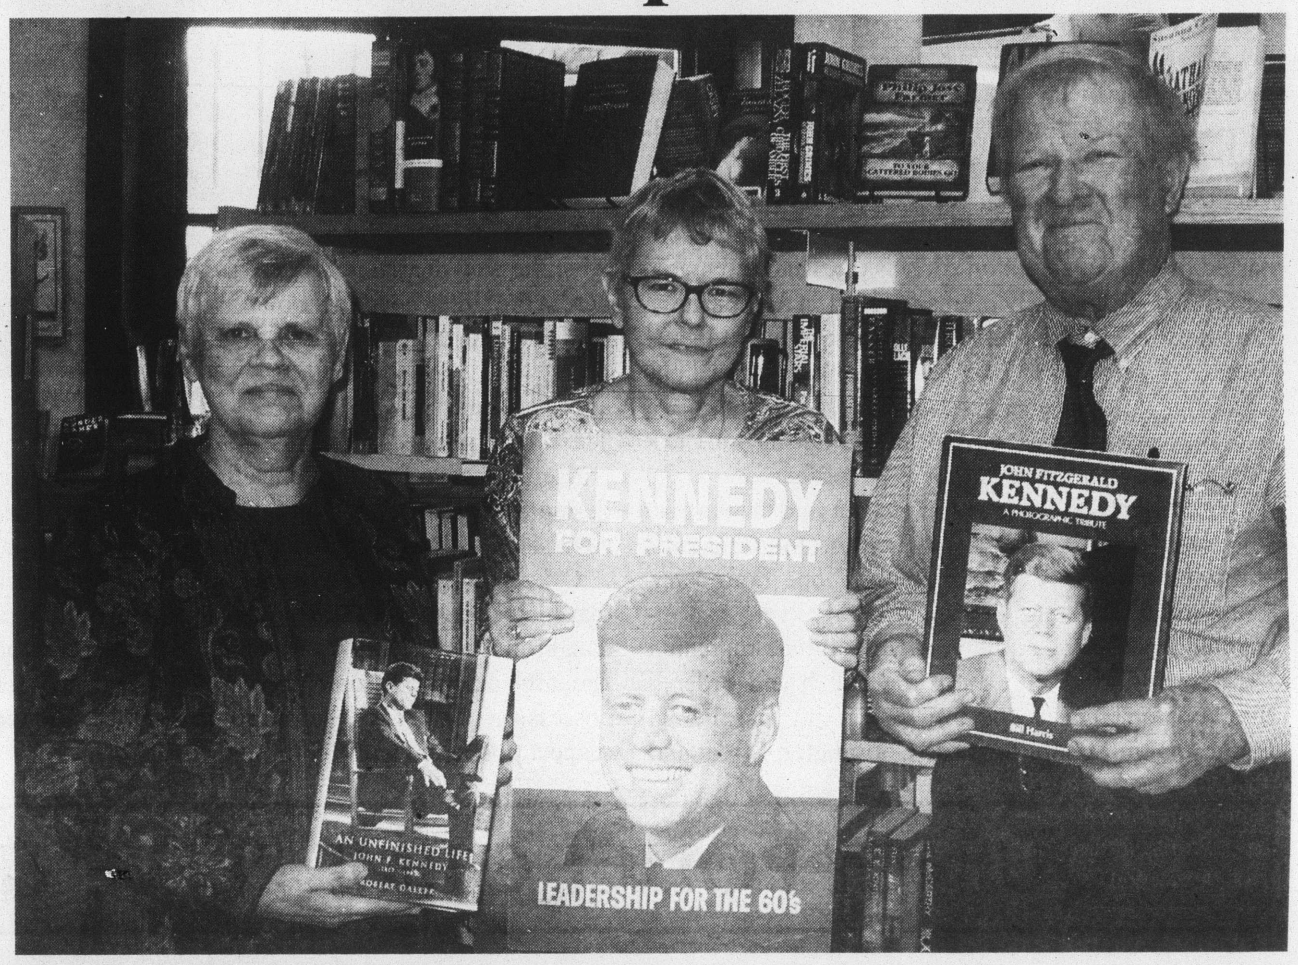
In this 100th year since JFK's birth, a generous benefactor and member of The Friends of the Crane Library has donated this unique assortment of over 50 books on the life and times of our former president, many of which are out of print.

All books about Kennedy and about Irish history and culture are in gently-used condition and will be presented for sale in a separate display at the store.

The shop is open on Thursday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and has its own separate entrance on Spear Street, in the rear of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Sponsored and managed by volunteers of The Friends of the Crane Library, net proceeds of the intimate bookstore are used to fund and support the library's many programs offered to the Quincy community. These include lectures, concerts, film screenings, museum passes, and a variety of special events for children and adults.

Hard-cover books sell for $2 and paperbacks for $1. All books are in gently-used condition. The bookstore also stocks a variety of DVD's, CD's, videos, audio-books and an extensive selection of cookbooks. An assortment of children's and young-adult books and videos is available, as is foreign language and reference material.



MEMBERS OF THE Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library and Crane Library Bookstore Volunteers Eileen Courtney and Bill Mackey hold two of the 50-plus books from the upcoming sale of a special collection on John F. Kennedy, as Dona Blunt displays an original 1960 JFK-for-President poster. The unique, gently-used collection of books will be available at the library's bookstore on Oct. 12th, along with an additional collection on Irish history. Photo Courtesy Miriam Joseph

At-Large Candidates Forum At Library Oct. 23

March Forward Quincy in partnership with Thomas Crane Library, will host a Candidate Night on Monday, Oct. 23 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. for candidates running to fill the three at-large councillor seats on the city election ballot Nov. 7.

All candidates have been invited to present their views on the issues in response to questions posed by the audience. Each candidate will be given a couple of minutes for an opening and closing statements however, the majority of the evening will be spent answering the public's questions.

For more information regarding March Forward Quincy and the At-Large Candidate conversation, check out https://t.co/kn-89VLP2F9

The event is free and open to the public but space at the library is limited so we are asking those interested in attending to RSVP at https://www.eventbrite.com/e/quincy-at-large-candidate-night-tickets-38108230744.

A few spots will be reserved for walk-ins.

Seven Residents Graduate Wentworth Institute Of Tech

Seven students from Quincy recently graduated from Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston, at the university's summer commencement.

They are:

Aaron Justin Anderson, Erica M. Amato, Haohua Yu, David K. Mei, Sofjola Bala, Thomas Choi and Jason M. Cole.

Council Candidates Night At First Parish Church Oct. 19

Quincy Climate Action Network will host a candidates night at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 19 in the church hall at United First Parish Church of Quincy, 1306 Hancock St., across from City Hall.

QCAN has invited all candidates in contested city council races; at press time most candidates had already accepted.

Most questions to the candidates will involve city policy on energy and climate, said David Reich, board chair of QCAN.

"We'll have a slightly different format from our candidate night of two years ago," Reich said. "Each city council candidate will get five or six questions instead of two or three."

Candidates will see some but not all of the questions in advance.

"Quincy has made significant progress since our last candidate night, but we have many miles to go before we're as efficient as we need to be," Reich added. "The deadly hurricanes in Texas, Florida, the U.S. Virgin Islands, and Puerto Rico show that every coastal community faces dire threats to life and property from our changing climate. With stakes this high, we need to continue increasing the efficiency of our dwellings, our workplaces, and our governments and getting on the path to end our use of fossil fuels.

"As a coastal city, Quincy has more at stake than most. More and more Quincy voters want to know their candidates' positions on energy and climate, and the candidate night offers a great chance to do just that," Reich added.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Friday, Sept. 22, at approximately 1:11 p.m., Quincy Police Units were dispatched to the area of Russell Park behind Quincy High School to assist the MBTA Police who were on a foot chase after a male who had two active arrest warrants. The warrants were for shoplifting and possession of Class B drugs.

As Quincy Police Officers closed in, an MBTA Officer advised them the suspect was last seen running into the large marsh area between the high school and the running track. This particular marsh area consisted of dense vegetation such as trees and tall marsh grass that could easily conceal a person and hazards. The perimeter of the large area was contained by officers. A general broadcast from Communications informed officers that the suspect had a history of violence against police officers and during his most recent arrest he resisted against the officers.

Units searched the area but did not find the suspect and were subsequently dispatched to mounting calls throughout the city. Approximately one hour later, Community Policing Officer Whedbee, who had remained in the area on bicycle, saw a male matching the description emerge from the marsh and ordered him to stop. The suspect fled, running parallel to Quincy High School towards Coddington Street and the YMCA. Officer Whedbee notified Dispatch and several Quincy Police units responded to the area.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer Jamie Parisi was driving on Coddington Street when he saw the suspect run across the street. Since school just got out, there were students and parents milling about and traffic was heavy. The officer jumped out of his cruiser and gave foot chase, calling his name and ordering him to stop. The suspect ran off clutching his right side as if pinning something to his body.

Officer Parisi knew from training and experience that his action was indicative of someone holding a dangerous item. He also had first hand knowledge about the suspect; he recently arrested the suspect for possession of a Class B substance and at that time the suspect possessed a utility knife!

The suspect appeared to be slowing down, breathing heavily and too tired to run anymore. When he stopped and faced the officer, the order was given several times to get on the ground. The suspect angrily responded, "No. I'm not getting on the ground." The officer knew the suspect took every measure not to be apprehended and was now getting into a fighting stance. After an additional warning and failure to comply, Officer Parisi took out his pepper spray and gave a quick shot against the suspect. The suspect then complied and with the assistance of Officer Michael Eddy, the suspect was placed in handcuffs.

The incident caused alarm and concern to many students, pedestrians and motorists who stopped to see what was going on. An ambulance was dispatched to assist the suspect with the pepper spray.

A search of the suspect uncovered a utility knife in one of his pants pockets. The suspect, a 26-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with the two warrants and disorderly conduct, carrying a dangerous weapon and resisting arrest.

During booking, School Resource Officer Burgio issued the suspect a Trespass notice not to be on the grounds of Quincy High School.

Nice Work!

In-School Dental Programs Keep Students Smiling

City Officials Team Up With MA Dept. Of Public Health

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy school officials have teamed up with the state Department of Public Health's Oral Health Unit to provide in-school dental programs that brings dental care to the students.

This fall, the district began a pilot program, "Big Smiles," at the Clifford Marshall School. The program, part of the Smile Massachusetts program, provides full dental treatments including cleanings, sealants, x-rays, fillings and extractions.

"This program provides oral health to children who may not regularly see a dentist," the district's health service coordinator Rita Bailey told the school committee on Sept. 27. "Licensed dentists and dental assistants provide all necessary treatment and care."

A dentist, along with a hygienist and a dental assistant, set up a mobile dental office at the school. The mobile office has state-off-the-art equipment including a portable digital x-ray machine that uses less radiation than older x-ray devices, a portable dental unit with an air compressor and self-contained water source and suction, a portable sterilization unit that allows onsite sterilization of instruments and a HIPPA privacy compliant laptop for electronic record keeping.

After being examined and treated, students receive a "dental report card" for their parents that includes a detailed report of any work performed list of local dentists should follow up care be needed.

Clifford Marshall nurse, Jordie Sullivan, said healthy teeth and gums are vital to good overall health.

"Poor dental health leads to tooth loss, tooth decay, gum disease, speech impairments and eventually can lead to heart disease," she said. "Taking care of teeth is a very important part of keeping our children healthy."

Sullivan said a majority of children who are on Mass. Health insurance do not get regular dental checkups

"For every Mass Health student at school,44 percent are regularly seen by a dentist," she said. "That means 56 percent are not seen regularly by a dentist or at all. Of those 56 percent, 60 percent of them are not being treated."

The "Big Smiles" program is being offered to supplement the district's dental screenings through the state Department of Public Health. The screenings are conducted by a hygienist who performs exams and cleanings and applies sealants and fluoride.

The screening program is offered districtwide to pre-kindergarten and kindergarten students and grades 2, 6, 8 and 9 at no cost to families. Last year, more than 1,000 students were screened and nearly 400 sealants applied. This program is underway and will continue through the school year.

Sullivan said while the screenings are effective, additional care is needed. She noted that last year during the screenings, the hygienist referred 70 students to dentists, but only four went.

"It became apparent to me that most of my students lack that critical step of seeing a dentist," she said. "They would get a referral that they needed to see a dentist but they would not go to a dentist. This is a problem."

Sullivan said she approached Bailey who then found the state dental program. They met with Smile Massachusetts officials last spring and were able to offer the program this fall. The mobile unit's visited the school on Sept. 11.

Sullivan said that a total of 75 students were seen during the visit. There were 54 sealants applied, 79 fillings and three extractions.

As an example of student's experience, Sullivan gave a snapshot of one kindergarten student who was examined. He had an x-ray taken that found cavities. Fillings were then performed and the student was back in class a half hour later.

"Within 30 minutes, he was smiling and back in class," she said. "This was his third day of school, ever, in a new building and we're bringing him in to see the dentist. How scary that must have been for him."

Sullivan said the dentist and his team put the children at ease. She said the children were told they are superheroes and that x-ray machine would laser their teeth. Children were shown their x-rays and any cavities were pointed out. She said all the students did well.

"I didn't see one tear," she said.

Sullivan said the program was successful.

"One hundred percent of the students' dental needs were met," she said.

Having the in-school mobile dentist program, Sullivan explained, decreases the amount of time students miss class as well as parents missing work for dental visits.

"When children go to the dentist they can sometimes miss a whole day of school and parents miss a whole day of work," she said.

Sullivan said the program will return in March.

"We expect a higher student participation," she said.

In another matter, Executive Director of Career and Technical Education Keith Segalla informed the committee that the South Shore YMCA is offering "Splash," a learn-to-swim program for second grade students. Merrymount and Atherton Hough grade 2 students will begin the six-week program on Oct. 17. The program is a collaborative effort with the district and the South Shore YMCA.

Restaurant To Replace 'Clash Of The Ash'

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new restaurant will open in the coming months in the Quincy Center locations that was previously the home of the Clash of the Ash before it closed earlier this year after city officials revoked the bar's liquor license.

The Board of License Commissioners on Sept. 26 unanimously approved transferring the all alcohol license previously held by the Clash of the Ash to the new restaurant, Triumph, which will move into the former barroom at 1464-1466 Hancock St. The new restaurant will be permitted to open from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. seven days a week.

City Clerk Nicole Crispo said that while the licensing board had revoked the Clash of the Ash's license in January for serving alcohol to a minor, an appellate hearing with the Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission on the matter had yet to take place. The bar was ordered to close immediately at that time.

David Paratore, the attorney for Triumph owner Matthew Freid, said the new eatery would be a casual dining restaurant offering new American cuisine.

"He's got a pretty long history of restaurant management, both here in Massachusetts as well as previously in Pennsylvania," Paratore said of Freid. "It's been all restaurant work, not nightclub work. He has no intention of operating that as a nightclub."

Freid has worked at Boston's Capo Restaurant, jm Curley, and The Beehive, among others.

"His resume is fairly extensive as far as restaurant work is considered," Paratore said.

Freid plans to renovate the space, Paratore said, and that work is expected to take about two weeks to complete. Paratore said the hope is for the new restaurant to have the same capacity as Clash of Ash, 200 occupants, but that could change depending on the final building plans.

Quincy officials revoked the Clash of the Ash's license in January after the bar served alcohol to a minor in November 2016, and ordered it to close immediately because its license had already been revoked pending appeal.

The bar's license had previously been revoked by city officials in April 2016 after a minor was found in possession of alcohol inside the barroom the month prior, but the ABCC rescinded that punishment, finding it to be too harsh; on remand, the licensing board imposed a 10-day suspension in February with credit for time served.

In other business Sept. 26, the Board of License Commissioners approved a special use permit/all alcohol for Fright Island LLC, which will operate a ghost ship on 19 days between Sept. 29 and Oct. 31.

The ghost ship will be open Thursdays to Sundays, except for the final week when it would be Wednesday to Monday for Halloween. The proposed hours are 7 p.m. to midnight on Fridays and Saturdays and 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. on other nights.

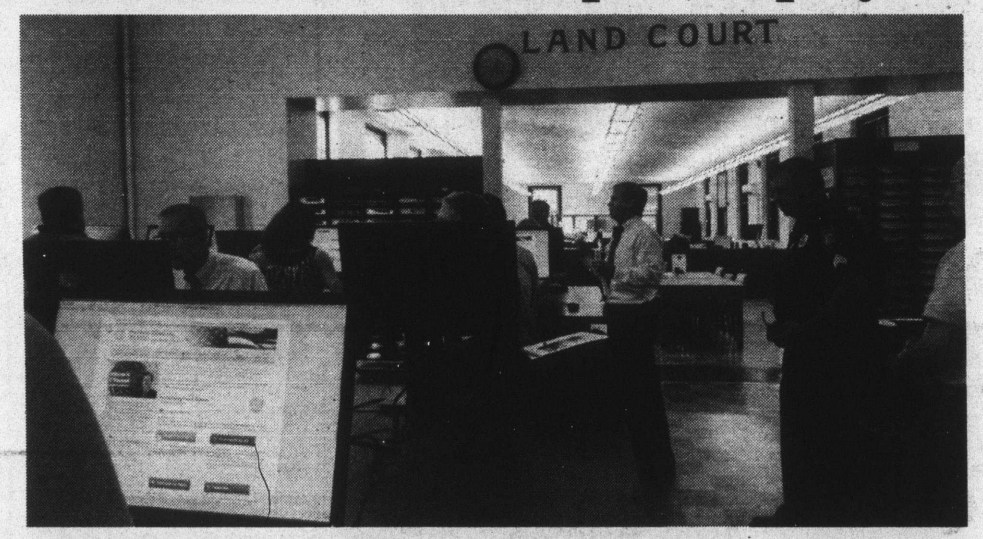
Register O'Donnell Hosts Computer Seminars for Municipal Employees

Recognizing the increased usage of recorded land documents by local Norfolk County city and town governments, Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell recently hosted two free informational seminars on computer assisted land record research for municipal employees and community officials.

"These computer seminars were designed to help municipal employees and community officials familiarize themselves with our computer system and promote best practices when researching on-line land document information," O'Donnell said.

Seminar attendees learned how to navigate the Registry's online research page www.norfolkdeeds.org and to access documents such as deeds, mortgages, mortgage discharges, Homesteads, decisions, orders and permits. All of the Registry's land documents are online and are accessible within 24 business hours of recording. The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds' state-of-the-art computer system has more than six million land document images available for viewing, dating back to President George Washington's administration in 1793.

"An important relationship I highly value is the one between the Registry of Deeds and the 28 municipalities in Norfolk County," O'Donnell said. "Local agencies continuously depend upon us to provide them with easily accessible and accurate land document information including assessors, zoning boards of appeals and conservation commissions"



NORFOLK COUNTY REGISTER of Deeds William P. O'Donnell (center) speaks to attendees at Registry's municipal employee computer seminar held on Sept 25th.

Additionally, there were several Registry staffers on hand, including Register O'Donnell, who were available to assist and answer questions. Each individual who attended the seminars received reference materials for their office use.

"I was delighted to see the tremendous response we had for these computer seminars," O'Donnell said. "Furthermore, the interaction we had with our partners in local government left no doubt in my mind that these seminars were of great value and assistance."

One Of The Largest Solar Arrays In NE Unveiled

Planet Aid, FireFlower Alternative Energy (a Boston solar development company) and MassAmerican Energy recently unveiled a 70,000 square foot rooftop solar array at Planet Aid's headquarters in Milford, MA.

The power-producing technology is one of the largest roof-mounted, solar arrays Massachusetts has ever seen initiated and operated by a non-profit.

Shelly Dein, Energy and Sustainability director of the City of Quincy, was among those in attendance.

"The city of Quincy is also very concerned about the future and the environment. The city is doing what it can to both produce its electricity use as well as transferring its energy use from fossil fuels to renewables."

Clean, renewable local energy accomplishes many goals for a community, avoiding the export of valuable energy dollars outside Milford and Massachusetts.

Planet Aid collects and recycles textiles to protect the environment and reduce waste. The proceeds from clothing donations fund sustainable development projects in Africa, Asia, and Latin America.

Also in attendance were state Sen. Ryan Fattman and state Rep. Brian Murray.

"The Massachusetts State Senate and the House of Representatives extends its congratulations to Planet Aid, of Southern New England, in the recognition of the grand opening of 70,000 square foot solar farm," Fattman said. "Be it further known that the Massachusetts House and Senate extends its best wishes for continued success in all endeavors."

The mix of a non-profit solar developer collaborating with a municipality creates a sense of uniqueness and touches upon all the desirable aspects of solar investment for the betterment of the Milford, Massachusetts community and the state, officials said.

"It has been a pleasure to work in collaboration with FireFlower Alternative Energy and MassAmerican Energy," said Ester Neltrup, president of Planet Aid. "We have partnered together to fulfill our mission to mitigate global warming and protect the environment."

Roof-mounted solar installations benefit the environment by providing clean, renewable power while reducing energy costs. This solar array will offset polluting carbon generation at a rate equal to planting 11,389 acres of forests in one year. Additionally, the solar installation will prevent 27,856 barrels of oil from being burned, and will avoid greenhouse gas emissions from 28,835,422 miles driven by an average vehicle.

The solar array is net metered and interconnected to the energy grid, generating renewable power with an estimated annual market value of over $130,000. This solar roof project has saved precious farm land, an initiative backed up by the state of Massachusetts. Planet Aid is using Solar Renewable Energy Certificates (SRECs), which incentivizes solar development in Massachusetts, to help finance the system.

Planet Aid is selling the net metering credits generated by the solar array to the City of Quincy, which is projected to save $830,000 as a result of its participation in the project. The energy generated will also be used by Planet Aid's Milford facility.

Blue Hills Fall Foliage Sunset Hike Oct. 14

The Friends of the Blue Hills and Blue Hill Ski will be sponsoring a free self-guided fall foliage hike to the top of Great Blue Saturday, Oct. 14 from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Enjoy the season's finest fall colors from the summit of the region's highest hill.

Complimentary hot cider and apples will be served at the top of the mountain, and hikers are encouraged to bring a picnic dinner to enjoy at the summit. Sunset will be at approximately 6 p.m.

This is the only opportunity to hike down Great Blue at night. After sunset, the ski area lights will be on to guide the way. For safety reasons, all hikers should check in at the ski area at the base of the hill before and after the hike. Hikers are encouraged to bring flashlights if they have them.

The Blue Hill Observatory will be open from 4:30 to 7 p.m. and will provide tours and viewing for a nominal charge. Free parking is available at Blue Hills Ski Area, 4001 Washington St., Canton.

For more information, visit www.FriendsoftheBlueHills.org or email info@FriendsoftheBlueHills.org.

North Quincy Defeats Quincy In Volleyball, 3-1

By TOM JOYCE

In the battle of the Quincy High and North Quincy High girls volleyball teams, it was the Red Raiders who were able to come on top, 3-1 (25-17, 24-26, 25-21, 25-22), at Quincy High School Sept. 27

In the first set, the Red Raiders gained an early edge, going up 4-2. They would hold onto that momentum and follow it up with a 10-4 run to give themselves an eight point lead, 14-6. For the rest of the set, the two sides played about an even match but since the Red Raiders got off to a hot start, they were able to win it, 25-17.

Once again, the Red Raiders got off to a strong start in the second set by scoring the first three points. From there, however, they were outplayed by the Presidents. With the game tied at nine apiece, the Presidents scored five times in a row to go up by five. The Red Raiders responded by putting up five points uncontested, tying the game at 14 apiece. For the next 16 points, the team went back-and-forth, tying the contest at 22. It was the Presidents who managed to finish strong and they ended up winning the set, 26-24.

At the start of the third set, the Red Raiders and Presidents found themselves playing just about even volleyball. The set started with the teams tied, 4-4. The set was also tied at 9-9 before the Red Raiders broke it open by going on a 7-1 run to take a 16-10 lead. The rest of the set was relatively even, however, the Presidents had a slight edge. Even so, it was not enough of an edge for them to overcome the deficit and the Red Raiders took the set, 25-21.

It took a comeback for the Red Raiders to come out on top in the final set. Midway through, they trailed, 15-8, but then they went on a run and tied the bout at 18 points apiece. From there, they were able gain an edge over their foe after a timeout. In the end, they came away with a 25-22 win in that set to win the match.

"That's been our thing this year," Red Raiders head coach Kerry Ginty said."We've been kind of streaky which is not good when the other team has the momentum. We've been playing with composure when we're down. I'm just real proud of how they fight when we're under the gun."

Defense was key for the Red Raiders in their win. They got strong performances from many players including Camryn Burgio (11 digs), Jennifer Butka (16 digs), Jessica Caldwell (12 digs) and Sharon Yang (27 digs). Aleksandra Qose served well for the Red Raiders, recording six aces while Julia Klincewicz (10 kills) excelled on the attack.

The Red Raiders battled some adversity in the win as Klincewicz got hurt early in the first set and did not come back in until late in the second set. Even so, she still ended up having a strong day.

"She's a big part of our team, but I was really proud of the composure we showed," Ginty said. "She was sick earlier this week, so we were kind of prepared. I was very happy that she was able to come back in and Annie Trinh did a great job filling in."

Although her team was not able to come out with the win, Presidents head coach Jacqui Niosi was pleased with the way her team battled and said she thought it was the best her young team has played this season.

"I'm just really proud of all of my players," she said. "It stinks to lose, but they played well and they played hard. It was tough, especially in this hot gym, but they left it all out on the court tonight."

Shannon Foley had a team-best nine kills and 22 digs for the Presidents. Colleen Connor (16 digs) and Alyssa Ruan (14 digs) excelled defensively. In addition to them, Ali McMorrow (five kills) and Allahna Brown (four kills) played well on the attack.

Following the game, the Red Raiders improved to 5-2 while the Presidents fell to 4-4 on the season.

NQ Edges Hanover In Dramatic Last-Minute Win

By BRUCE MARQUIS

Junior quarterback Tim Layden plowed through the opponent's defense for an 11-yard touchdown run with 31 seconds remaining in the game to elevate the North Quincy Red Raiders to a 20-19 win over the Hanover Indians Friday night at Hanover.

The significant win brought the North Quincy eleven's record on the year to 2-2, which very well could be 4-0. Hanover, last year's divisional Super Bowl Winner, fell to 2-2. Layden's winning score was made possible by effective right-side blocking by junior center Ty Finn, junior guard Josh Dangora and senior tackle Josh Moore. Layden broke a hard tackle at the 6 yard line, spun around, ran three steps and dove into the end zone, sending his teammates into a frenzy.

After the Indians recovered the ensuing kickoff on their own 25, junior quarterback Andrew Carroll was able to complete 2 passes for 25 yards, but as time ran out his "Hail Mary" pass was intercepted at the North Quincy goal line by senior Captain Chris Donaghey who returned it to the 10 yard line and took a knee to end the game. Carroll had an outstanding game running and passing. Next year's match up in Quincy will feature these two outstanding signal callers facing off again.

The winning score came on a third down play and was set up by crucial fourth down catches of Layden darts by junior tight end Nelson Walinjom and Chris Donaghey to continue the Raiders final drive that started on its own 49 yard line with 5:19 left in the final quarter. All in all Layden completed 9 out of 18 passes for 180 yards and two touchdowns. He also ran for 60 yards on 16 carries, thus accounting for 240 total yards from scrimmage.

The Red Raiders received the game's opening kickoff at its goal line, Chris Donaghey returning it to his own 11 yard line. Then the visitors accomplished an unusual feat, using all eleven minutes of the first quarter for a 19-play drive with 6 first downs that did not net any points, when they failed to convert a first down at the Hanover 13 yard line on the second play of the second quarter. On that drive Layden had 6 carries for 20 yards and completed both his passes for a total of 15 yards; junior Win Tran had 6 carries for 19 yards; and junior Nathan Sleiman pitched in with 5 carries for 13 yards.

The passes were both caught by senior Captain Conor Donaghey. This was accomplished because of the strong offensive line of center Finn, senior guards and Captains Devin Ganno and Alex Pham, senior tackles Moore and Jeff Sullivan, and tight end Walinjom. Dangora replaced Pham at guard in the second quarter when the captain dislocated his left elbow.

After their clutch stop of the 19-play Raider drive, the blue and gold team moved from its own 13 into the North Quincy end zone in just 7 plays, 5 of which were passes. A Carroll scoring strike of 9-yards with 9:21 left in the first half put the first points on the board. The kick was good making the score 7-0 in favor of the home team.

The red and black roared back on its next possession. Starting on its own 25 yard line after a 20-yard kick off return by Chris Donaghey, Layden lofted a third down screen pass to Walinjom who outran the entire Hanover defense for a 76-yard touchdown. Key blocks were made by Sullivan and Ganno. Junior Kieran O'Driscoll drilled his kick through the uprights and the score was tied 7-7 with 5:14 left in the half.

The home team responded quickly with a 7-play, 60 yard drive ending with a 33-yard touchdown strike by Carroll. The kick failed, a key error by Hanover, but they led 13-7, the half time score.

Taking the second half kickoff by O'Driscoll back to its own 35 yard line, the Hanover Indians took nine plays to reach pay dirt this time to take a 19-7 lead with a 9-yard touchdown pass from Carroll. He finished the game by completing 13 out of 26 throws for 211 yards and three touchdowns, however the conversion kick failed again, a key factor in the game since the blue and gold lost by only one point.

Then the north side Raiders, starting on its own 21, marched 79 yards on three plays, two runs by Layden for a total of 19 yards and culminating with a 60 touchdown throw to Sleiman at 9:10 of the third quarter. After another O'Driscoll successful conversion, North Quincy trailed 19-14, setting up the later heroics. The North Quincy eleven ended the game with 116 yards rushing in addition to 180 passing for a grand total of 296 yards of offense on 45 plays from scrimmage, an average of 6.6 yards per snap. Tran had 32 yards on 12 carries, Sleiman had 7 carries for 19 yards plus the touchdown reception, and Conor Donaghey had a five yard gain on his one carry.

It is important to note that after the Indians third touchdown the Raiders defense buckled down, forcing the Indians into 3 straight punts before their final drive failed as well. The defense, led by linebackers senior Luca Smith and Walinjom, tackles Finn and Ganno, and ends senior Elmer Lainez, Tran, and Pham, held the home team to fewer than 250 total yards. Other contributors on defense were senior linebacker Jake Roos and defensive backs junior Andrew Airosus, Sleiman, senior Dimitri Legaspi, Chris Donaghey and Conor Donaghey.

An ebullient Red Raiders coach Mark Nutley said it was probably the biggest win of his four-year tenure as head coach, even better than defeating Quincy last Thanksgiving.

"The kids played their hearts out for four quarters," Nutley said. "Forcing Hanover to punt on three straight possessions in the second half was key." He want on to state that quarterback Tim Layden "played like a man" and was supported again by a strong offensive line and good runners and receivers."

The Red Raiders will play Pembroke Saturday night at 5 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

ROOT CAUSES OF PAIN

Normally, when something hurts, a person doesn't have to look far for the source of the pain. However, when an injury occurs near the root of a nerve, it could result in pain at the end of the nerve where sensation is felt. Such may be the case when an injury to the vertebrae or discs in the neck could result in pain, numbness, or weakness in the shoulder, arm, or hand. That is because the nerves that extend out from between the cervical vertebrae provide sensation and trigger movements in these areas. This condition is called "cervical radiculopathy." Chiropractors are trained to find and treat the root causes of pain by following the nerve pathway and removing the impingement.

You are the ultimate decision-maker when it comes to your body and your health. You are first and foremost, a valued client. In order for you to experience the full benefits of chiropractic care we need to work together as partners. The overall objective is to get you to a pain-free state and then getting you back to being the best you ever! To schedule an appointment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We are located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Several conditions can exert pressure on the nerves of the neck, including a herniated cervical disc, spinal stenosis (narrowing of the space at the center of the vertebrae), and degenerative disc disease.

Presidents Host Hingham Friday Night At 7 P.M.

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High football team might not have captured their first win of the season in their last game, but they played their best for the entire game – and they were eventually rewarded for it.

The Presidents were unable to contain one of the top teams in the Patriot League as they fell, 41-14, to the Whitman-Hanson Panthers at home last Friday night.

"Whitman-Hanson is a good football team," Presidents head coach Bill Reardon said. "They were fast. They had some fantastic players. They were strong. We did what we could. Early on, maybe there was a first down we could've picked up that could've made a difference and made it more competitive, but that's a good football team for sure."

Late in the game, the Presidents may have been down, but they did not stop fighting. Defensively, they got a stop and got the ball around midfield a few minutes into the fourth quarter. From there, they were able to drive the ball downfield and Shorn Hawthorne put the Presidents on the scoreboard with a 3-yard touchdown run with 4:46 remaining in the game. The Presidents were not done scoring either.

Fast forward two minutes and linebacker TJ Ortiz doubled the Presidents point total as he recovered a fumble and took it back for a 57-yard touchdown. The Presidents were also successful on their 2-point conversion attempt: a pass from junior quarterback Colin Keaveny to tight end Mark McKenna.

"There's no quit in these guys at all," Reardon said. "I give them credit. They want to play the full 44 minutes. They want to work hard. It shows that we're going to compete."

After that, however, Whitman-Hanson got possession once again and ran out the clock on quarterback kneels.

Following the game, Reardon said he was impressed with how hard sophomore defensive ends – Andrew Rooney and Mark McKenna – played for the

Apaches, Manets Roll In Week 4 QYFL Varsity Action

By SEAN HALPIN

VARSITY:

APACHES 18

PANTHERS 6

The Apaches drove the ball down the field on the opening series, with some fine running by RB Kiera Sleiman. Apache QB JC Petrongolo capped the drive with a nine-yard TD run to put the Apaches ahead 6-0. On the ensuing series, Apache DE stripped the ball and it was recovered by DT Harrison Gaudiano the 50-yard line. The Apaches capitalized on the turnover, with a 20-yard TD run by Clayton Corley, to take a 12-0 lead.

The Panthers answered, late in the second quarter, when WR Jacey Ham made an acrobatic catch on the 20-yard line. Fullback Jarod Walker capped the drive with 3-yard TD run to close in on the Apache lead 12-6 at halftime.

Both teams played tough defense throughout the second half. Midway through the fourth Quarter, Apache QB Petrongolo passed to WR Jackson Murphy for a 13-yard TD pass. The Panther drove the ball deep into Apache territory until Apache CB, Adrien Orlando intercepted the ball to seal the 18-6 victory over the Panthers.

The Panthers saw fine performances of Jacey Ham, Drew Boretti, Michael Potter, Jarod Walker, Brian Rodrigues, Erick Lomanno and Thomas Goode. The Apaches where led by Kiera Sleiman, Petrongolo, Grant Murphy, Harry Gaudiano, Clayton Corley, Matt Whooley, Jackson Murphy, Adrien Orlando, Justin Neil, Dallas Burnes and Patrick Walsh.

The Apaches will face the Storm next Sunday and the Panthers will have the bye.

MANETS 32

STORM 0

Manets Stephen Gallant returned the opening kickoff 70-yards for a TD and Michael Cascarano added the conversion. Manets LB William Ploof recovered a Storm fumble on the ensuing kickoff. Ploof capitalized on the turnover when he rushed for a 25-yard TD. Gallant added the Conversion to put the Manets ahead, 14-0.

Two series later, William Ploof broke away on a 36-yard TD run to put the Manets ahead, 20-0. Manets RB Andrew Engren rushed for a 4-yard TD run to put his team ahead 26-0 at halftime.

In the second half, Storm Backs, Elias Walsh, Dan Bellotti and Hunter MacIsaac combined for some long drives.

Late in the fourth quarter, Manets DE Seamus Stirling recovered a Storm fumble setting up a 27-yard TD run by Michael Cascarano, as the Manets defeated the Storm, 32-0.

The Manets where led by Gallant, Ploof, Cascarano, Engren, Joey Manton, Max Van Tassell, Brendan Regan, Mason McDonough and Alex Rheault. The Storm saw fine performances from Elias Walsh, Dan Bellotti, Brendan Glynn, Hunter MacIsaac, Yusef Alzubaidy, Joey Dyer and Lane Lowry.

The Houghs Neck Manets improved to 2-1. They will face the undefeated West Quincy Elks (3-0) Sunday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

JUNIOR VARSITY:

PANTHERS 28

APACHES (RED) 0

The Point Panthers remain unbeaten at 4-0, with a 28-0 victory over the Apache-Red Team. Panther RB Gabriel Rodrigues rushed for an 8-yard TD and added two conversion scores on the day. QB Andrew Novak Ran for a 13-yard TD and later passed to TE Rueben Charles for a 35-yard TD pass. Panther RB Colin MacPherson also rushed for a 46-yard TD in the victory.

The Panthers were led by Novak, Charles, Rodrigues, MacPherson, Shawn Koslowski, Caleb Parsons, Desiree Masone and Nathan Sampson. The Apaches saw fine performances from Ryan Beardsley, Aden Le, Noah Baker, Jesse Hansen, Ryan Tobin, Brandon Riley and Sean Burns.

MANETS 19

APACHES (BLACK) 0

The Houghs Neck Manets improved to 2-1 on the year with a 19-0 victory over Apaches-Black team. Manets RB Teddy Lynch scored all three TDs. Manets saw fine performances from Brandon Toomer, Marcus Moore, Lynch, Gavin Regan (1 Int) and Kastriot Panariti. Apaches saw exceptional play by Michael Campbell (1 Int), Charlie Baker, Ben Wailinjom, Charlie Ambroult, Theo Porter, Robert Walinjom, Noel Sancho and Tommy Wirtz.

FRESHMEN:

PANTHERS 0

Apache RB, Max Gaudiano rush for a 6-yard TD and Liam Lee added their conversion on the opening series. Later in the first half, Apache QB Nick DiPalma tossed at 27-yard TD pass to fullback Sean Szilva.

The Apaches capped off the day with a 44-yard TD run by Liam Lee and DiPalma rush for the conversion to take a 22-0 victory over the Panthers.

The Apaches were led by Gaudiano, Jack Greene, DiPalma, Thomas Chan, Nguyen, Brady Craig, Said Hamad and Ronan Brown and Liam Lee. The Panthers saw fine performances from Caden Pina, Cameron Sampson, Zachary Aldoupolis, Mikiel Renaud, Sean Conover and Johjoe Ham.

The Apaches (3-0) will face the Squantum Storm (3-0) next Sunday in a battle of undefeated teams. The Panthers will have the bye.

STORM 16

MANETS 14

The Storm were led by Buckley, Tyler Cromwell, Tran, Domenic Perry, Steele Smith and John Jordan. The Manets saw fine performances from Galligan, Mark Zaborowski, Mel Chione, Drini Panariti, Oden Christian, and Nate Goff.

The Manets will play the West Quincy Elks, while The Storm (3-0) will face the Apaches (3-0) next Sunday in a battle of undefeated freshmen teams.

CORRECTION

A Sept. 28th story said Chase Morales scored a 35-yard punt return touchdown in the West Quincy Elks junior varsity team's 6-0 win over the North Quincy apaches Sept. 23. Morales scored on a 75-yard punt return.

Quincy Youth Football Stands Tall, Proud For The National Anthem

Pictures show Quincy Youth Football 2016 varsity champions Houghs Neck Manets standing and paying their respects during the National Anthem at this past weekend's youth football games

Manets head coach Mike Flavin and team owner John Macneil said the players and coaches met and spoke about what's been happening in the NFL with all the controversy.

"After hearing my players' thoughts we thought it was important to take time out of practice and talk about the issues surrounding the protesting," Flavin said. "We collectively decided as a team the kids would not only stand for the national anthem but also put a hand over their hearts and take a moment to truly thank our great country for allowing us to have the freedoms that we do.

"In my opinion this has made the kids even more tuned in on what the National Anthem stands for. Seeing all my players standing and lined up during the anthem the way they did just made me feel very proud to be their head coach.

"Being a coach certainly doesn't mean you just teach football," Flavin said. "You try to teach the kids about life lessons and to be good role models. On this day I truly think we achieved that."

Q-NQ Cross Country Highlights

By GEOFF HENNESSY

Plymouth South came into Pageant field having not hosted a meet in three years due to the construction of a new middle school and high school.

Looking for a win, they were denied versus the girls but managed a 13-point win over the boys, 23-36. The bright spot for boys continues to be the running of freshman Ronan Kelly who battled with Panthers' standout Strickland Davis over the entire 2.5 mile course through the Merrymount woods. Kelly was 2nd and Ryan Polsgrove took 3rd.

Sophomore Dakota Pendleton, running in only his first meet of the fall, was 9th and Nick Ouellette was 10th. The boys team has no seniors and are rapidly improving.

The girls team put their two stars – Maeve White and Abby Murphy – in lock-step with league superstar Jillian Callahan and took a close 2nd and 3rd. Devin Hiltunen was 5th and always improving Camryn Dastrup and Lezly Acevedo went 7-8 and Olivia Palazzi was 10th as Plymouth could only put 4 girls in the top ten. QNQ won 25-31 for their second win in three meets.

At Silver Lake the boys lost a close one 23-32 with Ronan Kelly again the top finisher in second despite leading most of the race only to get lost. Dakota Pendleton was 5th, Nick Ouellette 7th and Braeden Kopp 10th. Captain Junior Ryan Polsgrove was slowed by illness and could only take 8th.

The course is run through the woods and cranberry bogs behind the high school. While not challenging physically much of the course is confusing with many paths looking the same. The girls were determined not to let the course beat them taking a dominating 18-41 decision over the Lakers. Abby Murphy and Maeve White ran together for much of the course with Devin Hiltunen close in 4th behind Silver Lake's leading runner Alexandra Tonsberg.

With 200 meters to go, Hiltunen was drawing a bead on Tonsberg and with 100 meters to go it was a sprint and Hiltunen put her head down and blew by the tiring Laker to clinch 3rd and the win. Olivia Palazzi had her best race as a cross country runner in 5th, Camryn Dastrup was 7th, Mairead Kelly was 9th and Ava Lapsley was 10th. Kyla Ho was 11th.

"Nobody is going to win a footrace against Devin (Hiltunen)," said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy. "In fact we have some of the strongest finishers in the state. You really don't want to get into a footrace the final 400 with White, Murphy, Hiltunen or Palazzi. All have low 60s 400 meter speed."

QNQ hosted Hanover Tuesday and will host Scituate Oct. 9 both at Pageant field. Many runners will participate in the Smegs Legs Run Saturday morning at Broad Meadows Middle school.

duration of the contest. He also noted Jamal Williams, a left tackle on offense and a defensive tackle on the other side of the ball, has played well these past few weeks.

Although the Presidents were able to gain some momentum late in the contest, Whitman-Hanson was hard to stop in the early portion of the game. The Panthers were able to put up four touchdowns in the first half with an elusive running quarterback, Ethan Phelps, under center. The Presidents were able to put hits on him, but Phelps has been difficult for anyone to bring down in his two seasons as their starting quarterback.

Another issue the Presidents faced was their opponent's strong special teams unit. After scoring touchdowns, they were able to put the Presidents in unfavorable field position to start their next drives.

"Their punter was good," Reardon said. "Their kicker was good. They took advantage of the opportunities and did a nice job of flipping the field. It's a lot harder to score then as opposed to when you have a short field."

Shorn Hawthorne and Brian Nguyen had some success carrying the ball for the Presidents. Hawthorne ran for 36 yards on nine carries while Nguyen had 31 yards on six carries.

The Presidents host Hingham Harbormen (3-1), who run a fast-paced no-huddle offense and are coached by Quincy resident Chris Arouca, Friday at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Registration Open For Recreation Dept. Ice Skating Lessons

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct its eight-week program of Ice Skating Lessons with two classes on Wednesday afternoons at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Learn-to-Skate program has for more than 35 years offered boys and girls age 6-14 the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of skating in a low cost program with quality instruction.

Online registration can be done at QuincyRec.com beginning on Oct. 5.

Walk-in registration is also available in the main office of the Quincy Recreation Department located at One Merrymount Parkway beginning at 9 a.m. on Oct. 5 and will continue on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as long as openings exist.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said the program will have two separate classes beginning at 3:10 and 4:05 p.m. on Wednesdays with classes starting Oct. 25. Both classes offer the same levels of instruction and will run for eight weeks.

The cost of the program is $72 for the eight-week session, which includes instruction and ice time. Participants need to provide their own skates, which may be figure, or hockey skates with a single blade.

Registration is done on a first come first served basis.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394 or visit QuincyRec.com.

Vigil Oct. 12 At United Methodist Church

October Is Domestic Violence Awareness Month

By DAWN HAYES

This year in Massachusetts, we have lost 24 innocent lives to acts of domestic violence. Unfortunately, statistics show that domestic violence is on the rise in our country.

It is important to not stay silent and to shine a light on the issue, so that those in current abusive situations know they are not alone.

DOVE (DOmestic Violence Ended), Inc. will be hosting two vigils in memory and in honor of the victims and survivors of domestic violence in Massachusetts. The first vigil will be held Thursday, Oct. 12, at 6:30 p.m. at the United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St. in Quincy. The second vigil will be held in Randolph on Wednesday, Oct. 18, at 6:30 p.m. in the John Belcher House, 360 N. Main Street in Randolph. The events will include remarks and readings by community and religious leaders.

DOVE's 12th Annual Harvesting Hope Gala Fundraiser will be held on Friday, Oct. 27, at 6 p.m. at the Boston Marriott Quincy. Harvesting Hope is a celebration of DOVE's mission and accomplishments and is DOVE's largest annual fundraiser to support critically needed services for survivors of domestic abuse.

The legendary, Susan Wornick will join us as master of ceremonies. The night includes a buffet-style dinner, live and silent auction, as well as inspirational speeches from survivors of domestic violence. We will end the night with music and dancing featuring Java Jive, who will perform Current Hits, Classic Rock, Motown, Disco, Swing, Soft Rock and R & B. Tickets for the event can be purchased online at www.dovema.org.

Join us for "The CUE Official Launch" on Thursday, Oct. 12, at 6 p.m. at the Boston Winery. The CUE's newest fall/holiday line will be debuted and the event will include a virtual fashion show video, live music, wine, shopping, networking, all while helping to raise awareness of domestic violence. A portion of sales and ticket pricing will be donated to DOVE Inc. Tickets are $10 and can be purchased at www.shopthecue.com.

We hope you are able to join us as we honor and pay tribute to the victims and survivors of domestic violence.

Mission:

Over the last 39 years, DOVE has sheltered nearly 5,000 families and answered more than 45,000 hotline calls. Councillors Want Developers To Pay For Street Work be exempt from the requirement provided the owner of the home planned to reside on site for at least one year after construction.

Money in the fund could be used on a number of items, according to the text of the home rule petition, including traffic studies, road safety audits, signalized intersection inventory, equipment repairs, analysis and improvements to traffic and parking infrastructure in the city, and "all things necessary to correct, remedy, repair, and improve traffic flow, pedestrian safety and bicycle safety" citywide.

Appropriations from the fund would require a request from the mayor and approval by a majority of city councillors.

The new traffic and parking rehabilitation fund would be similar to the city's sewer rehabilitation fund, Hughes said at Monday's meeting; developers pay up to 1 percent of construction costs into the sewer fund. The new account was proposed because of concerns – raised by councillors and residents alike – over the state of roads and sidewalks in Quincy.

"This is in response to what I think many of us have been talking about over the last year and been hearing from a lot of folks across the city," said Hughes, the council president.

"The condition of our streets and sidewalks is always something we talk about, particularly as ward councillors, but never is it more evident than when we come into neighborhoods to do developments."

Hughes, who represents Ward 5 on the council, said ward councillors often talk with residents about the impact development has in their districts, and creating the traffic rehabilitation fund would provide a way for developers to ease some of those impacts.

"We spend a great deal of time explaining about projects and the impact that they will have on traffic, parking, our streets and our sidewalks," Hughes said.

"This would be a great opportunity for folks coming into the city getting the benefit of Quincy to give back to the community and to help ease the burden of so much increased traffic, increased foot travel and really just the increased development in our city."

Chris Walker, Koch's spokesman, said the mayor is reviewing the home rule petition and had yet to decide if he will endorse it should the council pass the measure.

"The mayor is going to take a look at it. He certainly appreciates the work that the council has put into this and the thought that they've put into this," Walker said shortly after Monday's meeting.

"It's certainly worth substantive review and when that review is complete he'll make a determination on whether or not he'll sign it."

New Zoning Sought For Wollaston Center

laston Center.

The new overlay district encourages mixed-use development – buildings with first-floor storefronts and multi-family housing or office space above.

"This really sets the stage for developers to be attracted, to want to develop in the Wollaston Center area," Hughes said.

"[It also] protects the integrity of the neighborhood and protects the integrity of that downtown feel and that small business district feel, but make it something vibrant, something alive, something we can all go to and continue to shop like we used to many years ago."

Hughes said the Wollaston Center area is primed for development and said now is the perfect time to introduce the proposal, given the MBTA plans to renovate the Red Line station in Wollaston over the next several years, a project that will require the station to be closed for 20 months starting in December.

Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the administration is backing the proposal and has worked with Hughes on the changes.

"It's something both the council and the mayor have been talking about for some time, and we give a lot of credit to the councillor for moving this forward," Walker said following the council meeting.

"It's time for something to get done in Wollaston Center and this will create the framework really to tap the full potential of Wollaston Center."

The overlay district would reduce parking requirements for new development. Buildings would be limited to three or five stories, depending on their location – Hughes' proposal did not include boundaries for the overlay district, which is something the council would work on.

New developments in the overlay area would require approval from the Planning Board. The board's design guidelines for Quincy Center would apply in Wollaston Center, unless different design guidelines were adopted for the latter district.

New developments would be required to be pedestrian-friendly to encourage walking and the use of public transportation. Pedestrian-friendly measures include the use of glass on the first floor – the proposal says ground floor facades should be 25 to 50 percent transparent – and locating doors near crosswalks and paths to bus stops or the T station. Covered parking on the lower floors of buildings and grade-level parking are discouraged where the parking area would face public streets, parks or pedestrian paths.

Restaurant To Replace 'Clash Of The Ash'

John Bailey, the ghost ship's manager, said 15,000 people attended the event last year and he expects a similar turnout this time. The Salem's deck will be converted into a haunted house for the event, he said, with the premise that the ship is the last to make it out of Boston Harbor during a zombie outbreak – but it turns out the ship is infected. Food and alcohol will be offered at the event, but only to patrons who have disembarked from the ship.

The board had first opened the hearing on the proposal Sept. 19, and continued the discussion for one week to allow Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall to learn more about the plans. Crispo on Sept. 26 said Croall was in favor of the proposal, as was Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest.

In other business, the board:

Approved a bodyworks license for the Chinese Apitherapy Center, 299 Newport Ave. The license is valid for acupressure and Tui Na.

Approved a bodyworks license for the Wellness Club, 278 Centre St. The bodyworks license is for reflexology only.

Approved a special use permit for the Beechwood Knoll Fast Festival, which will take place from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Oct. 28 at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, 225 Fenno St. The event includes a DJ, games, food and a touch-a-truck featuring police and fire vehicles.

Approved a special use permit for TD Bank, which will hold grand opening events for its branches at 323 Hancock St. and 476 Southern Artery on Oct. 21 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

LGBTQuincy Meetup At Revel Oct. 17

Ani Fisher Honored As Santander Soccer Scholar At N.E. Revolution Match

As part of the Revolution and Santander Soccer Scholars program, which recognizes the outstanding academic and athletic achievements of New England students, Santander Bank recently honored Quincy resident Ani Fisher at Gillette Stadium as the New England Revolution took on the Montreal Impact.

As one of the winning applicants, Ani received four tickets as part of the Santander Soccer Scholars program. She had the opportunity to take a pre-match photo on the field at Gillette Stadium and stand on the sidelines and cheer on the Revolution as they entered the field.

Now through Oct. 5, adults can nominate a deserving student via an online entry form at: http://revolutionsoccer.net/santander-soccer-scholars. Thirty-five winners will receive a VIP match day experience, including four tickets to a designated New England Revolution home match, an on-field photo opportunity with a Revs player, and sideline access to cheer on the team as they take the field.

One grand prize winner will receive a visit to the student's school from Revolution star players, including a soccer clinic for the winner and their classmates, as well as $500 towards their education, in addition to the VIP match day experience.

Santander Soccer Scholars winners are selected at random throughout the 2017 MLS season, with five Scholars honored at designated regular-season home games. To nominate a deserving student and for more information please visit: http://revolutionsoccer.net/santander-soccer-scholars.

Ghost Ship Returns At USS Salem

Ghost Ship Harbor, an immersive Halloween-themed attraction produced by Boston-based Immersive Productions, has returned to the USS Salem at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy.

Ghost Ship Harbor features four distinct attractions.

Returning this year will be Contagion, where visitors will go through an extensive decontamination process and a visit to the infirmaries where there is secretive testing being conducted on what looks to be people who are sick; Plague, where chaos ensues you quickly realize that the ship is not safe from the virus and the only life forms are zombies and a few people left fighting for their lives; and Paranormal Ghost Ship, an upgraded VIP experience that will explore the truly haunted history of the ship.

New this year to Ghost Ship Harbor is Fear No Evil, where visitors will enter the dreams of a little girl named Isabelle. Faced with nightmares of epic proportions, Fear no Evil will push your limits, confronting all the nightmares that Isabelle has been having. You will literally be living this nightmares from you jump from clowns, spiders, claustrophobia, snakes and other evils.

Ghost Ship Harbor will feature three new scare zones and a macabre food village. Ghoulish professional actors, intense costumes and props are designed to shock and frighten all who dare to visit, providing an experience of sheer terror from start to finish.

The USS Salem is a historic, iconic and creepy location already well documented as a haunted destination. The ship, often called, "The Sea Witch" once served as a hospital and morgue following the 1953 Ionian Earthquake where it is documented that over 400 souls lost their life on this ship. Today, many believe spirits have lingered onboard ever since and hundreds of ghost sightings have been documented. The USS Salem was featured on the television show Ghost Hunters and has been featured in books about haunted locations in Massachusetts. The ship was also featured in the 2016 film The Finest Hours produced by Walt Disney Studios.

"Last year, Ghost Ship Harbor brought the first haunted destination in the Boston area for many years, bringing with it the fear and fun people look for during this season," said Matt DiRoberto, founder of Immersive Productions and Ghost Ship Harbor." "This year, we've improved on last year's event tenfold, added additional attractions and upped the scare factor, ensuring that once again, Ghost Ship Harbor will be a destination event for people seeking fear across New England. We look forward to to scaring the ship out of you."

Ghost Ship Harbor runs 18 nights now through Oct. 31. Tickets are on-sale now and advance purchases begin at $29.99 with Fast Pass and VIP Experiences also available. Tickets at the Box Office onsite will begin at $34.99. Not appropriate for children under age 12.

The First Class Of 'Leadership South Shore' Graduates

The first class of Leadership South Shore, an initiative launched by South Shore Bank President and CEO Jim Dunphy in conjunction with the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, held its first graduation Tuesday evening, completing the first year of a program designed to create the South Shore's next generation of leaders.

Held at Laura's Center for the Arts at the Emilson YMCA, the event celebrated the achievements of the 2017 graduating class, a group of just over a dozen of the area's top business and civic leaders. Throughout the past few months, the group explored community issues around health and human services, justice, education, and arts and culture at diverse locations ranging from Father Bills and Mainspring homeless shelter to the South Shore Conservatory.

"Just in our first year of this program, I think we've learned a lot about our community, which is the first step in making the South Shore a better place for everyone," Dunphy said. "I'm excited at the level of engagement our class has shown, and South Shore Bank will continue to support this program in years to come."

Addressing the graduates, South Shore Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Peter Forman stressed the importance of continuing their community involvement post-graduation.

"Who are the leaders who will take over for those who built the South Shore 30 to 40 years ago?" he said. "Private sector leadership is going to make the difference shaping the South Shore."

'Who is My Neighbor?' Multifaith Conversations In Oct. At Quincy Point Cong.

Beginning in October the Missions and Social Justice Committee of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, hosts a series of forums entitled, "Who is my Neighbor?"

Each session will feature a presentation by a leader from a different faith community, a time for discussion, and a time for refreshments and fellowship.

The purpose of the series is to learn about each other's faith traditions and engage in faithful dialogue. Carol Johnston, Chair of the committee organizing the event says that, "We can learn about other religions, celebrate together our joys and losses, and stand in solidarity in the event of hateful behavior targeted at a specific group." The series is free and open to the public.

• Wednesday, Oct. 11, at 7 p.m. Imam Mohamed Tabarssi from the Jafaria Association of Connecticut

• Wednesday, Oct. 17, at 7 p.m. Rabbi David Winsip from Temple Beth David of the South Shore

• Wednesday, Oct. 24 at 7 p.m. Father Martin Dzenheleski, from Holy Trinity Parish, Quincy.

The sessions will take place in the Social Hall of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy Point. located on the lower level. Handicap access and parking are at the Abbey Road entrance.

The event is sponsored by the South Shore Interfaith Movement, UCC Southeast Area Missions, and is funded by a grant from the Pilgrim Association of the Massachusetts Conference of the United Church of Christ. To reach the church call 617-773-6424 or email office@quincypointcong.org.

as the development of the Wollaston Center District will be enhanced to the extent such development involves limited vehicular access; and, should be consonant with the development goals for the district. Indicators of compliance with this criterion include a. Ground floors, particularly where they have public streets, public parks, and publicly accessible pathways, consist of spaces that are actively inhabited by people, such as retail stores, consumer service businesses and restaurants, general office, educational or residential uses. Where a mix of activities are accommodated in a building, the more active uses are encouraged facing public streets, parks and pathways.

b. Covered parking on the lower floors of a building and on-grade open parking, shall be discouraged where the parking faces a public street, public park, or publicly accessible pathways.

c. Ground floors should be generally 25-50% transparent. The greatest amounts of glass would be expected for retail uses with lesser amounts for office, institutional or residential use.

d. Entries to buildings shall be located so as to ensure safe pedestrian movement across streets, encourage walking as a preferred mode of travel within the city and to encourage the use of public transit for employment and other trips. Relating building entries as directly as possible to crosswalks and to pathways that lead to bus stops and transit stations is encouraged; builds shall be located and developed to encourage pedestrian pathways over the lot and through the District.

4. Where appropriate, housing shall be a component of any large, commercial development

5. The common areas both internal and external shall, where appropriate, be accessible to the pedestrian public. Restrictions on this access can be established by the applicant or its successor in interest.

6. The location, dimensional and aesthetic features of the proposed development shall not be detrimental to the architectural character of the downtown and, if in the Wollaston Center District, with the character of Wollaston Center; to the improvement of traffic access and circulation; and to the creation of active pedestrian and street life within the District.

7. There will be no nuisance or serious hazard to vehicles or pedestrians.

8. Adequate and appropriate facilities (including, but not limited to parking and loading) will be provided for the proper operation of the proposed use. Said facilities shall be located and designed so as to be compatible with neighboring developments.

9. Historical buildings and places within the Quincy Historical District are to be respected and protected. Special consideration shall be given to the preservation of historical buildings and places within the Wollaston Center District, where applicable.

PUBLIC NOTICE
2017 - 161

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council to be passed at a later date:

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Quincy as follows:

The City of Quincy, under the provisions of Article LXXXIX, Section 8 of the Amendments of the Constitution of the Commonwealth, hereby petitions the General Court to enact the following legislation in substantially the same form.

An Act Establishing a Special Account for the City of Quincy
Traffic and Parking Rehabilitation and Improvement Fund

SECTION 1. Notwithstanding the provisions of any general or special regulation, rule or law to the contrary, the City of Quincy is hereby authorized to establish a special account to be known as the "City of Quincy Traffic and Parking Rehabilitation and Improvement Fund". The purpose of such fund is to provide revenue for the funding of traffic studies, road safety audits, signalized intersection inventory, equipment repairs, analysis and improvements to traffic and parking infrastructure in the City of Quincy and provide revenues to do all things necessary to correct, remedy, repair and improve traffic flow, pedestrian safety and bicycle safety throughout the City. Such special account shall be maintained by the City Treasurer of said City in a banking institution doing business in the Commonwealth, and expenditures from such special account shall be made subject to appropriation initiated by the Mayor upon the recommendation of the Commissioner of Traffic, Parking, and Lighting of said City and approved by a majority vote of the City Council.

Contributions to such account shall be made by applicants for building permits for the construction, erection, improvement, reuse or rehabilitation of land or the buildings thereon for industrial, commercial, multi-family and residential uses. Excluded however, shall be one, two and three family residence(s) if the owner will occupy said residence for at least one year from the date of completion. The method and amount of such contribution from said private sources shall be as determined by ordinance, but shall not exceed one percent of estimates construction costs. Said ordinance shall provide for the method of determining the amount of each contribution from such applicants based upon their anticipated number of occupants by each and for the particular kind of development contemplated.

Appropriation from time to time may be made by said City into said special account for the purpose of providing additional funds for aforesaid improvements to do all things necessary to correct, remedy, repair and improve traffic flow and pedestrian safety throughout the City.

Said City Treasurer shall be authorized to invest monies in said special account and the interest accruing shall inure to the benefit of the special account. Such account shall be maintained in accordance with generally accepted principals and shall be audited annually with the cost of such audit charged to said account.

SECTION 2. The Director of Traffic, Parking Alarm and Lighting for the said City may make applications for available state and federal government grants for improvements to do all things necessary to correct, remedy, repair and improve traffic flow and pedestrian safety throughout the City and to pledge any and all such sums of money in said special account with the City for any such matching grants for the construction, improvement, repair and rehabilitation of said traffic equipment and infrastructure.

SECTION 3. The City Auditor shall file jointly with the City Council, the Mayor, the Treasurer of said City, and with the Bureau of Accounts, a written report relative to such special account established in Section 1. Said report shall be made within one hundred twenty (120) days after the books of accounts are closed for each fiscal year. Such report shall include a financial statement relating to the operation, maintenance and expenditures made under the said special account. The City Council may review and comment on said report and may file such review and comments with the State Auditor.

SECTION 4. This act shall take effect upon passage.

A copy of this order may be examined at the Office of the City Clerk, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA Monday through Friday during regular working hours 8:30 A.M. to 4:30 P.M.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might feel compelled to get involved on the "right side" of a seemingly unfair fight. But appearances can be deceptive. Get the facts before going forth into the fray.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Bullying others into agreeing with your position could cause resentment. Instead, persuade them to join you by making your case on a logical point-by-point basis.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Resist pushing for a workplace decision you might feel is long overdue. Your impatience could backfire. Meanwhile, focus on that still-unsettled personal situation.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspects favor doing something different. You might decide to redecorate your home, or take a trip somewhere you've never been, or even change your hairstyle.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might want to take a break from your busy schedule to restore your energy levels. Use this less-hectic time to also reassess your plans and make needed changes.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) What you like to think of as determination might be seen by others as nothing more than stubbornness. Try to be more flexible if you hope to get things resolved.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Watch that you don't unwittingly reveal work-related information to the wrong person. Best to say nothing until you get official clearance to open up.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) With things settling down at work or at home, you can now take on a new challenge without fear of distraction. Be open to helpful suggestions from colleagues.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your creativity can help resolve an emotional situation that might otherwise get out of hand. Continue to be your usual caring, sensitive self.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You could impress a lot of influential people with the way you untangle a few knotty problems. Meanwhile, a colleague is set to share some welcome news.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Aspects favor recharging your social life and meeting new people. It's also a good time to renew friendships that might be stagnating due to neglect on both sides.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Congratulations. Your talent for working out a highly technical problem earns you well-deserved praise. The weekend could bring news about a friend or relative.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of justice makes you a strong advocate for the rights of people and animals alike.

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- As producer Ryan Murphy was getting over the disappointment of his miniseries "Feud: Bette and Joan" winning only two Emmys (for hair and makeup) out of 18 nominations, his thoughts must have turned to the lawsuit filed by two-time Oscar-winning actress, Olivia de Havilland.

The Bette Davis/Joan Crawford feud allegedly began in 1945, when Crawford was dropped from her MGM contract after 25 years, and was able to talk Warner Brothers studio head Jack Warner into letting her be "Mildred Pierce" (1945). Her first film of a four-picture deal for Warners was the non-paying benefit film "Hollywood Canteen" (Bette Davis' pet project). Davis considered "Mildred Pierce" the one that got away," and she felt Crawford stole it from her, along with the Oscar she would have won for it.

Only one actress depicted in "Feud: Bette and Joan" is alive today (Crawford died in 1977 at 71, and Davis died in 1989 at 81). To add narrative to the eight-part mini-series, producers used Oscar-winners Catherine Zeta-Jones as Olivia de Havilland and Kathy Bates as Joan Blondell (who died in 1979 at 73). They never expected de Havilland, at 101 years old and living in France, to file a lawsuit.

"The series made me look like a gossip who exploited others for her own gain, and despite being the only living person portrayed in the show, I wasn't consulted," de Havilland said. We checked the book "Bette & Joan: The Divine Feud," by Shaun Considine, published in 1989, for which he had interviewed both Davis and Crawford, and couldn't find any quotes attributed to de Havilland as depicted.

Because of her advanced age, Olivia has asked the court for and been granted a speedy trial. On Nov. 27, "Feud's" lawyers will have to produce evidence proving De Havilland actually said the things she claims have defamed her. She's so adamant about this case she'll probably travel from France to testify.

What happened to Simon Baker, star of "The Mentalist" (2008-2015)? He returned to his native Australia when the show ended, took time off and began preparing to direct himself in the upcoming '70s surfing drama "Breath," which premiered at the Toronto Film Festival to good reviews.

Universal Pictures was disappointed in Tom Cruise's recent "Mummy" film, which cost $195 million to make and grossed $408 million (a little better than break even in Hollywood terms), especially since his newest release, "American Made," grossed $34 million of its $80 million cost before even opening in the U.S. Universal was hoping his star power would kick off its slate of horror remakes, including its next, "The Bride of Frankenstein," and more Cruise "Mummy" films. Tom loved his "Mummy," but he loves being "American Made" more, and so do most moviegoers!

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Before Bobbleheads, There Were 'Nodders'--- Two types of collectors bid for a porcelain figure of a well-dressed French couple that was sold at a Southern auction in 2016. A 14-inch-high Asian sorcerer and his companion wearing brightly decorated clothes were "nodders." The heads moved and looked as if they were nodding "yes" when the figures were moved. Nodders were first made in China in the late 1600s, often showing a smiling, agreeable Buddha. By Victorian times in England, toys were made with nodding heads, as well as decorative porcelain figures of all kinds that could nod "yes" or "no" or even have hands playing a piano.

Because of the nodders' entertainment as well as decorative value, they were collected in the 1900s. Many new and fake nodders appeared on the market. The second group of bidders probably collected porcelains by Jacob Petit's company, a French firm that made many decorative porcelains from the early 1800s to 1862. The successful bid for the nodder was $562.

Q: Two years ago, I bought an American Federal one-drawer stand that was made in about 1815. The description said the drawer has "rare Vaseline glass pulls that appear to be original." I had no idea what Vaseline glass was, so I looked up the information on the internet. I'm concerned that the glass color is due to radiation emission, and I wonder about its safety. One of the pulls has a crack. Does this increase radiation emission? I have grandchildren who visit frequently and have relegated this piece of furniture to a little-used room. I'm considering selling this stand.

A: You can test the knobs on your stand to see if they are Vaseline glass by holding one under a black light. Vaseline glass will glow a neon greenish-yellow color because it contains a small amount of uranium dioxide. You don't have to worry, though, because they are not exposing you or your grandchildren to harmful amounts of radiation. Even though the knobs may contain very small amounts of uranium, it is less than what you get from the atmosphere and things that occur naturally every day. It is safe to use your stand. Radiation won't leak out of a crack in the glass.

Tip: Wear cotton gloves when cleaning any type of metal. Oils in the skin will leave a mark.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was Irish author and editor Robert Lynd who made the following sage observation: "History may be read as the story of the magnificent rearguard action fought during several thousand years by dogma against curiosity."

* Historians say that the Halloween tradition of trick-or-treating dates back to the early European tradition of mumming, when costumed dancers would go door to door to perform choreographed routines, as well as songs and plays, in exchange for treats.

* You might be surprised to learn that on a per-capita basis, Finland has more heavy-metal bands than any other country on Earth.

* If you're fortunate enough to be planning a trip to Argentina, you'll almost certainly make a stop in Buenos Aires, the capital. While you're there, keep an eye out for a mobile work by Raul Lemesoff. The artist, known for his eccentricity, converted a 1979 Ford Falcon into a kind of a tank -- it even has a turret that swivels. Instead of soldiers and armaments, however, this tank carries books on shelves both inside and outside the vehicle. Lemesoff drives his "Weapon of Mass Instruction" through the city streets, delivering free books to all comers. His only requirement? Recipients must promise to read what he gives them.

* You've certainly heard of "Tarzan of the Apes." Edgar Rice Burroughs' 1912 work has been adapted over and over again -- for radio, television, film and more. You probably weren't aware, though, that the novel was such an instant and ongoing success that Burroughs wrote 24 sequels.

* In a recent survey of pet owners, 43 percent of respondents said that they'd be eating healthier themselves if they ate the same thing they fed their pets.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Use Lego people to hold your charging cables when not in use. Their hands are the perfect size to hold cords, and you can stick the figures to a small Lego base that's secured to whatever is convenient -- a table edge, your night stand or even the wall itself -- with some double-faced tape.

* "New shoes too tight? Wear a pair of thick socks, and slip your shoes on. Run a hair dryer over the areas where it's too tight, and the heat will help those spots expand. Test in an inconspicuous area first if you are unsure that the fabric can take the heat!" -- C.W. in Oregon

* Got your cellphone wet? Try the rice trick first. Power down if possible and remove the protective cover, then fill a zipper-top plastic baggie with plain uncooked rice. Insert your phone and seal the bag, making sure that all parts of the phone are surrounded by the rice. Let it sit for 12 hours so the rice can draw the moisture from your device. Then try to power up.

* "Want to seal your sugar bag (or any all-plastic bag)? Fold over the top at least an inch, and cover the fold with a strip of aluminum foil -- both sides. Lay the bag on its side. Iron the fold, which is trapped inside the foil. It melts the plastic inside. Let cool and remove the foil." -- R.Y. in Kentucky

* Need to get into a crevice for cleaning? Position a condiment cap (the ones that come with a squirt bottle) on the hose of a vacuum. Now you can get the crumbs in a keyboard or that little spot under the fridge, etc.

Quincy Democratic City Committee Breakfast Oct. 15

Joe, Josephine Shea To Receive Dennis F. Ryan Community Award

The Quincy Democratic City Committee will host its 29th Annual Breakfast on Sunday, Oct. 15th at 10 a.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

The Committee announces that the 2017 Dennis F. Ryan Community Award will be presented to Joe and Josephine Shea.

"This award, given in the name of a gentleman who was passionate in his support and beliefs of the Democratic Party is being awarded to a couple such as Joe and Josephine who exemplified those principals through their words and deeds," City-Wide Chairperson Alicia Gardner on behalf of the Committee said,

JOE AND JOSEPHINE SHEA will receive the Dennis F. Ryan Community Award from the Quincy Democratic City Committee at the group's annual breakfast Sunday, Oct. 15.

Joe Shea currently serves as a Norfolk County Commissioner and was the Quincy City Clerk for 24 years. Joe has been a member of the Quincy Democratic Committee since 1968, 49 years; a delegate to the MA Democratic Convention from 1970-2014, 44 years and was a national organizer for Mondale for President, 1983-1984. Joe also serves on the Board of Governors for Quincy College and on the Board of Trustees for the Norfolk County Agricultural High School.

Josephine Shea has been a member of the Ward 5 Democratic Committee for many years and served as the city-wide secretary. Josephine has worked on countless political candidates campaigns. Josephine served as a member of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board. She currently serves as the Vice President of the Board of Directors for Quincy Community Actions Program where she also as President of the board for six years.

"The Committee looks forward to honoring this couple who have served this committee for so many years and to their life-long commitment to this great city," Gardner said.

Tickets per person are $30 pre-event, or $35 at the door. Table Sponsor are also available for $300.

For tickets, make checks payable to the Quincy Democratic City Committee (QDCC) and mailed to, Alicia Gardner, 41 Deerfield St., North Quincy, MA 02171. Tickets will be held at the door.

The Quincy Democratic City Committee is a Committee of 200 plus members and associate members. There are six Committees for each of the six wards in Quincy. Members of the Committee are committed democrats who work hard to support democratic candidates and issues.

Anyone interested in joining a Ward Committee is asked to contact Alicia Gardner at alicia.gardner6@gmail.com.

DOVE
Domestic Violence Ended
OCTOBER IS DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AWARENESS MONTH

Millions of women each year are victims of domestic and sexual violence. Violence against women affects everyone- the victims are our sisters, mothers, partners, friends, clients and co-workers. Most people know someone who is or has been a victim of violence, even though the victim may not have disclosed the violence. It is hard to know how to respond to the victim and to the perpetrator, but peer and community involvement can be the most effective forms of intervention.

Through the month of October, DOVE will provide information in the Quincy Sun weekly on how you can help to end domestic violence. Listed below are some basic suggestions on what you can do. See DOVE's website for more information: www.dovema.org .

Myths and Facts about Dating Violence

Domestic violence usually only happens in married couples.
MYTH. As many as one-third of all high school and college-age young people experience violence in an intimate or dating relationship. Physical abuse is as common among high school and college-age couples as married couples.

While females can be abusive and abuse happens in same-sex couples, it is much more common for males to abuse their female partners.
FACT. About 90% of known victims of relationship violence are females abused by their male partners.

People abuse their partners because they can't control their anger.
MYTH. People who abuse others are not usually out of control. They do it to gain power and control over the other person. They often use tactics besides violence such as threats, intimidation, psychological abuse and isolation from friends or family to control their partners.

People who are abused often blame themselves for their abuse.
FACT. Most people who are abused blame themselves for causing the violence. However, the fact is that NO ONE is ever to blame for another person's violence; violence is always a choice, and the responsibility is 100% with the person who is violent.

People who abuse are psychos/crazy.
MYTH. Abusers are "normal" people that we encounter in everyday life. They can be the smartest, quietest, coolest, or the best athlete on campus. What they have in common is their use of coercion and threats to control a dating partner or spouse.

DOVE is committed to partnering with diverse communities, families and individuals impacted by domestic violence. We promote hope, healing, safety, and social change by providing a broad range of preventive and responsive services.

DARE Officers Ramping Up Substance Abuse Awareness

By TOM GORMAN

The Quincy Police DARE officers are working with school officials to ramp up their approach to students about the dangers of substance abuse.

During a recent school committee meeting about the district's health and wellness and student support initiatives, DARE Officer Don Sautter said he and fellow DARE Officer John Grazioso will be stepping up efforts to deal with the opioid crisis and marijuana legalization. These two issues have been drawing concern among school officials.

The DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program is presented in the elementary and middle schools. The officers interact with students and address drug and alcohol issues.

"We tell kids it's 'too smart to start,'" he said. "When they start, it's a slippery slope and leads to a lot of problems in people's lives and lost opportunities."

Sautter explained that the DARE curriculum has changed over the past few years. Now called "Keep it Real, DARE," it is more life skills based.

Committee OKs Sober-House Ordinance

By SCOTT JACKSON

A City Council committee gave its approval to an ordinance that would establish licensing requirements for sober homes operating in Quincy.

The council's oversight committee met two-and-a-half hours on Oct. 3 and heard from city and state officials and sober house operators before voting 5-0 in favor of the new ordinance. The full council could pass the ordinance as soon as its next meeting on Oct. 16; a public hearing on the proposal is set for 7 p.m. that night in the Great Hall of the McIntyre Government Center.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, who is the chairman of the oversight committee, introduced the ordinance on Sept. 5. Council President Kirsten Hughes and Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest co-sponsored the measure.

Sober houses provide a group home for those recovering from addiction and are the last step in the recovery

Democratic, Republican Committees Hosting Candidates Night Oct. 26

Public Invited To Attend Forum At Quincy High School

The Quincy Democratic and Republican City Committees will host a City-Wide Candidates Night on Thursday, Oct. 26th.

The forum will take place at the Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center at Quincy High School. The program will run from 6:45 to 9 p.m.

"In the spirit of cooperation with the Republican City Committee we are co-hosting this forum," said Alicia Gardener, chairperson, Quincy Democratic City Committee. "Our desire is to provide the citizens of Quincy an opportunity to hear directly from the individuals who wish to and do represent them on the City Council and School Committee."

"The City of Quincy elections are non-partisan, whether you are a Republican or a Democrat; as a resident this election means a great deal as whom we have represent our city. Election Day is Tuesday, Nov. 7th, and I believe that the residents that attend this forum will come away with a good understanding of each of the candidates as they prepare to vote," said John Iredale, chairperson of the Quincy Republican City Committee.

All ward councillor, councillor at-large and school committee candidates have all been asked to participate in a moderated questions and answer style format.

Quincy Access Television will be taping the event. Check www.qatv.org for broadcast times.

Marina Bay - Ferry Running Revised Schedule

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Marina Bay ferry, which connects Quincy to Boston and Winthrop, is running on a revised schedule for the months of October and November.

Quincy is in the second year of a partnership with Winthrop on the ferry service, which uses Winthrop's 73-passenger ship, the Valkyrie. The service has been extended through Nov. 30 of this year.

The ferry runs between Winthrop, Boston's Rowes Wharf and Seaport District, and Squantum Point Park in Quincy.

Under the revised schedule, the Valkyrie leaves Quincy at 7:30 a.m. weekday mornings with stops in Winthrop at 7:55 a.m., the Seaport District at 8:20 a.m. and Rowes Wharf at 8:35 a.m. A second trip departs Quincy at 10:30 a.m. and arrives at Rowes Wharf at 11 a.m.

Fall Schedule On Page 13

In the afternoon, the ferry departs Winthrop at 4 p.m., the Seaport District at 4:20 p.m. and Rowes Wharf at 4:35 p.m. before arriving in Quincy at 5 p.m. The ferry then arrives in Winthrop, departing there at 5:25 p.m., leaves Rowes Wharf at 5:45 p.m., the Seaport District at 5:55 p.m., then arrives back in Winthrop at 6:15 p.m. before returning to Quincy at 6:45 p.m.

'Legend Of Christmas In Story, Song' Parade Theme

By SCOTT JACKSON

November's Quincy Christmas Parade will feature more than 100 units marching along Hancock Street to the theme "the legend of Christmas in story and song," which was suggested by a lifelong Quincy resident who lives steps away from the cavalcade's route.

This year's parade, the 65th annual Quincy Christmas Parade, is set for Nov. 26.

Ellington Road resident Carolyn Leuchte suggested the winning theme chosen by the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee. The parade committee chose Leuchte's suggestion over more than two dozen others.

Organizations that participate in the parade base their floats on the theme and floats are awarded prizes based in part on how they adhere it. Students in Quincy's elementary schools also create posters based on the theme as part of a separate contest.

"Traditions of Christmas" was the theme for last year's parade. "The music of Christmas," "Christmas through the eyes of a child," and "old-fashioned Christmas" have also been chosen as themes in recent years.

As the winner of the parade theme contest, Leuchte will be able to ride in the parade in an open car, joined by her five grandchildren, ages 6 to 10. She will also receive a commemorative plaque during a ceremony the day of the parade.

Leuchte has attended the parade for many years, watching the annual event from the corner of Hancock and Ellington Streets with family and friends. She has also entered the theme contest many times, and is pleased this year's submission covers a broad range of areas for float builders and poster designers to work with.

Ask the GEMOLOGIST
BY JEFFREY M. BERTMAN GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

THE RAINBOW GEMSTONE

Because tourmaline is one of the rare gemstones that comes in all the colors of the rainbow, one of October's birthstones has earned the nickname "rainbow gemstone." Until recently, however, the color yellow was conspicuously missing from tourmaline's repertoire. Then, in the year 2000, yellow tourmaline was discovered in Malawi in southeast Africa. This exceedingly rare, clear, pure yellow "canary" tourmaline owes its nearly electric yellow color to fine traces of magnesium. The best yellow tourmalines have exceptional brilliance with an almost neon-like quality. While most of these gemstones weigh less than one carat, they are well-suited for wearing. Like all tourmalines, the canary yellow gemstones rate 7 to 7.5 on the Mohs scale (of hardness).

Tourmaline is an exquisite gem of many colors. Some stones even display more than one color, like the "watermelon" tourmaline of pink and green. For fine, beautiful jewelry in all of nature's wondrous array of colors, we welcome you to visit our showroom of exciting, inspiring displays. South Shore YMCA Strypers To Host Inaugural Bob McGillicuddy Invitational

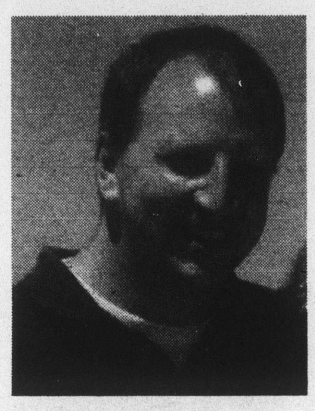
The South Shore YMCA Strypers swim team will host the inaugural Bob McGillicuddy Invitational, Oct. 20 – 22, at the Lincoln-Hancock Pool in Quincy.

Approximately 460 swimmers ranging in age from six to 18-years-old will participate in the three-day, USA Invitational.

The meet honors the late Bob McGillicuddy whose untimely death on Jan. 31, 2017 to a rare disease Amyloidosis stunned both the Quincy and Hanover communities, his family, and friends. The beloved science teacher worked at Sterling Middle School in Quincy for 22 years earning four state citations and Teacher's Awards for his exceptional work.



BOB McGILLICUDDY

McGillicuddy re-invigorated the Quincy/North Quincy swimming and diving high school programs as head coach totaling 61 victories in eight years. The Eastern Massachusetts Interscholastic Swim Coaches Academy gave him their Meritorious Service Award in 2014 and then bestowed its highest honor, the Jack McDonald Award, posthumously (2017) given to those with the qualities of fairness, dedication, and respect for high school swimming.

Prior to QNQ, he became the South Shore YMCA assistant swim coach in 2008 where he tried to serve as ambassador for both Hanover where he lived and Quincy where he taught. McGillicuddy believed that all children who live in coastal cities should know how to swim so he forged a partnership between the Quincy Public Schools and the South Shore YMCA starting a Learn to Swim program for both Lincoln-Hancock and Clifford H. Marshall elementary schools (2013-14).

Participants in the Bob McGillicuddy Invitational include Hamilton Dynasty Swim Club, Hockomock Area YMCA, Inner City Marine Swim Club, JCC Sea Serpents, Marshfield Area Swim Klub, Metro West YMCA, Sailfish Swim Club, Taunton Tigers, Team New England, and Webbs Tornado Swim Team.

Proceeds from the meet tee-shirt sales will go to the SSYMCA Annual Campaign in Bob's honor, a fund that provides scholarships for its swimmers. A bits of good for Bob character award will be given to a male and female swimmer during a presentation on Sunday, Oct. 22 at 2:30 p.m.

City To Honor Korean War Vets Nov. 11

By GEORGE NICHOLSON
Director
Quincy Veterans Services

Continuing with this year's theme, as begun with the Flag Day Parade, when the City's Korean War veterans were honored collectively as the parade marshals, the City of Quincy would like to honor as many of its Korean War veterans as possible during this year's Veterans Day Observance ceremonies Saturday, Nov. 11.

As was done with our Vietnam Veterans during last year's Veterans Day ceremony, the city would like to make a special presentation to the veterans of the Korean War.

Over 1,500 Quincy residents saw service during the Korean War. Thirty-eight of them gave their lives in that effort and are memorialized on our Korean War Memorial monument outside of Veterans Stadium. Korean War veterans who were residents of Quincy at the time they enlisted or are residents of Quincy now, are asked to call the Quincy Veterans Services Office at 617-376-1192 and leave their contact information so that a list of recipients can be compiled for planning, seating and presentation purposes.

Please note that, for all who wish to participate and be recognized during this ceremony, the deadline for providing this information will be Friday, Oct. 20th. Please note that for the purpose of this ceremony, the residency requirement is the only qualifier. Where and how you served during the Korean War is not a factor.

Families of those Quincy Korean War veterans who are deceased may also apply for recognition during this ceremony.

Councillor At-Large Candidates Forum Wednesday

Quincy Asian Resources Inc. is partnering with Asian Community Development Corporation and South Cove Community Health Center to organize a bi-lingual forum for councillor at-large candidates on Wednesday, Oct. 11 at North Quincy High school from 6 to 7 p.m.

Six candidates who have been invited to participate in the forum are incumbents Noel DiBona and Nina Liang, former Ward 2 councillor Daniel Raymondi, Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, School Committeewoman Anne Mahoney and first-time candidate Stephen Tougas.

Candidates' comments will be simultaneously translated to Cantonese and Mandarin at the forum. Refreshments will be provided.

The forum is free to the public and all residents are welcomed to attend.

At-Large Candidates Forum At Library Oct. 23

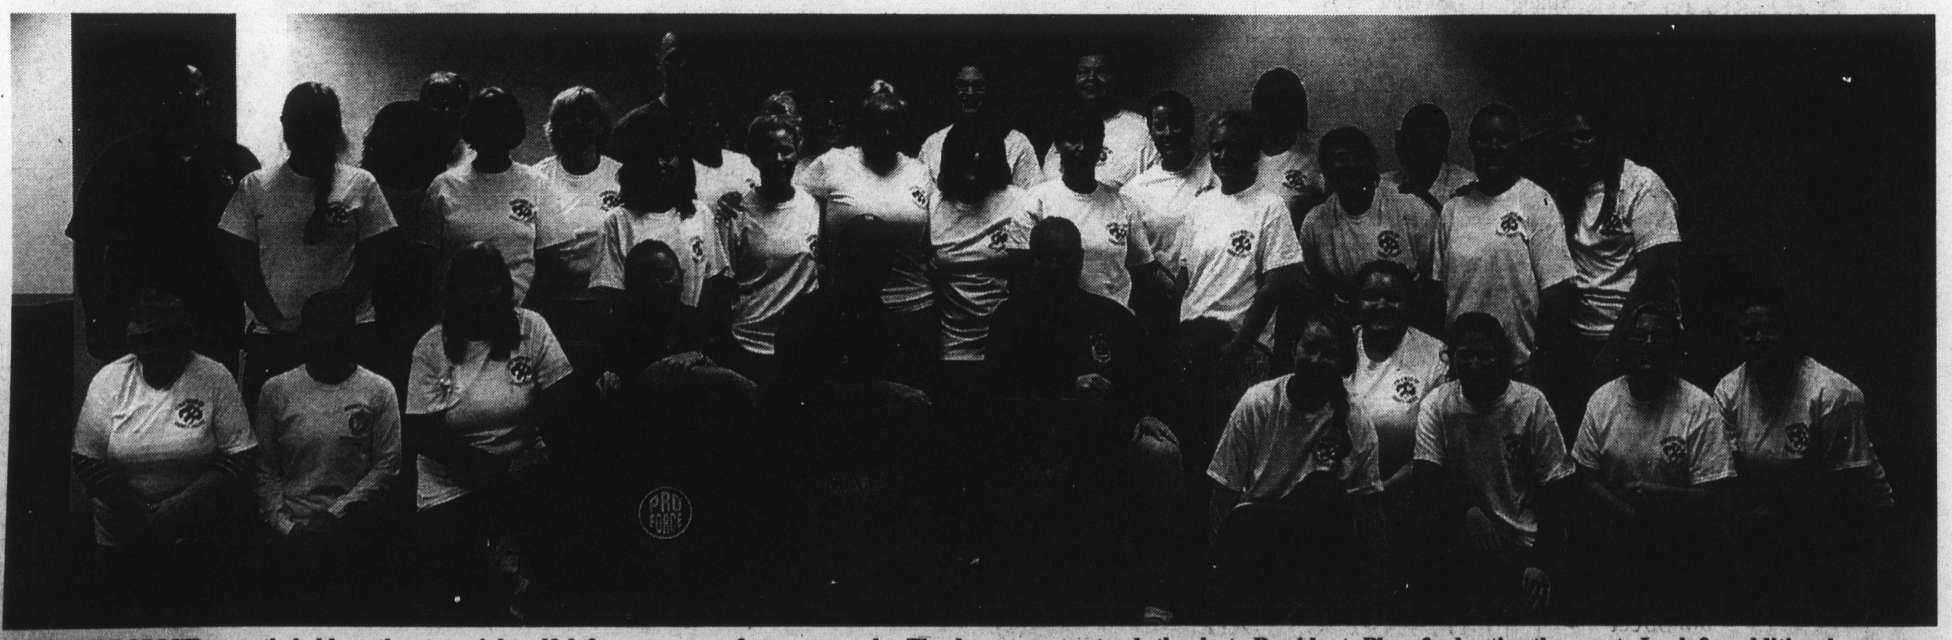
March Forward Quincy in partnership with Thomas Crane Library, will host a Candidate Night on Monday, Oct. 23 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. for candidates running to fill the three at-large councillor seats on the city election ballot Nov. 7.

All candidates have been invited to present their views on the issues in response to questions posed by the audience. Each candidate will be given a couple of minutes for an opening and closing statement; however, the majority of the evening will be spent answering the public's questions.

For more information regarding March Forward Quincy and the At-Large Candidate conversation, check out https://t.co/kn-89VLP2F9

The event is free and open to the public but space at the library is limited so we are asking those interested in attending to RSVP at https://www.eventbrite.com/e/quincy-at-large-candidate-night-tickets-38108230744.

A few spots will be reserved for walk-ins.



QUINCY POLICE recently held another two night self defense program for women only. The department extends thanks to Presidents Place for hosting the event. Look for additional programs monthly via the QPD facebook page.

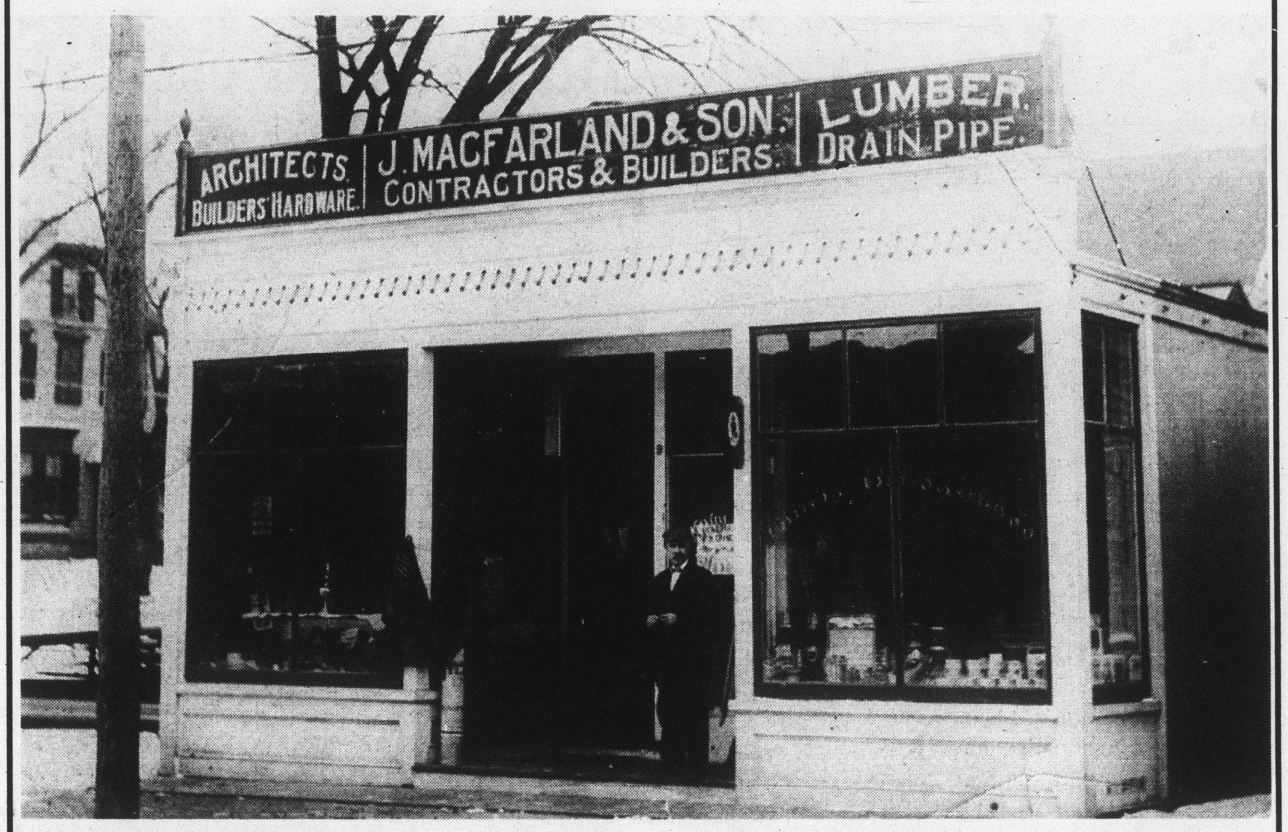
Scenes From Yesterday



FOR OVER 75 years MacFarland's was the place to buy hardware in Wollaston. James MacFarland built this building and opened his store at 9 Brook St. in 1900. In more recent years the business operated from a newer building to the left of this one. But this building is still extant and is a rare surviving example of Quincy's early 20th century commercial architecture. The sign and stoop are gone but the windows and doorway and most of the other details on the façade of this wooden building are unchanged from when this postcard was mailed to Nova Scotia in 1912. Today, this store is home to the Brook-Atlantic bottle and can return center. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Thank You, Geoff Hennessy, For All You Do

This week the Quincy Track Club formally concludes another successful year with its annual banquet.

Each year 200 plus young athletes and their proud parents assemble to celebrate the season with their old and new friends. The club director, Geoff Hennessy, will offer them words of encouragement and confidence and then present each athlete with an award. He has been doing this for almost 40 years, but it's only part of his tireless commitment to Quincy and the track and field community. He is also known as one of the best high school coaches in the state.

I have known Geoff for almost 20 years and I have always admired his genuine concern for all his athletes regardless of their skill level.

Sometimes things happen in life that make us pause and take stock of the good people in our lives. I will always be grateful for the profoundly positive impact he has had on the lives of my family. He is not only one of the best coaches I know, he is one of the best men I know.

Thanks Geoff.

Freedom Of Speech, Freedom To Protest

This is in response to this week's article "Quincy Youth Football Stands Tall, Proud for Anthem":

It's disgusting to see children used as pawns in a game of political football.

I sincerely doubt coach Flavin took the time to discuss why Colin Kaepernick and his fellow NFL players chose to kneel for the Star Spangled Banner. These players are kneeling because they are rightly protesting injustice in this country.

I also doubt coach Flavin told his players that Nate Boyer, an Army Green Beret who played with the Seahawks, said Kaepernick's protest was his inalienable right that took a lot of courage to do.

These children should learn it's not disrespectful to kneel, and that they, as Americans, have the freedom of speech and freedom to protest.

City Plans Fines Hike On Illegal Parking

The cost of illegal parking may be going up.

Members of the Traffic Commission met with Mayor Arthur H. Tobin to discuss a draft plan that would divide the city into zones carrying fines of $10, $5 and $3 for illegal parking.

The Red Zone ($10) would be in the business areas and around the MBTA stations. The Yellow Zones ($5) along the city's main arteries and the White Zone ($3) in residential areas.

Tobin said it is hoped to have the draft plan ready as an ordinance for the Nov. 16 meeting of the City Council so the plan can be in effect by the Christmas season if the Council approves.

"We have to stop Quincy from becoming the dumping ground for MBTA parkers," said Police Chief Paul LaHive, a member of the commission.

ESTIMATED TAX BILLS IN MAIL BY END OF MONTH

Estimated tax bills should be in the mail to Quincy property owners before the end of October.

Governor Edward J. King last week signed legislation permitting 102 cities and towns that have not completed the revaluation process to send out estimated bills in their first mailings.

Then, once the actual tax rate is established, the adjustments will be made during the second mailings in May.

Assessor Patricia Ceriani said the estimated bills that are sent out will be the same as those that were mailed out for the first half of fiscal 1981.

The estimated bills, she said, will save the city considerable interest that would have to be paid on money borrowed to keep the city running.
